BRITISH COLONIALS

I specialize in these, and hold one of the most valuable combined 19th AND 20TH CENTURY stocks in existence. Enquiries invited, quotations furnished, and want lists promptly attended to.

MODERN MINT BLOCKS

I hold a wonderful stock of these—extremely strong in the favorite stamps of the present reign—both high and low values. Many excellent Edwardian blocks are also on hand, and I have been able to fill many of our leading block collectors' requirements right from stock. Many high values of Ireland, Malta, St. Kitts, etc.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

We cannot take time or space in the WEEKLY to make offers to cover our enormous stock. Let us know what you want? Below we name a few countries in which our stock runs strong and which we aim to keep well filled in at all times, but from A to Z we carry one of the largest general stocks in the world, both 19th and 20th.

Russia.—Regarding the 14k Esperanto stamp chronicled a few weeks ago.
The Times states that this stamp is dedicated to Dr. L. L. Zamenhof, the Warsaw oculist, who, under the nom de plume of Dr. Esperanto, first expounded his system for universal language in 1887.
 His portrait in sepia appears in one corner of the stamp, the rest of the design consisting of a group of factory buildings with Esperanto written across them and surmounted by the Esperanto green star.

South West Africa.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us a pair of the 10sh stamps of Union of South Africa with the surcharge "South West Africa" and "Zuid-west Africa" in two lines in black, which he describes as follows:—Variety: overprint lithographed "South West" measuring 16mm throughout the sheet. The stamps are printed in pale olive-green and the King's head in deep blue.

THE FIRM OF CACHIA & CO.

Quite recently we asked for information in regard to the firm of Cachia & Co. of Valletta, Malta, in connection with certain unsatisfactory dealings which this firm had with American collectors. We are glad to say that all claims have been adjusted and at the suggestion of Hermann Focke, who was one of those who professed to be unfairly treated by this firm, but is fully convinced of its reliability, this statement is now made.

All claims have been satisfied to the best of our knowledge and belief, and we should feel warranted in accepting the firm's advertising were any offered to us for insertion. This information in regard to the financial affairs of this firm is given with great satisfaction, and we thank Mr. Focke for his aid in the matter.

VALUES OF USED MODERN COLONIALS

By "CALABAR."

Antigua.—As a whole, used = mint, notwithstanding the fact that Antigua has the largest population (34,000) of any of the Leeward Ids. Colonies. There are four P. O.'s in the island, viz., St. John's (the G. P. O.), St. Mary's, St. Peter's and All Saints. The latter office, I understand, is "a tin shanty with pigs and chickens running in and out of it!"

Ascension.—Mr. Gordon (in his notes on this same subject in the WEEKLY for February 21st) hits the nail pretty accurately when he says, "the first issue used, with correctly dated pmks., is at least twice as good as the same unused." This may seem a rather surprising statement, inasmuch as used and mint sets have approximately the same market value; but here, as in the case of many other recent Colonials, market value shows demand only, not the true value. Taking the existing numbers of used and of mint sets, readers will agree, I think, that the former is much the smaller of the two.

The difference in favour of the used stamps is a trifle less in the case of the current issue, though even here used are at a substantial premium, so far as actual value is concerned.

Bahamas.—Up to 1/-, used less than mint; 5/- and £1, about the same in either case. Here, as in Barbados and Bermuda, the extent of tourist traffic comes in for consideration, as the bigger the island, the greater the number of tourists (as well as officials, members of professions, etc.), and consequently the larger the number of stamps used (as on letters, packages containing curios, etc., etc.).

Incidentally, no poll tax is required of visitors to the Bahamas, and therefore no stamps are used for this purpose, although one occasionally sees statements to the contrary. The stamps are, however, used on Duty Bonds, being obliterated by means of large circular cancelling stamps. The following brief notes re. this use of the high values, may be of interest—

"Quite a considerable number of the high values are used on these Bonds, which are generally given by large importers when the duty on the imports runs into hundreds of pounds. The Govt., for the benefit of the merchants, allows them to pay the duty thirty days after date, giving a bond as a guarantee. These bonds carry a stamp duty as follows, which must be placed on the bonds—

| Import duty not exceeding | Stamp Duty |
|------------------------------|------------|
| £25 | 2/6 |
| £50 | 5/- |
| £100 | 7/6 |

and 2/6 for every additional £50.

The obliterating stamps sometimes bear the initials J. H. P. These are the initials of the Controller of Customs, James Hubert Peete. When (as at present) Mr. Peete is acting in another capacity, the stamps cannot be cancelled with the obliteration bearing his initials. The official who fills his place temporarily makes use of the larger obliteration, worded CUSTOMS HOUSE—NASSAU, N. P. in two concentric circles, the outer of which measures 1 3/4 inches in diameter.

The above makes it clear that Bahamas stamps, although worded POSTAGE only, are also used for at least one fiscal purpose.

Barbados.—As with Bahamas, the lower values are considerably better mint; with the s. duties, however, used = mint. I may add that the 1/- 1924—the scarce script variety—is fully twice as good used.

As one philatelic writer points out, in considering used vs. mint one should bear in mind two important factors, viz.—

(2). The rough treatment which mails receive in the course of shipment and transhipment.

"When the current Barbados set appeared," says this same writer, "the set from 3d up was posted to the writer on two registered covers. When I received the covers in England, the 1/- and 2/- had disappeared and neat pmks. tried to cover the thin spaces on the envelope. Mutilated remains of the 3/- and 6d bore witness to their resistance to removal. Only the 4d and 3d, which were essential for franking their respective covers, showed no signs of interference.

But the values necessary for postage do not always receive such consideration. A parcel posted in Barbados with a 3/- and a 2/- stamp was presented to the addressee in New York with two holes where the stamps had been, and a demand for full dues. Such incidents are not isolated or unusual; the recipients of packages which bear scarce stamps nearly always find them tampered with, or gone altogether if they have been carelessly affixed. Even 2d stamps often prove an attraction.

At Trinidad, Barbados, Grenada, and some other islands, ships anchor a long distance from shore. Mails are taken by cart from the P. O. and deposited, none too gently, in a lighter or tug, which conveys them to the ship. Most

Boston Paid Cancellations

Back in the fifties, Boston cancelled most of the stamps on its mail in black ink with the well known "Paid" cancellation, consisting of "Paid" between bars in a circle. The postmark was in red upon the cover and several varieties are known.

I have a few sets of 3c 1851 covers showing this "Paid" cancellation with different red postmarks, as follows:—

Boston and date
Boston, Mass. and date
Boston, Mass. 3 cts. (small) and date
Boston, Mass. 3 cts. (large) and date

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA

We hear that Newfoundland is shortly to issue a new set of stamps, in fact, some of the 1923 Pictorial issues are already obsolete and hard to get. We can supply the complete set for $1.90 or the set in blocks of four at $7.50. (Supply limited.)

CANADA

This dominion has just issued two new sets. We can supply the Confederation set consisting of 1c, 2c, 3c, 5c, 12c, and 20c values at 55c, blocks of four at $2.10. The Historical set consisting of the 5c, 12c, and 20c values at 50c, blocks of four at $1.90.

Have you got your copy of our U. S. and British North America list, free for the asking? Whilst many of these stamps have shown big rises in the advance sheets, we are still supplying all that we possibly can at the old figures. We expect to have the new edition with new prices ready shortly. This will automatically render obsolete all old prices.

H. F. COLMAN

of them are then hauled up the side with more expedition than care, but some bags containing special or fragile packages are treated to a special bumping up the gangway and a longer haul along the deck at the hands of a stalwart negro or coolie. Many of the parcels are tied up by almost illiterate blacks, who care little for appearances as long as the contents are held together, and are therefore of the most unconventional shapes. And the stamps, stuck at random on uneven surfaces, take bumping badly! Moreover, mails from the smaller islands have to be transhipped once more at New York, or at large islands, for Cuba, Jamaica and South American ports with which they have no direct mail connexion.

I have found that about half the Barbados stamps off parcels which I have examined have small defects, even in cases where they were affixed with special care. The proportion for Grenada seems to be the same, but I find that about two out of every three Trinidad stamps used on parcels have torn edges or rubbed surfaces. Registered letters of normal size of course suffer less than parcels from rough usage, but a good percentage of their stamps are damaged by attempts at pilfering in the post, so it would be quite reasonable to say that 50 per cent. of the high value stamps used in the West Indies are ruined for collectors."

Barbuda.—Difference in favour of used about the same as in the first issue of Ascension. Here, however, certain values lasted longer than others—the 6d, I think, was obtainable up to 1924—and hence getting them with correctly dated pmks. is a little more difficult.

The Rev. W. G. Iremonger, in an article dealing with the P. O.'s of the Leeward Ids. Colonies, writes as follows—"Attached to Antigua are the small islands of Barbuda and Redonda. The former of these consists of a low coral reef, covered with scrub. Originally belonging to the Codrington family, from which fact its chief town or village takes its name of Codrington, it emerged from obscurity, as far as philatelists are concerned, in 1922, as a stamp-issuing country, only to return to its original obscurity by the decree of the Colonial Secretary. As the population consists of only 900 negroes, many of whom are illiterate, and one white man, the manager of the island, a post office seemed to be hardly a vital necessity. I am told that formerly the manager used to carry about a few stamps in his pocket, and all letters were sent direct to Antigua. Since the suppression of the separate issue, Barbuda uses the stamps of Antigua or those of the Leeward Isles. At the time of the special issue for the latter island, I wrote to one of the postmasters to ask about Redonda, as it seemed quite on the cards that this island might also issue special stamps. I was, however, relieved to hear that that island was uninhabited, and visited only for the sake of the phosphate of alumina that is to be found there. Works of reference give it a population of 120."

—J. H. Blackney calls our attention to a penny package of licorice that is now on the market, the container being handsomely decorated with pictures of stamps, while within is an unused pictorial stamp. This is a good publicity stunt for stamp collecting. The reverse side of the package carries instructions for children to send in for stamp album book, which is mailed upon receipt of five cents.

—On Oct. 18 a meeting will be held in Philadelphia under the auspices of the Engineers Club to discuss "Safety in Aviation." J. A. Steinmetz is one of the committee in charge. In the Philadelphia Daily News of Aug. 30, an interesting story appeared dealing with Lt. Col. Steinmetz's air mail stamp and envelope collection. It is entitled "Engineer Visions World Utopia Through Fantastic Globe Trottings" on rare stamps.

—We acknowledge with thanks three covers from Albert E. Gorham, New York-Chicago, First Flight "under contract." No. 1 is dated "Chicago, Sept 1, 7.30 A. M. Air Mail," also "Air Mail Field, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 1, 8 A. M. 1927" with New York marking 9 P. M. No. 2 has a Cleveland "Sept 1, 10 A. M." and a New York "9 P. M." No. 3 is interesting. It bears a N. Y. City, Sept. 1, 11 A. M.—Chicago, Sept. 2, 12.30 A. M., also Chicago Sept. 2, 10 A. M.—New York Sept. 2, 9 P. M. There is a large oblong rectangular air mail marking with winged circle on the face of each envelope.

—We have received a clipping from Cecil F. Blogg of Tacoma, Wash., giving the details of the tying up of Tacoma to the Seattle-Los Angeles airmail service. We regret that our space will not permit our using the particulars. Mr. Blogg writes: "Tacoma is getting on the map truly. Our local society opens meetings again this month for a regular schedule of talks on specialized countries and educational topics, such as paper perforations, watermarks, etc. We look forward to a worth-while season together."

OUR "3-IN-1" CONTRACT

"I do not understand your 3-in-1 advertising contract. Can you explain it?" This is our reply to our would-be advertiser:—

This popular contract allows the use of varying rates dependent upon the space used. The rates per week are:—

| | | | |
|---------------|--------|--------------|--------|
| 1/2 in. (61.) | $2.00 | 1 in. (121.) | $3.50 |
| 2 in. (241.) | $6.00 | | |

The rate over 24 lines is 25c per line until 72 lines have been used when these lower rates prevail:—

| | |
|----------------------|-----------|
| 1/8 page, 72 lines, | $16.50. |
| 1/4 page, 144 lines, | $30.00. |
| 1/2 page, 288 lines, | $55.00. |
| 1 page, 576 lines, | $100.00. |

At least a half-inch must be used each week to hold down the contract.

Have You a Surplus of These?

We always want to buy for ready cash and at the top of the market anything fine in early U. S. stamps or covers. If you have a specialized collection of any stamps or series; a find of old correspondence; an accumulation of 3c '51s, '57s or '61s on or off cover; patriotic covers of the Civil War, either Confederate or Union, or of the Spanish American war; a few thousand Bank Note issues, even the common 2c and 3c stamps if there are enough to bother with.

Send them to us with your best cash price. Particularly if you have items you think are worth more than anyone else will pay, for that is just the kind we want. Our check or the stamps will come to you by return mail if you ask it.

Just now we are anxious to spend some real money for fine items, but don't want the culls at any price.

TWO BRAZIL COMMEMORATIVES

By HERMANN FOCKE.

From the Boletim da Sociedade Phila-telica Paulista of San Paula, Brazil, we learn that on August 11th there were to be issued two postage stamps to commemorate the first Centenary of the foundation of the Judicial Courses in Brazil, which we take it is the same as the Courts of Justice; a prize was awarded for the best design, the first going to Senor Porciuncula Moraes and the second to Sr. Quirino Campifioriti, and the contract for printing was given by the P. M. General to the Casa da Moeda (the Mint) that prints all of Brazil's postage stamps.

The denominations of the two stamps were to be of 100 and 200 reis and a full description is given by our contemporary as follows:

100 reis in a rectangular form, 35mm long by 24mm high, printed in dark blue on white paper, showing at left a large sword and a scale, symbols of Law and Justice, on a pedestal, on which is seated a woman (said to be) Clio (the muse of poetry and history) with outstretched right arm, holding a quill, while her left arm holds a wreath across the blade of the sword. Clio's hair runs in decorative strands around the sword and scale, thus giving the design a pleasing conjunction (So says the paper, H. F.).

In the centre is a large scroll, rolled at the right around a vertical branch of the coffee tree, with the inscription of "11 de Agosto—1827-1927—Cvrsos Jvri-dicos—Centena Rio" in four lines; above the scroll the word Brazil and below the value 100 reis; in the lower centre in small letters the name of the artist.

200 reis of the same form and dimensions, printed in vermilion on white paper, with value in lower left corner in a rectangular frame; to the right of which,
and starting at the bottom of the stamp, there is a laurel branch at the base of a map of the country extending diagonally upwards towards the centre. At the bottom of the stamp is printed the word "Centenario" and right above this is a closed book, on the back of which is printed the word "Lex" (Law). (This is not visible in the cut.—H. F.); and on the book are placed a lamp and a scale, symbols of Learning and Justice, and behind the lamp is the contour of the rising sun. "Brazil" appears in large white letters at the upper right, while on the left there are printed on a folded ribbon

the words "11 de Agosto—1827-1927—Cursos—Juridicos" in four lines.

The same paper reports: New paper with watermark stars with letters C M (Casa da Moeda) multiple to be used for the stamps from 10 to 500 reis, whereas the higher denomination from 600 reis to 5,000 reis will for the present be continued to be printed on the old paper. The 1,000 reis stamp with head of Ruy Barbosa is to be re-engraved, because the plate now in use is much worn.
It is also suggested that a special series of stamps be issued to commemorate the second centenary of the discovery of coffee. No doubt this suggestion will be favourably considered.

OUR HONOR CLUB

B. L. Beard, Montreal, Can.

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of an application for membership in our Honor Club from a Canadian subscriber, B. L. Beard, 519 Clarke Ave., Montreal, Can. When one considers that a 5-year subscription from Canada involves a remittance of $7.50 instead of the usual $5.00, our pleasure and satisfaction can be appreciated. Mr. Beard is an ardent philatelist. He writes "Whatever of success I may obtain in life, my hobby of stamp collecting will have first place. It is more precious to me than money."

We welcome Mr. Beard to membership.

Foreword

New handstamped types have been appearing so fast, of late, that it is hard to know just where to begin in chronicling them. The 1928 Standard Precancel Catalog lists a number of them for the first time, so we shall speak only of those that are still missing from that book. The life of a handstamp is limited, yet many offices continue using the device after it has long outworn the possibility of producing a clean legible cancellation. Others request a new stamp frequently. It seems that certain styles of cancellations come in groups. Some appearing now are unlike the known Universal Styles and yet must be covered by the standard catalog styles in order that they be classified with some degree of accuracy. The more prevalent of these is a style similar to U-73, plain medium sized capitals between thin lines, and a variation of this in lower case type, which presents a distressingly cheap appearance. Another style is serif caps between thin lines, example—New Berlin, N. Y. Personally I do not see how handstamps of this type are going to last any length of time. Block letter types with bars above and below, such as the above Big Point, Miss., and Onekama, Mich., would be more practical designs.

Part I—The Illustrations

Aberdeen, S. Dak.—Is appearing on the current series, but is far scarcer than the printed U-3 overprint. Aberdeen is also using three single subject handstamps, and a block letter style like the illustrated Onekama, Mich., which is a device of 25 subjects.

Big Point, Miss.—This is the well-known U-53 style. It was first called to my attention in January of the present year. The stamps must be rare as I have yet to run across a copy. Mr. R. L. Eberhard sends me a proof of the handstamp and the following information: "Big Point, Miss., is a very small town, and but one man has a permit. He sells fruit and pecans by mail. The following stamps have been used so far: 1917 Series, 1, 2c; Current Series, Perf. 11, 1/2, 1, 1 1/2, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, 13c; 2c Sesqui, 5c Ericsson and 2c White Plains. At first red ink was employed, but this pad was recalled and replaced with a black one."

Onekama, Mich.—Is another newcomer in the field. Prof. Gamber shows me the current 9, 10, and 11c.

Part II.—Offices that have been furnished with the style illustrated for Aberdeen, S. Dak.

Marmarth, N. Dak.—I do not expect to see many of these in circulation, as the use for precancels by this city is limited to one permit holder. The 1/2 and 1c have appeared, with the overprint in reddish ink.

Newburgh, N. Y.—Adds another handstamp to its list. This is catalogued as U-73, but should be similar to U-75, between thin bars. It is Type VI.

Roseburg, Oreg.—The catalog calls this "U-51 between lines." Roseburg was the first office to call my attention to this general style.

Hayward, Cal.—One of the latest. I have seen the 1 and 10c of the present issue.

WANT LISTS 20th Century British Colonies solicited. Unused. Direct Importer, 26 years continuously. I have got the goods.

HAITIAN AIR MAILS

By HARRY E. HUBER.

With the landing of the U. S. Marines in Haiti, in July, 1915, following on the invasion of the French Legation at Port au Prince, by the infuriated mob who dragged forth and murdered President Vilbrun Guillaume Sam, U. S. domestic rates were immediately made applicable to articles mailed in the United States addressed to, and those from, the Marine forces in Haiti. These mails were, and are handled by the Post Offices attached to the Marine Brigades, and not by the Haitian postal administration.

There are two Marine Post Offices in the Republic at the present time, one at Port au Prince (the capital, on the Gulf of Gonaives), and the other at the important port town in the north (near the Dominican border) of Cap Haitien, which are listed in the U. S. Postal Guide as branch offices of the New York City General Post Office. Ordinary U. S. stamps are used, and may be distinguished by the special cancellations.

The postal marking used by the Brigade Post Office at Port au Prince, is a single lined circle, 32mm (an old one measures 38mm) lettered "U. S. Marine Corps, Port au Prince, Haiti," with the date in the center in four lines, "FEB-7—A. M.—1927" with three thick horizontal bars at the right.

The cancellation employed by the office at Cap Haitien is of the Duplex type; i.e., a single lined circle, 25mm, and a vertical ellipse at the right, formed of graduated bars (with the numeral "1" inset), with the year positioned between the two at the foot. The circular marking is inscribed "U. S. Marine Corps, Cape Haitien," and the date is in the center in two lines, "FEB 10—7 A. M."

Marine Air Service.—For several years after the U. S. Marines landed, a guerrilla warfare was kept up by stray bands of cacos, in the mountain districts, and air planes were attached to the Occupation, to enable quick communication with the Marine forces scattered over the country, and with the U. S. Naval base at Guantanamo Bay, in Cuba, about 250 miles to the northwest. These planes carried Marine mail, official (in penalty envelopes), as well as that franked with U. S. stamps. All mail exchanged between the two Brigade Post Offices is now flown, but bears no special markings or indication to that effect. There is no extra charge for air carriage.

The service between Port au Prince and Cap Haitien is thrice weekly, and the distance (125 miles by land, and requiring 9½ hours by motor) is covered in 55 minutes. The plane leaves Port au Prince at or before 8 a. m., and returns before noon.

Since May 1, 1925, the Marine planes have carried Haitian commercial mail between Port au Prince and Cap Haitien, as well as the Brigade mails. The service costs the Haitian Government nothing, as the aviators have to do a certain amount of flying, and the flights are thus made useful to commerce. The Haitian Government has, however, expended some money in improving the landing field at Cap Haitien.

The air mail letter rate is 50c de g. (10c U. S. currency). Ordinary postage stamps are employed, usually the 50c de g. orange and black (President Louis Borno) of the pictorial series of Sept. 3, 1924.

Letters carried on the first flight of this service, on May 1, 1925, bear the 50c orange and black, Borno type, with the cancellation of "Port au Prince, Haiti" within a single lined circle, 28mm, and the date in the center in three lines, "1—MAY—25," on both the stamp and cover. A special marking, used only on May 1, 1925, and applied in carmine to the stamp only, consists of "AVION" (20mm long, all caps 6mm high) within an oval on side, 40x25mm. This special marking is very indistinct, and seldom does the whole of the oval appear. The back-stamping is "Cap Haitien, Haiti" between two concentric circles, 23 and 12mm, with the date in the center in three lines, "2—MAY—25."

This special marking was replaced by a second type, applied in black, with a crude representation of an airplane, over "AVION" (all caps, but with the initial letter larger than the others) measuring 16mm. This lasted only three or four months, and its place was taken by another one, with airplane over "AVION," but the word now measures 17mm and the letters (caps) are all of the same height.

It was off Cap Haitien, on Christmas eve, December 24, 1492, that Columbus' flagship, the "Santa Maria" was caught in a current and swept on a sandbank, and it was necessary for the crew to take refuge on the little "Nina." With the wreck of the "Santa Maria" Columbus built a fort on a hill east of the present town of Cap Haitien, and gave to it the name of La Navidad, inasmuch as he entered the bay on Christmas day. Here he left 39 men, because the "Nina" could not accommodate them, and on Jan. 4, 1493, continued along the northern coast to the east, and from Samana Bay, on January 16th, set sail for Spain. On his return to La Navidad later in the year (Nov. 26,) he found the fort completely destroyed, the Indian village burned, and the whole neighborhood silent and desolate.

At Cap Haitien (then Cap Francais) the French General Rochambeau surrendered on November 19, 1803, to General J. J. Dessalines, who succeeded Toussaint L'Ouverture as commander of the native forces. Of the brilliant army of 25,000 sent out by Napoleon in 1802, in command of his brother-in-law, General Leclerc, there remained but 8,000 and on November 30, these were taken on board the vessels of the British squadron, which had been co-operating with Dessalines, and were conveyed from the island.

Port au Prince to Gonaives, 1926.—On June 3, 1926, an air mail service was inaugurated between Port au Prince and Gonaives, a town on the Gulf of Gonaives, about 75 miles north of Port au Prince. Once a week a stop is made by the plane en route to Cap Haitien. The same "plane over AVION" marking was applied in black, and first day covers have the Port au Prince marking of "3—JUN—26," and are backstamped "Gonaives, Haiti" (between two concentric circles, 23 and 12mm), with date in three lines in the center "3—JUN—26."

On October 21, 1926, while the Royal Dutch S. S. Flora was in the harbor at Gonaives, and on which steamer I was making a round of the Haitian ports, the mail plane came up from the south; after circling over the American fleet, then at manoeuvres off Gonaives, it landed on the beach, and after a few minutes rose and flew off in the direction of the Cap.

Gonaives is the birthplace of Haitian independence, for it was there that a general assembly of the national representatives was called for January 1, 1804, and in the Place d'Armes at dawn that day, Dessalines attended by his officers, had the Declaration of Independence read, and the country, assuming its aboriginal name of Haiti, was proclaimed independent.

EDITORIAL

The remarks that were made by Mr. Wilhelm, President of the American Philatelic Society on the floor at the convention of recent date at St. Louis, to the general effect that in time to come a philatelic club-house or home could be established as a memorial of the work accomplished by the organization have been given some attention and several letters have been received asking for particulars of this ambitious conception. Several weeks ago, the subject was mentioned in this column and the suggestions have caught the fancy of members who are interested in the project, but who were not at the meeting and they are asking for fuller treatment of the topic. When the question of appropriations was under discussion as a consequence of the recommendations of the committee on appropriations, President Wilhelm called a member to the chair which he vacated temporarily in order to address the members. It is probable that no inkling was in the minds of the delegates as to what Mr. Wilhelm was to say, but it was soon apparent that he was painting a picture that made a profound impression. He intimated that one of the underlying reasons for keeping undisturbed the various funds that are now of robust proportions was based on a dream that the future should bring to realization and that the vision was that there should come into being a philatelic institute, so to say, that would be the property of and typify the American Philatelic Society. The words of the president were in the nature of a surprise, but that it was a pleasant one was not to be gainsaid. The scope of the enterprise was so important that it was difficult to adjust the mind so that it might take a composite picture of the plan. However, Mr. Wilhelm evidently had given no little consideration to the subject and when he had finished his statement, the enthusiasm of the members was manifested and some of the generous-minded delegates pledged round sums of money in furtherance of the idea; and in general, there was spirited support of it. Mr. Wilhelm submitted figures which were intended merely to be illustrative and he went into some particulars, but the understanding is that the proposal was intended as an introduction to the plan that would be presented later in a systematized form to the members in order that they might cogitate upon it when they were removed from the distractions of the convention. It is needless to say that the presentation alone of the scheme is something of vital moment and that the starting of the snow-ball is an occasion of importance. When the practical plans become available, the members will have something to occupy their minds in congenial fashion.

Few corporations that are not in business have the financial standing of the American Philatelic Society. Indeed, the wealth of the body is such as to make one ponder on the advisability of allowing it to accumulate year after year, but then, the thought of disturbing the even tenor by making appropriations does not appeal to some of the members who have watched the development of the financial structure. The society seems to be in the position of awaiting the proper hour to undertake a cause that if successfully prosecuted would redound to the glory of the society; and now that the suggestion has been made as indicated in the foregoing sentences, it remains to be seen whether it is the one that is deemed worthy of the undivided effort of the society backed by moral and solid support. It would be idle at this juncture to speculate upon the project, which, if pressed, will be subjected to critical examination, but at least we may attach the weight to it that is fitting. We can easily recognize the interest of the members who have written for further information than was given in the previous superficial statement, but it is impossible to furnish definite findings in view of the tentative nature of the proposal, as it now stands.

From Mr. E. M. Ash of Jatibonico del Sur, Cuba, who gave early intimation of the special issue of Cuba to commemorate the sixth Pan-American convention at Habana, a copy of El Pais, of August 20th, has been received. It is one of the most important of the Cuban newspapers and it gives front page prominence to the proposed stamps, with a cut that is three columns wide of the 2 cent-avos value with portrait of President Machado. Too, El Mundo, another great newspaper of Habana presents the statistics of the issue on the front page, that we gave some time ago, through the courtesy of Mr. Ash. The following description is printed: 1c, Tomas Estrada Palma, the first president of Cuba; 2c, General Machado, president of Cuba; 5c, Morro Castle; 8c, Habana Terminal Station; 10c, Presidential Palace; 13c, Tobacco Plantation; 20c, Treasury Building; 30c, Sugar Mill "Delicias," (the world's largest crop); 50c, Habana Cathedral and One Dollar, National Theatre. The new issue is treated as news of prime importance by the Cuban newspapers.

It now seems fairly certain that Dr. Carroll Chase's article on the three-cent U. S., 1851-57 will appear in the form of a handbook before the end of the year, but he expresses himself as being anxious to get a little more information regarding certain 3c, 1857, Type II plates. Consequently, he would like to examine any copies used or unused in singles or blocks showing the plate-number or any part of it, from Plate 9, left pane; 12, either pane; 13, right pane; 14, left pane; 16, 17 or 18, in either pane; 19, left pane; 21, left pane; 22, either pane; and 26, left pane. Further, he wants to see complete panes from any 3c, 1857, Type II plate, except 10, right pane; 20, left pane; 24, either pane; 25, either pane, and 28, right pane. This pioneer in research work on the first type, three-cent, is doing a man's job and those who can help him should heed the call. Address: Carroll Chase, M.D., 114 Seventy-Eighth Street, Jackson Heights, New York.

Writing from Athens, under date of August 1, 1927, Mr. P. J. Drossos sent the three values of the new Greek stamps, comprising the set issued to celebrate Colonel Favier, who was one of Napoleon's warriors, who left France after the emperor's defeat and enlisted in the Greek revolutionary army. His great feat was his action in breaking through the blockade of the Turks around the Acropolis in 1827, and thus enabling the beleaguered garrison to hold out. The stamps are line engraved and depict the Acropolis with the bust of Favier in laureated medalion; and are handsome additions to the stamp supply.

STAMPS NOT LISTED

By HERMANN FOCKE.

LUXEMBURG—For many years I have several copies of the 30 centimes rose-lilac, imperf. on vertically laid but have never seen this variety in any catalogue; all copies, except are unfortunately damaged, either ed or clipped close, and, therefore not tell whether they are varieties Scott's No. 10, 23 or 37, but am in- to make it No. 23, on account of cancellation dates running from (18) 79, although one copy shows very margins, and as to shade: Scott's No. 10 rose-lilac, Stanley Gib- claret, and Kohl red-violet, which is about the exact shade of my on laid paper.

There are any other collector or dealer has this or any other Luxemburg on laid paper?

WFOUNDLAND—½ cent, type A21; little fellow, issue 1887 should, ac- ing to Scott be rose-red, and the re- of 1896, orange-red; Stanley Gib- gives the shades as rose-red and lion, and Kohl says they are car- and brick-red, respectively. I have the first issue two copies which indi- that there is a rose-red and also a edly deep carmine shade, so differ- that they deserve to be listed in days of varieties, and as to the re- orange-red seems to be the best ption.

ALTA—Self-Government provisional 1921 is given in all Standard cata- as black on emerald-green, or on s No. 59a and St. Gibbons No. 81c, where have I seen this provisional on the regular green shade, Scott's 9, or more exactly Stanley Gibbons 1b that is on blue-green paper; still, e used copies of both shades thus arged, and believe that they also e separate listing.

MINICAN REP.—The 50 centavos and green was surcharged 1920 and issued in 1925, but no catalogue ons the fact, although one of the ar writers for the WEEKLY re- l some time ago, that orders for urchase had been given, but the s had not been issued, which was rrect.

ies of all the above have been itted for the editor's inspection.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT—
(A. P. S. Convention, St. Louis)
—beside "M. T." Dome

The Chicago delegashun chartered a hole I. C. parlor-car, C. E. Severn, chair- man an J. H. D. Reynolds (ov Flint, Mich.) makin up the rest ov th crowd. Five Milwaukee delicats headed by Dr. Sevard wuz snuk in az a body gard fer Charley,—an th etcetera wuz enjoyed by all.

(P. S.—Mare Thompson hed just sined a 10 day armstis wit th King ov Ingland wuz wy "C. E." cud git off, th King furthermoar agreein not t' attack th skools wile Charley wuz away.)

Sum delicats mustuv walked er driv Shevrolays thay got in so late an dusty an "dry." Them Buiks aint so dry.

"Oo's thet guy 'Oiler'?", a delicate asts me. "Everthin runs so smooth heeze wel named. Aint he th mare ov St. Louis?" I sez, "Not yet."

Prezident Wilhelm ov Frisco wuz th "farthest West" delicate, Fred Green ov Santone, Texas, the one frum furthest South, Abie Cassel ov Minnehaha, Min., furthest North, an W. C. Stone, one ov the original "Rollin' Stones," rolled in all th way frum Springfield, Mass.

H. M. Konwiser, N. Y. C., th Hot Stov delicate claimed th hotel waiters wuz "pre-cancels." He wuz rite.—He sed bizness wuz poor in St. Louis an the quarters didnt come in so fast az at th N. Y. show. He musta left hiz dark glasses an tin cup t' home by mistake.

Paul MacGuffin, th sage (er horse- radish) ov Libertyville, bot Tom Hunter hiz brekfast Wed. mornin. Paul wuz on a dyet but Tom made up fer twic moren Paul wuz short, besides helpin out wit a littel conversayshun.

"Honey-tongue Charley," th boy who cud talk a angry porkypine into feelin like a Angorra kittin, wuz foreman at our Bankwet. Did he sling th goo? Say, he cud talk a vinegar factry into leakin m'llasses. Wy, he even indused Tom Hunter t' tell a story!

Mrs. Eilers explaned t' me that th water ov th Mississippi River wuz now thinned down fer drinkin purposes, since beer went up t' moren 5c a bucket in St. Louis. "An theys fewr brunettes an more whiter neks nowadays, too," continued her, "wich proves our waters o. k." "P. M." Wolsieffer wuz up so erly evry mornin he shud oughta be called "A. M."

Doc. Mitchell, th Paonia Patriark, wuz on time fer meals. He admits theys a coupla pre-cans he aint got yet. Also heez publikly admitted knowin Tom Hunter. He sounds honest.

Among th guests at th Markett wuz one J. Eustace an wife. Th "bargin hunters" all ast t' be first on th new cir- kets this Fall, wich J. E. promised each one he would.—Mrs. Guest wuz along t' furnish good looks fer th famly.

I didnt think mutch ov th air-mail covers Eilers donated as i didnt git one, but others sed they wuz fine!

Th Convenshun Badge wuz a beaut, no kiddin. Th "St. Louis Bears, 20c" wuz appropriate an excellently executed. I got a extrly copy, thanx t' P. P. Murray.

If our Sekatary picked th stenog he haz a artistick eye, both ov them.

Th stamps at H. A. Diamant's auk- shun went fer a song, if you cud sing hi enuf. Tom Hunter wuz "end man" au got along fine til hiz "G string" got frayed.

"Th Thompsonville Twins," Voorhees an Paulson, did a sleep-walkin act Wens- day,—claimed th heat kep em awake

Bits of Information

Monastir.—This word with Turkish characters has been overprinted on certain Turkish stamps to commemorate a visit of the Sultan to Rumelia in 1910. Monastir is a city in Rumelia.

Mong Tseu.—The French rendering of Mengtse, a treaty port in China, as shown upon the stamps at present in use in the French consular office there.

Monrovia.—The capital of Liberia, having a population of about 5,000. It is one of the five towns of the republic having its own distinctive registration stamps.

Monster.—The Dutch word for "specimen" found overprinted on some of the stamps of the now defunct South African Republic.

Mount Athos.—An overprint applied to some of the Russian Levant stamps in 1909-10 for use in the office at Mount Athos.

Montenegro.—An independent Slav kingdom on the Adriatic between Dalmatia, Herzegovina, and Albania, its name meaning "black mountain." Postage stamps were first issued in May, 1874.

Austrian Crete

The Government of the Austrian empire maintains postoffices in the island of Crete and in 1903 the stamps supplied to these offices were surcharged "centimes" or "franc." In 1908 stamps similar to those of Austria were issued but with the values expressed in centimes and francs instead of heller and kronen.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

Valletta Harbor

MALTA A10—1901-11, 1f.

Malta has given us a number of very interesting pictorial stamps. One of these, issued for newspaper postage in 1900, bears a tiny picture of the entrance to the harbor of Valletta, the capital of the island.

This picturesque capital lies on the north shore of the island, at its nearest point to Sicily, upon a promontory extending a considerable distance into the bay. The port consists of two spacious land-locked bays, divided by the tongue of land upon which the city stands, and guarded at its entrance by a system of forts of surpassing strength, as is necessary for the preservation of this British half way house to India. It is said that there is not a more complete system of fortifications extant, in any part of the world, than the cordon of defensive structures at Malta. The forts of the harbor, however, form but a portion of the vast system of fortifications which completely surround the city. The latter were largely the work of the Knights of St. John when the city was their stronghold, but they call forth to this day the admiration of all military officers who visit them.

The port of Valletta contains two marine docks, capable of receiving ships of the largest tonnage, and is resorted to by both naval and commercial shipping for needed repairs, while it is also the headquarters of the British Mediterranean war fleet. In fact, besides the fortifications, the picture on the stamp shows a British ironclad lying peacefully at anchor.

Six Penny Stamps as Capital

With six penny stamps sent to her by the Prince of Wales as capital, Miss Caroline F. Baldwin, of Wylde Green, near Birmingham, Eng., has established a business, the profits of which she sends to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution.

In a letter to the prince, Miss Baldwin asked for six penny stamps "with which to trade on behalf of this lifeboat society." She promised to render an account periodically.

The prince forwarded the letter to the headquarters of the institution and later the six stamps were sent from St. James Palace. She has so far given the society $25, which she made through selling home-made rosettes, dolls and socks.—Home World.

Minor Varieties

So far as philately is concerned the question as to what constitutes a minor variety is one that has never, and probably never will be, satisfactorily settled. It is all a matter of degree, for while it is a comparatively simple matter to define major varieties as those of primary importance and minor varieties as those of less importance, it is impossible to draw up any rules as a guide to apportioning stamps definitely to either of these classes. If we suggest as a definition that "A minor variety is one that differs from the normal type in some small particular" it may do for general use, but the collector will find it is often a difficult matter to state authoritatively which particular stamp, when several varieties exist, represents the normal type.

Junior Items

—Miss Vera Keifer calls our attention to a Belgium stamp with an incomplete capital letter B. This is an interesting variety of small commercial value.

—We shall be glad to hear from our Juniors at all times and invite contributions to this page. It belongs to you.

—Precancels make a nice sideline collection. They can be picked up daily and added to your collection at little cost. Your U. S. collection should have these stamps represented.

—When you write a letter calling for an answer it is the courteous thing to enclose a stamp for a reply. Indeed, a stamped envelope is the proper thing.

—Don't worry about the stamp you can't get. Enjoy the stamps you can get.

—"The Pilgrim Tercentenary stamps are a departure in several respects from conventional designs and precedent exists for the omission of country in previous American and foreign issues. There is no necessity for the name as the stamps are fully identified and authenticated to the Postal Service in a notice published in the Postal Bulletin of August 15, 1920. Any additional lettering would have overcrowded the designs which require all the space assigned to them."—Letter to (Mrs.) Josephine H. Buell, from the 3d Asst. P. M. G.

—"We picked up a very unusual stamp novelty which may interest the readers of your paper. You have no doubt often heard of the stamp bug. Well, the other week we caught it. We have a stamped envelope with the stamp printed on top of a spider. A spider must have been sitting on the envelope and the stamp was printed on top of it, sealing it fast to the envelope with spider and legs still there."—H. RISSMILLER.

—Frank Senger.—We know of no way to place a value on your two Colombian Rep. stamps. Some day when you are down Nassau St. way in New York City, buy a stamp from a dealer and then ask his opinion on your varieties.

Junior Dictionary

Script C. A.—A form of watermark for use in British Colonial stamps introduced in 1920. It differs from the preceding watermark considerably, as is indicated in the following illustration, where the two watermarks are shown side by side:—

Southwest Caucasus Govt.—A tract of country in Asia Minor with the Black Sea on the north, Georgia and Armenia on the east, Persia on the south and Turkey on the west. Its establishment was an outcome of the world war and the government lasted about four months, long enough for a set of postage stamps to be printed and a postal department to be instituted. It is now a part of Armenia.

Stanislau Issue.—The stamps of Western Ukraine, Nos. 11 to 81, overprinted at Stanislau, a town in Galicia. The whole issue is dubious, as the presence of overprinted stamps of Bosnia indicates. Cf. Vienna Issue.

What Should Juniors Collect?

By HERMANN FOCKE.

I put the question this way, because I wish to refer to the Junior collector who will, after all, be called upon to carry on the hobby which is now over sixty years old, as it was created in the early sixties, about 15 years after the birth of the first postage stamp, the famous "one penny" black of Great Britain.

On several occasions I have tried to transplant my own philatelic propensity into the minds of the younger ones, beginning with my own children and then friends, but to my regret I have failed because after a willing, and almost enthusiastic start they have given up again primarily because they started their collection in one of the Junior Stamp Albums, and invariably made the painful discovery, that for the majority of stamps coming their way, there were no space and the stamps illustrated were, as a rule, not available to them.

New issues of stamps have multiplied in ever growing proportions during the last 25 years, one might say the number almost duplicating itself from year to year, until we may safely say that in the year it will not fall far short of a thousand. Now it is well nigh impossible to keep step with these ever increasing editions, unless one disposes of unlimited time and means to do so, leave alone many, but the commonest varieties years gone by; therefore I might pose the question: What shall they collect this time underlining the last word.

At the beginning we understood that collecting stamps meant to gather them by either swapping our duplicates for those of other collectors, or by begging a good-hearted uncle, cousin or father friend who happened to do business with foreign countries, to let us have some of the good things that he would receive in his mails and, probably in most of the cases, consign to the yawning paper basket.

"They were the days of the good sport of stamp collecting." They are gone forever, it seems, but still the hobby lives and is still growing, but in a different way. To-day the hobby is rooted to a large extent in the collector's pocket book, and there it will probably stay, get nourishment, unless it should die a slow death, if ever this calamity should happen. But even this sort of collecting needs a certain method from the start if it shall be lasting, and here again say the question: What shall they collect? This has been answered a good many times in many a different way and only recently I read an ably written thesis on the subject in the WEEKLY, excellent in some points, but—from my own experience—weak in others. The writer amongst other things suggested that one should collect only entire sets in unused condition, mentioning among others the stamps of Bosnia and other countries of South Eastern Europe which could be done only by the way of purchase.

I beg leave to suggest to the writer that he go to any dealer and try to see these particular stamps, and if he get back his investment I stand ready to eat the proverbial garment, for buy he must these stamps because in no other way can we get them, and anything we buy we my opinion the new collector should be to the following rules if an active collection shall be the outcome the wish to continue kept alive:

the first place I would always recommend a blank album, or just a plain with blank leaves for the start; the collector should then begin to collect the ps of such countries, of which he has a good chance to secure a goodly ber, without being obliged, from the start, to buy them; this by itself

A PHARAOH VISITS ENGLAND

King George's royal visitor during the month of July was King Fuad of Egypt, who shares with the King of England a deep interest in Philately. King Fuad owns a group of important and valuable collections. The King of Spain was another royal visitor, and as he possesses a great specialised collection of Spanish stamps, there were three great rulers who are also philatelists in town at the same time.

King Fuad is not the first philatelist to rule over Egypt, the late Khedive Abbas Hilmi, deposed in 1914, having formed an extensive collection.

King Fuad's collection fills upwards of forty albums, and a considerable proportion of these contains his fine collection of Egyptian stamps, one of the two best collections extant of the stamps of his own country. In 1919 he was able to amalgamate with his own accumulation a great collection formed by M. Albert Eid, son of a former Belgian Consul in Cairo. For the Eid collection King Fuad paid £4,000. At that time he already possessed most of the rarities among Egyptian stamps, including all the tete-beche varieties, and many complete sheets of the early issues, including the first Arabesques.

But His Majesty has not confined himself to Egyptian stamps, and from his early days was a regular client of one of the great Paris stamp dealers for stamps of all countries. Since he came to the throne of Egypt he has maintained a philatelic curator to look after and arrange the stamp collections, an Englishman having recently filled the post. Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., of London, also hold the appointment by royal warrant of philatelists to the King of Egypt.

Probably the highest price King Fuad has ever paid for a single stamp was 50,000 francs for a very fine copy of the 4c blue British Guiana, which he acquired eight years ago.

His collections of Austria, Greece, Mexico, and Roumania are known to be highly specialised, and he has paid special attention to the interesting post-war issues of Arabia and Syria.

Just two years ago a remarkable collection of Syrian stamps formed by Mohamed Kamel el Kassab was sold at a Fleet Street auction for £1,500, at which figure it is understood it was bought for the Egyptian Sovereign. It was contained in an elaborately hand-painted album within a silver and gold inlaid casket. It contained every known variety of Syrian stamps issued up to that time, several of them unique; its original owner, a son of the President of the High Assembly of Syria, had been well placed to keep track of these issues.

Since his accession the King has applied his philatelic knowledge to securing the best postage stamps for Egypt, and the current portrait stamps, produced by a special photogravure process, are admitted to be excellent.

In 1924 a high official of the Land Survey Department at Cairo was sent to England to study the subject of stamp manufacture, with a view to establishing a national stamp printery at Gizeh, and since the latter part of 1925 a number of special issues have been printed there. In due course, it is intended to print all the stamps locally on plant obtained from London.—Postage Stamp.

BUY TWENTIETH CENTURY MINT BRITISH COLONIALS

Scores of attractive offers of British Colonials from every corner of the globe, all fine mint. Here is an opportunity to build up a collection of interesting stamps, with real merit, stamps that are becoming more valuable with every passing year. Consult your 1928 cat. when it's issued. The advance sheets indicate a thorough revision in prices. With increased demand, and decreasing supplies, 20th century British Colonials offer the modern collector an investment second to none in 20th century stamps.

BACK AGAIN

After three months' forced inactivity, due to injuries sustained in an accident last June, I am again at my desk.

I much regret the delays and inconveniences caused my friends and customers, and my inability to attend to any except the most pressing correspondence. Efforts to do more, at times, merely resulted in a nervous condition which retarded my recovery.

I much appreciate the hundreds of kind expressions of good will and sympathy which came to me from every state in the Union and many foreign countries. They demonstrated that one can form many wonderful friendships without meeting those friends face to face.

There is much to be done before I can catch up with the piles of orders and correspondence that have accumulated, but by the time this advertisement appears, I expect to be attending promptly to all letters received.

Whether you are an old customer, a new one, or a prospective one, please remember that I hold the finest stock and accumulation of mint 20th Century British Colonials America, that my weekly lists, for which I make a nominal charge of 50c for 50 issues, contain a wealth of information and "tips", offer new issues of all countries, and many real bargains and worth while buys that I never offer elsewhere because list subscribers take my entire supply.

I hope that I may merit the continued patronage of my many old customers, and constantly add new clients to my list.

THE PRECANCEL REVIEW

Part V—The Precancel Stamp Society Convention

The attendance at St. Louis numbered about forty members, which is to be considered a fair showing.

Dr. W. I. Mitchell was elected President for the coming year, by a large majority.

It was voted to continue the Precancel Gazette as a quarterly, with the subscription advanced to $1.00 per year. Readers can send in to the editor of this department, that amount, if they wish to receive a live journal devoted exclusively to precancels.

The Stamp Collector's Monthly was chosen as official organ by a close margin over the Precancel Gazette.

The race for the Directors was an exciting one, resulting in the election of Hoover, Parker and Allen.

Prof. A. F. Gamber will continue as 2nd Vice-President, and editor of the Precancel Gazette. John Spaulding was re-elected as Secretary-Treasurer without opposition.

The convention gave considerable thought to a program for the elimination of the "made-to-order precancel" and definite steps were outlined to combat the evil.

The new Sales Manager will be appointed shortly, to succeed Burt C. Wear, who tendered his resignation.

Prof. Gamber was offered $25 for the 6c New Orleans experimental Bureau precancel, by Dr. Mitchell.

Chicago was elected as the 1928 convention site.

Conclusion.—The editor of this department welcomes correspondence from readers interested in the precancel hobby, and will gladly assist anyone with information relating to it. If you have some unlisted precancels, comment on which would be of value to this column, send them along.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

Since the Federal Reserve Banks have not been moving Liberty Bonds back and forth in large quantities, the use of the $5 stamp has been limited, and as a result the current variety in fine used condition is much scarcer than the former varieties, which were used quite extensively. I have been able to pick up some very choice copies of this variety, and offer singles at $1.60 and blocks of four at $7.00. Unused copies are available at $5.50 per stamp. This stamp is Scott's #573, and is priced in the Advance Sheets of the new 1928 catalogue, at $2.25, an advance of 25c over the previous quotation.

If you are looking for any of the other United States varieties, either scarce or common in used or unused condition, I am likely to have them on hand. I also carry a wonderful stock of blocks and rarities, which I will gladly submit to the serious collector for inspection.

I am also a buyer at all times, of anything fine or unusual in United States postage or revenue varieties.

I would like to buy a fine general collection, at a reasonable figure, costing from $1500 to $2500. Want stamps of all countries, and prefer them in mint condition.

2c Vermont—Scratched Plate

Mr. M. A. Woodbury has kindly submitted for inspection a copy of the 2c red Vermont Sesquicentennial variety, showing a distinct scratch across the bottom. This comes from plate No. 19039, although its exact location is not known at the present time.

Mr. Vance Holden submits a right plate block, No. 19036, showing two stamps with similar scratches. These, no doubt, occurred in the course of handling the plate during work upon the press, or in transferring the plate from the vault to the press room.

Since my recent notes reviewing the advance sheets of the new catalogue appeared, several readers have sent me copies of what were supposed to be the 1898, 2c rose-carmine, in used condition. I made the statement that I had never seen a cancelled copy of this variety, and the remark still holds good.

As a matter of fact, 80% of the collectors assume that they have a rose-carmine, but the actual stamp has a bluish tinge, and when one actually has it, there is no doubt about the variety.

Three sheets were found by a collector in one of the small Montana post offices, at the time the stamp was current, and as far as I can learn, no further copies have ever been found.

The Scott's catalogue lists this stamp, and the orange shade as 1898 varieties, and makes no mention of any other shades coming at that time.

As a matter of fact all of the deeper red shades, which are often confused with these stamps, appeared in the later years, as is shown by the plate numbers. Most of the stamps actually issued in 1895 and 1896, are in pale colors. I would like to see the deep red listed as a 1898 variety, for as it is, we are forced to classify it as 1895, where it certainly does not belong.

$20 Gold Notes, Inverted Seals

Mr. Gordon Bottomley has recently shown me a copy of the $20 Gold Note, series of 1922, wherein the treasury seal and numbers printed in orange, are inverted. Four notes from this plate were so found, and these bear numbers K-51643705 to 09, inclusive. The $20 notes immediately preceding and following these four in the package, were normal.

Air Mail Notes

September 1, 1927, will prove a memorable day in the annals of Air Mail, in view of the fact, that on that date the last of the government operated air mail services passed into the hands of private contractors. The Postmaster General announced the fact in the following remarks addressed to the press:—

"Today marks the close of the Post Office Department's personally conducted air mail service, the Department surrendering at midnight tonight the last of the routes operated by it—that between New York and Chicago. Transport. The eastbound plane will arrive at Cleveland from Chicago twelve o'clock midnight, tonight, and plane and the United States mail will then be turned over to the National Transport, whose flyer will take charge and at 12.15 A. M. leave for New York Westbound, the plane from New York will reach Cleveland at 2.15 A. M. on morning of September 1, and will be taken over by the National Air Transport and leave for Chicago at 2.30 A. the same morning.

In thus relinquishing its operation, the air mail service, the Post Office Department has every reason to be proud of what it has accomplished in this. The real purpose of the business has been to demonstrate to private capital that service was not only possible scientifically, but that it could be made profitable commercially, and thereby encourage creation of a new industry in the United States.

Today, there are more companies making airplanes in the United States than there are those manufacturing automobiles. There are fifteen privately owned lines flying the air mail, and there are half a dozen others for which contracts are let and which, shortly, will be placed in operation. Among these is the line from New York to Atlanta, and the line from Chicago to Cincinnati, and the line from St. Louis to Memphis.

To be sure, some of these contract mail lines have not proven profitable; their operators have dropped out. On the other hand, many of them are making money, finding the business as profitable as it is.

I believe that nearly all of them will be conducted not only with profit but with safety.

This is aviation operated along scientific and scientific lines and for a useful, wholesome purpose. The only point either sought or attainable is the approval by the public of a service that meant for its genuine advantage.

Covers carried on this first trip received special markings when posted at the three terminal cities of Chicago, New York and Cleveland. Each city used the well-known cart wheel postmark, plied to contract air mail, although at time it is somewhat smaller. In addition the octagon postmark, such as used on the first contract covers from Chicago to San Francisco, were also applied. New York used blue for the circular postmark, and magenta for the octagon. Cleveland followed the same scheme of colors, in addition to using green, while as Chicago while using the blue for the circular postmark, impressed the octagon postmark in black. Quite likely other colors were used, as is generally the custom.

I wish to thank Reverend J. Dreyer and Mr. Erwin Strasser, for first covers.

It may be of interest to note that the National Air Transport Inc., who took over this leg of the transcontinental service, also inaugurated an air express on the same date.

Under date of August 27th, the Postmaster General ordered immediate cancellation of the contract with the Colorado Airways, Inc., of Denver, operating the air mail route between Cheyenne, Wyoming, and Pueblo, Co.

radio. Although newspaper clippings from Denver state that this order was rescinded, nevertheless, a further notice from the Postmaster General under date of September 3rd, states that the original order was made effective as of September 3rd. The Boeing Air Transport, Inc., who now hold the contract for the western leg of the transcontinental route, has taken over the service on a temporary basis.

The ground on which this cancellation was taken was the discovery by the Postmaster General on August 27, that after the bids had been submitted for the performance of this service, and before an award had been made in March, 1926, the two bidders had entered into an agreement, as a result of which the lower bid was withdrawn. Both parties have since shared the compensation paid by the government on the basis of the award made to the only remaining bidder.

Invitations for new bids, returnable October 4, were issued today (September 3rd).

Belgian East Africa.—The three values of Congo stamps noted below have been surcharged "Ruanda Urundi" in two lines in black. The overprint is 29mm between the two lines. Mr. Henry Hooreman submits copies for our inspection.

Bermuda.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle the 2sh printed in dull purple and blue on blue, script watermark.

Congo.—Three new items have been received from Mr. Henry Hooreman. They are the 35c green, design as A37; 1fr rose-red, design of the current issue of this value and 1fr75c blue, design as A35.

Curacao.—Marine Insurance Stamps, which were prepared for issue but never appeared, are now, according to G. A. G. Toolen, to be surcharged "FRANKEER-ZEGEL" and a new value, in three lines as follows:

| | | |
|---------------|--------|--------|
| 3c on 15c, | 96,250 | 88,200 |
| 10c on 60c, | 67,000 | 63,500 |
| 12c on 75c, | 55,000 | 53,000 |
| 15c on 1.50g, | 35,000 | 31,850 |
| 25c on 2.25g, | 20,000 | 18,050 |
| 30c on 4.50g, | 20,200 | 18,450 |
| 50c on 7.50g, | 20,200 | 18,500 |

The quantities are those given in Die Nederlandsch Maanblad voor Philatelie. The figures in the first column are those of the original printing and those in the second column the quantity surcharged. —Philatelic Magazine.

Great Britain, Offices in China.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the current 50c, black on emerald, Hong Kong stamp with script watermark surcharged "China" as before.

Greece.—Whitfield King & Co. report that they have received three values of stamps bearing the likeness of Favier together with the dates "1826-1926." The values are 1dr red, 3dr blue and 6dr green.

India.—Whitfield King & Co. report the 1a brown stamp of India, watermarked star, surcharged in the usual manner for official use.

Russia.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle two stamps recently placed in use for the air post service. They are of oblong format picturing a plane flying and the background is a world map. In each lower right corner is the year date and the figures of value in the lower left. The colors and denominations are 10k blue and brown and 15k red and pale green.

Surinam.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle a series of three values of "Green Cross" stamps. Each is of a different design and each bears the emblem in green color, together with the words "Groene Kruis." The values and colors are 2c+2c black and green, 5c+3c purple and green and 10c+3c red and green.

A NEW ROUMANIAN SET

By HERMANN FOCKE.

A new set of very attractive stamps has recently been issued by this Kingdom in the Balkans, consisting of 12 values in three distinct types, designed by G. Chirovici and printed by Hélio-Vaugierard in Paris.

Type A:—Comprising the value of 25 Bani, 1 Leu, 7.50 Lei and 10 Lei, in a horizontal oblong rectangle with portraits of the late kings Carol I and Ferdinand, in circles, facing each other, with Crown over the Royal Coat-of-Arms in the centre, over which are inscribed in somewhat indistinct letters the words "In the fiftieth year at Independence"; at top the name of the country and the years 1877 and 1927 in the two corners; in the lower two corners the value and "Posta."

Type C:—Comprising the values of 50 Bani, 4, 4.50 and 6 Lei, in a vertical rectangle of same size as the other two types, with portrait of King Ferdinand in a twice broken circle, with branches of Laurel on both sides, extending from bottom to top, over which appear in the centre the two years as above in a shield-like frame; at left, over the year 1877, there is a monogram of the letters "F" facing to left and right, joined at the base into a V with an "I" in centre, surmounted by a small crown. At the base the Coat of Arms, again surmounted by a crown, and underneath the words "Nihil sine Deo" (nothing without God) in a curved ribbon, on the two sides of the lower crown the value. At top the name of the country in fancy letters, under which in an oblong frame the words "In the fiftieth year of the Independence."

In types A and C the word "fiftieth" is spelled out, while in type B it reads "50th," but in the former it is misspelled "Cincizecilea" instead of "Cincidecilea" the correct spelling of 50 in Roumanian being Cinci Deci, and the word "AL" that is "at" or "to the" Independence is a variant not strictly correct in type A, while the spelling "Independenta" in all three types gives also the impression of an error, but I stand ready to be enlightened on this point.

It is reported that most of the type C values were sold out on the day of issue, the greater part having gone to Govt. Officials, and these, i.e., the stamps, are already commanding a considerable premium over their face value. These four values are by far the most attractive both as to the design and the colours of the stamps.

| The issue: | | |
|------------|---------------------|---------|
| 25 Bani | red-violet, | 835,000 |
| 30 " | grey-black, | 290,000 |
| 50 " | grey-green, | 205,000 |
| 1 Leu | blue-green, | 410,000 |
| 2 Lei | light yellow-green, | 300,000 |
| 3 " | lilac, | 250,000 |
| 4 " | sepia, | 165,000 |
| 4.50 " | red-brown, | 100,000 |
| 5 " | brown, | 490,000 |
| 6 " | deep carmine, | 115,000 |
| 7.50 " | blue-green, | 345,000 |
| 10 " | ultramarine, | 445,000 |

These figures I have taken from Champion's "Circular," and credit should be given him for the interesting news.

This being the second commemorative issue within the course of a few months, and another issue being expected in view of the change in the country's ruler, we collectors will be kept busy, if we intend to keep up with the stamps of the country.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA

We hear that Newfoundland is shortly to issue a new set of stamps, in fact, some of the 1923 Pictorial issues are already obsolete and hard to get. We can supply the complete set for $1.90 or the set in blocks of four at $7.50. (Supply limited.)

This dominion has just issued two new sets. We can supply the Confederation set consisting of 1c, 2c, 3c, 5c, 12c, and 20c values at 55c, blocks of four at $2.10. The Historical set consisting of the 5c, 12c, and 20c values at 50c, blocks of four at $1.90.

Have you got your copy of our U. S. and British North America list, free for the asking? Whilst many of these stamps have shown big rises in the advance sheets, we are still supplying all that we possibly can at the old figures. We expect to have the new edition with new prices ready shortly. This will automatically render obsolete all old prices.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

VALUES OF USED MODERN COLONIALS

By "CALABAR."

(Second Installment.)

Bermuda.—As a rule, mint are better, though with the high values the difference is rather less marked. Contrary to the Bahamas, here visitors are required to pay a poll tax, and as this explains why the 10/-s are so often seen used, I quote the following—

"Far the greater part of the tourist traffic is shared by the Bahamas, Barbados and Jamaica, although Bermuda, which is not a part of the West Indies, gets a huge amount. In fact, stamps and tourists are more vitally connected in Bermuda than in any other island—every tourist who has spent one or more nights ashore is subject to a tax of 10/- when leaving, and postage stamps of that value are affixed to his sailing-ticket. Last season over twenty-six thousand tourists visited Bermuda; of course nearly half of these only spent one day ashore, but it is estimated that the P. O. benefited directly to the extent of £8,000. Small wonder that 10/- used emeralds are plentiful!"

British Guiana.—Mr. Gordon omits this colony—presumably he considers its stamps not as good used as mint. Whilst this is true of the majority, the high values—particularly those of the current issue—are worth about the same, used or mint. In this connexion, Gibbons' pricings for the K. G. high values may be worth noting—

| M.C.A. | Mint. | Used. |
|---------|-------|-------|
| 24c | 2/6 | 2/6 |
| 48c | 4/- | 3/6 |
| 60c | 5/- | 5/- |
| 72c | 7/6 | 7/6 |
| 96c | 7/6 | 7/6 |
| Script. | | |
| 72c | 4/- | 4/6 |

British Honduras.—Practically the same as Barbados and Bahamas—low values, better mint; high values, same mint or used.

British Solomon Ids. Protectorate.—All issues much better used, difference between mint and used less noticeable in the "Postage—Revenue" series than in the three earlier issues. Used copies of the Plate 2 printings of the 1/-, 2/-, 2/6 and 5/- Georges are a trifle better than those from Plate 1, whilst the scarce 3d ("Postage—Revenue") is worth at least twice its mint figure.

British Somaliland.—As re. the ovpts., used = mint. In the later issues, mint slightly better, with the exception of the 1, 2, 3 and 5 rupees, these being about the same.

Brunei.—Mr. Gordon sums up the situation as re. used issues of this remote Colony quite accurately—"All issues are quite uncommon used, which might be explained by the fact that the present white population of the Colony amounts to the total of 35!"

Cayman Ids.—Lower values, used = mint; over 1/-, used somewhat better, particularly as re. the scarcer coloured paper varieties, viz.

1/- white back.
10/- on green.
10/- white back.

3d on pale yellow.
5/- on pale yellow.
5/- blue-green on pale yellow, etc.

By the way, the scarce 10/- 1921—although rumoured obsolete early in July, 1926—was obtainable at the P. O., Georgetown, up to 11th August, and—for aught I know—perhaps even later. Copies are quite in order, therefore, which are postmarked prior to the above date. The script printing was released on 15th September. Does anyone know just when the 10/- MCA exhausted?

Cyprus.—With the exceptions of possibly the 18 and 45 piastres, script, and the rare 10/- and £1 in the 1912 type, all issues rather better mint.

Dominica.—Mr. Gordon sums up the situation here quite accurately—"All values above 2 1/2d (and lately 3d) are somewhat better used. Lower values better unused."

As Dominica is the largest of the Leeward Ids., it boasts of twelve P. O's, viz., Roseau (the capital and G. P. O.), Portsmouth, Colihaut, Delices, Grand Bay, Laplaine, Mahaut, Marigot, Pointe Michel, Rosalie, St. Joseph and Soufriere.

Falkland Ids.—Used = mint, with a difference in favour of the former in the high values (3/-, 5/-, 10/- and £1). The 1/- "War Stamp" in the scarce yellow-brown shade, is at least twice as good used.

Falkland Ids. Dependencies.—With ref. this subject, I quote the following, by Mr. B. S. H. Grant—

"SOUTH GEORGIA.

"Of the Dependencies, the island of South Georgia is the most important, and has an area of twelve hundred square miles with a population of about 1400, of which, the last census discloses, only three were women, and the island is the only one which at present possesses a permanent resident population, who are under a Resident Magistrate and other officials under whom the postal arrangements are carried out.

"In December, 1909, a supply of stamps was sent out to South Georgia, and a handstamp bearing the words South Georgia provided, with which the stamps on the letters were overprinted. This was applied after the stamps were affixed to the covers, and not to the stamps before sale, as the handstamp in length was slightly in excess of the width of the stamp.

"The imprint, a horizontal one, appeared just over the value tablet and for a long time it was thought that the overprinted stamps were a myth, but several copies are now known, and exist

United States "Educators"

This is the name we give to a series of approval books designed especially for those who want to know more about the 19th Century issues of United States stamps and who are interested in filling as many as possible of those empty spaces with stamps that are presentable in appearance and correctly classified.

These "Educator" approval books have helped scores of collectors to find the missing varieties they were not so sure of identifying, and have further given them some idea of values as governed by condition. They are priced for what we think they are worth, perhaps twice catalog, or perhaps 1/4 of catalog according to the desirability of the particular specimen.

SENIOR "EDUCATORS"

Are similarly arranged, but designed for those who want only fine copies and who are willing to pay for superior quality.

Both series of "Educators" represent all 19th Century issues with considerable completeness. Ask for any particular issue that interests you, or start with the 1847-51 booklet and work through the lot.

SPECIALIZED SELECTIONS

Made up to suit individual want lists, and include varieties of cancellation, of paper, of printing, of shade. Pairs, strips, blocks, covers; whatever your speciality our stock is at your service and should be of some use to even the most advanced specialist. [H2]

in specialized collections. Under orders from Port Stanley, however, the overprinting of the stamps was stopped, and the words impressed beneath each stamp. Mailed matter at this period was so small that entire bearing the overprint on the stamps must be extremely rare.

"Stamped covers bearing the words South Georgia beneath the stamps seem to have been in use up to about the middle of 1912, when the handstamp was dropped altogether, and since then merely the ordinary South Georgia circular cancellation pmk. has been employed. Both Victorian and Edwardian stamps appear to have been used up to this period, but examples with the little handstamp, impressed either on or below the stamps, are of great rarity, due to the fact, no doubt, that a considerable time elapsed before their existence became known, or their importance realized.

"There is little of importance in the modern Georgian issues to record, excepting that the War stamps of the Falklands were used between 1918 and 1920, and covers bearing the South Georgia cancellation are not often met with.

"SOUTH SHETLANDS—DECEPTION ISLAND. "There is a temporary P. O., or postal service, for those engaged in the whaling industry during the whaling season, November to April, and any correspondence dealt with is pmkd. with a special cancellation.

"Stamped matter was at first cancelled by means of an oval rubber handstamp bearing the words Deception Island—South Shetlands, with the date in the centre, usually in violet ink. No one seems able to say definitely when this oval cancellation first came into existence, although copies I have seen bear dates January, 1922, and April, 1924. In November, 1924, however, the current circular date pmk. evidently came into use, and is comparatively common, whereas the Deception Is. cancellations are certainly scarce."—Stamp Collecting.

Gambia.—As a whole, used—mint, the high values, however, being somewhat better used.

Re. postal stations—"There is only one P. O. in the Gambia, i.e. Bathurst," writes a local resident; "there are several small postal agencies up the river, of which my firm hold one; these are merely ordinary trading shops, at which stamps are on sale and letters received for posting. The Govt. steamers, Prince of Wales and Vampire, make weekly alternate trips up the river every Wednesday. On board these vessels are travelling P. O's. Therefore all letters received from Basse, McCorthy (or Georgetown), Kontaour, or Fattoto (these are the only river stations at which letters are received for posting) are franked T. P. O. No. 1 or 2, according to which vessel picks them up."

Gibraltar.—Mint quite a bit better, except the 4/-, 8/- and £1, 1903; 4/- and £1, 1904; 4/- and £1, Universal; £1 1912; and 4/- and 8/- scripts—these same used as mint.

AIR MAIL ROUTE CLIPPINGS

We regret that we are unable to print the many clippings sent us relating to new contract routes and route changes. Such clippings are of interest but not sufficiently important for us to use unless we can tie up to them some real philatelic value. Where first day covers are probable, we want our subscribers to know the place and time for mail closure.

SUBURBAN STAMP AND CURIO CLUB

By F. H. OHLUND, Pres.

In accordance with your request, I enclose a booklet of the Suburban Stamp and Curio Club of Boston. I hope the list of names will be of some help to you for your October 10th Special number. Our membership now exceeds 200. We are going strong, and are one of the most active organizations in the East.

Besides our regular meetings on the 1st and 3rd Thursday of the month at the Quincy House, Boston, we have numerous exhibitions, auctions, good speakers and entertainment. Our meetings are full of interest and our socials are never dull. We also have an annual automobile outing free to our members.

Our next big event will be the Fifteenth Anniversary Celebration Banquet and Founders Night at the Boston City Club, on Wednesday, October 26th. In order that all may fully enjoy themselves, a fine program of entertainment has been arranged. Altho the cost to the Club for the banquet will be $2.75 per person, we have arranged to take care of part of the expense so that the price to members and friends will be only $2 each.

BRITISH COLONIALS

We hold one of the largest stocks of these popular issues in America. Prices are showing a marked rise, according to advance sheets released to date, and it is advisable to fill in the blank spaces at present levels before prices go higher. Speculators here have been offering popular items freely and their stocks are running low. Prices abroad are stiffening also and in our opinion British Colonials are a good investment. We shall be pleased to fill want lists or submit quotations. Inquiries solicited.

METROPOLITAN STAMP COMPANY

1482 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

OUR EYE:

—Tacoma, Wash., is in the air mail lime light and added impetus will be given the propaganda to have the correct name of Mt. Tacoma known of all men. The first day of service was Sept. 7, and Cecil F. Blogg favors us with a cover showing large circular marking in violet.

—M. J. Fenster is home again after visiting 14 countries and travelling 17,000 miles. He will soon be with us again as an advertiser.

—“The peso value of the Philippines Legislative series issued last December is at present a most elusive item. Three to four times face is generally asked and obtained by those who have this missing—and limited—value. I notice that dealers selling these, have suddenly withdrawn their ads, as people here re-bought the complete sets as advertised, being cheaper than they could obtain them here.”—PERCY A. HILL.

—United States postage stamps are “literally printed by the mile,” says Popular Mechanics. “Some 1,500,000 letters are mailed each hour of the twenty-four in a day. To carry the year's letters, 15,000,000,000 postage stamps and 60,000,000 special-delivery stamps are sold. More than 1,500,000,000 postal cards are used yearly.”

—Our valued contributor, Harry Huber, is off on a trip to Virgin, Leeward and Windward Ids.

—We are advised of the death of Robert E. Nuese, Short Hills, N. J., a long time collector and subscriber to the WEEKLY. For 47 years he had been with the firm of F. H. Leggett & Co., N. Y. City, and at the time of his retirement a few months ago he was a director, as well as secretary of the organization. From boyhood he was devoted to stamps and had a world wide correspondence. In recent years he has specialized blocks of 4 U. S. and original covers.

—Paul P. Murray of the Murray Stamp Co., St. Louis, Mo., calls our attention to two errors in our Sept. 5 issue. Referring to the A. P. S. exhibit at the Art Museum we credited Mr. Lichtenstein's Western Franks to V. M. Bertold and John Klemann's U. S. Proofs and Essays to Mr. Lichtenstein. We thank Mr. Murray for these corrections. When reprinting news matter it is always difficult to correct inaccuracies of this kind.

—We welcome to our columns on a “three-in-one” contract, G. S. Mollineux of Palisade Park, N. J. His initial advertisement quotes Gambias. The position assigned him will be his regular location.

—B. L. Drew has changed his address to Room 803, 333 Washington St., Boston, Mass. We have not had the privilege as yet of inspecting the new quarters, but as no stamp dealer ever changes his office without securing greater conveniences, we are quite sure that Mr. Drew has also profited in this direction. For some years he has held an advertising contract for 3,000 lines or more, and his announcements are found regularly on page 1 of the WEEKLY.

—The first air mail to leave Indianapolis direct by airplane was carried by Clyde A. Shockley on August 25. The mail consisted of a number of copies of the Indianapolis Star and was carried from Indianapolis to Williamsport, Indiana. This flight was authorized by the Postmaster General in connection with the dedication of a new landing field at Williamsport, Indiana. No other mail was carried except the newspapers mentioned above. Mr. Shockley was sworn in as an employee by the Indianapolis postmaster on August 24, for the purpose of this flight.—WELWORTH CO.

CINCINNATI COLLECTORS' CLUB

This club has arranged a nice program of events for the coming season and by courtesy of Dr. A. E. Hussey we print it in its entirety. It will furnish some good ideas for other clubs:—

Sept. 22—Stamp Rebus. Exhibition of new issues by Dr. A. E. Hussey.

Oct. 6—Club Benefit Sale. Display by Dr. Leon G. Tedesche.

EDITORIAL

Reports continue to be received of the activities of stamp thieves and several annoying instances of more or less petty pilfering have been brought to our attention. In consequence of these reports it is advisable to strongly caution all collectors and dealers to be watchful of their property and not to allow carelessness on their part to invite the attention of the crooks who seem to have instituted a sort of campaign to feather their nests at the expense of the unsuspecting stamp folks. As comment on this subject, which has been touched upon heretofore in these columns, the following observations have been received from a correspondent who watches developments in the philatelic world closely: "Your remarks to the effect that loose methods in handling stamps by some owners may account for thefts here and there are correct, but I am of the opinion that there is a gang or two who are systematic in their operations." He goes further and says that there may be a "fence" somewhere that encourages the thieves and that he is interested in getting evidence that will support his suspicion. Under the circumstances, it behooves all who handle stamps in a public way to take all reasonable precautions to protect their property. In this connection, Mr. Chas. A. Christensen, Milwaukee dealer, reports that while he was away recently, someone broke in and stole a lot of new issues. His loss is over $500 and he thinks that the burglars are the same ones who stole from Mr. Henry George of Milwaukee, and Mr. Christensen is working with Mr. George in an endeavor to find the guilty persons.

It is apparent that notwithstanding repeated warnings by the post office department condemning the practice, stamps are still being removed from letters and packages addressed to stamp people, by persons within the postal service. While these losses are indicative of the far-flung interest in collecting, they are about the most exasperating which befall the collector or dealer. In view of the fact that the department is determined to check this form of theft, it becomes the duty of every philatelist who has suffered in this way to report the case to the postmaster of his city with the evidence afforded by the denuded covers. When the culprit is caught, assurance is given that he will be punished because the authorities are aware of the mischief that is done by the violator of the mails.

The following letter was received several weeks ago from Mr. C. F. Heyerman, 1403 Ford Building, Detroit, Michigan: "Last October, at the New York Exhibition, I bought from Mr. Eugene Klein, a Germany No. 65b, the half of the 5pf surcharged 3pf. This was given by my friend to his son as a graduation present, and the boy was so proud of it that he was still carrying it in a purse instead of mounting it at once in his album; and Monday, August 15th, the purse was picked from his pocket." I think rather fortunately that Mr. Klein's letter unfolded the stamp, so that the thief would know at once that it was of some value and that therefore we may hope that he may try to dispose of it to some dealer or collector. In this way, the stamp may be recovered." We hope sincerely that this story will have a happy ending.

Some time ago, we published an account of the arrest in Honolulu, Hawaii, of Louis C. Gulley, who was superintendent of the Schofield Barracks postoffice, on a charge of using canceled stamps in mailing packages. At the time, something was said of the philatelic leanings of Mr. Gulley who, formerly, lived in this country. Judging from the accounts in the Honolulu newspapers that we have received from Mr. W. F. Slusser, the case attracted wide attention. It was started on August 8th and a verdict was returned on August 29th. Mr. Gulley was acquitted on all five counts by a jury in the U. S. district court, the jury having rendered its verdict after having been out over five hours. In the course of the trial, it was shown that Mr. Gulley was known to be a stamp collector and an officer of a bank where Mr. Gulley had bought stamps of high denomination said that it was not unusual for philatelists to buy stamps of high denomination for use in preference to utilizing many small values on a heavy piece of mail. One of the offenses charged against Mr. Gulley was the removal of four canceled Austrian stamps in violation of the regulations from unclaimed postal cards; and it was the object of the prosecution to show that these stamps were intended for Mr. Gulley's stamp collection. Tentative jurymen were questioned as to their knowledge of stamp collecting.

A correspondent tells us that the next edition of U. S. Specialized will include the revenue stamps of the United States and with this addition the popularity of the work will be enhanced, it need not be said.

On an old insurance assessment notice dated at Canajoharie, N. Y., October 4, 1856, the information is given that "postage stamps, when they can be obtained, may be enclosed in lieu of change. If you should, for the sake of convenience, send more than the amount of your assessment, the balance will be returned to you in Postage Stamps when receipt of money is forwarded. Please enclose an extra stamp or three-cent piece for the postage on the receipt to be sent you." As Dr. Davenport of Auburn, N. Y., who sent in the instrument says, "evidently the stickers were not always obtainable even years after they were first issued." We have read somewhere that in 1855, an effort was made by the department at Washington to compel the use of postage stamps, but that some of the post offices seemed to be reluctant to stock up with stamps adequately and that in consequence they could not supply patrons with all the stamps that they wanted. The old three-cent piece that is mentioned was the little silver piece that some of the old-timers remember.

IN PASSING

MR. G. CAMERON RAPKIN, London, was in Chicago recently as a representative of G. F. Rapkin, philatelic accessory manufacturer, where he called on old customers who had the pleasure of having known his father; and on other factors in the stamp trade, as well.

A LETTER from Dr. J. F. Dodge, now a food specialist and dietitian of Jamestown, N. C., recalls the days when he published his stamp journal in Pennsylvania and made things hum. While a busy man, he finds precancels something worth while.

A CARD from Mr. C. W. Kissinger, Reading, who has been making an extended European trip came from the Royal Philatelic Society, London, headquarters.

MR. L. J. FLERLAGE reports the death on August 30th of R. E. Nuese, Short Hills, New Jersey, a well-known collector in New York, where since 1880, he was connected with the firm of F. H. Leggett & Co. Mr. Nuese had a collection of twelve thousand blocks of four.

MR. L. T. BRODSTONE, Superior, Nebraska, passed through Chicago on his return from Europe where he spent much time in London, in particular.

MR. LEONARD MICHAEL, New York, was in Chicago, his old home city, recently, giving the natives a treat. Evidently, he is in harness again as he has joined the Collectors Club, New York.

SOME time ago, we printed a statement that a card had been seen that was carried by Chamberlain, pilot of the Columbia on his special flight, Munich to Vienna on June 19, 1927; and now we are advised that in a conversation with "the first man to fly a plane to Germany" denial was made that he carried any mail from one German town to another.

MR. HENRY A. MEYER, Evansville, Indiana, has been sending in cards that showed the itinerary of his recent trip to Europe.

THE Chicago Precancel Club has succeeded in obtaining the 1928 convention of the parent organization for its city; and no doubt plans will soon be discussed for the big meeting of the national body next year. The indications are that one hundred members will be on the roll of the Chicago society in a short time.

MARSHALL HANCOCK, proprietor of the Martauco Stamp Company, New York, has remembered us while in Europe from where we have had several stories hinting about the activities of our enterprising friend.

A CORRESPONDENT says that the four designs of the postage stamps that are to be issued in 1928 to commemorate the sesquicentennial of the discovery of the Hawaiian Islands by Captain Cook were the work of Miss May Frazier and are based on various old pictures of the captain and artists' conception of scenes attending Captain Cook's visit to the Hawaiian Islands in 1778, and the following year. He thinks that the issue will prove most interesting, thereby confirming sentiments that have been expressed by others who have written on the subject.

THE Advance Sheets of the new catalogue are coming without a break and it is apparent that the catalogue itself will make its appearance just at the right time.

THE name of the recently organized society, Covers-Before-Stamps, has

Phillips' Specialized Priced Catalogue

OF THE General Issues of the Confederate States.

In this catalogue will be found the current market prices for the General Issues of the Confederate States. In the large lithographed stamps, I quote separate prices for unused stamps with and without gum.
Prices are quoted for singles in all known shades, both unused and used, for pairs, blocks of four, groups of the 50 types, panes and full sheets. In the 10c engraved stamp I quote the correct price for sheets and panes with the different numbers and imprints. To show how necessary this is, I may say that prices vary between $350.00 for the rarest pane to $15.00 for the commonest.
Prices are also quoted for an enormous variety of cancellations, something that has never been attempted before. Here you will find the correct market price for cancellations in black, blue, red or green. For Town cancellations with month only, then for the rarer Town cancellations with year date shown. For Grids, Targets, Bars, Express Co., Railway, Steamboat, etc., etc.
This catalogue will be indispensable to all interested in the most Historical stamps ever issued.
Printed on one side the paper only. In the Press, ready October 15th.
Prepaid orders only will be booked.

Chapui Asylum, Costa Rica

This building shown here is known as the Chapui Asylum of San Jose. This 6c value is one of a pictorial set, 6, 30, 45c, now on the market.

Script C A

We inadvertently placed the above heading upon an article last week where the text did not conform to the title. We pictured two cuts representing watermarks, and they should have been described as indicating the difference between single C A and multiple C A. We shall show the script type in a subsequent issue.

Visions of Boyhood

We received seven entries in our cartoon contest calling for an interpretation of the "Visions of Boyhood" as illustrated. We have already printed the entry of Lyle E. Beal, 42 Elliot St., Keene, N. H., and to him is awarded the prize. We are very glad to present herewith a picture of the prize-winner.

LYLE E. BEAL, Keene, N. H.

The following sent in entries:—Dennan Scudder, Nantucket, Mass.; Walter Zorn, Monroe, Mich.; Herbert Dougan, Middlefield, Ohio; Alvin Smith, Chicago, Ill.; Carl W. Pickering, Deer Isle, Me., and E. H. Pearl, La Mesa, Texas.

Paper No. 13—Surface-colored

This is paper colored on the surface only. This tinting is not obtained during the process of manufacture, but is printed on the paper before the stamps themselves are printed. The Guatemala stamps of 1897 were printed on surface-colored paper.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

Arms of Mexico
Mexico A26
1899 and 1903

Early in the twelfth century A. D. seven tribes of Aztecs came from the north into what is now Mexico. One of these tribes, the Nahuatl, did not, or could not, establish a permanent residence. But after a century of adventures and hardships they encamped on the southwestern border of the principal lake of Mexico, Texcoco, in the year 1325. There one morning they saw perched on the stem of a prickly pear which shot out of the crevice of a rock that was washed by the waves, a royal eagle of extraordinary size and beauty, with a serpent in his talons and his broad wings opened to the rising sun. This they considered an omen indicative of their permanent settlement, and there they laid the foundation of the Venice of America by sinking piles in the shallows, and building their rush houses thereon. They called the place Tenochtitlan, in token of the omen, the name meaning "a cactus on a stone." Its other name, Mexico is derived from the name of their war-god, Mexitli. Thus it comes about that an eagle, a serpent and a cactus form the arms of Mexico and appear on these postage stamps.

Luxemburg Commemoratives

By HERMANN FOCKE.
The Grand Duchy of Luxemburg just issued a special set of stamps commemorate its 75th year of existence and incidentally an International Stamp Exhibition held Sept. 4 to 8. This issue has been reported in various philatelic papers as consisting of two values, 50c and 1 franc in two different colors each, but it now develops that the set consists of five different values all of the same design, and each of single color. I submit for your inspection a cover postmarked at the Exhibition grounds with a special marking, prepaid with the set of five stamps, mauve, 50c olive, 75c claret, 1f blue and 1½f blue. The set is a very handsome one and the engraving is remarkably well executed.

My correspondent in Luxemburg informs me that there was also issued a special Balloon Card, sanctioned by the P.T.T. which I expect to receive shortly, and of sufficient interest, I shall be glad to submit it to you.

Why I Collect U. S. and Canadian

A goodly number of entries were received in this contest and we had no difficulty in deciding the competition. We have finally concluded that the best entry was that of Paul Westcott, 189 E. St., North Adams, Mass., amongst boys. For the girls first honors go to Laura Harrison, 104 Graham Ave., Peabody, N. J. The prizes offered by Hazelhurst, Brantford, Can., and by WEEKLY have been despatched to two winners.

Other entries in this contest were received from the following:—Roy B. man, Jr., Boise, Idaho; Robert B. son, Brunswick, Me.; E. H. Pearl, Mesa, Texas.; Elizabeth Johnson, Middlefield, N. J.; Jerome Scharrof, Schenectady, N. Y.; Geo. W. Hawse, Winchester, Mass.; Herbert Johnson, Haddonfield, N. J.; Herbert Dougan, Middlefield, Mass.; Samuel Horwitz, New Bedford, Mass.; Edward Madler, Tigerton, Wis.; W. Furste, 2nd, Cincinnati, O.; R. C. Trumbull, Freeport, Pa.; William Ke Jr., Los Angeles, Cal.; Kazuo Sak Bothell, Wash.; Daniel Coleman, Eugene, Ore.; George Todd, Portland, Ore.; J. Preisendorfer, Garwood, N. J.

We are glad that this contest proved to be so interesting for readers of the Junior Page.

JULY-AUGUST SUBSCRIPTION RECORD

There was a very pretty rivalry last time between the Anchor Stamp Co., and the Johnson Stamp Co., the former with 53 subscriptions and the latter with 49. These are the same relative positions which these firms occupied for July, when the figures were 56 and 33 respectively. W. W. Betts is third with 21, while Andrew R. Perry has 20 and the Hawkeye Stamp Co., 19.

In the totals for eleven months the Anchor Stamp Co. has 251, with the Payn Stamp Co. and the Hawkeye Stamp Co. tied for second place with 181 each. We shall begin a new contest October 1.

The contestants having ten or more new subscriptions during July and August are:—

HAT DEALERS SHOULD DO
By Jos. A. STEINMETZ.
(1) Give away cheap albums and collections of common varieties to promising beginners and to school boys.
(2) Liberal advertising pays the best!
(3) Consign freely to department stores and other selling mediums attractive collections and albums, to be repaid same as sold.
(4) Rack on the counter sells better than dead wood on the shelf!
(5) Arrange with large advertising concerns, who give premium prizes, to sell albums, packets, and collections, to be drawn from dealers' stock as called for.
(6) Million children read the weekly journals!
(7) Present the principals of public schools with cheap attractive typical collections as an object lesson in the study of geography and history. Also prize assignments in envelopes free for school-boys describing attractively thereupon features and advantages of collecting.
(8) From foreign lands their tribute bring!

SUZANNE AND HER STAMPS
Another most welcome recruit to the philatelic world is Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen whose prowess on the tennis courts has been one of the marvels of the world's sport. We trust she will wield the racquet as successfully, if not so forcefully, as she has long wielded the racquet. The wonderful back-hand drive will easily be called into play in stamp collecting, but the contrast between the lively Suzanne of the Courts and the reserved Suzanne of the stamp den, will surely afford some fresh material for the comic cartoonists who have yet to picture her in still life.—Stamp Coll. Fortnightly.

AN OLD FRIEND IN A NEW DRESS

From October 1st, 1927, Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal is being published under the title of Gibbons' Stamp Monthly, with a brighter cover and even more attractive contents than formerly.

Its articles, news, chronicle, market hints, competitions, bargain offers, and other features, make it the most worth-while monthly magazine ever offered to the keen collector and its published price is only half its cost to us.

Subscription, 75 cents a year, post paid, or 16 months for a dollar bill.

SWISS PRO JUVENTUTE, 1927

By JOSEPH GODER.

Since the year 1912, Switzerland issues yearly a series of 3 or 4 charity stamps. These stamps are sold during the month of December, and are accepted as postage for a period of a few months. Up to 1915 their validity ceased with the first day of March. This term was later extended till April 30th. A part of the proceeds from the sale of this series (5 or 10 cents per stamp) was turned over by the postal officials to the "Pro Juventute Society" for the welfare of the youth. The first 3 series depicted characteristic Swiss costumes. Then 9 series illustrating the coat of arms of the various cantons were issued according to the design of the famous Swiss painter, Rudolf Munger. To commemorate the great Swiss educator and philanthropist, Heinrich Pestalozzi, a series of three stamps will be issued illustrating the work and portrait of this great son of Helvetia.

The 5 rp. value depicts a poorly clad boy. The 10 rappen value shows a boy well cared for sitting before his filled plate saying grace. A wonderful characteristic portrait of Pestalozzi adorns the 20 rappen value. The crowning achievement of the series is doubtless the 30 rp. stamp. The artist again portrays the great pedagogue. In the background we see, at the left, a freshly cultivated field, the right half shows a ripe grain field, allegorically signifying Pestalozzi's work and its fruits. The five rappen is brown and yellow; the ten rappen is violet and green. Both are designed by E. G. Ruegg of Zurich and are printed in tricolor at the mint of the confederacy. The twenty rappen stamp is a copper engraving, engraved by the Swiss Government Bureau of Topography, according to the design of K. Bickel of Zurich. The very beautiful red shade greatly enhances the expressiveness of the portrait.

The 30 rp. value is of a large size. The design is by E. G. Ruegg. A new process (copper etching) is employed to bring out the minutest detail of the wonderful design. The majestic shade of blue in combination with black befits the serene subject. A Holland engraving company was selected for the printing of the 30 rappen value.

OUR BOOK REVIEW

A very useful book has appeared from the press of the Philatelic Gossip, Holton, Kansas. It is entitled "Successful Stamp Merchandising" and is written by Al Burns, price 50c. It is a dealer's handbook and measures up to its purpose in a very excellent manner. "Boy Trade," "Specialist Trade," "The Downtown Store," "Auctioneering," "Book-keeping," "Advertising," etc., indicate the scope of the book. Mr. Burns is entitled to a great deal of credit for the manner in which he has covered his subject.

POSTALLY USED

Every collector and every dealer knows how difficult it is to get postally used copies of the German stamps issued during the period of the Mark inflation, starting with the outbreak of the Revolution and ending with the stabilization of the German currency on November 1st, 1923. In these fateful years the following stamps were issued: Scott Nos. 105 to 321; Air Mail 401-421, Charity 475-481 and Official stamps Nos. 551 to 598. After many months of work I have been able to get a fairly complete stock of the aforementioned stamps, in postally used condition. Some catalogs make no difference in the price between mint and used copies, but I do and I boldly assert that, with a few possible exceptions, there are at least one million mint stamps for every used copy!

Singles

I can furnish every stamp in used condition against want lists. Many values can be furnished per 10, etc. I can also submit Selections with scarce cancellations.

Blocks of 4

To the amateur of postally used Blocks I can furnish a great many values of the inflation stamps at reasonable prices.

Covers

But the real gems of the German inflation period are the covers with mixed franks and a great many stamps, possibly from different issues. I hold some of these philatelic souvenirs that will make your mouth water. There is for instance a registered cover with 123 Official stamps of different denominations. This surely is a record and I'm sure I'll buy a new hat for anybody that can show me better. Selections of these interesting covers can be submitted to serious collectors, willing to pay fancy prices for fancy goods. [16&18]

Since the Federal Reserve Banks have not been moving Liberty Bonds back and forth in large quantities, the use of the $5 stamp has been limited, and as a result the current variety in fine used condition is much scarcer than the former varieties, which were used quite extensively. I have been able to pick up some very choice copies of this variety, and offer singles at $1.60 and blocks of four at $7.00. Unused copies are available at $5.50 per stamp. This stamp is Scott's #573, and is priced in the Advance Sheets of the new 1928 catalogue, at $2.25, an advance of 25c over the previous quotation.

If you are looking for any of the other United States varieties, either scarce or common in used or unused condition, I am likely to have them on hand. I also carry a wonderful stock of blocks and rarities, which I will gladly submit to the serious collector for inspection.

I am also a buyer at all times, of anything fine or unusual in United States postage or revenue varieties.

I would like to buy a fine general collection, at a reasonable figure, costing from $1500 to $2500. Want stamps of all countries, and prefer them in mint condition.

Canal Zone

Here of late there has been quite a little discussion as to the errors in the Canal Zone plates, and much has been written as to how they occur. The explanation in almost every case has been inaccurate.

Mr. H. M. Southgate writes interestingly upon the subject and I take pleasure in quoting from his letter, "I have been much interested in the notes appearing from time to time in MEKEEL'S by Mr. Huber on the Canal Zone overprint errors. It may help clear the situation a bit if a more accurate description of the method of overprinting is given, as I note that Mr. Huber mentions a plate being used for this work. This is not the case.

The overprint is made from electrotype slugs bought in strips from the Government Printing Office, each strip or head, as I believe it is called, consists of ten slugs, repetitions of the word Canal or Zone, and is of a total length of 72 rems, if my memory is correct. These heads are cut into the separate slugs, each of which of course, has only either a single Canal or Zone on it. They have to be cut to register correctly on the stamp when in the form.

A form is then made up for the full 400 subjects for the ordinary stamps or 200 in the case of the "Sesquis," so that a full sheet may be overprinted. In the case of the 1924, April order the $1.00 and 2c dues were overprinted on sheets of 100 taken from finished stock and a form of 100 subjects had to be made up for each of these denominations as the spacing for the $1.00 which is a stamp with the long dimension horizontal, would not fit the 2c due unless the overprint were placed sidewise.

The ordinary stamps are overprinted in the 400 subject sheets before gumming and perforating.

The rotary press product has not, I believe been so far overprinted by a roll as is done for the Bureau Print precancels, but, doubtless, this will be done if the use of overprinted U. S. stamps continues.

Separate forms of 400 subjects are required for the ordinary stamps of ½c to 15c (short dimension horizontal) and 17c and above (long dimension horizontal).

These forms are kept intact after an order has been filled for future use, unless so worn that a new form would be required.

When a form is first made proofs on plain paper are taken and carefully inspected for any error of setting.

During the filling of an order an individual slug may be damaged or become so worn as to require replacement without replacing the other slugs.

This accounts for the inverted or duplicating errors. If the new slug is put in upside down or the wrong slug, a Zone for a Canal, had been used we get the error. As these changes would be made probably toward the end of the order the error would only appear on the balance of the order.

Had the error been detected we may be sure the defective sheets would have been removed.

From the above it will be seen that there were four forms made for the first overprinting for Canal Zone, two of 400 subjects and two of 100 subjects.

When the first forms were worn out a new order for slugs was placed and was filled with the sharp "A" type. The order to the Public Printer was for the same type as the first, but a slightly different face was supplied. A third order slightly from the previous orders will, doubtless, appear on the last order for stamps.

A study of the errors, bearing in mind the forms used, will show the possibilities that exist for each type of error but unless the misplaced slug was in original setting it would not mean all the denominations on the order printed from the defective form would have the error.

It will, therefore, be seen that if sheets of a certain stamp have been printed at one time, and errors are found on several of the sheets, it does not necessarily follow that the errors will be found on all of the sheets. These conclusions heretofore reached as to number existing of error varieties, likely to be inaccurate.

C. F. SCHELL, 48 Ash, Braintree, Mass.

Germany.—We are informed that details of the Hindenburg set mentioned in our issue No. 1910 are not quite correct. Mr. A. Wagner of Essen advises that the latest details are as follows:

"On the occasion of the 80th birthday of the President a special set of postage stamps will be issued, consisting of 4 values, as under: For domestic postal cards and local letters, 8pf, selling price 15pf; for domestic letters, 15pf, selling price 30pf; for foreign letters, 25pf, selling price 50pf; 50pf, selling price 100pf; total M 1.95 per set—46c U. S. currency.

The above stamps will be obtainable at the windows of the post offices from Sept. 26, 1927, up to and including January 31, 1928. After April 30, 1928, the stamps will be demonetised.

In addition to the stamps a special, artistically executed postal card will be issued and sold at 15pf each (4c).

The Hindenburg stamps can also be had in booklets at M 1.50, 36c each, each booklet containing four 8pf and three 15pf stamps."

Mr. Wagner also sends a copy of the new 8pf Beethoven stamp, in green, which was placed on sale about the 25th of last month.

Mauritius.—Copies of the 4c green and red, King George design on script watermark, are to hand from Mr. R.
Roberts and Whitfield King & Co.

Monaco.—Mr. Henry Hooreman sends for chronicle the 1fr10c green, design as A11 and 3fr red and greyishpurple on yellow, design as A15.

New Zealand.—Mr. R. Roberts submits for chronicle the 2sh pale blue, Admiral type, on Cowan paper, watermarked N Z and star.

St. Kitts-Nevis.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the 2 1/2p blue, script watermark, chalky surface paper. The design is the same as the 1920-22 issue.

Sudan.—The 4m green and brown, watermarked S G, has been issued and copies are to hand from Mr. Roberts.

STAMP NOTES AND NEWS

China.—Two new provisional stamps are likely to be issued here shortly, 9c on 10c and 14c on 15c, in consequence of the increased postal rate on domestic registered and express correspondence. We are further informed that the current Chinese stamps are likely to be overprinted in a similar manner to those for Yunnan and Manchuria, but in the present case they will be for the Province of Fentein.

Costa Rica.—The 6c, 30c and 45c provisionals of 1926 have now been superseded by a permanent type in a pictorial design similar to the 1923 issue, the colours being brown, orange and dark purple respectively. Each stamp is dated "1926" and the dies have been engraved by Messrs. Waterlow & Sons, Ltd., of London.

France.—An International Flying Exhibition was opened at Marseilles on June 25th, and remained open until July 25th. Two special Air Post stamps were issued and sold only at the Exhibition and only one copy to each purchaser of an admission ticket. The stamps are the ordinary current French 2 and 5 francs, Nos. 102a and 103 in our catalogue, overprinted with an aeroplane device and the words "Poste Aerienne."

Japan.—The new stamps referred to in our July Bulletin have now been issued, but instead of a 4 sen stamp as previously announced there has appeared a 6 sen, so that the set is as follows: 1½, 3, 6 and 10 sen. The 1½ and 3 sen show a portrait of Baron Mitsui Maeshima, Japan's first Postmaster-General, and the other two denominations, a map of the world with a pigeon in flight carrying a letter in its beak. These stamps were placed on sale at 8 p. m., on June 20th, and are to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of Japan's entry into the Postal Union. As is usual with these Japanese commemorative stamps, only one each of the 6 and 10 sen were sold to each applicant the balance being kept by postal officials for private speculation. The 1½ and 3 sen were sold in limited numbers, but we have not yet been able to obtain sufficient to include in our new issue distribution.

Lebanon Republic.—In each sheet of the recent provisional stamp, 4 piastres 50 centimes on 75 centimes, there is an error, which has apparently passed unnoticed, probably due to the fact that this error is in the Arabic inscription, in which the first character is omitted so as to read "4½" instead of the "P4½." The current pictorial stamps have been overprinted "Republique Libanaise" including the Air Post and Postage Due stamps.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

STAMPS AND MUSIC

By WM. A. P. WHITE.

There seems to be absolutely no subject on earth with which postage stamps are unconnected. I fully expect to see published some day an article entitled "The Relation of Postage Stamps to the Annual Consumption of Violet Lifesavers in the Kingdom of Prester John." To some, perhaps, the relation of postage stamps to music—and particularly to opera—may seem almost as ridiculous, but it is this relation, nevertheless, which I hope here to demonstrate.

I will begin, of course, with the United States. Our first musical stamp is the fifteen cent of the issue of 1869, Scott's Nos. 118-119. This, or rather these, depicts or depict the landing of Columbus in the New World. The voyage of Columbus has been made the subject of a fine opera by Aldo Franchetti, "Cristoforo Colombo." Titta Ruffo has given fame to the part of Cristoforo, whose two finest numbers, Aman lassù le stelle and Dunque ho sognato? belong in the repertory of every barytone. The same operatic reference applies also to the Columbian issue of 1892, Nos. 230-245. Next comes the Hudson-Fulton issue, Nos. 372-373.
This design depicts Hudson's ship, the Half Moon, a ship that figures promi-nently in de Koven's opera of Rip Van Winkle (Chicago, 1920).

Not until 1920 does another United States opera stamp appear. In that year was issued the Pilgrim Tercentenary set, Nos. 548-550. Much music has been written concerning the Pilgrims, probably the finest work being Walter Damrosch's opera, The Scarlet Letter, based on the famous novel by Hawthorne. Another fine Puritan opera is Cadman's The Witch of Salem, produced so successfully this year by the Chicago Grand Opera Association.

In 1922 the current set of regular postage stamps began to appear. The one of these most musically connected is the fourteen cent dark blue, No. 565. This stamp depicts the American Indian, the favorite musical subject of new-world composers. Besides the fine work that Homer Grunn, Geoffrey O'Hare, Chief Os-Ke-Non-Ton, Princess Tsianina, and others have done in preserving actual tribal melodies, many composers—particularly Cadman, Lieurance, and Mac-Dowell—have done concert pieces after the Indian style. The most prominent Indian operas are Gomes's superb O Guaraney, with its beautiful love duet Sento una forza, its gay adventuring song Senza tetto, its two lovely colorature cansoni Gentile di cuore and C'era una volta, and other famous numbers; Herbert's Natoma, containing among other numbers the renowned Dagger Dance, Barbara's I list the trill, and Paul's address, No country can my own outvie;

and Cadman's Shanewis, so well produced last summer at the Hollywood Bowl with Os-Ke-Non-Ton, Tsianina, and Rafaelo Diaz.

In 1924 another commemorative set was issued, the Huguenot-Walloon Tercentenary issue, Nos. 614-616. This at once calls to mind Meyerbeer's Gl'Ugonotti or Les Huguenots. How famous this opera once was in the old nuits de sept étoiles! But now its glory is vanished; it is revived but occasionally, and then as a curiosity. And this despite such numbers as Raoul's enchanting Bianca al par, old Marcel's amusing Piff!
Paff! Pouff! the page's Nobil signori, salute! the Queen's O vago suol, St.
Bris' impassioned scene with chorus D'un sacro zel, the soldiers' chorus, and others long forgotten.

The year 1925 saw the first of our several sesquicentennial stamps commemorating the revolution—the Lexington-Concord issue, Nos. 617-619. There has been an unfortunate dearth of music on the inspiring subject of the American war for Independence. Most of our patriotic songs are of later periods, dealing with the War of 1812, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, or the World War. And the American operatic composers have almost altogether neglected the opportunities here offered them. The chief opera on the revolution was composed by an Italian, Luigi Arditi (composer of Il Bacio, Parla and other famous waltzes). Although its libretto is based on Cooper's The Spy, the opera has but little dramatic or musical value.

Going through the catalog alphabetically, we find our first foreign musical stamp in the two heller violet of the Austrian issue of 1908. This bears the picture of Maria Theresa, under whose rule Vienna was at its gayest. On this period is based Richard Strauss's delightful masterpiece of comedy, Der Ro-senkavalier. The innumerable Mercury heads on the Austrian newspaper and special delivery stamps remind us of Gounod and his almost forgotten opera of Philemon et Baucis, in which Mercury, Jove, Vulcan, and other ancient gods appear. And then there is Austria's charity set of 1922, bearing the portraits of seven great composers of Austrian birth or association (Nos. 631-637). Haydn (2½k), the father of the symphony; Mozart (5k), composer of some of the most delicately beautiful operas, symphonies, quartets, and lieder that the world has known; Beethoven (7½k), of whom too many superlatives can not be used; and Schubert (10k), the charm of whose lieder has seldom been rivaled—these are too well known to re-

MATCH AND MEDICINE

These very interesting revenues of Civil and Spanish-American Wars periods are constantly growing in popularity and I for one can vouch for their increased scarcity.
I recently used this space for two weeks with a buying advertisement for them and only one lot was offered me.

Fortunately, years ago I put in a good stock of them and still have a fair assortment left. A series of six approval books is now available, all freshly made and correctly marked with catalogue numbers and paper varieties.

quire any description here. Bruckner (25k) has long been almost unknown in America, but in the last few years his symphonies have been attaining the recognition that they so well deserve. The Strauss of the 50k is not the modern Richard, but the old Johann, composer of so many famous old Viennese waltzes—The Beautiful Blue Danube, Tales from the Vienna Woods, and many others. Hugo Wolf (100k) is renowned for his many fine lieder, particularly the lovely Zur Ruh! Zur Ruh!

Next we come to Barbados. Its issue of 1905 (Nos. 100-106) depicts the "first" monument erected to the memory of Nelson and was issued in commemoration of the first centennial of the Battle of Trafalgar and the death of Nelson. This death has been made the subject of a little-known song by Brahms, and the maneuvers preceding the battle are dealt within Stanford's line The Old Superb.

A great many of the earlier stamps of Brazil, from 1866 on, bear the portrait of the old emperor Dom Pedro. It is to him that this hemisphere owes one of its finest composers—Antonio Carlo Gomes, to whose masterpiece O Guarany reference has been made above. Dom Pedro discovered and patronized Gomes, whose education he provided at the expense of the Brazilian government. Aside from O Guarany, Gomes's most famous operas are Lo Schiavo, Salvador Rosa, and Maria Tudor. None of his works, unfortunately, have been given an adequate presentation in the United States.

The stamps of Fiume for 1920 (Nos. 86-99) bear a somewhat impressionistic picture of Gabriele d'Annunzio, whose poems have been the basis for numerous musical works, in particular Tosti's charming song, A Vucchella; Pizzetti's interesting opera, La Pisanello; and Zandonai's famous Francesca da Rimini.

Scarcely does there exist a young collector who has not several stamps of the French post office in Alexandria, Egypt. This city is the scene of Massenet's Thais and is the subject of Athanael's great aria in that opera, Voilà donc la terrible cité! ... Alexandrie!

Italy, in 1924, issued a set of stamps (Nos. 152-157) known as the Manzoni commemorative issue. This is doubly connected with music. In the first place, Manzoni's greatest novel, I Promessi Sposi (from which are taken the quotations on the stamps), has been made into an opera by Amilcare Ponchielli. Secondly, Manzoni's death was commemorated by Giuseppe Verdi in the great Manzoni requiem mass, one of the finest requiems ever composed.

In 1898 appeared Portugal's Vasco da Gama set (Nos. 139-146, 625-630). The voyage of Vasco to India is made the subject of Meyerbeer's opera L'Africaine or L'Africana. The part of Vasco—which varies greatly from its historical counterpart—contains one fine aria, O Paradiso! and several good lesser numbers. Caruso and of late years Gigli have made great successes in the rôle. Nelusco's best aria in this opera is entitled Adamastor, re dell'onde profonde. The idea of Adamastor is taken from de Camoes's epic Os Lusíadas, Canto V. Portugal issued in 1924 a series of stamps commemorating de Camoes (or Camoens, as he is often known in English); he figures in two operas—Flotow's long-forgotten Indra and Donizetti's "funeral in five acts," Don Sebastiano.

Among the most interesting commemorative sets are those of Spain in honour of Cervantes and his Don Quijote—postage 1905 (Nos. 287-296) and official 1916 (Nos. 464-471). Don Quijote has been operated by Massenet under the title of Don Quichotte. Although the music is rather trite and banal, the leading rôle has been sung both by Feodor Chaliapin and by Vanni-Marcoux.

Most of Switzerland's stamps from 1907 to the present day have borne the portrait either of William Tell or of his son. Rossini's greatest opera is based on the Tell legend and contains such masterpieces as Sois immobile, Asile héréditaire, the barcarolle, and a dozen other fine numbers.

For last mention have I reserved the finest set from either a musical or a philatelic point of view—the Austrian Nibelung set of 1926. Based on that culmination of dramatic vocal music, Wagner's Nibelungenlied, this set has been adjudged the loveliest of recent years. Its scenes—taken in chronological, rather than monetary, order—are: the theft of the Rheingold by Alberich (20+5g); the battle of Fasolt and Fafner (40+10g); the slaying of Fafner by Siegfried (3+2g); the reception of Siegfried by Gunther and Hagen (24+6g); Siegfried darning Brünnhilde's fire (8+2g); and the parting of Kriemhild (Gutrune) and Brünnhild (15+5g).

And here we end. I know this to be a most incomplete list, yet I think it fairly representative of the connection existing between music and stamps. I have tried to choose only direct connections; but there are others. For instance, who can mention the Two Sicilies without hearing echo in his ear the lovely folk-song of Naples? And new issues add further complications. Would that other countries would follow Austria with stamp-portraits of their musicians. Such stamps would be of far more artistic value than are those commemorating battles and generals.

There is one more link which I should like to add, but cannot. Who will write an opera dealing with stamps?

NOTICE ON LARGE ADS

We must exercise the right to hold over any large advertisement that may come in at a late hour. If you want a page, or half page for a certain issue, communicate with us by wire or air mail, and we will try to reserve the space. We cannot add four pages to the WEEKLY until later in the season.

White Plains, International Philatelic Exhibition

This sheet of 25 stamps, with its "International Philatelic Exhibition" on the top margin, "New York, N. Y." on the bottom, and plate numbers on four sides, is sure to enhance in value.

I offer a single sheet of any of the four plate numbers for $1.00. Four sheets, one of each number, for $3.50. The four plate numbers are 18770, 18771, 18773, and 18774.

Have You a Surplus of These?

We always want to buy for ready cash and at the top of the market anything fine in early U. S. stamps or covers. If you have a specialized collection of any stamps or series; a find of old correspondence; an accumulation of 3c '51s, '57s or '61s on or off cover; patriotic covers of the Civil War, either Confederate or Union, or of the Spanish American war; a few thousand Bank Note issues, even the common 2c and 3c stamps if there are enough to bother with.

Send them to us with your best cash price. Particularly if you have items you think are worth more than anyone else will pay, for that is just the kind we want. Our check or the stamps will come to you by return mail if you ask it.

Just now we are anxious to spend some real money for fine items, but don't want the culls at any price.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS

The mystery of the recent robberies at Milwaukee has been cleared and a thirteen-year-old boy is the culprit. We hear that because of the youthful age of the thief, it is probable that the punishment that will be meted out to him will not be severe. At the same time, it is felt that the advisability of teaching a lesson to him should be considered. It is a satisfaction to learn that in all probability Mr. George and Mr. Christensen have recovered many of their stamps. The following story is from the Milwaukee Sentinel of September 19th, which has been received from Mr. W. O. Staab. "Admitting that his love for rare stamps had driven him to theft in three cases other than the three burglaries he had confessed committing, Carl Manner of 1809 Clybourn Street, 13-year-old philatelist, yesterday helped police sort the $5,200 worth of stamps he had taken from four Milwaukee homes.

According to police the high school stamp collector, learning of a rare collection of stamps, would watch the collector's home and seizing an opportunity when there was no one at home would break into the place and steal the best of the collection. These he would rearrange and sell to some other stamp collector.

His arrest Saturday followed the complaint of Aaron Cohen, 174 Twenty-second Street that the $2,500 collection of his son, Wilbur, had been taken and discovery by Detectives John Heiz and George Radtke that it contained several stamps previously reported stolen. When Mr. Cohen explained that he had bought the collection from Manner, the raid on his home followed.

Yesterday the collectors confessed their inability to identify their own stamps in the pile at police headquarters. Manner was brought from the detention home and unerringly sorted them and distributed them to their owners.

Among those whose homes he entered and the amount of stamps stolen were: Charles Christensen, 1657 Fourteenth Street, $600; Charles Toelle, 602 Thirtieth Street, $2,100; Henry George, 985 Seventh Street, $1,000, and Mr. Cohen, $2,500.

He also confessed to theft of stamps from three offices in the Plankinton arcade, police say.

Proceeds from the sale of the stamps, some sets of which were sent to New York dealers, he used to buy more for his collection, he said."

IN THE FAR EAST

I am on a Mediterranean tour and find stamps offered for sale almost everywhere. They are shown on the streets of Athens and Constantinople, even though they mostly are of the cheaper sort and sold on sheets for about 25c a sheet. Athens has ten members of the American Philatelic Society, which is an unusual number for a foreign city of its size.

In Damascus, I found four stamp dealers on the same block as our hotel here, and was able to make purchases at one place; and I also patronized the post office. The Lebanon "Republic" stamps are on sale there, but only in complete sets of twenty-two varieties—postage, air mail and dues. The price is 111 piastres, equal to about 89c, U. S. I had some difficulty in making my wants known and had it not been for the timely assistance of an employee of the U. S. consul's office who happened to be standing by, I might not have succeeded in my mission. I purchased stamps to the amount of 276 piastres and handed over 300 piastres and waited for my change. "Nothing doing." They do not give change in that country and the consul's man then explained that the postal clerk wished to retain the balance as a tip! A little "rake off" but it amounted to so little that I was content.

In Jerusalem, stamps are on sale in many shops in connection with other goods, but there is nothing very rare; and all U. S. seem to be scarce. At one place, where prices seemed to be rather high, there were two Mexican stamps worth about 3c and priced at 5 piastres or about 25c, U. S. The dealer explained that he allowed 50% off on sets displayed in the window and for that particular set he would take 1 piastre or just one-fifth. Only two values of the new set are on sale at the P. O., the 3 and 13 mil., but I was told that other denominations were expected on August 14th. I leave Jerusalem for Egypt tomorrow, August 9th.

By "THE SEER OF THE STRAND."

Ceylon.—The Ceylon stamps of 1 rupee and above are deserting the coloured papers and are now being printed in two colours on white paper in the type of the current Nyasaland, which type is becoming so popular that I should not be surprised if it comes in to more or less general use. It is, I think, a very pleasing type. Under the circumstances, I think my readers should obtain present Ceylon high values as some of these have had a very short life. I should say the 1 rupee, script, die 2, and the 10 rupees M.C.A. die 2, may turn out to be the best, relatively speaking. The above remarks do not, however, apply to the 100 rupees stamp, but for those who go in for stamps of such a high denomination as this, the present 100 rupees grey-black stamp should certainly be obtained, as it is changing its colour to blue with a purple centre.

British Guiana.—I have found, in several of my jaunts near my home, that the 60c M.C.A. of this Colony is, for some reason or other, missing from many dealers' stocks, and the same remark applies when I have gone further afield than the Strand. Can my readers let me know if they also have found a difficulty in obtaining this stamp? Even when it was current, it didn't seem to me to turn up so often as the other values of the set. The 96 cents in their different shades, or rather, on their different papers, should be completed now, as this value on script paper has already been sent out to the Colony, and will doubtless put in its appearance during the course of the next week or two.

South West Africa.—This country has always been a favourite of mine, and what is far more important, many of my readers are very partial to it. Therefore, I will not apologise for giving it another little paragraph. This time, I am going to advise the acquisition of the official stamps, which have lately put in their appearance, though in very limited numbers, and of course, only in a used condition, as they are not on sale to the public in mint state. Judging by the difficulty I have found in getting together a page of these for my collection, they are well worth acquiring, and I am also still in doubt whether their life in their present form will not be very short. Those overprinted on the Union King's head design are especially interesting, as the South West overprint has been applied to these stamps vertically to allow the official overprint in the two languages to be applied horizontally.

Canada.—A correspondent wishes to confine his attentions to only one British Colony or Dominion, and writes asking which of all the places in the British Empire I would pick out as the most promising country to collect, looked at, as he says, from a Philatelic point of view, to keep his interest up, and from a financial point of view for the welfare of his pocket. I have no hesitation in replying "Canada."

Alaouites, Grand Lebanon and Syria.—These three little countries, all of which are comparatively new to our albums and adjacent to one another, are, I think, a very nice little group to collect, for anyone who is interested in Foreigners. Changes are pretty frequently being rung on us, but the stamps are all inexpensive, so that perhaps we do not mind these numerous changes. With the exception of the first-named, these countries have quite a big mail and the stamps are generally more common used than mint, and there are often opportunities of picking them up quite cheaply. They seem to have, judging by the prices, much more correspondence with Great Britain than with France, under whose protection, of course, they are. I have just seen some values of the Grand Liban pictorial series, overprinted "Republique Libanaise," and these I should recommend readers to obtain early, especially the surcharged

OF THE

General Issues of the Confederate States.

In this catalogue will be found the current market prices for the General Issues of the Confederate States. In the large lithographed stamps, I quote separate prices for unused stamps with and without gum.

Prices are quoted for singles in all known shades, both unused and used, for pairs, blocks of four, groups of the 50 types, panes and full sheets. In the 10c engraved stamp I quote the correct price for sheets and panes with the different numbers and imprints. To show how necessary this is, I may say that prices vary between $350.00 for the rarest pane to $15.00 for the commonest.

Prices are also quoted for an enormous variety of cancellations, something that has never been attempted before. Here you will find the correct market price for cancellations in black, blue, red or green. For Town cancellations with month only, then for the rarer Town cancellations with year date shown. For Grids, Targets, Bars, Express Co., Railway, Steamboat, etc., etc.

This catalogue will be indispensable to all interested in the most Historical stamps ever issued.

Printed on one side the paper only. In the Press, ready October 15th.
Prepaid orders only will be booked.

Grand Lebanon stamps with this overprint in addition.

Abyssinia.—Numerous surcharges

this country have recently been issued.

They were all quite necessary and were only done through urgent Postal necessity, as the ½ guerdie, 1 guerdie and guerdies stamps, used probably more than any of the other values, were completely sold out, and it left no alternative but to surcharge stamps of other denominations. One might ask why could they not reprint these values. The reply, that they had a new series on order with a different coinage, and that, therefore, it was necessary to use up the values which were not in great demand rather than destroy them on the appearance of the new set. I think time will prove that the Postal Authorities in Abyssinia, whoever was responsible for this surcharging, ran things rather closely with some values, and that when the figures do come out, we shall find that very few 3 dollar stamps were overprinted. There are other values which will also be good but I tip the 1 guerdie on 3 dollars to be the best of all. These surcharges have now come to an end as the new set has duly arrived, though copies at the time of writing have not yet reached this country. They are printed in meharaks and thalers, one meharek equalling one guerdie.—Philatelic Journal of Great Britain.

OFFICIAL WAR COUNTERFEITS

By Jos. GODER.

Among the many innovations created by the World War, official counterfeits of the stamps of the enemy surely interest the philatelist.

The object of these imitations is not yet clearly recognized. Dr. Munk in the Kohl-Handbuch states that the counterfeits were used for espionage service. Especially prepared paper was used to write upon with invisible ink which could be made legible by chemical treatment. Munk records only the counterfeits of the German 10 and 15 pfennig stamps (Germania design water-marked lozenges). In a recent issue of the Austrian philatelic journal Die Postmarke Engineer Edwin Mueller publishes an interesting article with enlarged photographic reproductions of the so far known counterfeits of stamps of the Central Powers. The reproductions were undoubtedly made in England. Their official character is acknowledged through the admission of Allied officials.

The counterfeits are extremely good imitations. The most striking deviations from the originals are the size of the design and the perforation.

Of the German stamps the 10 pfennig red (wm. lozenges) of the issue 1905, Scott No. 83, and the 15 pfennig violet-brown, Scott No. 120, are the ones counterfeited. The horizontal perforation of the counterfeits has 15 teeth instead of the 14 of the original. The watermark lozenges differ also from the original. The vertical bars on the T and H of the inscription are very faint.

The 5, 10 and 15 pfennig values of the Bavarian issue of 1914 are known to have been reproduced both perforated and imperforated. The expression of King Ludwig III shows a marked difference from the original. The size of the stamp picture of the originals is 17 1/2mm x 21 3/4mm. The counterfeits have the following dimensions:

5pf, 17 1/2 x 21 3/4mm
10pf, 17 3/4 x 21 3/4mm
15pf, 18 x 21 3/4mm

The perforation of the originals shows 15 x 18 teeth. The counterfeits 16 by 18 teeth.

The Austrian stamps imitated are the 5 and 10 heller values of the crown design, Scott No. 146 and 148, also the 25 heller value of the issue 1917, Scott No. 168. The latter, however, seems not to have been actually used. Perforated and imperforated specimens were issued. As with the Bavarian issues the divergency is in the size of the design. The reproduction of the 5 heller is about .7mm higher and .3mm wider than the original. The 10 heller is .2mm higher and .4mm wider. The design deviates also, especially the letters nk in the engraver's name Junk are smaller than the rest of the letters.

Undoubtedly the position of these fac-similes is unique in the realm of philately. Great obscurity still veils the reason for their existence. Whether the theory of Dr. Munk is correct or whether other conditions are responsible for their existence is left undecided.

SOME STICKLESS STAMPS SAVED

(Clipping from H. Walk.)

A stickless stamp, if it's the right kind, may be worth 1,000 times its face value. Postoffice customers have complained that occasionally they found a stamp that looks all right but "won't stick well."

A little lapse in the efficiency of the government bureau of printing and engraving accounts for the freak, which collectors hail as a rarity. The few specimens held by observant stamp fans are quoted at $20 each, it was learned yesterday.

The freak, discovered by Cleveland postal officials in six different denominations, is a "double paper" or "overlap" species. Thirty of them are known to have been sold at the postoffice here. Probably 500 have gone into circulation. Except those seized by vigilant stamp collectors, all probably have been used and destroyed.

Alvin Good, stamp broker of 558 Hippodrome building, was among the first to recognize that the stamps which post-office customers scorned are a collector's gem.

"Recently the bureau of printing and engraving at Washington began printing stamps on a rotary press instead of a 'flat bed,'" Good said yesterday.

"When some roll of paper was used up, the printer simply lapped the end of a new roll over the end of the old one and pasted them together. As this splice went through the press the 'split' caused one row of stamps to be printed partly on one piece of paper and partly on the other.

"Twenty stamps out of each 500,000 became these 'double paper' prints."

The freak is listed in rare stamp catalogs now being printed, Good said, and, as the public learns of the rarity, more will probably be caught and saved and the collectors' price will decrease, he said.

Just now they are the most eagerly sought for oddity among stamps.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CHICAGO CARD CROSSES COUNTRY

Completes Circuit from Centre to the Coast

(Clipping from G. C. McMillan.)

To test the speed of air Mail, M. L. Canode of the Bronson Canode Printing Company, 626 Federal Street, Chicago, sent a postcard across the continent twice. The card, addressed to the "Postmaster at San Francisco, Cal., then to Postmaster at New York, then to M. L. Canode, Chicago," arrived back in Chicago four days after being mailed.

The card bore the legend, "This is not intended as a freak stunt or souvenir, but it is intended to prove the wonderful efficiency of air mail." It left Chicago Sept. 3 at 6 p. m. The San Francisco date stamp indicates that the card started for New York at 11.30 p. m., Sept. 4. It left New York Sept. 6 at 12 p. m., arriving in Chicago the following evening.

"I just wanted to see how fast a letter could get across the continent," Mr. Canode explained.—Chicago Tribune.

EDITORIAL

An observation that is made by an experienced philatelist has been received and since it has a direct application to any predictions of the course of market movements during the season, now impending, it is spoken of here. He says that the restoration of normal conditions in European countries is proceeding more rapidly than is generally imagined and that in consequence, the supply of really fine things that have been sent here from the countries abroad for sale, due to necessity, is dwindling. He writes: "I do not suppose any one of us knows how huge a number of stamps were sold in the U. S. for the account of philatelists in some of the war countries, at any price, but now such 'hard time' consignments are few. Collectors in Europe are keeping many of the best stamps there and the American market is not called upon to absorb them." Consequently, he adds, more money will be released to buy high-priced pieces in our own country. By this token, business here will be greatly speeded up, but while this momentum is acceptable it is not really vital as it is in the air that philately will have the most active season that it has ever enjoyed during the coming months.

Mr. S. Singer, New York, writes from Luxembourg, under date of September 5th, where he was in attendance at the International Stamp Exhibition, which was opened on September 4th by the Grand Duke of Luxembourg. Mr. Singer says that many very fine exhibits were entered that previously had not been shown; and he promises details of the exhibition. At the time of writing, Mr. Singer was the only representative of American philately there.

The arrest and confession of a thirteen-year-old boy in Milwaukee solves the recent burglaries committed there, according to word received from that city. The miscast philatelic zeal of this youth accounted for the losses sustained by the dealers there and it is evident that the campaign of theft did not embrace other than local territory.

recently propounded the poser: What is philately? For the sake of the soul of the captain of the contest, we hope that he admits that he included this query with the idea of giving contestants a little fat, as the printers used to say.

Mr. Augustus E. Ingram, Washington, D. C., furnishes information that solves the mystery surrounding the whereabouts of the Spanish stamp-issuing colony of La Aguera. He says: "The location of 'La Aguera,' presumed to be a Spanish colony in Africa, of which information was desired by Mr. Robt. S. Gordon in the issue of September 12th was certainly a geographical puzzle. Atlases, year-books, etc., proving of no avail, inquiry was made at the Map Division of the Congressional Library, but without success. A visit was then paid to the Spanish Embassy in this city and after leaving the matter for their careful attention, the following written reply was received later: 'La Aguera' is a trade factory situated in the territory of Rio de Oro, on the west coast of Africa to the south of Villa Cisneros. It is a very small place and its only importance is as a fishery station, fish being caught and dried there, preparatory to being sold to the natives in other parts of the West Coast. Its European population is negligible, just a few government officials and trading officials.' We are indebted to Mr. Ingram for his persistence in securing data concerning this sequestered colony and proving its geographical identity. The stage is set for a diatribe on the postal necessities of La Aguera as contrasted with its stamp issues, but we forbear to enlarge on this subject as the sophisticated philatelist knows that it is the exceptional country that does not throw in extra stamps for good measure."

It is not always easy to track a stamp-issuing country nowadays to the atlas or other special work where it may be observed in its infinitesimal proportions, as we have reason to know from experience. Some time ago, we had occasion to search for information concerning Alaouites in consequence of the receipt of the following letter: "I have recently purchased a collection of Alaouites complete and find myself in the rather humorous position of owning all the stamps of a country or territory of which I know nothing and can find nothing. The latest supplement to our Boston Public Library encyclopedia contains no information. Hammond's, the map people, offer nothing, or at least, their Boston office is helpless; and I am daily getting more curious. From the stamps,

I deduce that originally a French possession or protectorate, the territory has recently come under Syrian dominion." This was in March of 1927, and our seeker after knowledge has had a long wait for an answer if he depended on us. It has taken us six months to get Alaouites straightened out as we shall show in a subsequent number.

In the issue of August 22, 1927, editorial mention was made of the federation of certain British colonies in East Africa, as a consequence of a letter that came from Mr. Arthur L. Wainwright of New York. The subject was not a new one by any means and other stamp publications had spoken of the development before our correspondent wrote us. However, a most interesting letter has come from Colonel R. A. Eddy, Evanston, Illinois, as a consequence of the lag-gard notice, in the form of the following text: "Actually some of the places mentioned in the item are not yet real colonies." Ask H. M., the Sultan of Zanzibar; and what of the other places not mentioned? I include Northern Rhodesia, Bechuanaland and British Nyasaland before Zanzibar, but believe the latter to be a possibility—because a merry sultan would not stand in the way of the minor colonial development. I hate to read in the WEEKLY an incomplete comment on something that will happen not in the immediate future, but one of these days; and when it does happen, it will be very interesting, and some collectors will wish that they had paid earlier attention to what one West Indies specialist recently called my 'Chinese East Africa.' Some of the items even now are high-priced." In order to present the case properly, we repeat the item that occasioned Colonel Eddy's remarks: "Steps are to be taken to consider plans whereby Great Britain may federate the colonies of Zanzibar, Tanganyika and Kenya. If federation were accomplished, the stamp changes would be important ones for the collector. As a statistician informs us, the far-seeing collector is always on the alert to foretell what the result of new political alignments will be on collecting." Our mentor has contributed instructive matter on the subject in recent numbers of Scott's Monthly Journal, in Kent Stile's column.

In a stampless cover sent from Pinckneyville, Illinois, on September 21, 1843, to Joliet, Illinois, the following words catch the eye: "Your letter when it reached me was broken open and badly torn. It was so badly soiled that I could scarcely read it, having been apparently thoroughly soaked in water.

There was a note written on the outside of the letter by the P. M. at Springfield stating that it was broken open by mail robbers between Springfield and Hillboro and that it lay out in the prairie a long time before being found. Later, printed notices telling that the pieces of mail were rifled by robbers were sometime used to identify letters that had been seized by the criminals, and were subsequently recovered, with or without contents.

Stamp News for the Juniors

This page is primarily for you, the Junior collector. We are interested in what interests you and we want you to take possession of it, in any way it can serve you. We also invite the Senior collector to extend words of advice, encouragement and stimulation and thus develop in the Junior a real passion for Philately. Bear in mind that two short articles of from 50 to 75 words read better than one long one. Address the Beverly office.

Stray Bits of News

Mis-Strike.—A term often used in connection with envelope stamps impressed in the wrong place, doubly printed, or only partly impressed.

M. J. I.—An overprint applied to certain stamps of the Argentine republic in 1913 for official use. The letters stand for "Ministerio de Justicia y Instruccion," meaning "Ministry of Justice and Instruction (or Education)."

M.M.—A frequently used philatelic abbreviation for "millimetre."

M. M.—An official overprint applied to certain stamps of the Argentine republic in 1913 for use by the Navy department. The letters stand for "Ministerio de Marina," which means "Ministry of Marine."

Mobile.—A city in the state of Alabama having a population of about 40,000, which is philatellically famed from the fact that in 1861 the postmaster issued special 2c and 5c stamps to facilitate the working of the local postoffice.

Millieme and Millimetre

Millieme.—The value in which many of the stamps of Egypt and the Sudan are expressed. Ten milliemmes are equal to a piastre and one millieme is worth about half a cent in American money.

Millimetre.—The thousandth part of a metre in French or metric measurement. Twenty millimetres is the space now adopted as the standard in measuring perforations, the number of holes counted in this space forming the "gauge."

Palestine Pictorials

On August 13, a set of pictorial stamps was issued for Palestine in characteristic designs. The set we now chronicle will be supplemented with a 1 millieme value:—

- 2m blue-green. Rachel's Tomb.
- 4m pink. Dome of the Rock.
- 5m orange. Citadel of Jerusalem.
- 6m dark green. Dome of the Rock.
- 7m red. Citadel of Jerusalem.
- 8m light brown. Dome of the Rock.
- 10m grey. Rachel's Tomb.
- 20m olive. Citadel of Jerusalem.
- 50m red-purple. Lake Tiberias.
- 90m bistre. Lake Tiberias.
- 100m cobalt-blue. Lake Tiberias.
- 200m deep purple. Lake Tiberias.

The Plaint of the Postage-Stamp

(1862)

I'm a very dirty little Stamp;
My back is gummed, my face is dimly blurred;
And yet I am in commerce, cot, and camp,
Familiar as the well-known household word.
Yet O, to think that I should ever be Converted into legal currency!

Now on an envelope I'm not so bad,
And I take letters through both cheap and neat;
Sticking to one thing was a way I had,
But now I stick to everything I meet:
And O, to think that I could ever be Passed in the place of metal currency!

To do my duty I did ne'er refuse;
But woe is me! for I have fallen low;
I'm passed for vulgar drinks and oyster-stews,
And dirty shaves—'tis that that sticks me so!
Alas! alas! that I should ever be
A victim to the dearth of currency!

Thumbing and gumming have quite worn me out;
I'm drab and dingy now, instead of red;
My back is weak, and soon, without a doubt,
If I am passed much more I'll lose my head.
O sorry day! when I did chance to be Put to the use of baser currency!

GEORGE ARNOLD.

[George Arnold was one of the band of young litterateurs, of Bohemian proclivities, who flourished in New York City about the middle of the last century, among whom were Fitz-James O'Brien and John Brougham, and of whom William Winter is the sole survivor. Arnold was born in Bedford Street in 1834, died at Strawberry Farms, N. J., in 1865, and is best remembered by his pathetic poem "The Jolly Old Pedagogue." The poem above reprinted is not generally known, and was evidently evoked by the necessity, caused by the Civil War, of making encased postage stamps perform the service of the vanishing metallic currency.]

Mixed Perforations

This is a combination of perforations found, I believe, only in the case of some modern New Zealand stamps. The term "mixed" is applied to stamps from sheets which were either defectively or incompletely perforated and were then patched on the backs with strips of paper and re-perforated by a machine of a different gauge in those parts where the original perforation was not satisfactory.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

The Wild Goose
China A19
1898-07, $1, $2, $5

The carp on the 20 to 50c values and the wild goose on the dollar denominations are not advertisements of Chinese sport, like some of Newfoundland's Cabot issue. The carp is the symbol of intellectuality (do not we believe that fish are good food for brain workers?) and the stamp is rather a boast of the literati of China. The honking of geese is said to have saved Rome on one occasion, and a wild goose once performed a useful service in China. The Emperor having sent an ambassador to the ruler of a northern country, heard nothing more of him, for the man was despitely used and made a slave. Having caught a wild goose, the ambassador tied a written message under its wing and released it to pursue its southward flight. This goose, so the legend runs, was taken, the message read and the ambassador subsequently rescued. So the wild goose became the Chinese emblem of a messenger, and a legend more than two thousand years old determines the design of a nineteenth century stamp.

Introducing Slowacki

A new 20g Polish stamp which will advertise a local writer of some prominence, Julius Slowacki, and at the same time lend additional variety to Poland's stamp issues.

The Republic of Tuva

L'Echo de la Timbrologie for July 15th, contains an illustrated article signed by Ismail Bey on the stamps of this Soviet Republic. Situated in Central Asia, a neighbour of that philatellically active state, Mongolia, the first stamps were issued last year. The design, which was the same for all values, consisted of an indented wheel, symbol of eternity, and all the inscriptions and figures of value were expressed in local characters.

Now a new series of fourteen pictorial stamps is about to make its appearance:—

1k, Native woman; 2k, Stag; 3k, wild deer; 4k, Native hunter's hut; 5k, Native man; 8k, Map of the Republic; 10k, Native huntsman; 14k, Camels; 18k, Native hut; 28k, View; 40k, Men fording a river; 50k, Girl making carpets; 70k, Horseman; 1 rouble, Natives on stags.

The designs are the work of Olga Feodorovna Amosova. The inscriptions are in native characters and also in English. Printed by lithography in three colours on thick white paper and perforated, the stamps form an interesting addition to one's album.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

Something Stampic

Mozambique.—The Portuguese form of Mozambique as shown upon the stamps for that territory.

Modena.—An Italian province having an area of 1,002 square miles. Postage stamps for Modena were first issued on June 1, 1852. In 1860 they were superseded by the stamps of Sardinia and in 1862 by those for the kingdom of Italy.

Modenesi.—The Italian form of the adjective "Modenese" as shown upon the 1859 stamps for that province.

Moheli.—A small island in the Indian Ocean, having a population of about 6,000, which belongs to France. It has issued its own distinctive postage stamps since 1906.

Moiré.—A French word meaning "watered" and generally used in connection with textile fabrics having a finish corresponding to "watered silk." Philatellically it is applied to stamps having a moiré pattern on the back, as an extra precaution against forgery, such as on the 1872 stamps for Mexico.

Moldavia.—One of the Danubian principalities now forming part of the kingdom of Roumania. It issued postage stamps on July 15, 1858.

Beginners' U. S. Album

By WM. ESSELIN, JR.

If you cannot afford a loose leaf album and want an album that you can put all the new issues in, the best place to go is to a stationery store. There, for about fifty cents, you can buy a note book, with the pages marked off like a loose leaf album, and with a hard cover. You can mount your stamps just like in a loose leaf album.

Missionary Stamps

This is the name by which the stamps forming the first issue for the Hawaiian Islands is generally known. These stamps came to be known "missionaries" from the fact that many of the few existing specimens were found on letters sent by American missionaries in Hawaii to their friends and relatives in this country. The first stamps of Uganda, which were manufactured with the aid of an ordinary typewriter by the missionaries stationed there, are also frequently known as mission stamps.

Paper No. 14—Blued

This is paper which has not been intentionally colored, but has turned more or less blue, sometimes all over, sometimes only in patches. The bluing is the result of the chemical action of certain ingredients in the printing on the paper. Almost any of the common line-engraved stamps of Great Britain will serve for illustration.

Junior Dictionary

S. N. D. A.—These four letters prominently displayed on all values of the Dante commemorative set issued Italy in 1921. They represent the patriotic Italian society "Societa Nazionale Dante Alighieri" in whose interests stamps were issued.

Steigiamasis Seimas.—This inscription is found (also in abbreviated form) on stamps issued by Lithuania commemorate the opening of the "First Parliament" this being the translation of the two words given.

Sub Umbra Floreo.—This inscription found on British Honduras 2c postage stamp beneath the arms is the Latin motto. It signifies "I flourish beneath the shadow."

Tanger-Fez.—Local stamps bearing this inscription were issued about 1870 for postal service between Tangier (Tanger), a seaport town of Morocco, on the Strait of Gibraltar, and Fez, an inland city. The use of the labels was limited and they have practically no philatelic value.

3 Novembre, 1918.—This overprint on certain war charity stamps of St. Marino was applied to commemorate the world war armistice of that count with Austria.

3. 6. 18.—Bahamas issued a War Charity stamp March 6, 1918, and the figures are supposed to represent the date of issue. The stamps actually appeared July 10.

31. 7. 17.—This date on the Mozambique Co. 1917, charity issue, represents the anniversary of the opening of World War hostilities in Portuguese East Africa.

MESOPOTAMIA 1 RUPEE NO. 50

By GEO. B. SLOANE.

In your issue of August 29th, I note an inquiry in reference to Mesopotamia by Naim H. Bikhor, Bagdad, Mesopotamia, who states he has never seen an unused, mint copy of Scott's No. 50, the 1 rupee surcharged on the 10 rupee red-brown, the variety without the "Reshad" at the right of the toughra or Sultan's signature.

The stamp is not priced by Scott in either used or unused condition, and in my opinion is exceedingly rare unused, with gum, although relatively common used.

The only unused copy I ever saw, I sold at auction early this year in disposing of the Stockton Buzby collection. None of the leading collectors of 20th Century stamps had this stamp unused, in so far as those on my mailing list were concerned. This copy was sold to a leading collector for $320. Following the sale of this copy, I was sent at least a dozen copies of the stamp used by various collectors and dealers, but not another copy turned up unused.

The same variety is also found in the Official stamps overprinted "On State Service," Scott's No. 227. This stamp, likewise, is not priced, but seems to be fairly common. I have had a number of these sent me, in singles, pairs, and in strips, unused, and used.

I trust that the foregoing information will be of interest to Mr. Bikhor and to any other collectors who have been seeking an unused copy of Scott's No. 50.

A COURT CASE

Some time ago, we learned of an action that John A. Klemann, president of the Nassau Stamp Company, New York, had instituted against A. H. Weber, Berkeley, California, when Mr. Klemann went to the coast in order to appear at the proceedings. The issue involved was one of liability for stamps belonging to the Nassau Stamp Company that were in the keeping of Mr. Weber at the time of the great fire in Berkeley and destroyed with other stamps. A decision has been rendered in this case as is shown by the following item that appeared in the Oakland Press, California, of September 3, 1927, under the head: "New York Man Receives Justice in California." We quote:

"An interesting case came up before Judge Robinson in Department 2 of the Superior Court on August 29th, regarding a collection of stamps.

John A. Klemann of New York City, president of the Nassau Stamp Co., was plaintiff and A. H. Weber of Berkeley, was defendant.

The suit was brought to recover the loss of a collection of stamps which had been sent to Mr. Weber to select from the collection the ones he wanted and to return the remainder. The fire which swept Berkeley in the fall of September, 1923, burned the entire collection.

The point of law brought out in the case was that Weber kept the collection longer than he should have, they being sent for him to select what he wished after an examination.

The jury was unanimous in its decision for the stamp company.

Attorney Fred L. Button represented the plaintiff. He was assisted by Peter J. Crosby."

The King of Philatelic Treasures is Found

It gives me great pleasure to announce that I have acquired, what is without doubt, the finest United States item known to Philately. Upward of eighty years has passed, and until recently the largest piece of the 1847-10c that has been found, is a block of six.

I have just acquired a block of fourteen, together with a strip of ten of the same stamp—both larger than the largest heretofore known. The stamps are in excellent state of preservation, and are as fresh as the day they were purchased from the post office.

Other outstanding items that have recently passed through my hands are:— 1847, 5c block of six
 1857, 10c mint block of ten, showing Types I, II, III

1869, 15c, 24c, 30c, inverts
 1901, 2c invert, two copies 1918, 24c invert, block of four Revenue, 3c Proprietary, inverted center
 Confederate States, 10c outer line, strip of seven

Confederate, 5c Talbotton, unique
 These are just a few of the outstanding items, and in addition I have handled numerous blocks, singles, and covers. If you are looking for the unusual in the way of United States Items, I would be pleased to receive your want list.

I am always in the market to purchase for cash anything unusual or rare in the way of United States Issues. The cash is available to any amount, and selections are solicited.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa., who will also be pleased to pass on oddities and varieties of all U. S. stamps from 1900 to date. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 75 Electric Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States

1847, 10c, Block of Fourteen

There has recently been found, what is without doubt the finest United States item that is today known to Philately. This is a block of fourteen of the 10c Black, 1847, used in connection with a horizontal strip of ten of the same stamp.

This wonderful item was recently located in one of our smaller, but important towns, and was found stored away with old letters and papers that had not been touched for nearly eighty years. The block and strip are in a wonderful state of preservation, and were found on a large piece of the cover wrapped around other letters. Fortunately, it was so wrapped that not a single stamp was creased, and not a single stamp discolored by time.

The strip of ten has sheet margins at the sides, and this was found pasted along the sheet margins of the larger block, giving it the appearance at first of a block of twenty-four. The stamps are lightly pen-cancelled, and show a portion of the red grid postmark on the right end stamps. As the portion of the cover remaining had no address and showed no postmark, we are unable to say as to the city using these stamps. The impression is very sharp, and clear, and time has not taken the bluish tinge out of the paper, which is found in copies well preserved.

Heretofore, the largest block known of this variety was a mint block of six, in a Philadelphia collection. The same collection has the two heretofore largest known strips, namely, two strips of six on two different covers. The only other blocks are a mint block of four from the Duveen Collection, a very fine pen-cancelled block of four from the Sinkler Collection, and a further postmarked block of four, badly cut into on two sides from the Eagle Collection.

New 2c Booklet Pane

The new 2c rotary print Booklet Pane in the current design has appeared with a new perforation 11x10 1/2, unnoticed. In purchasing several booklets recently the variety came to my attention, and upon investigation, find that it was issued in June.

The 1c Booklet in the new perforation has not, as yet, been issued and as the Department is not making up 1c Booklets, it is quite likely that this variety will not appear, until such a time when the postal rates are again changed.

Washington Notes

Mention was made in this column several months back, that the Department was preparing special coils of three thousand subjects, with the gum side out for use in connection with the mailing machines. These have, what they are now designating abroad as "Jazz Perforations." The Bureau of Engraving and Printing informs me that these will be available towards the end of October, depending upon completion and assembling of the special coiling machines necessary.

When the Department discontinued the flat plate stamps in the case of the lower denominations, they issued for the printing machine Company the 1 1/2c imperforate, the product of the press. Because of the large gutter between the panes, they were unable to use these sheets and the Department rather than print further stamps, decided to make up special coils for use of mailing machines.

New Surcharged Envelope

Mr. Carl Young has just shown new envelope not noted heretofore, namely, the 1 1/2c on 2c Blue, size 13 H. This bears the solid type of print, and the error has only been recently discovered, although it was probably surcharged some months back.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Assistant Superintendent of Division Stamps, I am enabled to bring out of the present location of the envelope, up to date. The last list appeared several months back.

signia of the air mail service with the letters C.A.M. No. 1, standing for Contract Air Mail, Route No. 1.

Mr. Charles E. Jandine advises that from September 26th to October 1st inclusive, there will be held at the Mechanics Building at Boston, a Radio-Aero Show.

A temporary post office will be established and all air mail envelopes posted at the special post office, will receive a special postmark, privately applied by the operators of Route C.A.M. No. 1. The postmark will show an airplane in flight, receiving messages from a ground radio station. The wording will be significant of the Exhibition, and will further mention the temporary post office.

Mr. Charles H. Hermann calls attention to the several colors in which certain air mail cancellations have appeared here of late. For instance, in the Lindbergh Springfield postmark he advises this has appeared in blue, purple, and magenta, together with a combination of blue and magenta. Of the Detroit Lindbergh variety, he has found both magenta and purple.

Mr. Hermann also calls attention to several February first varieties, not heretofore recorded. These are first day letters under the general 10c air rate for 1/2 oz. One shows a Omaha postmark in magenta in four lines reading, "Omaha, First Flight—Air Mail—Under new 10c Rate." A similar postmark in the same color was used by North Platte, Iowa City used a special hand stamp in combination with manuscript reading, "At 10c, 1/2 oz. Anywhere in the U. S. A." These were postmarked in violet.

the Postmaster at Talbotton, Ga. The marking is circular in shape, printed in black, and reads, Talbotton, Ga., paid with large figure "5" in the center. The cover is postmarked, "Talbotton, Ga., Jul. 29, 1927."

Mr. Merser writes that the variety has been shown to the Scott Company, and is being listed.

Brazil.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle two values of stamps issued to commemorate the centennial of the "Fundacao dos Cursos Juridicas do Brazil." The two values are of different designs and each bears the wording mentioned above together with the dates "1827-1927." The colors are 100r blue and 200r red.

Bulgaria.—Mr. R. Roberts advises that he has received a copy of the 30st blue-black and buff, in a revival of the old type of Scott's A1. The stamp is perf. 13 with no watermark.

China.—According to the Chinese newspapers, a set of commemorative stamps will be issued by the government of North China to commemorate the ceremony of Marshall Chang Tso Lin being installed in the post of generalissimo of North China. These stamps are ten denominations: 1c, 2c, 4c, 5c, 10c, 16c, 20c, 40c, 50c, and $1. They will be sold in Chili, Shantung, Manchuria Provinces and the three special Districts: Kingchao (Pekin), Johov, Chahar, and other places which are occupied by his forces. —TSAN WEN WAN.

Greece.—Three new stamps have been issued to mark the centenary of the death of Colonel Favier, one of the "Philhellene" heroes of the Greek War of Independence. He was a Colonel in Napoleon's army and went to Greece during the war, where he received a command in the Greek revolutionary army. His great feat, the centenary of which is now being celebrated, was the running of the blockade when the Turks besieged the Acropolis, the entrance as it was then and through which Favier entered being shown on the stamps together with Favier's portrait surrounded by the dates "1826-1926."—Whitfield King & Co's Bulletin.

Italy.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle a copy of the 50c brown and grey, type of A85.

Japan.—Mr. R. Roberts submits copies of the 1 1/2s lilac and 3s pale olive in the Postal Commemoration series mentioned in issue 1913. Regarding the 6s and 10s Mr. Roberts advises that these are speculative issues having been bought up mostly by officials.

In the ordinary postal issue a 30s chocolate has been placed on sale. Mr. Roberts sends us a copy for inspection. It is of the type of the 1913-14 issue on granite paper, perf. 13 x 13 1/2.

Lebanon Republic.—Whitfield King & Co's Bulletin prints the following: "In the recently issued provisionals overprinted 'Republique Libanaise' we have discovered three errors as follows:—Without stop after 'P', 4 1/2 piastres on 75c, 7 1/2 on 2 1/2 piastres. Comma instead of stop after 'P', 15 piastres on 25 piastres. Arabic character 'P' omitted, 15 on 25 piastres."

THE CELEBRATED

"DINGWALL" COLLECTION OF CLASSIC ISSUES

will be sold by auction in London on October 24th, 25th, 31st and November 1st

This Collection, the work of a long and arduous philatelic life-time by a well-known English Collector who made a fetish of condition, will give American Buyers an unique opportunity of obtaining some real classic stuff in superb and immaculate condition.

The main strength of the collection lies in imperf. British Colonials, a remarkable portion of which is the Australian section containing over 100 lots of Sydney Views. British Guiana is well represented with the 1853-60 issue. Trinidad has a copy of the Lady McLeod on letter. Ceylon contains magnificent first issues, as do the rest of the Colonies. European Classics are replete with rare pinks., shades, etc. Mexico, Brazil and other South Americans contain exceptionally fine pieces. The owner resided for some time in South Australia—the issues of which he knows from A to Z—and spent a considerable amount of his life travelling round the world. His leading feature of the collection was firstly and lastly condition whether it was pairs, blocks, strips, rare and interesting pinks., or inverted wmk., of which he has possibly the finest existing lot. Looking through the collection one cannot help notice the magnificent pieces which constitute Mr. Dingwall's painstaking efforts to augment such a wonderful collection.

3d and 1sh stamps are to be changed, but in reply to a letter addressed to the Postmaster we are informed that no new 3d stamp has been ordered, but a fresh supply of the 1sh stamp has been received in the same colours as before.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

South West Africa.—Whitfield King & Co. report that they have received copies of the 1½p postage due, Pretoria printing, Union of South Africa stamps surcharged "South West Africa" and "Suidwes Afrika" alternately 12mm being the space between the two lines of overprint. Also our correspondent further informs us that the 1p postage due stamps of the 1927 issue of South Africa bears the same overprint as that mentioned above.

PANAMA PROTESTS

(Clipping from Edw. J. Meehan.)

Dr. Eusebio Morales, Minister of Finance for Panama, made a statement before the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva that is of interest to philatelists. We would like to publish his address in full, but we have space only to print the following which appeared in the New York Sun, Sept. 14:—

Dr. Morales spoke particularly of the insistence of the United States in using its own postage stamps throughout the Canal Zone instead of those of Panama.

"It is only a small question—an expense of about $30,000 annually—and we even offered to supply our stamps free of charge. But the American Government would not hear of it and persisted in using its own," he said. "The American Government is making a great mistake trying to force things like that. Of course I, as a member of the Government who have had yearly trips to America in the past twenty years, can understand many things about America. Every time I go there I have increased admiration for the United States. But our common people do not understand. They are very sensitive to all these causes of friction."

In connection with Mr. Steinway's membership we are pleased to say that he sent us a check for $10 for the ten years' renewal. This is most unusual and the WEEKLY accepts it as a sincere tribute of esteem.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

U. S. CIVIL WAR REVENUES

Recent Data Concerning Some of the Rarities Among the Multiple Imperforates and the Inverted Heads

By HENRY L. DEAN, 239 Windsor Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Again prompted by further requests for additional data to supplement or extend his articles in the March 22, 1926, and the January 3, and January 17, 1927, issues of MEKEEL'S the writer has in preparation a discussion of the first issue part-perforate multiples, a general price resume of imperforate pairs and blocks and a partial treatment, at least, of shifts, cracks, double prints and related varieties for the specialist.

The magnitude of such a program, however, must be obvious and pending the completion of any single chapter a few random comments are now offered that round out and bring up to date the earlier articles referred to above.

3c Playing Cards

Imperforate

The advance sheets released by the compilers of the standard catalog now price this stamp at $300, and while the writer shares the views of several revenue authorities that this figure represents too drastic a jump above the former level of $200, it must be remembered that the rarest imperforate revenue is being dealt with, especially so when condition is considered. Bearing in mind further, however, that the catalog is founded on "Good" stamps not "Fine" a downward revision would seem appropriate. A year or so ago the opinion was ventured that the finest known pair was easily worth $800 (the piece in mind being the one transferred from the first collection of Mr. W. S. White to Senator E. R. Ackerman) and this valuation was confirmed subsequently by the sale of the Lapham pair, a nice full margined piece although creased in the bottom stamp, for $750. Collectors might have in mind that the total issue of this stamp, including both imperforate and perforated, was 368,106.

3c Telegraph

Imperforate

Earlier notes concerning numbers of blocks must be revised as the A. G. Bishop collection contained a block of four and the writer has secured a fine block of six from the Ballard property at $125. He has likewise disposed of the previously recorded inferior block of 12, and recently sold one of the blocks of 15 for a price of $225, at the same time cutting the bottom strip of three from the duplicate piece to make a perfect block of 12.

10c Power of Attorney

Imperforate

During the past year, two hitherto generally unknown blocks of four developed, one a magnificent item dated Feb. 22, 1864, the other much inferior, being short on two sides. Mention is made of these particular pieces simply to stimulate those who are apt to become discouraged through failure to add anything new to their collections and to indicate that it is by no means too late to uncover almost anything in these early fiscals.

$1.60 Foreign Exchange

Imperforate

An unsevered pair of this value having long been regarded as the most desirable of the Imperforate multiples and by reason of the odd rate very unlikely to again come to light it may be of some interest to record the history of the two pieces known. One, somewhat defective, was originally held by Dr. Fisk of Chicago, the other by Dr. Bowers of Connecticut, the latter selling to Mr. Clarence Eagle, and the former to Mr. H. Gibson, both pieces passing through the same dealer. The Gibson property later went intact to Mr. H. Lapham and when his collection was dispersed last year, the $1.60 pair brought $1,000. Senator E. R. Ackerman took the Eagle pair (and incidentally the 70c and $2.50 Imperforate pairs and the Imperforate blocks of $10.00 Charter Party and $10.00 Mortgage) the writer in turn securing his entire collection in 1925. The original Bowers piece is truly magnificent and unbiased and conservative judges have placed its value at $1,500.

$3.50 Inland Exchange

Imperforate

Since the matter of a specialized revenue catalog was broached about two years ago some differences of opinion have naturally developed concerning values the general consensus, however, being that the 3c P. C. and the $200 Imperf. are adjusted too high and the $10.00 titles exclusive of Conveyance, too low. The views regarding the $3.50 pair seem to be in almost perfect harmony, focusing at $500 for a fine piece, hence, among the rarities this item would appear to be the standard by which other multiples can safely be judged, duly considering numbers, attractiveness, desirability and condition. The $2.00 Probate pair is rarer than the $3.50 and more desirable, of the 3c Playing Cards about the same number of pairs are known, but generally inferior condition makes the perfect piece more in demand while the 50c Surety Bond is much rarer, but less attractive, and hence, is found on a lower price level.

$5.00 Probate of Will

Imperforate

The paragraph in the March 22, 1926 issue dealing with this value and title must be corrected since the two blocks

The above is a rather miscellaneous lot, and none except possibly the No. 1 copy, are very frequently met with. The No. 1 is rather common at this time, and comes on the various denominations of stamps, as I have seen it on the 1c Amer.
and 2c vermilion.

Nos. 2 and 3 are undoubtedly the same cancellation. They apparently check up as to size and essential details, and it is quite possible that our No. 3 was nicked on the outer edge, so that the postmaster then made the entire outer edge as we see it, so that it would serve as a time longer. Our No. 4 is an oddity. In my own lot I have a 3c Amer. with the same type of cancellation, but the number is 453. These cancellations are typically Irish diamond cancellations. You have probably noticed that the English and Welsh are ellipses, while Scotch are rectangles, and Ireland used the diamond forms. So this may not have been cancelled till it arrived in the town in Ireland.

No. 5 is what we like to see—and this copy has the words beautifully hit squarely across the stamp. Later on I

M. G. HANNA

BOX 936 NEW KENSINGTON, PA

secured a post card with this same cancellation, and it comes from Traverse City, Michigan. Possibly it comes from other towns also.

No. 6 is an odd Waterbury cancel. The town also used "100" as a cancellation. I do not know the significance of these numbers. Our No. 7 is a neat cancellation, and it is very fine to look at on the postcard.

Going back to our July 11 Forum, we find that our No. 9 obliteration in that Whatdoyoucallit Group is mentioned as "undoubtedly" a harpoon. Having recently read "Moby Dick, or The White Whale" I was very much interested in receiving a letter from Miss Amy L. Swift to the effect that this is not the sort of harpoon any whaleman would look at for an instant.

Will quote from the letter as it clearly shows why this is not a harpoon:

"To the mind of those who are personally acquainted with the appearance of the aforesaid whaling implement the resemblance is very slight, and is more imaginary than actual, since the 'barbed shaft' is not of the right shape, nor would the whale-line be visible in the position indicated. The line is fastened to the iron at the other end, just below the hollow shank which fits over the long wooden handle, then is run snugly back over the pole into the whale boat."

To any reader so inclined, "Moby Dick, or The White Whale," by Herman Melville, presents amazing word pictures of these monstrous living creatures, and it might be well to include this book in your reading matter, for it will be on a subject that is not alone interesting, but you will learn what the big whales can do, and what they have done. The world is their playground except for the land part, where we hang around and do whatever comes to our hand.

About all we ever wish to have to do with a whale is to be able to see one alive, and of course when it is spouting. In reading of Col. Lindbergh's trip, I noticed that he said he kept a lookout for a whale; but was quite disappointed in not seeing any.

Tourists on board ship are so thrilled by the sight of a spouting whale that they unconsciously yell "There she blows," aloud, or under their breath and are the first white whales he has in forty years."

"A little learning is a dangerous thing—this is an oft repeated adage. Of course have a pretty good idea of a whale looks like in general shape the old "Soapine did it" ad way years ago, where the big black whale had a white spot on his side, evidently made white by applying the soapine liberal "elbow grease" at the same. Well, having that form in mind, or similarly arrived at shape of a friend came to me with an approval selection of 3c greens. We got it with them all right, till we came to that was marked underneath "A Whale". He collects cancellations only, and was hit with something resembling black storm cloud. We could see whale. It was a very handsome copy the stamp, however, and on looking the enormous margins on all four we realized that the term "Whale" have referred to the excessive margins.

It is rather nice to save some copies most any stamp with all four margins extra wide. In fact, the man who called my attention to the book "Moby Dick" has been saving stamps with four, extra wide margins—yes, they are whales they are seldom caught.

NEW FRANCE

By HERMANN FOCKE.

The two postage stamps commemorating the visit in France of members of the American Legion are to hand, but they have been liberally advertised, scribed and even reproduced in the papers, it will not be necessary to go into full details, suffice it to say they might be worse and still please better from our own viewpoint as much as the effigy of the father of our country, reproduced thereon, is concerned. We therefore report for the matter record, the 90 centimes red and blue of this particular issue.

But on the cover bearing these commemoratives there comes a third, which nothing had been heard up to present, another 90 centimes red, with portrait of the eminent French educator and chemist, Pierre Eugene Marcelin Berthelot, to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of his birth in 1827. This stamp is of nearly square size, somewhat larger than the current French stamps; the portrait is shown facing the left, at top the name shortened Marcelin Berthelot, at bottom République Française, in the lower left value 90c and at right, reading up, word Postes.

The cover also bears a copy of the text, or let us hope the last, provision the 50c on 65c rose, Scott's No. 179, A20, and it may not be remiss to give this time a complete list of the two provisionals with which our Sister

I can send special books of the rare and medium priced "pence" issues of Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland to collectors who wish to complete their collections before prices still further advance.

I have also a grand lot of books of the cheaper "cents" issues of B. N. America.

Also a series of books with stamps on cover, bisections on covers, well tied on, and other choice items.

Now then, friends, what do you lack?

HOMAN, KRASSA CO., INC.

One of the year's events of major interest to the philatelic world, was the organization of the new firm, Homan, Krassa Co., Inc. Mr. Krassa had been dealer in rare postage stamps for over twenty years. Through his dealings over the past four decades, he has earned for himself a most enviable reputation as an expert. Mr. Homan was an ardent collector for years, and as a result of his great interest in his hobby, sought a connection with the philatelic world. Thus he gave all thought of a profession despite the fact that he had been studying electrical engineering at Cornell University. Mr. Krassa has always been a believer in stamps as an investment. For that reason he had continually increased the size of his stock until it had reached such proportions that he had been unable to handle it sufficiently arranged to permit of a sizable volume of sales. Thus immediately upon the inception of the new corporation, Mr. Krassa and Homan began to rearrange the entire stock, so that they could be in a position to do business on a materially larger scale.

Their stock is probably the finest and most comprehensive in the country, a quality having been made in those stamps which collectors have found particularly hard to purchase. Most emphasis has been placed on the 19th century group, although the 20th has not been neglected. Their stock also includes a large amount of United States, and Central America in originals as well as proofs and essays. They have now progressed sufficiently to the arrangement of their stock to warrant their soliciting business. With this view they have joined our already long list of subscribers to our 5,000-line advertising contract.

COLONIAL NOTES

By "CALABAR."

The following letter, whilst couched in rather vigorous terms, sets forth a point of view, which I think readers will agree, is entitled to at least the formality of a hearing. The writer's views, I may add, are not necessarily my own.

"Sir,—May I take this opportunity to call your attention to a subject which, from what I can gather, has been little discussed in the philatelic press. I refer to the excessively high prices asked (and apparently received) for current Colonials, viz., 32c per s. Not a very stiff price, you say. At first sight, no. But consider: this figure is asked regardless of face value! For a 1/- stamp, the price is 32c; for a 5/-, $1.60; for a 10/-, $3.20; and for a £1, $6.40! At these figures, one pays $6.40 for a stamp with a face value of $4.87—and $1.53 goes in the dealer's pocket.

Now, by way of contrast, take the prices obtaining on the British market. What do we find? Not a fixed scale, no! but one which varies according to the face value of the stamp. Thus, as a general rule, for a 1/- stamp, 1/3 is asked; for a 5/-, 6/-; for a 10/-, 12/-; and for a £1, £1 4/-. Even Stanley Gibbons realize the absurdity of a fixed scale, and in their Catalogue a current 1/- is priced at 1/4; a 5/- at 6/6; a 10/- at 12/6; and a £1 at £1 5/-. Incidentally, Gibbons' prices for 5/-s, 10/-s and £1's are lower than those charged by our U. S. dealers!

Well, how the latter get away with it is a puzzle to me. To be quite frank, anyone who pays $6.40 for a $4.87-stamp, when he can get it for £1 4/- ($5.84), or—if it be a stamp issued by a West Indian Colony—when he can get it at face value—anyone who indulges in such expenditure is, to my mind, a ripe case for the psychopathic ward.

What are dealers' views?

"AD REM."

Mr. Th. Berg, the well-known specialist-dealer, gives us some very pertinent (and welcome) criticisms in a recent No. of the WEEKLY. He anent Scott's failure to distinguish between the first printings of the 2½d blues and the later re-printings which followed the provisional 2½d yellows. The differences between the two printings, as Mr. Berg points out, are quite marked; e. g. the first printing of the 2½d Montserrat is in a bright blue shade, the later printing coming in pale bright blue. With ref. the 2½d

Virgins, here the printings are just the other way round, the pale shade being the first printing. (Incidentally, the new printing of the 2½d Virgins has double jubilee lines, whereas the original printing has single lines only. The double lines first appeared with the 2½d yellow and are found also in the second printing of the 1/- and in the 5/- script.) The easiest to tell apart are the two St. Kitts 2½d's—the first issue is in dull blue on unsurfaced paper, whilst the later printing is in bright blue on chalk-surfaced paper.

Mr. Berg's comments re. Scott's omission of the scarce Thom high values doubtless echo the sentiments of all Irish specialists and many general collectors interested in this little country. The two printings are quite as much entitled to a place in the Catalogue as, say, the two printings of the 2½d blues. Re. market prices, the 5/- and 10/- (with blue-black ovpt.) are slowly hardening, but the chances are rather slim, I think, of the 2/6 going any higher, for a while, at least.

St. Kitts.—One of my British contemporaries states that the 5/- stamps of the current issue with the old block CA wmk. are exhausted. (vide the WEEKLY, No. 1909, p. 448.) This statement, I believe, is quite unfounded, the 5/- being available at the P. O. up to the end of May, and—what is pretty conclusive—this duty is not amongst the new printings announced in the last Crown Agents Bulletin. These, for St. Kitts, were the ½d green, 2½d blue, 3d purple on yellow, 6d purple and brilliant rosa, 2/- purple and blue and 2/6 black and red (all to appear with script CA wmk.).

By the way, the new series seems definitely postponed, the Colonial Office being averse to approving stamp-design changes at less than five-year intervals. However, 1928 will roll round soon enough, and then—unless I miss my guess—this year's disappointment will be amply compensated for.

Speaking of St. Kitts, three of the Colony's P. O.'s—Cayen, Dieppe Bay and Nevis—still employ the old duplex pmk. This, in the case of Nevis, is A09, with a date stamp attached; in the case of the two former, A12 with a similar date stamp and the letters C. A. and D. B.—these showing which of the two Offices the pmk. belongs to.

THE BROOKLYN STAMP CO.,
Box 149, Times Plaza Station, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Straits Settlements and F. M. S.—According to the recent bulletin issued by the Universal Postal Union, the separate issues of these Colonies will shortly be superseded by one general issue for use in both possessions. Presumably, this change applies only to stamps inscribed "Straits Settlements" and "Federated Malay States," the issues of the Non-Federated Malay States (Kedah, Kelantan and Trengganu) and Johor (which is in a class by itself, viz., Protected States) remaining in use unchanged. What with the above news, and the rumors that a new set for Gibraltar is also contemplated, the coming season looms very promising, so far as new issues are concerned.

Later.—Under date of 28th July the Postmaster of St. Kitts writes—

"The 6d script has been out of issue for about one year. No definite date known.

The few 2/6 stamps now on hand are some returned by a customer, and the new stock, which is shortly expected, will be on script wmk. paper."

Readers will recall that in these Notes for July I mentioned a despatch sent me by the Postmaster under date of 27th May, enclosing the 3d blue, script; 6d MCA; 2/- MCA; and 2/6 MCA, along with various other current stamps. I now learn from the despatch sent on 28th July that there are "no 3d blue in stock"—these having exhausted, therefore, between 27th May and 28th July. In this latest despatch are the 3d purple on yellow, script; 6d MCA; 2/- MCA; and 2/6 MCA (besides several other values). (Note that both the 6d and 2/-, with the MCA wmk., are still on hand—from which I infer that the remainder stocks of these two items were rather large, inasmuch as the script 6d and 2/- were issued in 1924 and 1922 respectfully.)

OPEN SEASON ON MINT GERMAN REPUBLIC

This is the Season Opener issue of MEKEEL'S. We prefer to turn the caption a bit and tell you about our OPEN SEASON on MINT GERMAN REPUBLIC. Take a glance over this list and you will get our meaning. We can supply every stamp from #80 to #613, except a few of the major varieties and the "sky-high" rarities—yet a request will often find we have a good stock of these too. NOW—if you want a real honest to goodness treat, or just like to see before you buy, ask for an approval selection of COMPLETE GERMAN REPUBLIC. Tete-beche, Se tenant, varieties galore! AND each item priced separately. When we first tried these "Approval Collections" we included postage for return registration, but we have discontinued this practice. WHY? Because invariably the collector saw his values and took them—the result—there wasn't enough of the collection left to make Registration worth while! We will appreciate a business reference with a request for one of these selections.

BATTLESHIP CANCELLATIONS

By WILLIAM EVANS, M.D.

Of late there seems to have arisen considerable interest in "Battleship Cancellations" and quite a good deal of guessing is going on regarding them.

There has been much speculation as to when the ships first began to use their cancellations. We have to thank Mr. Harry M. Konwiser for the research necessary to find out the facts definitely. The results ascertained by him are given below.

In the report of the First Assistant Postmaster General for 1908 he found that the Post Office appropriation act of May 27, 1908, authorizing the Postmaster General to designate as Navy Mail Clerks, and Assistant Navy Mail Clerks enlisted men selected by the Secretary of the Navy, and provided that all clerks should make deliveries of all mail addressed to Navy vessels, receive dispatch mail, receipt for registered mail, keep for sale an adequate supply of postage stamps, and perform such other postal duties as might be authorized by the Postmaster General.

It was further provided that such employees should give bond, etc. The Secretary of the Navy was authorized to appoint sixty-four clerks and twenty-nine assistants for service aboard vessels. Instructions for their guidance have been promulgated and they have been supplied with post-marking stamps with postage stamps and stamped envelopes.

In the same year the Third Assistant Postmaster General in his report refers to instructions having been issued to Navy Mail Clerks and Assistant Navy Mail Clerks in the handling of registered mail and he considered the introduction of postal mail service on board naval vessels "a decided improvement."

As these reports were filed as of June 1908, it would seem that we may safely conclude that the first cancellations on the naval vessels occurred in June, 1908, since the reports mention the submission of the designation of the Mail Clerks and Assistant Mail Clerks as accomplished, and as the law was passed on May 27, 1908, it seems fair to surmise that a few days were required to perform the acts necessary to make it effective.

In the report of the First Assistant Postmaster General for 1909 he repeats the fact that services began as of the act of May 27, 1908, and says that Navy Mail Clerks have been designated for service on board one hundred and five vessels, and Assistant Mail Clerks on forty vessels, and that a pamphlet of instructions was prepared and copies forwarded to all clerks and assistants, as well as to post-marking outfits, etc.

He also says, "The Services of forty-two Clerks and Assistant Clerks have been discontinued principally by reason of the transfer of such clerks to other vessels, or the termination of their periods of enlistment in the Navy."

The Postal Guide of 1926 lists sixty-five vessels as branches of the New York Post Office, but there are a great many more on which there are mail clerks, who distribute and dispatch mail. These are unlisted.

A few of the postmarks and cancellers are described below. I have a cover postmarked U. S. S. Minnesota February 6, 1909, back stamped Norfolk Virginia, February 19, 1909. The postmark is a circle 30mm in diameter with the name of the ship at the top and below this in four lines Feb. 6 5 A. M. 1909. At the right of it are four parallel bars, heavy ones 1mm wide and spaced 2 1/2 mm.

The next date I have is May 16, 1913. This is from the Lebanon and the postmark is 30mm in diameter, but this time the letter is different arranged. It is "U. S. S." at the top, "Lebanon" at the bottom, with May 16, P. M. 1913 in four lines in the center. The canceller is four heavy bars 1 1/4 mm thick, spaced 4mm. The top and bottom bars are 23mm long, and the center ones 22mm.

The next date I have is September, 1914. This is from the Wyoming. The circle of this postmark is 32mm and the arrangement of the lettering is the same as in the last mentioned one. The canceller has been changed to three heavy bars. The left end of these almost touches the top and bottom of the postmark. They are 36mm long. The center bar is 31mm long. This one is horizontal and the ones above and below it slant a little so that they are closer to it at the right than at the left. By this time the practice of designating the location of the ship had come into use.

This was accomplished by setting up the required type in the spaces between the bars. This one shows that the ship was off Fortress Monroe, Virginia. This type of postmark and canceller is still in use on some of the ships, and I am told is the one which the Government regulations require. Some of the mail clerks have, however, secured other forms and there are several of these in use. Part of the Battleships ("Battle-wagons"), Dreadnaughts, have postmarks which look like those of the electric machines used in the large post offices. A few ships use an elliptical grid attached to the postmark. One of the Battleships was using in 1924 the regulation postmark with four short heavy bars. The Orion—gone now—had the regular postmark with three short bars with the words Navy Mail in the spaces and to the right of these two small stars.

Occasionally one finds a letter cancelled by the M. O. B. or Registered postmark, or one of the same type with the name of the ship above.

When the mail clerk takes the trouble to insert the location the covers are often very interesting. Here is one from the Billingsby cancelled July 4, 1924, at Cherbourg, France. This clerk used blue ink on that day and the cover is a success from any angle. One from the Converse shows that the ship was in "European Waters," from the Curlew that she was at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, one from the Hulbert at Tsing Tan, China, and one mail clerk took the trouble to write Chefor, China, between the lines. Perhaps his type was not in good shape.

Most of the clerks use black ink, but a few have an eye for colors, and we have blue, green, red, and purple occasionally.

One fellow was patriotic. In the spaces of his canceller he has used the words "Join the Navy." Probably other slogans were in use at various times. The training station at Hampton Roads (now discontinued as a Post Office) had "Enlist in the Navy." That of course isn't exactly a Battleship.

So few of the covers of the earlier days, 1908 to 1914, have come into the hands of collectors that practically nothing can be said about them. Perhaps some one will find some sometime, but the chances are that most of them have been destroyed. We await the revelations of a find.—American Philatelist.

OUR "3-IN-1" CONTRACT

"I do not understand your 3-in-1 advertising contract. Can you explain it?" This is our reply to our would-be advertiser:—

This popular contract allows the use of varying rates dependent upon the space used. The rates per week are:—

1/2 in. (61.) $2.00 1 in. (121.) $3.50
2 in. (241.) $6.00

The rate over 24 lines is 25c per line until 72 lines have been used when these lower rates prevail:—

1/8 page, 72 lines, $16.50.
1/4 page, 144 lines, $30.00.
1/2 page, 288 lines, $55.00.
1 page, 576 lines, $100.00.

At least a half-inch must be used each week to hold down the contract.

Stanley Gibbons Offers Some Bargains in Better Grade Foreign Stamps

We list below a number of medium and higher priced foreign stamps, chiefly issues of the XIX century; all are in good to superb condition except where otherwise noted, however, should any item prove to be not entirely satisfactory, we will cheerfully refund the money, provided returns are made within seven days.

As we have only one copy each of many of the stamps offered, an early order is advisable.

SOME WHYS AND WHEREFORE

By JOSEPH GODER, M.E.

Topic 1.

Tete Beches, Their Creation.

Some years ago (about 1900 A. D.) on a hot day, a certain Mrs. Postmaster General had a picnic party. As in those days, mailing picture postcards was the "ritzy" thing, old man P. G. had to bring stamps along. Now, as the "mints" in those good old days did not behave any better than they do today, the stamps promptly stuck together, an inseparable mass, in good old P. G.'s pocket. "—," said old man P. G. "Men are senseless creatures," answered Mrs. P. G.

Anyhow old man P. G. had to do something to forestall the re-occurrence of such a disaster. Well, he invented the stamp booklets and lived happily ever after.

It looks rather easy, fastening some stamps together in booklets. However, stamps are cheap things and Uncle Sam and other stamp venders have to sell their product cheap since, outside of us dyed-in-the-wool stamp bugs, the bulk of the public doesn't want to spend much money for the beautiful engravings. So the stamp makers did not care to invest money in new machinery and had to find means and ways to use the apparatus they already had to make stamp sheets for the booklets.

Paper, plates, forms, presses, perforating machines, etc., were all built and set for the standard sheets. As, however, booklets larger than three stamps long and two stamps wide did not fit in ladies' handbags and the P. G.'s vest pocket, six stamp booklet pages were made by practically all stamp publishers, except when stamp booklets were made for use by masculines only, as, for instance, the booklets which Uncle Sam made for the boys in France who had plenty of dough to spend when they left home. Uncle, knowing fickle France, wanted to make sure that, in case they went broke, the boys would at least have postage to write home for more coin.

How did they print the booklet pages? First let us see how they did the trick.

Due to the somewhat larger bulging fronts of the booklet users, the German vest pockets or receptacles for booklets seem to favor a booklet page three stamps wide (horizontally) and two stamps high (vertically), Fig. 1. (The government printing office figuring on less deep vest pockets, due probably to more slender booklet users, as a rule, puts the stamps horizontally. The width of the U. S. standard booklet page is three stamps (vertical) and two stamps high (horizontal), Fig. 2. Tete beches, however, only occur with booklets shown Fig. 1 and therefore this type is under discussion.

Most stamps are sold in sheets hundreds (10 rows of 10 stamps) are printed in such sheets or multiples of such sheets. Frequently four panes one hundred each are printed on a large sheet and later cut into panes hundreds for sale to the public. The width of such printed sheets equals the width of 20 single stamps plus the margin on the side and the margin between panes. The latter frequently equals width of one stamp. The normal is therefore 21 stamps wide plus side margins.

the booklet (Fig. 1) pages are 3 stamps and need a margin for binding. In r to use the presses and perforating ratus, set for a normal 4 pane sheet, arrangement, Fig. 3, was selected. ad of 4 panes of 100, this sheet con- 6 panes of 60 (only one-half sheet down). The sheet is 3 panes of 60 ps. The margin between the panes is the width of one stamp. Thus we 18 stamps and 2 margins between panes equals the width two panes 0 stamps each. In order to use the ard perforating punch and also the ard width of paper one outside mar- was made one stamp wider than l, thus making the sheet 21 stamps plus the usual side margins.

Switzerland goes at it slightly differ- In each pane of 100 the fourth al row is blank and is used as the ng margin. Fig. 4 gives a schemat- picture of this arrangement.

order to bind the panes in booklets rgin for fastening them must be In order that all pages come the way (face up) the margin must always be on the same side of the booklet pane. To accomplish this without hav- ing a margin every third stamp, part of the stamps had to be printed upside down.

This interesting feature, namely that two adjoining stamps had to be printed one straight up and the other upside down, did not escape the stamp bugs and the various governments granted the request that sheets intended for booklets be sold to collectors. Thus the tete beche specimens were launched. Fig. 3 also illustrates how and why a tete beche with a margin between the stamps occurs.

I have mentioned only two typical sheet arrangements producing tete beche pairs. There are, however, a number of other combinations of margins and stamps possible.

Outside of these intended tete beche printings, adjoining stamps in reverse position came into existence through an error in placing the dies. The French issues of 1853-1863-1870 and 1871 are among the class of tete beches originated by mistake.

Intentionally created or as offsprings of the printer's devil, the tete beches form an interesting lot in any collection and—you never can stick 'em in upside down.

The French stamps celebrating the Legion convention are here and are interesting, particularly in their suggestions because of the text of the lower tablet, "Legion Americaine-Septembre, 1927," flanked at left with value and at right, R F, in monogram. There is so much detail handled in the design, with busts of LaFayette and Washington at left and right, respectively, that the finished stamps, large as they are, have a full appearance. Evidences of coarseness in the engraving, the production of A. Delzers who made the Decorative Arts set of 1924, are not absent, but under the circumstances, one is not too critical of the work. The issue represents a tribute that is a graceful one, whose significance is appreciated by collectors.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Vogel of Chicago, we are in receipt of air mail covers from the Leviathan, postmarked Sept. 12th, 13th and 14th, respectively. There are two varieties of postmark, "U. S. Sea Post Office," in small postmark form and "U. S. Sea Post S. S. Leviathan," in larger circle.

We have been shown by Mr. G. B. McBean, Chicago, a decidedly interesting presentation book, "Postal Organization of the Kingdom of Siam," edited by the Siamese Legation at Paris and printed "by order of H. H. Prince Prisdang," by William Ridgway, London. The frontispiece shows pictures of the king of Siam and the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, with cuts of the General Post Office, Bangkok and Wat Aron. Bangkok and the text, it happens, is in English. Mr. McBean has been in possession of the book since 1893, at the time of the World's Fair at Chicago, when it was given him by a member of the Royal Siamese Commission to the World's Columbian Exposition. In the course of friendly relations with the Siamese officer that were established through a contact in 1893, it became known to the latter that Mr. McBean was interested in stamps and had a small collection. The officer was considerate enough in consequence to hand him the work, which contains two pages of stamps issued through the 1887 set, including post cards and revenue stamps. Oddly enough, the 1s blue of the first issue, 1883, is one of the surcharged 1 tical in red; and this is the only one of these surcharges in the book; otherwise the 1883 and 1887 issues are complete, with revenues and postals. The Siamese Postal Organization is described in the course of thirty pages and in reference to the 1887 issue, it is said that the new stamps were decided on in 1885, and completed in the beginning of 1886! We hope to refer somewhat in detail to this history of the Siamese post, which though only brought down to about thirty years ago, has an admitted value.

Last week, Mr. Augustus E. Ingram submitted interesting particulars of the extent and location of the Spanish Colony, La Agüera; and now the Reverend Joseph Dreyer, S. M., St. Michael's Rectory, Convent, La., contributes a readable exposition based on Mr. Gordon's inquiry, the instructive value of which will be recognized: "In the U. S. Official Postal Guide for July, 1927, p. 343, mention is made of the Spanish Colonies 'La Agüera (Cabo Blanco) and 'Villa Cisneros' (Rio de Oro). However, Cabo Blanco (with Port Etienne) itself is in the French territory of Mauritania (Mauritanie-Africaine occidentale française). The gradual establishment of these Spanish colonies is clearly illustrated by the various issues of special stamps bearing the respective names of these districts. The rivalry between Spain and France in N. W. Africa is thereby well emphasized. Ever since 1900, Spain essayed her hand at colonizing along the N. W. shore of the Atlantic, south of the undetermined frontier of Morocco, the while France penetrated pacifically and otherwise the Sherifian Empire. Between 1900 and 1905, Spain organized the Coast just north of Cabo Blanco up to Cabo Juby, into the district called Colonia de Rio de Oro (the Rio de Oro discovered by the Portuguese in 1442), for which they issued special stamps in 1905. The seat of Government is at Villa Cisneros. France at that time claimed the coast line north of Cabo Juby, but had not established a definite frontier to the south of Morocco. Spain had also occupied Ifni, well to the north of the Wady Draa, which Morocco claimed for her southern boundary line. The French colony of Mauritania (Mauritania), part of French Western Africa, then actually surrounded the Rio de Oro Colony. By agreement between France and Spain, the frontier was definitely established, Spain extending her territory around and beyond Cabo Juby (Cape Juby), which is 67 miles due east of Fuerteventura Island in the Canary Group, and up the Wady Draa, the new boundary of French protected Morocco. That left the Spanish colony of Ifni in Moroccan territory. On Cape Juby there is a very powerful wireless station since 1916. Cabo Juby is the northern part of the Spanish Rio de Oro Colony (as shown on present day maps) between Morocco and the District of Rio de Oro of Spanish Western Sahara. The first stamps were issued in 1915, being Rio de Oro stamps overprinted Cabo Juby. Since 1919 the current Spanish stamps overprinted Cabo Juby are in use. The colony is really a dependency of the Canary Islands and is governed from Las Palmas. In Nov., 1920, the Southern District of Rio de Oro was organized into the Territory of La Agüera (lat. 20° 47' n., long. 16° 58' w.) which used Rio de Oro stamps overprinted La Agüera. Early in 1921, the home government decided to change the name of the Rio de Oro District and issued stamps with the inscription: 'Sahara Occidental-Rio de Oro.' Similarly, the next issue (1922) for La Agüera was inscribed: 'Sahara Occidental-La Agüera.' The next step was to reunite the two under the general denomination: 'Posesiones Españolas del Sahara Occidental,' or Spanish possessions in the Western Sahara. The very latest stamp additions, the overprinted Red Cross issue of Spain, show the name of the Colony simplified to 'Sahara Español' or Spanish Sahara. Before the issue of special sets, ordinary Spanish stamps were in use in the entire District from Morocco to Cabo Blanco."

Now for Alaouites. By an Anglo-French agreement, made in 1916, Syria was divided into three parts to be administered respectively by the authorities of Great Britain, France and Arabia. Under the provisions of the treaty of Sevres, Aug. 10, 1920, Syria was given an independence subject to the administrative advice and assistance of a mandatory selected by the Allied Powers, with France as the mandatory nation. France, under the mandate, divided Syria into five more or less autonomous states, as follows: Bamasus, Aleppo, Alaouite, Gt. Lebanon and Gebel-Bruve. This division of Syria was made in 1925, when Alaouite was divided into sub-provinces as well, several of which are called Lapakla and Tartons, respectively. We are indebted to Colonel R. A. Eddy for the information conveyed in these findings, which have been in hand for several months.

Mr. Henry A. Kiehl, Hamilton, Canada, writes: "On the new historical set of Canada, recently issued, the stamps, 5c, 12c and 20c, do not have the word, 'Postage' on them, as all other Canadian stamps have. This is the first issue of Canada on which the word, 'Postage' 'Post' has not been printed, a fact that may not have been generally noticed.

The Chicago "Daily News," September 20, 1927, gave prominence to a story, illustrated, by Octavus Roy Cohe whose philatelic predilections are known. This "very short, short story" "$20,000 in Stamps!" and is copyrighted by P. F. Collier & Son Co. The tale a clever one and is true to philatelic life. It involves an auction sale of a Mauritius for $20,000, which a late-comer the sale offers $22,000 for, to the successful bidder. A crook steals the stamp and tries to impress a companion crime to sell it to the unsuccessful bidder, but the danger was too great at the risk of offering a stamp that loomed forth like a monument impelled the saddened thief to return it to the rightful owner who bought it at the sale for "twenty grand." The buyer is overjoyed to recover the stamp and leave the room to return with a long envelope in his hand. The caller, scenting a large reward, after all, is expectant of good fortune and after a hurried departure opens the envelope, to find the gift, which consists of a batch of stamps or little treasures, as the donor calls them. Nov Red's pal, the light-fingered chap, know that stamp collectors have reactions unlike those of their fellow men, M. Cohen is a real writer and his philatelic affiliations are something to talk and read about.

287—Oct. 26th—287

Catalogs for this 287 Auction Sale were mailed to all Bidders on Sept. 26th and I would appreciate any information about delays in delivery. The service has not been so good of late and I am trying thru co-operation to improve it. This Sale 287 includes a 19 Century collection, 30 lots of Confederates and more than the usual number of U. S. Commemorative lots. Are you on my mailing list?

KEEPING RECORD OF STAMP PURCHASES

A recent editorial in MEKEEL'S refers to the loss of a stamp collection by fire, and the difficulty of establishing the amount paid for the same. Perhaps others would be interested in a way in use, which could easily be modified to suit the individual. A key system is used to denote the vendor, such as "SM" for John Smith, and the first purchase from this dealer is denoted as "SM-1," the second purchase as "SM-2," etc. This notation may be put on the label, or on the page underneath the specimen. A small sheet, preferably of loose leaf book, may be kept for each purchase (or several purchases, if small), giving a line for each specimen, giving log number, catalog price, price paid, and one or two other points of information if necessary. The above scheme, while laid out for general collection, could easily be adapted to a specialized collection, and would give a continual inventory of such stamps as were important enough for such record, and requires surprisingly little space to keep up. This only gives a record of the original cost, while appraisal of the collection at a later date or at time of loss would necessarily take into account appreciation since purchase.—J. H. BRACKEN, A. P. S. No. 7101.

BUSINESS ITEMS OF A VARIED NATURE

Elsewhere in this number will be found the advertisement of Arthur Barger & Co., and the firm will be with us frequently during the winter. They carry a general line of stamps, but specialize in first day covers. Office space has been taken at 46 Cornhill, Boston, and this move upon the part of the firm will no doubt be appreciated by its many patrons.

We are very glad to enter Fred W. Noske, Milwaukee, Wis., as a regular advertiser. He has taken out a "3-in-1" contract and will be with us indefinitely. He comes well recommended.

A new "3-in-1" contract is at hand from Bertram W. H. Poole, 620 Washington Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal. A quarter-page advertisement in this issue introduces him in a handsome manner, and his list of fine stamps will attract attention.

We are advised by the Premier Stamp Co., of Brighton, Eng., that the firm has removed to new premises at 65 Western Road, Hove, Brighton.

Francis J. Gross of Brooklyn, N. Y., returns to our columns this week. He has signed a "3-in-1" contract and begins its use with a quarter-page advertisement elsewhere in this number. Mr. Gross is well acquainted from past experience with the pulling powers of the WEEKLY, and he has the forethought to order five hundred reprints of the advertisement appearing this week.

If you are interested in the novelties W. T. Wilson is offering week by week on page 1, we suggest that you address him at 18 Livingstone Rd., Birmingham, England, and procure a copy of his October list. It is most interesting and attractive. Mr. Wilson in writing us from Paris prepaies the postage upon his letter with the 1fr 50c American Legion stamp. It bears the date of Sept. 15.

Last week F. B. Buffham of Racine, Wis., returned to our columns with a new advertising contract. We can recommend him to the favorable consideration of our readers.

We have received from B. J. Dattner, 324 S. 24th St., Philadelphia, Pa., a copy of Dattner's Circular, a sample copy of which will no doubt be sent upon request. It is something more than a mere house-organ and we can commend it to our readers.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the introductory advertisement of Homan, Krassa Co., Inc., of N. Y. City. There is also a business write-up of this firm, which was formerly known to WEEKLY readers as A. Krassa. It is with great satisfaction that we recommend this firm. The Managing Editor has personally inspected the superb stock which the Homan, Krassa Co. carries and its richness will be fully presented during the coming year with the firm's contract for five thousand lines.

J. C. Morgenthau & Co. has resumed their advertising and will now be found throughout the winter regularly in our columns. The Morgenthau firm is now in the Collectors Club Building on W. 48th St., N. Y. City.

M. J. Fenster, Elmira, N. Y., who has just returned from a lengthy trip abroad, is making his plans for the early use of the WEEKLY. His first advertisement will be a big one, and our readers will hear from him regularly thereafter.

The well-known Paris dealer, Theodore Champion, has sent us some large posters advertising the International Stamp Exhibition to be held at Monte Carlo in February. He desires these placed in the offices of dealers in the United States. We shall be glad to send the ten specimens received to the first ten applicants that come to us. The poster is a handsome production.

How many of our subscribers noticed the make-up of the advertisement of the Home of the Postage Stamp in our issue of Sept. 26? It was indeed striking and as interesting as anything printed in that particular number of the WEEKLY. If the reader fails to notice this week's advertisement by this firm another treat will be missed. It shows the work of an experienced hand.

AIRPOST COLLECTORS' WORLD WIDE CHRONICLE

Austria.—The airpost line between Vienna and Marseilles was inaugurated on July 1st and at the former city a special first day postmark was used which was inscribed in concentric circles "Post-Erstflug, Wien-Marseille." Below the date "I. VII. 27. 10" was depicted a small monoplane. At Aspern, for the same service, a cachet of the same type was also used. The first mail consisted of 1,296 pieces: 676 letters and cards, and 34 registered pieces, from Vienna; and 572 letters and cards with 14 registered pieces from Aspern. Included in these numbers were 600 of a special commemorative card issued in Austria.

Brazil.—According to local newspapers an airpost service was opened in this country early this year which included a line between Rio de Janeiro and Porto Alegre, the Minister of Posts announcing that the rates for cards and letters not exceeding 20grms. in weight, and newspaper and book post not exceeding 50grms. in weight, would be 2 milreis for transport on a distance from 500 to 1,500kms., 3 milreis for 3,000kms., 4 milreis for 4,500kms., and 5 milreis for 6,000kms.

Ceylon.—The Monthly Bulletin of the Indian society reports the following interesting news item: "On Tuesday, the 10th, and Wednesday, the 11th, December, 1912, Mons. George Verminck and Mons. Marc Pourpe gave an aerial exhibition on the Race Course at Colombo. The Exhibition came to an abrupt end, owing to police interference, as the aviators were stated to have flown over the forts. All photographs and negatives were seized by the police. It is unknown whether any mail or souvenir cards were carried by the aviators on the 10th and 11th, during their flights."

Chile.—We illustrate (No. 3) the official air postmark applied to mail carried on the service between Valparaiso and Santiago since it opened on May 3rd. The ordinary postmark is used for back-stamping.

Colombia.—The special air postmark now being applied to mail at Pereira is of the type first used in 1921, and is used with a bright green ink.

At Bogota, the following propaganda postmark is now being used: "Colombia tiene un servicio aero completo. Aprovechele." (Colombia has a complete air service. Profit by it).

Denmark.—On the occasion of the opening of the first airmail service from Copenhagen to Oslo on July 18th, the Danish Post Office brought into use for this day only the obsolete air postmark, but we are not informed whether this was used for the whole or for only part of the mail despatched.

Dutch East Indies.—Twenty-seven sacks of mail, weighing 381kgs., were carried on the first flight to Sabang from Batavia and Soerabaya, the Soerabaya pieces of which were described in our June number. Though postmarked at the end of March, these were probably carried to meet the SS. Slamet on April 2nd, arriving in Holland on April 22nd.

France.—The service to South America which is expected to open this month has been planned on very ambitious lines by the Latecoere Company. It is said that a fleet of 200 aeroplanes, 40 hydroplanes and nine steamers will be put into service and 266 pilots will be employed. Under the ten years' contract, 50% of the employees must be of Argentine birth. The route from Toulouse to Buenos Aires, via Casablanca, St. Louis and (Senegal), Cape Verde, Fernando de Noronha, Pernambuco, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, covers 7,704 miles and will be cleared in seven and a half days by relays of land planes, hydroplanes and steamships. One voyage a week will be made at first, and it is stipulated that in three years' time the distance must be covered within four days.

As announced in our June number, the first two official air stamps of France were placed on sale at Marseilles Aviation Salon from June 25th to July 25th. Airmail covers bearing these stamps have been seen with the special postmark (No. 2) as well as with a circular postmark inscribed "Salon Aviation-Navigation Marseilles 25.6.27."

French Morocco.—A local correspondent states that the 5c orange air stamp has been withdrawn from issue, though as a matter of fact the Rabat post offices had sold out within two days of its first appearance.

Grand Liban.—The 1925 stamps surcharged with an aeroplane in red have now appeared with additional overprints: "Republique Libanaise" on the following values, 2, 3, 5 and 10 piastres.

Great Britain.—The extension of the London-Marseilles air service to Monaco for Monte Carlo was made on the following days: July 30th, August 2nd, 12th, 20th and 27th, and September 3rd, as a preliminary to a regular service.

Through the courtesy of Mr. S. H. Smith we learn that two or three letters were carried by Messrs. Carr and Gilman on the first British non-stop attempt to fly to Delhi. This mail was postmarked at Cranwell on May 20th and at Lower Baghdad on June 1st. Mr. G. Wylie calls our attention to the new series of blue air labels which now appear to be rouletted instead of perforated.

Greece.—A special postmark is now in use which reads (in Greek) "Athens, By Airmail." Registered letters, says Mr. Drossos, have a similar cancellation but with smaller characters and with the word "Registered" included.

Guatemala.—The Pan-American fliers carried a small official mail of six letters to Honduras and six to Costa Rica, the former bearing an air postmark dated Jan. 4, 1927, and being back-stamped at Tegucigalpa on January 14th. The delay in delivering was due to an accident, involving eight days, when the machine was taking off.

Holland.—The first mail, of about 7,000 pieces, weighing 120kgs., was flown on a Fokker F VIIa to Marseilles early on March 18th. It was taken on board the SS. Indra Poera to Sabang and from there flown by military machines on April 5th, 6th and 7th to Medan, Batavia and Soerabaya. We have seen a few covers postmarked in Holland a day prior to the Marseilles flight, March 17th and backstamped at Weltevreden on April 6th.

Jugo-Slavia.—An airmail service was opened on July 25th between Belgrade and Zagreb.

Kenya.—The four letters mentioned in our July number received a red first flight cachet on the front and was back-stamped in red February 15th. On February 27th, the second successful flight carried only a small mail which had special postmarks in red, with the date, but without the word "First."

Newfoundland.—Three hundred Cabot 60c stamps were overprinted for Pinedo's flight as announced, and it appears that 258 of these were used on the latter mail, the disposition of the remainder being as follows: four damaged and destroyed, 20 presented to Commander Pinedo, two presented to the Italian Consul, Mr. C. Mc. K. Harvey, seven sold to Mr. Woodford, Minister of Posts, five sold to Mr. Hoddy, Deputy Minister, two sold to the Prime Minister, and two sold to Mr. O'Neil, Private Secretary to the Minister of Posts. The airmen arrived at Ostia, miles from Rome on June 16th, but the Newfoundland mail was not delivered to the post office until a week or more afterwards.

Nicaragua.—The first airmail from this country was carried on the experimental S.C.A.D.T.A. flight two years ago. Flown covers were postmarked Managua on August 17, 1925, and also received a small octagonal framed cachet reading "Primer Correo Aereo Colombia—America Central." They were back-stamped at Camapala on the 18th and Tegucigalpa on the 20th August.

Norway.—The first flight from Oslo to Copenhagen took place on July 18th, all mail being backstamped at Oslo on that day and mail for countries beyond Denmark receiving also the red air reception cachet of Hamburg. We are indebted to Mr. Davis calling our attention to an error in our July Chronicle. The official air stamp was first used and flown on June 13th, not June 6th.

Portugal.—An air line with a service three times weekly was opened between Lisbon, Madrid and Seville on June 10th, but according to a notice issued by the Director General of Communications the experimental mail carrying flights were made by the aeroplane "Sevilla" from May 2, 1927, first mail including official greetings and correspondence.

Sarawak.—We illustrate (No. 1) the official air postmark applied to the first airmail as described in The Aero Field of February.

Switzerland.—A regular airmail service between Lausanne, Chaux-de-Fonds and Locle was inaugurated on May 30th when a special mail carrying machine was used. As on previous official flights, special postmarks were applied to each town (No. 4). The new line expedites the delivery of Lausanne mail addressed to Amsterdam, Paris and London, via Basel. For this occasion the society "Nhora" of La Chaux issued a series of special cards and envelopes which were imprinted with official stamps of the 25c and 35c values in the types of the 1923 series. Fifteen thousand each of cards and envelopes were printed, including various quantities of minor types and varieties.

A propaganda postmark was in use at Zurich advertising the International Meeting of mid-August and propaganda labels depicting a white aeroplane descending from a very blue sky were also used. Various special air postcards were prepared for carrying on the special mails, including 15,000 bearing the 25c air stamp, 5,000 with the 40c air stamp about 1,000 without stamp (but sold at 30c each) and about 200 on chamotte paper sold at 50c each, we are advised by Dr. Vogler.

In connection with the first mail flight between Zurich and Bellinzona, the flight from Zurich was made on August 21st and the return journey from Bellinzona on the 22nd. Two types of vignette printed on envelopes appeared, one depicting a propeller and the other an eagle with inscriptions in three languages. For the Zurich flight, 1,000 series of six envelopes were issued, five bearing imprinted stamps of the William Tell series. For the Bellinzona flight 1,000 series of two envelopes, one with and one without the imprinted 5c William Tell stamp were issued. Two special official cachets were applied at each town.—The Aero Field.

Scarce Sets Investment Prices

For the past few years 20th Century stamps have steadily increased in popularity and investment-soundness. Nothing demonstrates this better than the new 1928 Scott Catalogue, in which literally thousands of the stamps have made remarkable rises in value.

We believe that collectors who have an eye to the future, and who are adding their collections with the investment idea in mind, will find it profitable to devote their attention to 20th Century stamps, especially the earlier issues, between 1915 and 1927.

We are listing below—and all of them at honest-to-goodness investment prices—the best 20th Century sets in our stock. Up to and including the letter "T", the catalogue values are according to Scott's 1928 edition.

OUR GUARANTEE

We believe that our rigid cost-plus policy, which disregards catalogue values and cheerfully passes the buying advantages on to our customers, enables us to offer stamps at the lowest prices in America. If you find that any sets purchased from us can be bought elsewhere at a lower price, return them within six months from date of purchase, and your money will be promptly refunded.

This page is primarily for you, the Junior collector. We are interested in what interests you and we want you to take possession of it, if in any way it can serve you. We also invite the Senior collector to extend words of advice, encouragement and stimulation and thus develop in the Junior a real passion for Philately. Bear in mind that two short articles of from 50 to 75 words read better than one long one. Address the Beverly office.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

BRATTLEBORO U. S. A. 5c black on buff

The story of the Brattleboro is so old that it will be new to many readers. The stamp has long been regarded as a choice gem and for years it has stood as a synonym for rarity. "Brattleboro" in the estimation of collectors generally represented the ne plus ultra of philatelic desire. Lately, greater rarities have been in the public eye, and the lustre of the Brattleboro has become somewhat dimmed. Probably, it has been the subject of more comment in the newspapers than any other stamp and its historical suggestions have been dwelt upon so often with more or less eloquence and accuracy that to old time philatelists, its story is threadbare.

The Brattleboro was issued rather late in 1846 by Frederick N. Palmer, postmaster of the place, from July, 1845, to November, 1848, who has been described as a "man of ability and charming accomplishments," and as proving the kindly qualification, it may be said that he was renowned as a flute player, who performed at old church concerts with signal success. The Brattleboro was issued as a convenient labor-saver and as a means for increasing the revenue of his office, but the expectations were not fully met and it seems agreed that not over five hundred stamps were used. The stamps were printed from a copper engraved plate that contained ten impressions arranged in two horizontal rows of five stamps each. The name of the engraver was shown on the bottom of the sheet in script: "Eng. by Thos. Chubbuck, Brat'to." Each stamp differs in some minor detail from its fellows on the sheet. The initials on the stamp, F. N. P., are a fac-simile of the autograph of the postmaster's initials.

10,000 Mile Stamp Hunt

(This clipping was sent us by C. A. Tully. It is going the rounds of the press and is an indication that our Cleveland friend W. W. McLaren is having a little competition.—Ed.)

WORCESTER, Sept. 23—On a 10,000-mile stamp hunt, Walter N. Emerson, retired editor of a Chicago trade paper, is in Worcester buying early American stamps from Worcester residents. He has acquired six lots ranging from a few stamps to a box the size of a peck measure into which for years the owner has been throwing stamps. Worcester is only one place where Mr. Emerson has stopped on his way from Bangor, Me. With Mrs. Emerson the collector left Chicago May 2. They traveled by automobile across the country, stopping to buy stamps in all but the largest cities. They are now on their way to Chicago, which place they hope to reach Oct. 1.

Correspondence and Stamps

By BEVERLY CAVERHILL

A hobby of mine which has helped me in stamp collecting is foreign correspondence. I have correspondents in Australia, Gold Coast, England, India, France and Canada, and thru them I get many stamps, covers, and blocks by exchange, and from the envelopes. One cover I received this way recently was stamped with the Australian Canberra issue. Also thru a Canadian friend I got the entire Jubilee and historical sets of 1927 unused. Those wishing correspondents, address their letters to: Secretary, W. B. B. % Boys' Life, 200 Fifth Ave., New York City, for information.

Cheboygan, Mich., Organizes

Edw. Gaines is president, and Bryant Kilpatrick is secretary of a stamp club just organized in Cheboygan, Mich., for both adults and juniors. The club starts with eight members. Good. Who will be the next to report a stamp club? A suggestion—go to the Secretary of your local Y. M. C. A. and tell him the boys of your town want a stamp club. He will help you, or else be a big misfit.

A Damaged Specimen

Have you one in your collection?

"C. A."

I. These letters appear on several of the stamps of Nicaragua, and signify "Central America," referring, of course, to the geographical position of the republic.

II. The letters "C A" form an overprint frequently found on the King Edward 1d stamps of Great Britain. Many collectors have been led to treat this as an official overprint of the same standing as the "I. R." etc., stamps. Their use is, however, purely fiscal, and they are simply used in the offices of the Crown Agents for the Colonies for the purpose of receipting documents, accounts, etc.

Junior Dictionary

Populi Voluntas.—"Will of the People," part of the inscription found on stamps issued in connection with a plebiscite in 1920 in Marienwerder, West Prussia.

Port Cantonal.—An inscription shown upon all the cantonal stamps of Geneva, issued between 1843 and 1849, meaning "Cantonal Post."

Porte De Mar.—The chief inscription upon certain labels employed at one time in Mexico to denote to the authorities at Vera Cruz the amount of postage upon each letter which was to be paid to the Company conveying the mails by sea. As the whole of the postage was prepaid by means of the ordinary postage stamps and these labels merely gave information upon a matter of accounts, their philatelic interest is not very great. The inscription means, literally, "sea postage."

Porteado A Receber.—Found on the postage due stamps of Portugal meaning "postage to be received."

Porte De Conduccion.—Found on the parcel post stamps of Peru and means "postage for conveyance."

Porte Franco.—Found on many of the early stamps of Peru. It means literally, "post free."

Portielje, G.—A painter of Antwerp who designed the 5c Brussels Exhibition stamp issued in Belgium in 1896. His initials, "G. P.," are shown on the stamps in microscopic letters.

Port Lagos.—A small town in Turkey in Europe at which France maintains a consular post office. The stamps used at this office since 1893 have been overprinted with the name of the town.

Porto.—This word forms the only inscription, other than the value, shown upon the postage due stamps of Austria and the Austrian Levant issued since 1908. It means "postage."

Cadiz

A Spanish province having an area of 2,834 square miles and a population of about half a million. After the revolution in Madrid in September, 1868, and consequent flight of the Queen, a Provisional Government was formed, which issued orders that all postage stamps were to be overprinted "Habilitado la Nacion" before being sold to the public. The province of Cadiz used a special handstamp for this purpose which differs from that in general use throughout the rest of Spain only in the size of the letters of the inscription.

Paper No. 15—Safety

A highly glazed bluish paper used on the 4d stamps of Great Britain issued in 1855, and for several of the reverse stamps of that country. The blue was caused by adding prussiate of ash to the pulp and the paper was so sensitive that any attempt at removal of the cancellations resulted in the removal of the design as well.

Mysterious Afghanistan

By ROBT. S. GORDON, Middletown, Conn. Along about 1921, England and Afghanistan decided to call a halt to promising young war they were developing. They sent their soldiers back to their barracks, slapped each other on the back in friendly diplomatic fashion, and decided to be friends. As a consequence British representatives are stationed in Kabul, Jalalabad, and Kandahar, moaning their exile; and Afghan agents are posted at London, Delhi, Bombay and Karachi, probably bemoaning their exile also.

Soviet Russia also insists on sticking her finger in the soup, with diplomatic representatives at Kabul, and the opinion is publicly expressed in the East that the soup is becoming contaminated thereby.

The mysterious lands which not very long ago were mere empty space on the map are gradually losing their isolation. It seems not improbable that tabloid newspapers, traffic cops, and the ubiquitous book agent will, within a short time, destroy the last vestige of romance attached to the little-known places of the earth. PRECANCELLED SPECIAL DELIVERY STAMPS OF THE UNITED STATES

By FREDERICK WALLACE ALLEN, 405 Oak Street, S. E., Minneapolis, Minn.

NEW YORK
NEW YORK

Introduction

Someone were to ask me to select the most virgin field, in the broad expanse of the precancel hobby, in which the following factors were present:

Wealth of material
Freedom from speculation Possibilities for attractive display Investment possibilities
One could be forced to say "collect the Special Deliveries, including the Special Handling stamp."
We have a wide range of cities using the stamps. From Silver Lake, Ind., to New York City, there are hundreds of postoffices which precancel them. As I have to learn of a single variety of stamps especially for the collector's benefit. We find a multitude of styles of precancelling—handstamps, electroplates, special typesettings, all being used. The illustrated overprints all fall in the same named group. This combined with green, blue, orange, and black hues, the special size of the stamps, permit arrangement for a splendid display. Mitchell has expressed an interest in the 25c, Special Handling, and is accumulating a separate collection of them. No one has an important showing of the entire group, mounted as a special collection, to my knowledge.

Part I—The Various Issues

The first stamp to consider is the "Merry Widow" of 1908. When I said I knew of no speculative varieties, and under consideration the 1916 and present series. Claremont, N. H., No. 1, in a pretty three-line printed style, Mer Rouge, La., handstamped in the lines, are two "Merry Widow" stamps that are rank speculatives, and only be included as curiosities. Precancelling of Special Deliveries at an early period was deemed unnecessary, for I have never seen a "Merry Widow" that was authentic. The 10c blue, "boy on bicycle," perf. 12, may exist from some source, but to my knowledge it does not. The advent of precancelled special delivery stamps comes with the aforesaid stamp, perf. 11, issued in 1916. Quite a number of these are to be had, but they are difficult to procure as they are hoarded. Cincinnati is by far the most met with. New York, Chicago,

NEW LONDON CONN.

Omaha, Indianapolis, are fairly common also. A rare item in this group was uncovered in the Lawrence collection, recently sold at auction by the Rotnem Stamp Co., precancelled Minneapolis, Minn., in Type VII. It is now priced at $35.00.

The current series embraces over ninety per cent of the precancelled "specials." The 20c is scarce even from the large cities, such as Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, etc. The 25c Special Handling is plentiful, as all offices which use precancels upon baby chick shipments have need of it. Fruit shipments by parcel post, also call for use of the Special Handling. The stamp is also prolifically used during the holiday season. The 15c will require effort, if any number are to be obtained, but there are many different varieties to reward one. Prof. A. F. Gamber has one of the finest lots of this stamp in existence, which comprises 106 different specimens.

Part II—Unlisted Varieties

A. Electrotone Plate Printings

The 1916 10c from Topeka in Type V can be classed as a rarity.

Monmouth, Ill., in the large Universal Style I, has been seen on the 25c Special Handling.

The current 10c from Marion, Ind., makes a pretty appearance.

The 10c and 20c Decatur, Ill., are listed. The 15c is also out. If you wish to see an attractive set, just mount these three in a row.

Hamilton, Ohio, inverts are really scarce in the U-1 style. I happen to have one on the 10c Special.

Knoxville, Tenn., comes both normal and inverted on the 15c.

The 15c Omaha, Nebr., in the new electro, is a neat item.

Syracuse, N. Y., on the 15c is somewhat similar in style, but not nearly as pretty a specimen.

Saint Petersburg, Fla., in the three-line U-5 style, is now to be found on the 15c.

Miami uses quite a few specials also. While only the 15c is at present chronicled in the catalog, I can vouch for the 10c, 20c, and 25c Special Handling.

Double strikes on these large stamps are worth a second glance. I wish I could show you the 15c and 25c from Cleveland in the clear cut U-10 style.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Also Chicago exists doubly printed on the entire series, though I have only the 15c.

Bay City still uses the tiny U-8 style. The latest from there is the 15c Special.

I'll wager that the 25c from Holland, Mich., in the new U-12, will be hard to pick up.

And you'll have to hunt a long time to find a better one than the 25c North Abington, Mass.

Mexico, Mo., and Ottumwa, Ia., in the same style, exist on the 25c Special Handling.

Worcester, Mass., on the 25c, with overprint inverted, should turn out to be a rarity, as it is rumored that Worcester will replace the U-10 plate with another of different style.

Passaic, N. J., and Waukegan, Ill., precancels are always in demand because of their attractiveness. Both cities use the 15c Special, and Passaic the 10c as well.

Salisbury, Md., Universal Style 10, are seldom seen, so the 20c Special will not be represented in many collections.

B. Local Type-Set Productions

Brookville, Pa., in two lines of plain capitals of medium size, between lines, exists on the 15c. It's mighty scarce, too!

The catalog lists the specials from New London under the regular U-10 style. As can be seen from the illustration the type is similar, and evidently patterned after the U-10. It appears on the 10, 15, and 20c.

C. Handstamped Overprintings

Pearl River, N. Y., has a handstamp like U-73 to precancel stamps for the Lederle Anti-Toxin Laboratories. It has been used on the 10, 15, and 25c Specials, besides the regular series. On all three stamps, I have both the normal and inverted overprints.

Lincoln, Ill., ships a lot of baby chicks. I have the Special Handling in three positions.

Chatfield, O., 25c, Marion, O., 25c (U-71), Hoytville, O., 25c, Kirksville, Mo., 25c, Creston, Ia., 25c, Upper Sandusky, O., 25c, Platteville, Wis., 25c, South River, N. J., 25c (inverted), Spencer, Ia., 25c, all were used on shipments of chicks.

Ridgely, Md., is another town that uses precancels for just one thing, the shipping of this merchandise. I have the 25c in four different positions.

Fruit shipments by parcel post from Newark, Del., bear precancels. Of course there is need for the precancelled specials. The 15c has the greatest use. I have seen this stamp with the overprint normal, inverted, and up. The 20c is found in several positions, too.

Cabbage plants are shipped by the thousands from Pharr, La., every spring. That's the reason for the 10c, 1916, Special having been precancelled.

Galion, O., and Tiro, O., use the 25c Special Handlings occasionally. Sidney, O., also has need for them and has precancelled in several different types. Shelby, O., is still another, the latest from there being in the U-56 style.

Batavia, N. Y., is a comparatively newcomer with the 10c Special.

Crawfordsville, Ind., has a new style of plain caps reading "CRAWFORDS-VILLE, IND.," in two lines between lines. It is very cheap looking, I regret to say. It was the 15c Special that brought it to my attention.

Connorsville, Ind., seldom are plainly cancelled, and doubles are quite common. The best item I have seen from here is the 15c Special, double inverted.

Centralia, Ill., on the 10c and 15c are two worthwhile varieties.

Delaware, O., on the 15c would fit in a lot of collections.

Other scarce 15c Specials that have come to my attention are: Stockton, Calif. (U-74), Salisbury, Md. (U-71),

LET'S GET ACQUAINTED!

MAXWELL KRAUSE, Lebanon, Pa.

Marissa, Ill., Middletown, Conn., Flushing, N. Y. (U-74—inverted), Florence, Ala. (up), E. Hampton, Conn. (Type I—inverted).

And the prize of them all is the 25c Special Handling from San Juan, Porto Rico. What precancel collector lives who would not appreciate this?

Conclusion

If the descriptions have been confusing to any reader and he would care to receive a chart illustrating the various Universal Styles, I shall gladly mail one upon request, and receipt of sixteen cents.

The Standard Precancel Catalog of Precancels for 1928 is now out and can be secured from most any dealer. It is an invaluable reference, for with it as a guide, an organized beginning can be made on any sort of a precancel collection.

The A. B. C. of Precancels, an instructive handbook, will be mailed to readers (upon receipt of 4 cents postage) together with a sample copy of the Precancel Gazette. Address me at: 405 Oak Street, SE., Minneapolis.

CONFEDERATE STATES

Mr. August Dietz of Richmond, Va., who has given thirty years' study to the stamps of the Confederate States, is about to publish his information in book form, the publication being entitled, "The Story of the Post Office Department of the Confederate States of America, and its Postage Stamps."

Those who have been interested in these stamps know that Mr. Dietz is possibly one of the best posted authorities today on the history of the subject, and this book should be in the hands of every collector.

The undertaking is one of magnitude. The book will contain upward of a thousand illustrations, including color plates of the General Issues, showing the stamps in absolute fac-simile of design and color—a venture never before attempted in a similar publication.

Subscriptions are now being taken for the publication, payable one-half on demand and the balance on presentation of the book. It is printed in three editions, the first an Edition de Luxe, on the finest paper obtainable, bound in gray morocco, gold stamped, gilt edged, numbered and autographed. There will be twenty-five to fifty copies, and the price is fifty dollars ($50.00) each.

The next style—a Library Edition, will be printed on the same paper, gray cloth with leather, gold stamped, price—ten dollars ($10.00).

The Popular Edition will be printed on good quality paper, gray cloth binding, black lettering, price—five dollars ($5.00).

If you are interested, I will be most pleased to receive your subscription, which I will gladly pass on to the publisher, who will call upon you for first payment in due course.

CONFEDERATE ESSAY

As it is well known, several of the plates for Confederate stamps were prepared in London. One plate of four hundred subjects of a 2c denomination, showing the portrait of Calhoun, was prepared, but was captured on its way to America. This plate was discovered in Louisiana last year, and a limited number of impressions in green have been taken from the plate. Not only the specialist but the collector of these most interesting issues, should have a block of four of this variety in his collection. While one sheet lasts, I can furnish this variety in a block at one dollar ($1.00) a block.

NEWS ITEMS:—

WE are indebted to Bradie Buchanan, East Liverpool, Ohio, for greetings from Paris. Two very interesting covers have been received. Postage is paid with the two American Legion stamps, and the postmark reads:—"Congress American Legion." At the left of the envelope is a printed inscription of greeting, and above are the French and American flags in red, white and blue, with a picture of the American Legion button in gilt. We thank Mr. Buchanan for his courtesy.

WE have received from C. E. Jandru, Everett, Mass., what appears to be an airmail flight cover, but it could not have traveled very far by plane. It was mailed at the Boston Radio Aero Show held at Mechanics Building, Boston, Mass., Sept. 26-Oct. 1. It is a first day cover and it bears a marking of the airmail station at the Aero Show from which it was probably conveyed to the Back Bay Station by airplane. We have no particulars concerning the flight, but if made it is probably one of the shortest on record.

C. L. HALL, 6049 N. Maplewood Av., Chicago, Ill., can get no replies to letters sent W. K. Martin, Ridley Park, Pa. Mr. Hall would like to hear from any interested parties.

MAIL addressed to one, Thomas Burke, 124 Forsyth St., New York, has been returned, also two checks drawn on "The Commercial Trust Co., of N. Y." have been sent back marked "no account."—STEPHEN C. LYON.

Air Mail Notes

Mr. Charles E. Jandru kindly submits an air mail communication carried by express on the very first air express trip, between Boston and New York. The cover was carried over C. A. M. No. 1, and shows a Boston postmark reading, "Boston Mass., Sept. 2, 6:30 P. M. G. P. O. Air Mail." On the back of the cover there is an express label printed in black and red on orange paper reading, "American Railway Express Company, from Boston, Mass., via Air Mail." In addition there is arranged proper spaces for the weight, size, value, together with a place for charges separated as follows:— (1) Charges to Air Agency, (2) Charges for Air Service, (3) Charges from Air Agency. This label is tied to the back by a New York postmark dated Sept. 4, 8:30 A. M., and as it was addressed to New Brunswick, it bears a further postmark of this city, dated Sept. 4, 12 P. M., and a delivery postmark in magenta of Sept. 7, 1927.

It will be recalled that the mail and express carried on this trip was lost for a day and a night, and when it was finally located, Pilot Cline was found dead.

Mr. Jandru writes that this was the first air express out of Boston and that but ten covers were carried. He states that on the express out of New York for Chicago, a special rubber auxiliary cancellation was used, but as yet, I have not had the pleasure of inspecting one of these covers.

The same correspondent also kindly favors me with an air mail cover used on the first day by the special post office established at the Boston Show. These covers bear a small circular postmark in blue about 1¼" in diameter reading, "Radio-Aero-Show Air Mail Station, Boston Mass., Sept. 26, 1927." In addition the covers bear a special concentric postmark 2" in diameter reading, "Boston Radio Aero Show, Mechanics Bld. Sept. 26-Oct. 1." In the center we find a radio station signaling to an aeroplane, with a hanger in the distance. All covers also show the regular Boston, Mass., Back Bay Station postmark.

Messrs. George E. Verden and Albert N. Brown favor me with air mail covers from Los Angeles, posted on Lindbergh Day. These covers bear a special postmark in magenta, consisting of three concentric circles, the largest nearly 1½" in diameter, and reading, "Lindbergh Day, Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 20, 1927."

AIR MAIL COVERS

My recent remarks upon the rarity of the 2c Rose Carmine issue of 1898, have resulted in quite a few collectors submitting the variety which they have had in their collection, and which they supposed to be this shade. With one exception, they are all in a deep shade issue in 1898, but not the rare rose carmine listed in the catalogue.

The one exception was a used copy submitted by Mrs. Catherine L. Manning, Government Philatelist, at the National Museum. "Miss Kate" as she is known to the Washington collectors of twenty years back, and the writer is among the number submits a used copy, which she states was on the cover, written to Mr. Colman, the original finder at the time the stamp were located.

I had never seen a used copy before and it is my impression that this one, which bears the seven wavy lines of the well-known flag cancellation, is probably the only copy existing used at the right time.

Cameroons.—Copies of the 75c, brown and mauve, type of A6, have been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. and the Economist Stamp Co.

Costa Rica.—In addition to the new pictorial stamps mentioned in issue No. 1911, we have received from Mr. J. Roberts the 3c, ultramarine, with a view of one of the buildings of the College of St. Louis, Carthage.

Dahomey.—The Economist Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. submit for chronicle the 20c, magenta and mauve type of the 1913 issue.

Egypt.—Mr. R. Roberts submits copies of three more values of the new set of King Fuad stamps: 2m, black, 10m red and 15m, blue.

France.—The K. Lissiuik Philatel. Co. sends for chronicle the two new American Legion commemorative stamps. The colors and values are 90c red and 1fr50c blue. The designs of these stamps have been described in previous issues. Rev. J. Dreyer, S. M., informs us that these stamps, regardless of previous statements, will be on sale only in the Paris postoffices. Also copies of a new 90c red, bearing the likeness of Marcellin Berthelot, have made their appearance. The stamps are issued in commemoration of the birth of this noted authority of thermo-chemistry and organic chemistry. He was born in 1827 in Paris and died there in 1907. Copies are at hand from The K. Lissiuik Philately Co., Whitfield King & Co., and information regarding the life of the noted personage from Rev. S. Dreyer, S. M.

Copies of the 3fr mauve and magenta are at hand from the Economist Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co.

French Alexandria.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the appearance of a 15mm blue, of a new design. The stamp is similar to Scott's A3 but has beneath the figures of value the letters "M m."

For Prompt and Efficient Service "Stanley Gibbons" of London

Practically all the leaders of American philately and many thousands of smaller buyers in the U. S. A. are regular users of our "APPROVAL" and "WANT LIST" services. They find genuine "collection-building" value in our seventy-year old organization and pay tribute to its promptness and efficiency.

The reasons are obvious—a large stock, which increases the chances of finding the stamps you want,—prompt attention, giving a quicker reply to your enquiries than many American dealers,—a real desire to serve you, whether your wants are measured in cents or thousands of dollars,—fine condition (a sine qua non with serious collectors),—and everything sent on approval.

If you need cheap, medium, or highly specialised selections of any country,—if you have difficult want lists,—if you are interested in first-class sets and packets at very low prices,—WRITE US TODAY.

To introduce and explain our service in the fullest way we will send FREE AND POST-PAID to any collector sending us his address, our big 72-page illustrated list of stamps, albums, books, accessories, etc., and a specimen number of our fine new magazine, GIBBONS' STAMP MONTHLY. Again we say—WRITE US TODAY.

STAMP NEWS IN BRIEF

BRITISH EMPIRE

French Guinea.—The 15c has been printed in maroon and mauve, same design as before. Copies are duly acknowledged from Whitfield King & Co. and the Economist Stamp Co.

French India.—Whitfield King & Co. and the Economist Stamp Co. advise that they have received the 45c green and red, surcharged "20 Caches" in black, and the 15c red and green, overprinted "1 Fanon Caches" in two lines also in black.

Luxemburg.—Copies of the new set of stamps described by Mr. Hermann Kake on page 528 are to hand from the Lissiak Philately Co.

Madagascar.—Whitfield King & Co. and the Economist Stamp Co. have shown copies of the 15c green, design as A9.

Middle Congo.—The 20c brown and blue, type of A1, with the surcharge "Republique Equatoriale Francaise" in two lines in black has made its appearance. New items have been shown us by the Economist Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co.

Netherlands.—The Economist Stamp Co. report that they have received the 10c olive, current type, with the circles watermark.

Peru.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for review a copy of a 20c red of a new design. It bears the inscription "Provincia y Arica" and is a simplified type of the 10c P 1, no watermark, perf. 11½.

Senegal.—The Economist Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. report the appearance of the 20c, current design, in olive and blue.

Somali Coast.—Copies of the 75c, in the colors of mauve and sepia, have been received from the Economist Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co.

Venezuela.—Mr. K. N. Woodward advises that he has received the following new stamps of this country: 40c, in the colors of the late 50c, new foreign rate; 50c, orange and 5b purple, all same head of Bolivar with various frames. They were issued Sept. 5th and are perf. 12½.

Antigua.—The Rev. W. G. Iremonger shows us the latest printing of the 1d, violet, which is in a distinctly paler shade.

Australian Commonwealth.—According to Mr. Adrien Albert, the booklets of the Canberra stamps are selling so slowly that many of them have been pulled to pieces at the Sydney G. P. O. and sold over the counter, stamp by stamp.

Blocks of the Canberra stamp showing plate number (upper left-hand corner) are scarce, says the same kind correspondent, as most of the numbers are trimmed off. So keen is the demand that blocks are fetching £1 in Australia. There are said to be sixteen plates extant.

The current 2d and 4½d are expected soon on the new paper with Multiple watermark.

Bermuda.—The latest shade of the current 1d, shown us by the Rev. W. G. Iremonger, returns to the redder tone of the first shade, but is rather paler. It will be remembered that the intermediate printing was in carmine.

British Solomon Islands.—The Plate 2 printing of the 2½d on old C A paper, shown us by the Rev. W. G. Iremonger, was printed in 1920 and issued in 1926. The colour is pale dull blue. The violet of the new 1d is particularly dull, compared with the 1d stamps of other Colonies.

Canada.—Mr. W. J. F. Emslie tells us that official air mail services are to be instituted in Canada, commencing in September. The service will be unique in one respect, in that part of the mail to be carried will go at the normal postal rates, British letters being taken from Rimouski to Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto without any additional charge.

Gold Coast.—The Rev. W. G. Iremonger shows us the 6d printed from Plate 16, which has the thinner letters as in Plate 10. It will be recalled that the Plate 11 printing had the thicker letters.

Malta.—It may be put on record that the current 2d, King George, fades from grey to a blue not unlike that of the 2½d, when exposed to bright sunlight.

St. Kitts-Nevis.—The 1927 printing of the 6d value has two plate numbers in the bottom margin. In this respect it follows the 2½d and 3d.

Southern Rhodesia.—Mr. Heathcote Tatham tells us that the reduction in the local postage rate from 1½d to 1d is now an accomplished fact. The 1½d value remains on issue, at least for the present.

OTHER COUNTRIES

Afghanistan.—Mr. Faqir Hussein Zahid shows us a sheet of 8 of the magenta "8th Anniversary" stamp, recently issued, in which one of the blocks of 4 has the central vertical perforation missing, thus giving two horizontal pairs imperf. between. The same reader learns from a reliable source that 5,000 of these stamps were printed, of which 700 were put on sale, the remainder being held by the postal authorities for their own profit. The quantity of used stamps arriving at Peshawar appears to confirm this. There is talk of the remainder being provided with a correctly dated postmark at Kabul, in which case they can only be regarded as "cancelled to order."

Belgium.—Mr. A. C. Constantinides shows us the 50c, Montenez type (S.G. No. 314), perforated 11½ x 12½ instead of the normal 11½. He finds that all the other values of this set are perforated 11½, except the 75c, blue, which comes normally perf. 11½ x 12½, but which he has also found perf. 11½ in a very few copies.

Brazil.—Dr. Mario de Sanctis kindly gives us the unwelcome news that there is to be another change in the Brazilian watermark, which will in future consist of rows of stars, in each of which stars the letters "CM" will appear, signifying, we presume, "CASA DA MOEDA."

Colombia.—Mr. C. G. Higley tells us that the 1c, green, postage stamp, printed by Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co., is now being offered locally in a shade of pale blue, as an error. As the printers have no knowledge of such a variety, it is probable that the "error" has been produced with the aid of chemicals.

The 4c Fiscal stamp, with inverted overprinted "CORREOS PROVISIONAL" (which exists genuinely thus), is also offered with forged overprint, the colour of the overprint being too bright, and the letters slightly larger than in the genuine overprint.

France.—Maison M. Fischer kindly show us a photograph of the design accepted for the new "Caisse d'amortissement" stamp which is to appear in the autumn. The design, which is a very artistic one, shows a man, symbolising industry and labour, and a woman, typifying agriculture. If properly printed it should prove a very handsome stamp.

The artist who is responsible for the design is M. Pierre Turin, a painter and medal-engraver. In the latter subject he gained the Grand Prix de Rome in 1920. He was the designer of the official medal of the Decorative Arts Exhibition of 1925.

Honduras.—A new pictorial series is authorised and should appear shortly. The designs of the Official stamps differ from those of the postage stamps. The quantities to be printed are not very large, ranging from 100,000 of the high values to 1,000,000 of the 6c.

North Mongolia.—According to Mr. V. Tchertkoff a long series of pictorial stamps is to be issued here. While the stamps of Mongolia proper are in legitimate use, we have never seen any postally used stamps of the first issue of North Mongolia, and are beginning to "have our doubts."

Russia.—A new issue, bearing views of various Russian towns, is to appear before the end of the year. As the current issue has been extensively cleaned, the new set will be printed on chalky paper.

Turkey.—Mr. M. Mattievich tells us that on the arrival of Kemal Pasha in Constantinople, all letters posted from Stamboul were to have a special obliteration reading "Dolma Bagtche Stamboul," the words "Dolma Bagtche" being the name of the Sultan's Palace in which the Turkish President will now live.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

POSTALLY USED

Every collector and every dealer knows how difficult it is to get postally used copies of the German stamps issued during the period of the Mark inflation, starting with the outbreak of the Revolution and ending with the stabilization of the German currency on November 1st, 1923. In these years the following stamps were issued: Nos. 105 to 321; Air Mail 401-421, 475-481 and Official stamps Nos. 551-558. After many months of work I have been able to get a fairly complete stock of the forementioned stamps, in postally used condition. Some catalogs make no difference in price between mint and used copies, but I do and I boldly assert that, with a few possible exceptions, there are at least a million mint stamps for every used one.

Singles

I can furnish every stamp in used condition against want lists. Many values can be furnished per 10, etc. I can also submit quotations with scarce cancellations.

Blocks of 4

I can furnish the amateur of postally used Blocks of 4 a great many values of the inflation stamps at reasonable prices.

Covers

These are the real gems of the German inflation and are the covers with mixed franks and a great many stamps, possibly from different issues. I hold some of these philatelic souvenirs that will make your mouth water. There is for instance a registered cover with 123 Official stamps of different denominations. This surely is a record and I am sure I'll buy a new hat for anybody who can show me better. Selections of interesting covers can be submitted to serious collectors, willing to pay fancy prices for fancy goods. [16&18]

A GENERAL COMMENT.—During the last few weeks there have been very few movements in the modern British Colonial Stamp Market, but what slight movements there have been, have been in the upward direction, except for one or two lines which "bears" have been forced to sell, or which have fallen slightly owing to profit taking. This is always in evidence at this time of year. Ireland, Cyprus, Gibraltar and Malta have all reacted slightly owing to profit taking, and I think the upward rise will again be shown as soon as our "stamping" days re-start.

CANADIAN COMMEMORATIVE SETS.—Canada has given us two Commemorative Sets at the same time. I should have thought that it would have paid them better to have given us a few months' interval between the issues, but am afraid that although our numbers are getting so large, Canada does not yet consider philatelists when they issue new stamps. However, these two sets fill a very picturesque page of our albums, and for that reason we welcome them. Each sheet of these stamps contains two sides with perforate edges. This must be very annoying, I should think, to our friends, the New Issue distributors, and I often wonder what they do with these stamps. Rather unthoughtful of the Canadian Post Office!

PALESTINE.—I am able to give authentic information that the whole of the remainder of the new set of this country will be issued during this month, and am pleased to pass this on to my readers, so that they may fill up all blanks of the current and recently current issues of this Territory, ere the new set appears.

ALGERIAN PROVISIONALS.—Recent provisionals of this Territory have had a very short life, and I hope readers did not forget my previous remarks re obtaining these French Colonial provisionals as soon as they appear. I am afraid by the time these lines appear in print that a fairly stiff premium will have to be paid by any laggards who have overlooked these and now wish to complete.

FRANCE.—Here again, provisionals are still coming out, and should be picked up as soon as they are on the market, and I should recommend readers who are interested in this country not to leave out the two Marseilles Air Post stamps or the two values put on sale at the Strasbourg Exhibition, although personally, I think both were very unnecessary issues. I find during the last ten or twelve years, unnecessary issues gener-

I see from a Continental journal that a further printing was actually ordered, but later countermanded. This will make the 4.50 L. and the 6 L. especially of this set quite good, as according to my friend Monsieur Champion's figures, the printing of these values were very few in number.

FIJI.—Perhaps the modern Colonials most in demand at the moment are the 1917, or first issue, of Fiji Postage Dues. I have had the greatest difficulty in completing my set of six of these, and I found, on trying to do so, that many others were after them. It is not often that Postage Due stamps are so run after, and if any readers can obtain them at anything under Gibbons' prices, don't be afraid of them. They are much rarer mint than used, although the catalogue quotations do not show much in it.

Whilst on the subject of Fiji, be sure that you have the 1/4d script King George in your set, as it is obsolete and will not be reprinted.

IRISH FREE STATE.—The new high values of Ireland have been rather a long time putting in their appearance. They have had considerable trouble, I believe, in filling in details of the design, so that the finished article will bear a smart appearance. After practically settling on the stamps and approving the proofs, the powers that be decided that the stamp as a whole was overcrowded, and the artist had to get to work again. They should soon be ready.

I am going to a little stamp of this country for my "Best thing of the month." The 2 1/2d Thom overprinted in carmine, S. G. No. 37, is priced in the 1927 catalogue at 1/3 mint, altered in the Monthly Journal to 2/6. I advise readers to buy, even if they have to pay a little more than this latter price.

THE PRECANCELS OF THE U. S. ISLAND DEPENDENCIES AND SHANGHAI

By FREDERICK W. ALLEN.

Part II—The Philippine Islands

MANILA, P. I.

MANILA

P. I.

TYPE I

In November, 1926, there appeared certain values of the current Philippines stamps with the above overprint. It is claimed that they are regular precancellations, but their authenticity has not been determined and until it is collectors will do well to desist from buying. The appearance is quite striking, but is marred by the fact that all copies so far seen, have an additional cancellation. Why this should be necessary, except on returned parcels, is a matter for thought. Perhaps the overprint is forged upon previously cancelled stamps. It is impossible to tell from the copies at hand, whether this is the case. We are open to conviction, and if their status can be proved, we shall willingly admit these items to our collection. The 2, 4, 6, 12, 20 and 30 centavos and the 1 peso are all that are supposed to have been issued.

GUAM

"Agana," Guam

AGANA

COUNTERFEIT TYPE

There are no genuine precancels from our island colony in the Pacific, but bogus specimens exist in the above type. It was in 1914 when they appeared and at the time they created quite a furor among the precancel fraternity. Outside of a few isolated copies in scattered collections, they are now forgotten.

An enterprising party announced that a local company in "Agana" was shipping merchandise by Parcel Post, to the United States, particularly to Philadelphia. It was claimed that these stamps were salvaged in that city. The specimens are mostly perforated 12, but some of the 1914 series are known to exist with the overprint, as well as the Panama-Pacific commemoratives. The rumor was that collectors in some cases paid as high as $15 to $25 for the stamps. Finally the word was passed around that they were not genuine and everyone was stung. The post office of "Agana" exists only in story.

I am indebted to Mr. W. H. Field for particulars in regard to the issue.

PORTO RICO

San Juan, P. R.

San Juan

P. R.

A ten subject rubber handstamp is employed upon occasions for producing precanceled stamps. There is a limited demand for their use, and for that reason they are seldom seen. Those that generally come upon the market, come from New York, where they are salvaged from parcels. The 1914 issue 1 cent perf. 10 was the first item known. Its catalog value is but 85 cents and I doubt if five copies exist. The 1917 perf. 11 series is represented by the 1, 2, 5, 6, 7 and 8 cents stamps, while of the current set only the 5 cent is listed. The Harding 2 cent will be found to be the easiest specimen to locate. The reason for this is that a quantity appeared during the boom period of these stamps, which were quite apparently "made to order."

PONCE, P. R.

COUNTERFEIT TYPE

This is of the same vintage as the Honolulu counterfeit of which mention was made earlier in this article. It is simply one of the crude Hall fakes and should not fool any collector who reasons with intelligence. This "PONCE" came to me on a 14 cent stamp, the hand-stamping of which was done with bright red ink.

SHANGHAI, CHINA

The history of an issuance of precancels for this office begins and ends with the year 1913. Little seems to be known in regard to it. Precancel collectors have generally accepted the stamps as worthy of collection for there has never been adverse comment about them. It is desirable that particulars of their emission be set forth in order that their legitimacy be clearly established. None of the "precancels" were allowed to go through uncanceled additionally to the original overprint, so besides the latter they bear either the office cancellation, or a smudge. There are thirty-two varieties known, which were listed in the Standard Precancel Catalog for 1925, and priced at a total sum of $214.00. In the 1926 edition the stamps were omitted from the Catalog, whether intentionally or through an oversight, I am not able to say. There are two known types of the overprint, one being found on the regular stamps, and the other upon the large Parcel Post Series.

This brings to a conclusion, the consideration of this group of precancellations. I trust that the reader will not confuse the stamps printed for use in Shanghai, Canal Zone, etc., with any of the precancellations.

DOWN IN GEORGIA

By A. P. FRANCIS.

Picture in your mind's eye a Southern Mansion with wide and sweeping grounds on all sides, large spreading oaks furnishing ample shade from the mid-afternoon heat and myself on the front porch in conversation with a former governor of this state.

This is what the lure of stamps sometimes leads to.

More detail may be of interest to you. Being determined if possible to turn up a confederate "ten" or perchance a much sought "outer line" I have been devoting considerable time to the very fascinating pursuit of stamp hunting, the trail in this instance leading to the scene above described; the experiences were I assure you as enjoyable as if the objects of my hunt were acquired in quantities.

The true southern mode of living as in ante-bellum days is maintained in but few instances nowadays, the sweeping rush of modern business and efficiency having caused it largely to be cast aside—but not so here.

Walking up a really long winding drive under these majestic oaks, I was greeted by a darky footman and with an elaborate courtesy such as seems to be peculiar to the southern negro, comfortably seated in a rocker on the porch. Having taken my hat, he soon returned to enquire my name, or as he put it, "what are your initials, sah" being far too courteous to admit that he did not know my name.

In due time his excellency appeared and the writer enjoyed a long visit, conversation touching on many things in addition to stamps. It was very interesting to hear the story of the home and those who were its former owners, etc.; time quickly passed and I took leave.

Turning homeward I could but reflect on what genuine pleasure is to be had, all from a postage stamp or the search of it. While stamp hunting in the strictest sense of the word cannot perhaps be followed by a large number of collectors, it is nevertheless a fascinating thing and should be done by all who can, not alone for the hope of reward in the nature of a

MARKET NOTES AND NEWS

By "CALABAR."

Turks & Caicos Ids.—With a new series in the offing, the future of the current 2/- and 3/- makes an interesting subject for speculation. The 2/-, readers will recall, was issued in November, 1925. Should the new series appear as per schedule, it will have had a comparatively short life, and, once it is obsolete, we may find that no very large numbers of it were sold—although none of the current series gives promise of duplicating the sensational rise of the 2/- 1922. The 3/- may also turn out good, and in making an estimation of this nature one should bear in mind the fact that stamp supplies are not being requisitioned in large quantities by the present Postmaster—a welcome change from the practise which prevailed formerly, when the stamps lay around the P. O. for years before being completely used up.

Ascension.—The overprints of this Colony, as pointed out in these columns last Spring, are continuing on the upgrade, in spite of the high figures which they have already attained. In a recent issue of the WEEKLY I note the complete set, 1/2d to 3/-, offered at $12.82—quite a jump from last season's prices, which rarely exceeded $9. The former figure is considerably above Gibbons' present (1927) quotation, viz., 45/-, a fact worth noting in passing, as prices here seldom exceed Gibbons' quotations, even for scarce and out-of-the-way items. In light of the above, I should be considerably surprised if the overprints failed to show a substantial increase in the 1928 Gibbons. They were on issue for a comparatively short period, from December, 1922, to September, 1924; the numbers sold, both in the Colony and by the Crown Agents in London, were never large, as modern Colonial issues go; and, with stocks steadily diminishing, the stamps are becoming scarcer and more difficult to obtain year by year, the two high values (2/- and 3/-) particularly.

The Barbuda overprints are also soaring, the following comparison of Scott's 1927 and 1928 prices showing the upward trend plainly—

| Stamp. | 1927. | 1928. |
|--------------|--------|--------|
| 1/2d to 2/-, | $5.66 | $8.54 |
| 3/-, | 3.50 | 5.00 |
| 4/-, | 4.50 | 7.00 |
| 5/-, | 6.00 | 9.00 |

Power's List.—A copy of Mr. E. B. Power's "Check List of all British Colonial Stamps Issued During the XXth Century, Jan., 1901, to Jan., 1927," is now to hand, and like all lists of modern Colonials, as for example Turpin's, Robert's, Austin's, etc., etc., it is well worth careful study. Before discussing the prices, I cannot let slip the opportunity to call attention to Mr. Power's remarks anent "centring." "There is one point, however, that I wish to emphasize very clearly," he writes. "The printers of British Colonial issues print them for consumption by the public, not by stamp collectors, and it is therefore impossible to guarantee to supply 'perfectly centred copies.' I will palliate this by saying I will supply the best I have, but if your requirements call for a specimen in which a plumb line level is the test of centring, we shall both be happier if you send your list to someone else. I don't wish to be autocratic, but this centring business has been carried to unreasonable limits. I will not bow down to it. Neither do the European collectors who know a thing or two themselves." Whilst I believe most modern Colonial collectors are not particularly finical as regards centring, there are some, however, who are obsessed with the idea that unless a stamp is "perfectly centred" it is not worth bothering about, and it is these people who had best take Mr. Power's remarks to heart before they are startled some fine day by a letter from an ordinarily mild-mannered dealer which would be barred from the mails, should it come to the attention of the Postal Inspectors. So far as modern British Colonials are concerned, a stamp may be correctly termed "well centred" as long as the perforation does not cut into the design—this is my own opinion and I believe is also that of most reasonable collectors.

Well, to get back to the subject: As a whole, Mr. Power's prices reflect present market values pretty accurately, though several quotations seem either too high or too low. The 2/- and 3/- Barbadoes, 1912 series, are a trifle high at $7.50 and $9, as are the same values of the 1921 set at $1.50 and $2.50. On the other hand, the 3/- 1916 is priced the same as the 1918 3/-, viz., $4.50; at this figure the 1916 stamp is a rather good buy.

Prices of the Barbuda ovpt. are quite a bit lower than present market quotations for these stamps, but this is explained, of course, by the fact that Mr.

from 1847 to 1883 are now ready both on and off cover. I have had the assistance since early issue of four well known students in various issues in checking over my stock for plate varieties and unusual cancellations. The result is something I have never been able to before offer—complete specialized selections up to 1883.

These selections are valuable and can be sent only to serious collectors. They are for the man who spends from $10.00 up at a time and who reports promptly. There is nothing in this line for the boy or the bargain hunter.

Reference (your bank and two stamp dealers) required, if you are unknown to me.

1908 IMPERFS.

We have just purchased a small lot of these stamps, included in which were a number of sets of the 1c value, consisting of the 4 arrow blocks, centre line blocks, four corner blocks, and the eight imprint strips of three (2 from each side, top and bottom); all from the "Star Plates" with 3mm spacing (listing 50% more in blocks). These make a most interesting page with which to start the imperfs., and at the low price offered should prove most attractive.

1c 1908, Imperf.—Complete set as above (9 blocks of 4 and 8 strips of 3), 60 stamps..$1.95 or separately.

H. F. COLMAN

509 7TH, N. W. H. A. ROBINETTE (Successor) WASHINGTON, D. C.

Power's booklet was compiled some little time before the appearance of the 1928 Scott Advance Sheets.

Amongst the most noticeable examples of over-pricing are the quotations for the Dominica 2/- and 2/6 scripts, 1921, and the 3/- and 5/- 1923. The two former are priced at $3.75 and $5.50; the other two at $6 and $4.50. In this connexion I recall a statement by a contemporary to the effect that So-and-so's List was the best for its "ultimate pric-ings" of modern Colonials, and as certain people may attempt to defend the above figures on the grounds that they represent "ultimate" prices, it may be as well to thrash the matter out here and now. Frankly, I cannot see how these so-called "ultimate" prices can be arrived at by anything but pure guess-work. For anyone to attempt to give a stamp a figure which shall represent its ultimate value is a process as senseless as it is silly. Even where we have the numbers issued to work from, the thing is impossible, as witness the scarce 10/- Malta 1919, the Self-Govt. ovpts., the Gibraltar 4/- and 8/- scripts, etc., etc. Too many unforeseen factors operate in fixing a stamp's value to allow of its being worked out according to a mathematical formula. Reckoning of ultimate values may be a pleasant pastime to while away odd moments, but it is utter foolishness to consider seriously conclusions thus reached. Yet we have people solemnly doing just that thing.

Coming to Gambia, we find the two 1922 5/-s priced at $2.50 each; at this low figure they are decidedly good buys.
The small 4/- script seems a trifle high at $5.75.

The Gibraltar 4/- and 8/- scripts are also high at $12 and $37.50, these two items usually selling for $10 and $30.
Incidentally, the £1 is quoted at $7. Why this figure? (The current £1's of other Colonies are priced at $6.25.)

I note that Mr. Power follows Scott's listing of the Irish high values and omits the scarce Thom printings (Stanley Gibbons 44, 45 and 46) and also makes no distinction between the subsequent Thom prints (issued December, 1922; S.G. 64, 65 and 66) and the varieties issued by the Govt. Printing Office in 1925. This is too bad, but one should censure Scott's, rather than Mr. Power, as the former is supposedly the accepted standard, and one can hardly blame Mr. Power for following it.

I rather question Mr. Power's quotation for the Jamaica 3/- 1921 on old CA paper, viz., $6. $4.50 or $5 would be quite enough, I think.

The pages devoted to Maltese issues are of course amongst the most interesting in the entire book, as almost everyone has at one time or another during recent years helped swell the postal receipts of this popular little Colony. I find the 5/- 1914 at $15, the 2/6 1919 at $18.50, and its companion stamp, the rare 10/- MCA, at $125. I wish I could say the figure for the 2/6 is its present market value (I picked up a mint copy about a year ago for approximately $8), but $18.50 is much too high. Its present market value is in the neighbourhood of $11. The 5/- Self-Govt. at $10 is also high.

The "Postage" set is priced pretty accurately, with the exception of the 10/- at $7.50. I should say this is several dollars too high. The figures for the 2/- and 2/6—$7.50 and $7—are significant, as they reflect the upward tendency of the 2/6, which is slowly approaching the level of the 2/-; and I should not be surprised if the 2/6 eventually attained, or even exceeded, the 2/-'s figure.

The £1 is unpriced, and strangely enough no mention is made of the fact that it exists on two distinct wmk.
(even Scott shows this).

The 1/6, 2/6 and 5/- of St. Helena, with the old wmk., are priced at current issue rates, as they had not yet become obsolete at the time the list went to press.

I wonder why Mr. Power prices the current 1/-, 5/-, 10/- and £1 St. Kitts at 38c, $1.75, $3.75 and $7.50, when he prices the current 1/-s, 5/-s, 10/-s and £1's of all the other Colonies at 32c, $1.60, $3.15 and $6.25? None of the above St. Kitts stamps are obsolete, so I am at a loss to account for these enhanced prices. The same remarks apply to the £1 Gibraltar—this stamp, though current, is also priced high.

Curiously, the 2/- Turks & Caicos, 1922 issue, is priced at only $5, whilst the 1/- 1921 is up as high as $8. At this figure, the 2/- is a snap, but I doubt very much if Mr. Power will still supply it at this figure. With ref. the 1/- 1921—I should advise against paying more than $5—or $6 at the most—not that this stamp won't eventually justify one's paying $8 for it, but as long as it can be had for around $5 or $6, there is no need paying more.

I am rather surprised that the 5/- Virgins, old CA wmk., 1922, is given such a high figure at $7.50. This stamp is hopelessly over-catalogued, and at present is easily obtainable for $5 and less. The 5d script is unpriced.

All in all, however, the booklet forms a very useful and handy guide to the market values of modern British Colonials, and Mr. Power's enterprise in issuing a list of this nature cannot be too highly commended. Many such lists are issued from time to time by English dealers (none so pretentious, however, save of course Turpin's), and now that an American dealer has given us a list (priced in American currency) of modern British Colonial issues, the least we can do, if we are at all as interested in modern Colonials as we profess, is to give him a hearty vote of thanks and assure him of our sincere appreciation of what is really the first American check list of XXth Century British Colonials.

Later.—I note an English dealer is offering to pay 22/- for mint copies of the Dominica £1 1923. "A word to the wise," etc.

SPECIMEN

Stamps with this surcharge have generally not been understood by collectors or even by dealers. When we take into consideration that of every stamp which any government, member of the Postal Union, issues or intends to issue, approximately 400 copies are sent to Berne, Switzerland, to be distributed among the different members, it can readily be seen that these stamps are in reality very rare and as desirable as a mint copy without the "specimen" surcharge.

We have just obtained a large lot of mostly complete sets of the 20th Century including some of the highest values catalogued up to $750.00 each. We offer these at a very low price, some lower than the price of a used copy. If interested, please write for list or state what country, especially of the British Colonies, interests you.

We also have a number of items issued to the Postal Union, but never placed in use.

WE CARRY A SUPPLY OF STAMPS OF ALL COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD. OUR SPECIALTIES:

SPRINGFIELD (ILL.) ORGANIZES

(Clipping from Rev. M. J. Philipp.)

Nine Springfield, Ill., men got together Saturday, Oct. 1, and organized the Lincoln's Home Philatelic Society, believed to be the first stamp collectors' organization in the city's history. Stamps already collected by the men are given an aggregate philatelic value of more than $75,000.

The members are: Dr. Homer P. Macnamara, president; Raymond Bahr, 1213 East Jefferson Street, vice-president; William A. Steiger, 1101 Converse Avenue, secretary; Carl Rauth, 506 North Sixth Street, treasurer; Richard Linney, 1124 South Fourth Street; Melvin D. Spencer, 125 North Lewis Street; Rev. Max J. Philipp, chaplain of St. John's sanatorium; Lew W. Swett, 206 East Adams Street, and Arthur A. Kalb, 301 Adelia Street.

The committee named to draw up by-laws is composed of Mr. Swett, Father Philipp, Mr. Kalb and Dr. Macnamara, ex-officio member. Organization of city stamp collectors has been talked considerably, but finally Dr. Macnamara called the group together in his office in the Illinois National bank building Oct. 1, and the organization was effected. By unanimous vote the doctor was elected president.

The society will meet the first Monday evening of each month and it is expected soon to have distinguished out of town philatelists here to bring with them noted collections. The organization is limited to adult stamp collectors, but it is planned to form a junior organization soon.

Father Philipp has been collecting stamps for 35 years. Mr. Steiger has an unusually good collection of air mail stamps as also has Mr. Bahr.

Postmaster William H. Conkling probably has the most valuable single stamp in Springfield, on one of the three letters carried across the ocean by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on his solo flight and mailed in Paris.—State Register.

SPRINGFIELD MASS., EXHIBIT

A Graphic Account of An Enterprising
Publicity Stunt for Philately

Reported by H. P. ATHERTON.

The Springfield Stamp Club started a novel venture this fall by entering an educational display in the Industrial Arts Building at the annual fair of the Eastern States Exposition. The entrants came largely from the six N. E. States, with some few other states, New York and New Jersey being especially well represented.

The attendance was tabulated at some 277,000 paid admissions for the week, Sept. 18 to 24th inclusive, which gives an idea of the size of the fair. It was quite surprising to see the number who stopped to look at the stamp displays. Our Exhibition was housed in a booth some 24 feet long, and 15 feet deep, being sandwiched in among toy airplanes, choice cuts of beef, soap, codfish and clarified milk. The wandering crowd let their bewildered gaze fall first upon the lifesize head of a Newfoundland dog, our club emblem, which marked the entrance to the booth.

Catalogs and items of philatelic paraphernalia constituted the balance of our exhibit, with one frame of stamped bank checks, and one frame of fractional currency, some of which had the postage stamp designs to the face value of the bills, or "scrip."

It was truly surprising to see the interest manifested by some of the visitors, and taking it by and large, the booth appeared far more popular than many of its neighbors.

One frame which attracted much attention had for its subject the stamps which carried a regular weight first class letter. This began with the 5c 1847, then the 3c 1851, and so on through the various 3c designs, until the regular first class rate was lowered to 2c with the arrival of the 2c red-brown 1883; and so on through the series of 2c stamps until the war brought us up to the 3c again, then back to the 2c rate of the present time. This frame created much interest among non-philatelists. The many 2c commemorative stamps were a pleasing feature of that frame, and the 5c error interested all.

Frames of the entire group of U. S. postage, departments, dues, etc., as proofs were given more than passing attention; various philatelic contest sheets, mint U. S. commemoratives, varieties of Springfield postal markings from the early days, and some old U. S. covers, with locals, and express stamps, comprised the U. S. section.

The foreign countries were represented by varied groups. One showed charity stamps, another commemoratives. One frame showed German stamps arranged progressively from the 2pf up to the well known 50 billion mark stamp.

Russia was shown right through from a No. 1 on cover into the interesting Soviet issues. "The World's Fifty Handsomest Stamps" comprised another frame. This was a contest frame, and a prize winner in the Southern N. E.

Stamp Societies last annual meeting held at Hartford, Conn.

The tops of the frames are 4'-10" above the floor, which permits a general look all over the large hall.

One way of determining the most admired stamps, at least by the Junior contingent, was the condition of the glass immediately over the stamp itself. One morning in cleaning off the frames for the oncoming throng, a chisel had to be borrowed to scrape off the several layers of gummy substances which almost entirely obscured it from view—that stamp was the 10c Lindbergh airmail stamp, and was undoubtedly the most popular stamp shown.

The Black Jack and the 3c 1869 locomotive were also liberally coated with the sticky remains from the sales of nearby candy and molasses corn ball booths. The exhibit created a favorable impression on some of the visitors who were in a position to bring it to the attention of their own local fair promoters, and they were all enthusiasm over the project. So if your fair is wondering what to do in the way of some different form of educational interest, well, stamps are educational.

"SPASMODIC JOURNALISM"

(There is a good deal of truth in the following editorial taken from "Stamp Collecting" but we are disposed to encourage to the limit all struggling philatelic journals and especially those trying to secure second class rates. Even though we do not allow the soliciting of subscriptions we gladly recommend applications for sample copies and then a subscription is up to the applicant. Our course is to protect our subscriber while we serve the candidate for journalistic favor.—W. O. W.)

We learn that, "owing to financial difficulties," the Manchester (Eng.), Philatelist has ceased to exist. Stamp Collecting has seen many similar publications come and go, and whilst admiring the energy of those responsible for these defunct journals, we are of opinion that their zeal is misplaced and that it would be far better for all concerned if a more full-hearted support were given to the existing recognized publications. Spasmodic journals such as those referred to exist for a short time mainly on advertising revenue, and we fail to see why anyone should be expected to pay even the low rates charged for advertisements which are read by only a mere hundred or two philatelists, most of whom are already among the thousands of readers of Stamp Collecting, whose rates are most moderate. Whilst not, of course, referring to the Manchester Philatelist, we are fully aware that even the advertisements inserted are very often mere "dummy" ones and never ordered or paid for, and many others are obtained by customers from their regular dealers by means of what might be termed "legal blackmail." We welcome competition, which is the spice of business, but these little journalistic efforts often do more harm than good, and few Societies or individuals are in a position to devote sufficient money or time to such matters even if those primarily concerned have the necessary business or editorial ability.

128 pages FIRST EDITION 300 illustrations CHECK LIST of all British Colonies Issued During XX Century

This important work, listing and pricing the Colonial issues of this Century, is now on hand. Remembering the many check lists I issued when I owned and ran Stanley Gibbons, Inc., collectors will no doubt be glad to secure the last word on these issues. It is pocket size.

For over twenty-five years the Chicago office of the WEEKLY has been at 118 N. LaSalle Street, Chicago; and through all the changes of a quarter-century, it was literally unmoved by the progress that was strikingly evident on all sides of the building. Now the tenants of the Oxford Building have been asked to vacate their business homes, as a consequence of the impending widening of LaSalle Street, and the proposed wrecking of the structure to make way for a sky-scraper. The new address of the WEEKLY in Chicago, and its editor, C. E. Severn, is 30 N. LaSalle Street, Room 1142, in the Stock Exchange Building, Chicago, a half-block from the old stand. Correspondents are asked to make a note of the new address of the editor.

The stamp season is now opened officially by this time, last week's issue having been the avant courier of the momentous event. The aggregate volume of business will be large, but dealers will find that competition will be keener than ever. This condition will apply not only to the stamp trade, but also to practically all other lines of commercialism. The established dealers will have an advantage over those who are seeking a foot-hold. Our opinion has been asked by several persons as to the probabilities of success in the stamp business for new dealers, at this time. The Rehabilitation Division of one of the State Boards of Vocational Education writes as follows: "We are seeking information regarding stamp collecting as an occupation for several of our home-bound rehabilitation cases, by which they may become at least partially self-supporting. Your name was referred to us as one who might be interested in assisting new stamp dealers. We will be pleased to receive any information you may give us on this subject." Our answer to these inquiries is based on the suggestions of the following observations. The growth of stamp collecting has been so pronounced during the past years that philately has engaged the attention of many with an eye to the possibilities of dealing in stamps as a business. As a consequence, many new dealers have begun operations and some of them survive the probationary period, as it were, and become recognized dealers or "professionals." Others fail to establish themselves as fixtures. When the new dealer solicits any other than boy trade, he must perform a stern task to achieve success; no longer can those without philatelic experience and some capital gain a place, as they might have done at times in the past. Unless he be blessed with an unusual store of ability and acumen, the new aspirant will not be encouraged by the early returns; and if he is the average individual, conditions will be worse. The major requirement of the newcomer is an appreciation and understanding of stamps; and without it he will find his row a hard one to hoe. A varied experience as a collector is a valuable schooling that will serve as a short cut to commercial prestige and this knowledge when given a practical point and propelled with the force of some capital may be the bridge between success and failure.

A copy of a recent Bulletin of the New York Public Library, sent by Mr. D. D. Berolzheimer, has for its leading article, "Postal Service in British North America in 1774," with "a fragment of lost minutes of the board of deputy postmasters general." The historical value of the old manuscript is apparent and the student of early postal affairs will find that the data is important because of the accurate representation of pioneer plans for the extension of the postal service.

Mr. Walter N. Emerson, Chicago, who left some time ago with the avowed purpose of making an extended philatelic pilgrimage in the hope of uncovering stamp material on highway and byway, has written us several times, but it remains for an Associated Press dispatch from Worcester, Mass., to throw the spotlight on him. He left Chicago with Mrs. Emerson on May 2nd, and we learn that he has been buying early American stamps from residents of that Massachusetts city, where he obtained six lots of assorted sizes, the contents of which are not revealed, however. We hope that the stamp sojourn of the Emersons will be preeminently profitable as well as pleasurable and that they will return laden with the fruits of enterprise.

A letter shown by Mr. M. A. Vogel, Chicago, from G. T. Sullivan, Superintendent of Mails, United States Post Office, Honolulu, Hawaii, furnishes particulars regarding the mail transportation by the aviators on the recent ill-fated flight from Oakland to Honolulu. We quote: "In fact, there was no official recognition of such air mail flight by the post office department and no mail was given to any flyer. There were persons who gave mail to these pilots to deliver here, but not through the post office. If you gave air mail letters to the post office in Chicago to be sent here, they would have gone to San Francisco as air mail; and then have been sent here by steamer."

Mr. Gustave de Lachasse, Aignon, France, in sending specimens of the Legion stamps, writes: "The stamps were issued on September 15th, and they are to be on sale up to October 15th, only in Paris and the most important post offices of France. I cannot send you these two stamps on the first day of issue, but (and though our post office to-day, Sept. 19th, is closed on account of the great official reception by France, of the American Legion in Paris,) I will have the two stamps canceled with the date of this memorable, no less than historical day, September 19, 1927."

From the Honolulu "Star-Bulletin" of September 21, 1927, received by air mail from Mr. W. F. Slusser, we learn that four stamp designs of the new sesquicentennial set of Hawaii are in completed form "and will be taken to Washington by the governor, who sails Saturday." Enlarged pictures of two designs of the one cent are shown as well as one each of the two cent and the five cent. Evidently, only one variety of the one cent will be utilized. The pictures on the two cent and the five cent are such as to well preserve the traditions of Captain Cook and on both the one cent, his portrait is the feature. The following description is given by the Star-Bulletin: "On the stamps are triangles of tapa patterns representing the eight islands of the Hawaiian group, with grass houses inclosing numerals. There are tabu sticks and kahilis, suggesting that Hawaii received the explorer with all the honor accorded its own chiefs."

There is a paddle on one stamp suggesting navigation, in which the Hawaiians excelled. A covered calabash shows the method of transporting food on long voyages, and other conventional forms of tapa design suggest that Hawaii had an ancient civilization, although a primitive one.

On the 5-cent stamp the triangular tapa patterns represent the cliffs of the eight islands, and figures on the side are illustrative of rock carvings found in the group."

Mr. E. M. Ash, Antilla, Cuba, writes: "El Pais, one of Havana's most important papers, shows in its issue of September 24th, a picture of the new stamp for aero service, soon to be inaugurated between Havana and Key West, where connection is made with the mail trains of the Florida West Coast Railway. According to El Pais, the plates will be supplied by the Security Bank No. Company of Philadelphia, to be printed in Havana by the National Company Graphic Arts. The design is by the Cuban artist, Señor Oscar Fontes Acosta. Havana. I have much pleasure in enclosing the first page of El Pais, depicting this proposed new issue." The far cut shows the stamp to be a handsome one with a plane taking off from Havana harbor, while at the extreme right and left of the stamp is a "fronded palm" and below the denomination, 5. At the top are the words "Republica de Cuba Servicio Aereo." This new stamp, with those celebrating the Sixth Pan-American Postal Conference, has kept the Cuban director of Posts, Señor José Antonio Montalvo, employed to good advantage.

EAST AND WEST:—
LOUIS C. MULLER, 91 San Felipe Way, San Francisco, Cal., is the manager of the auction sales department of the San Francisco Stamp Society. He sends us a lengthy account of the prospects of the 11th Auction Sale of the local society held October 17, and indicates that the 12th Sale will soon be advertised. Mr. Muller writes that auction lists will be sent to anyone desiring to be placed on his mailing list. This society is one of the best, and we congratulate it upon its splendid activities.
WE have received from W. O. Staeb, Rutherford, N. J., a copy of the Annual Bulletin of the Rutherford Stamp Club and the Saturday Afternoon Stamp Club of N. Y. City. Its special feature consists of an auction sale of U. S. items from the collection of Charles A. Christian, East Orange, N. J. A number of contributed articles from the pens of Herman Toasperm, Major Guy W. A. Camp, Jno. Godinho, Prof. F. S. Eaton, Milton T. Mauck, Francis F. Greeley and H. M. Konwiser add interest to this particularly enterprising publication.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to organize a stamp club in the vicinity of Audubon, Barrington and Haddon Heights, N. J. Interested parties will please write Albert C. Reukauff, 400 Fourth Ave., Haddon Heights, N. J.

WE are informed by K. N. Woodward of a circumstance that should be given publicity. A certain stamp club planning an exhibition and inviting entries ignored letters asking information, and this in the face of the fact that return postage was enclosed. Mr. Woodward somewhat rightly asks:—"Is this a fake proposition to steal your stamps?"

We do not mention the name of the club referred to by Mr. Woodward. We suggest that clubs seeking publicity through the WEEKLY measure up to their full obligations to our subscribers.

WE have been favored with a prospectus of the Philatelic Club of Los Angeles, Calif. It is a booklet of sixteen pages giving the particulars of the organization and the membership list. A. W. Bloss is secretary.

THERE is a letter at this office for Claude W. Parker, which will be forwarded upon completion of address. Who can favor us?

YOU may be interested to chronicle that in connection with the visit of the American Legion to Paris, a special postmark was used at a temporary post office, which was installed in a room of the Grand Palais for the use of the American Legionnaires. As a matter of fact I only discovered this quite by accident. I have two postmarks, one a circular one, "Paris Congress American Legion" in single lined circle, the other a machine one, "Paris Congress American Legion" in double lined circle, combined with an advertisement postmark "For Paris Put the Number of the District."—FRANK E. WILSON.

THE High Twelve Club of Los Angeles, meeting at noon in Masonic Temple, was addressed recently by Stanley Hosmer.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., wants a Luther Burbank special stamp. Press clippings from Stanley Hosmer say that the picture of the plant wizard must be supplemented by the words "Santa Rosa," a feature that will give "tremendous advertising value to the City of Roses."

Mrs. C. P. Cromwell, N. Y. City.
We are in receipt of a check from Carle M. Bigelow, Park Square Bldg., Boston, Mass., for membership in the Honor Club, and we thank him for his application. Mr. Bigelow is president of the Bigelow, Kent, Willard & Co., Inc., consulting engineers and accountants. He writes us that the WEEKLY "is one of the most interesting publications which I read."

We also are greatly obliged to Mrs. C. P. Cromwell, 23 E. 69 St., N. Y. City, for her application for membership in the Honor Club accompanied by a check for $5. We are pleased to have our lady subscribers represented in this organization.

The membership of our Honor Club is now nearing the five hundred mark. We desire to go over the top in goodly shape with the next publication of our membership list, which will be in January. We feel quite sure that a number of others will be willing in coming weeks to send in their applications.

Sinkiang Overprint

By HOWARD E. WONG.

Here again we have two sets of stamps that shows a slight difference, the "Sinkiang Overprint" of 1915-17 issues. These two sets of stamps were surcharged vertically in Chinese characters on the 1915 issue of the Republic of China stamps (Peking Printing), used exclusively in the New Dominion of Sinkiang or Chinese Turkestan. Due to the slight difference in the surcharge, therefore, causing two sets of stamps.

To the general collectors, these two sets of stamps may look the same, but there is a difference, in fact so slight that catalogues do not list the issues as two sets. However, I hope the following explanation will reveal to the collectors the difference that really exists.

On the first issue in 1915, the overprints were surcharged in four Chinese characters, vertically, but the first Chinese character was printed little over on the left side while on the second issue, in 1917, these four Chinese characters of overprint fall in straight line.

The first issue (whole set) in 16 denominations (½ cent-$1). The second and third characters of the overprint may be found in the first issue, transposed on the $1 stamp.

The second issue (whole set) in 22 denominations (½ cent-$20). These two issues were overprinted by the Chinese Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Peking.

Junior Gossip

—A stamp club has been organized in the Bosse High School, Evansville, Ind. There are thirty-nine boys and one girl on the membership roll. We shall be glad to hear from any of the members of this club in connection with their activities this winter.

—Our juniors are urged to send for a sample copy of the Stamp Echo, published in New York City. Address, Box 226, Times Square Station.

—Truman Greenwalt.—The cover to which you refer does not have any special value. It is one that was used prior to the issue of stamps. Covers of this kind are frequently advertised in the WEEKLY at quite reasonable prices. The stamp mentioned by you is an Italian revenue and therefore not mentioned in Scott's catalog.

Puerto Del Rosario

The stamp represented by the above picture was issued by Argentine Republic, Oct. 26, 1902, to commemorate the completion of the dock at Port Rosario, Arg. Rep. It is a handsome stamp.

A Few U. S. Questions Answered

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

The U. S. special prints of 1875 and 1880 differ in the paper and impression. The first stamps are on hard paper, and as they are cut apart with scissors, they usually show trimmed perforations. The second set is on soft paper and like the first set, the shades differ from the originals. It is impossible to explain in words this difference, and it is necessary that one be familiar with them to distinguish one from the other. I have never seen a cancelled copy, with the exception of the 2c 1875, so that one is not likely to find them among the common stamps.

The bluish paper on the 1908 issue, is blue throughout. It is not a deep blue, however, but the paper simply looks dark. Here again, one must be familiar with the stamp in order to recognize it, as it may readily pass unnoticed by one not familiar with its appearance.

Flat plate printings are engraved impressions, as are rotary prints, although the latter are printed from a curved plate. Offset printings are surface printings, wherein the prints are made by a photographic process and the stamps have the appearance of lithographs.

When a stamp is designated as perforated "11 x 10" it means that the horizontal perforations are 11 and the vertical perforations 10.

Paper No. 16—Chalk-surfaced

This is also a highly glazed sensitive paper which has been extensively used of recent years in the manufacture of British Colonial stamps. The "surface" is obtained by the application of a certain solution to the paper after it has been made and not during the process of manufacture. As a rule it has a much more polished surface than ordinary paper and is thicker to feel. A silver coin drawn lightly across a corner of the stamp (or, better still, on the margin if possible) will make a mark like that made with a lead pencil if the paper is the chalk-surfaced variety. The mark can be removed by carefully applying a very slightly dampened piece of clean white rag.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

MERCURY
CRETE A6
1900-1, 11+501

The messenger, Mercury, copied from a coin of the value of two drachmas from the Cretan city of Syvrita, whose coins are remarkable for their beauty. The god is represented bending to the left and putting his sandal upon his right foot, which is resting upon a rock. Behind his head the petasus is suspended and the Chalmys hangs from his shoulders while the caduceus is temporarily deposited upon the rock, so that the god can take it in his hand as soon as he shall have put on his sandal. Indeed, no emblem more adapted to postage stamps has ever been employed by any modern nation.

The ancient artist of Syvrita has been inspired by Homer's Odyssey, which describes the despatching of Mercury by the Olympian gods to the distant island of Calypso to carry, as a messenger, the order from Jupiter for the deliverance of Ulysses. Then the messenger of the gods, Mercury, preparing himself to execute the order of the gods: "Under his feet he bound his beautiful sandal, immortal, made of gold, which carry him over flood and over the boundless land, swift as the wind. He took the wand with which he charms to sleep the eyes of those whom he will, while again whom he will he wakens out of slumber. With this in his hand, the powerful slayer of Argus began his flight."—Odyssey, V. 44.49.

Could any one imagine a more beautiful design for international and inter-oceanic postal service?

A STUDY OF RIO DE ORO

By R. S. GORDON, Middletown, O.

The Spaniards, according to our most verbose historians, are a many-sided people. They had a mania at one time for discovering places, and so well did they do the job that they discovered pretty nearly every place worth discovering at the time. They produced a number of A1 painters. They make love with neatness and dispatch, if movie accounts are to be trusted. They also knife their enemies with the same neatness and dispatch. But they seem to have made one mistake. If there were at one time any reasons for their laying claim to and occupying the yellow spot on the map of Africa called Rio de Oro, those reasons have long since been buried beneath the sandstorms of that lonesome territory.

Rio de Oro has a seacoast of some six hundred miles. It has something like 365 days of sunshine per year—occasionally less, but seldom more, except on Leap Years. It would seem that on these qualifications alone, any first-class real estate man with Florida experience should be able to sell an unlimited number of lots there, especially as the Spanish race loves to gamble on long shots. And yet in the whole colony and protectorate

Advertising Chat

A haze on the far horizon,
The infinite tender sky,
The ripe, rich tint of the cornfields,
And the wild geese sailing high,
And all over upland and lowland
The charm of the golden-rod—
Some of us call it Autumn,
But others call it God.
—William H. Carruth.

The month of October is indeed a glorious month, and it's a good month for the stamp collector, for the mind readily turns to the stamp collection and its treasures and pleasures. The columns of the WEEKLY already reflect great activity in the stamp trade and there is every reason to believe that this year will be the best ever.

Our special issue of Oct. 10 carried with it an optimism that will be contagious. It was some number and others are to follow.

A few years ago this department was a regular feature of the WEEKLY. We resurrect it for the nonce. Space is too valuable to continue it indefinitely.

It is the policy of the WEEKLY not to accept mixture advertising. In our issue of October 3 there appeared a Swedish mixture advertisement that should have been blue-pencilled. Will our advertisers please note that it is the policy of the WEEKLY not to accept advertising of this character?

We now have a supply of WEEKLY binders on hand. They are made of heavy cardboard, cloth-covered, and have spring backs. Price $1.50 plus parcel post on three pounds weight. The supply is limited. Those who have asked may now receive.

The K. Lissiak Co. of New York, specialists in Russia and Mid-Europe, has taken out a 4000-line contract and their first advertisement will soon appear.

Our "3-in-1" advertising contract is our most favorable proposition. It gives one a chance to hold a contract with a half-inch space, and yet use larger space at relatively cheaper rates. The price of a half-inch is $2.00, one inch $3.50, two inches or more $3.00 per inch. If at any time six inches are used a special rate of $16.50 is granted.

The Astra Stamp Co. of Haverhill, Mass., is back again in our columns with a "3-in-1" contract. We shall give the firm a regular position. We extend to the proprietor, Fred B. Smith, a cordial greeting.

John P. Cooper, Red Bank, N. J., has just issued a wholesale pricelist of 28 pages, which may be had for the asking.

In writing advertising copy make it as legible as possible. Do not write upon both sides of the paper.

The Niland Stamp Shop, Yonkers, N. Y., has taken out a contract for 2000 lines of advertising space to be used during the coming year. The proprietor of this firm is V. M. Anderson and it has advertised frequently in the WEEKLY in past months. We bespeak for the firm a goodly patronage.

Herman Toasperi, whose office is in the Collectors Club Building on West 48th St., N. Y. City, has taken out a contract and we are pleased to have him in our column as a "steady". Toasty has many activities. He is helping in editing the Scott's Specialized U. S. Catalog, and every now and then he gives a lecture before some stamp club.

We have received a "3-in-1" contract properly signed from C. E. Morrison, Lawrence, Mass. Mr. Morrison has taken occasional space in the past and we are very glad to have him for a regular advertiser.

There are no statistics at hand regarding the mortality from accidental deaths, but offhand one might safely venture the assertion that deaths from automobile accidents are low,—for there are no automobiles. And even if some fortunate individual of Rio de Oro were to fall heir to "mucho dinero" and have the urge to celebrate in befitting fashion, it is very doubtful that he would indulge in the purchase of a machine,—for there are no roads.

ATTENTION!

Every dealer is trying to catch the collector's eye, to tell what he can do for him.

Now it will not take many lines of this paper to inform the readers what I can do for them.

I only handle U.S. Conf. and B.N.A. stamps and covers. I find that I can invest small fortune in just these lines, so I endeavor to stock above in good time, and "let the rest of the world go by." You want 5c 1847 I can show you 300. You want 10c 1847 I can show you 100. You specialize in any particular U.S. stamp, tell me, I feel sure I can reduce your account. I am not depending on stamps to live, so do not have to charge high prices.

Spanish Western Sahara is directly attributable to one peculiar fact: namely,

the traveller newly arrived at Rio

Oro shows an immediate inclination to go elsewhere, and there's nowhere to go except by water. Roads are usually expected to go to some place, and there is no place to go by land. Five hundred miles northeast along the coast to a small settlement in Morocco. Seven hundred and fifty miles south one might reach civilization in Senegal, with a few small way stations in between. And if a person desired to wander out to the ocean, he would have only a matter of twenty-two hundred miles to travel before he could get his first drink, on the banks of the Nile!

So de Oro seems to be just the place for those city-weary flat dwellers who are free and the wide open spaces.

And for the postal necessities of a band of soldiers, practically all of them are located in the one and only town (which, by the way, is called Villa Cheros), we are afflicted with the necessity of adding one hundred and fifty stamps to our collections!

Washington Notes

In phoning Washington, I am informed that everything is quiet along the Potomac, and that there is no news as to new issues. They are not contemplating at the present time any new varieties, nor are there any changes being made in the perforations. The Bureau, however, is working with a slightly different paper, for the old paper did not produce a satisfactory 7-cent stamp on the rotary press. It seems that black ink does not give as satisfactory results as colors. It will be recalled that when the Harding stamp was printed on the rotary press, we received a very unsatisfactory article, some of which were so light that they hardly looked like engraved stamps.

Air Mail Notes

They have been having a great time at the Boston Radio Aero Show, and every day a different colored postmark was used at the special branch post office at the show. The special markings which were previously described, were applied in violet on September 28th, in magenta on the 29th, in black on the 30th, and on the last day October 1st, they produced a postmark different from anything ever seen. Beginning at the upper left corner and going clock-wise, we find the quarters of the postmark in—blue, magenta, green and violet respectively. In other words, the air mail marking is in four distinct colors. If they cancelled many covers in this manner, they certainly had a merry old time.

All of these covers which have reached me, have been through the courtesy of Mr. Charles E. Jandru, Jr., who sent an aerogram daily. Through his efforts the special postmarks were used, and Mr. Jandru informs me that at the close of the Show, the larger postmark was presented to a post office official, and the smaller one to himself. Either would make a most interesting addition to any postal museum.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Jandru, it is learned that the Boston plane will stop at Worcester on Saturday, October 8th, in order to take on mail. A new field is to be dedicated on that day, and it is expected that a special postmark will be used by the Colonial Air Transport Company, who hold a contract for carrying the Boston-New York air mail.

Mr. F. W. Pederson kindly sends a clipping from the La Crosse Tribune, stating that an extension of air mail and passenger service to include Madison, Wisconsin, was announced by the Northwest Airway Incorporated. The present route will be changed slightly in order to take care of the revised program.

Mr. Warren Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General announced under date of October 3rd, the following:

"About October 15, an aviation flight will be made from San Francisco, Calif., via Honolulu to Australia. The backers of this flight are persons interested in the development of commercial aviation and the flight has the sanction of the Government of Australia.

It has been decided to permit the carrying of 1,500 letters from the United States to Australia on this flight.

This offers an opportunity to extend greetings of good will to our friends in Australia. Letters intended for this flight, if sent under separate wrapper by air mail to the postmaster at San Francisco, up to the capacity mentioned, will be forwarded on this flight. The Postmaster at San Francisco will attempt to include letters from as many different sources as may be possible to keep the total within 1,500, and will use his discretion in connection therewith.

The postage rate between the United States and Australia is 5 cents for the first ounce, and 3 cents each additional ounce. The above letters should be as light as possible.

Mr. P. K. Stone kindly mails an airplane cover from Boston on September 29th, which not only received the two postmarks in magenta of the Radio Show, but also shows an additional large cart wheel postmark reading, "Boston Lindbergh Day, July 22, 1927.—I am proud to have done it for America. My reward will be your continued use of the air mail service. Col. Chas. Lindbergh." This is the first that I have seen of this postmark. As it is dated in July I cannot account for its use at this late date.

The Postmaster of Philadelphia advises under date of September 23rd, that he has requested permission from Washington to use a special postmark on air mail on the day Colonel Lindbergh visits the City of Brotherly Love.

Under date of October 1st, the Postmaster General announced that no award of contract would be made on the St. Louis-Memphis route.

Only one bid was received, and this did not specify the use of planes of sufficient speed to come within the terms required. The Department requires at least one hundred miles per hour.

Under date of October 4th, announcement was made that the Western Air Express of Los Angeles had been awarded the contract for carrying mail by air, between Cheyenne, Wyo., and Pueblo, Colo. It will be recalled that this company has been temporarily operating this route. It was formerly held by Colorado Airways Incorporated, but due to irregularities, the contract was cancelled.

Canal Zone 1906, 2c Inverted Center

It is seldom that twenty years elapses before an important minor variety of an United States possession is found. In going over a lot of the common 2c 1906 printed in carmine lake and black, a copy was found with inverted center. The surcharge is also inverted, for it reads up in relation to the red frame, which would classify it as a variety of No. 31, were it not for the fact that it is in the lake shade, which is not known in the "reading up" variety.

The copy in question, which is the only one known to date, shows the postmark of the Cristobal post office.

Cyprus.—Jubilee Series, further details.—Thanks to the courtesy of an esteemed correspondent, we are now able to supplement the details, already exclusively published in these columns, of the forthcoming Jubilee set. The ten values will range from 1/4 piastre to $1, and the subjects will include Zeno the philosopher (a native of Citium, Cyprus, and the founder of the Stoic system), Richard Cœur de Lion, the Crest of Guy de Lusignan (King of Jerusalem), a map and the Crest of the island, a coin of Amathus (the ancient name of Limasol), the Church of St. Nicholas and the Watergate at Famagusta, while the highest denomination will have a portrait of King George. The colour scheme has not yet been decided.—Stamp Collecting.

Germany.—Departmentals.—We gather from Mr. Edwards-Carter that Germany is about to issue "departmental official" stamps. He has lately seen letters from the Statistisches Reichsamt with the wording on the envelope, "Frei durch Ablösung," struck out by a printed bar and bearing a stamp with the perforated lettering in two lines "St. R. A." So far our correspondent has seen only the 25 pf thus, but he believes other values exist, although he is unaware that departments other than the State Statistical Bureau have issued any. It will be remembered that the "E" (Eisenbahnen = railways) overprinted on the Bavarian stamps at one time was later replaced by the perforated E.—Stamp Collecting.

Gwalior.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle copies of the 3pies grey, 1/2a green and 4a olive Nasik printed stamps of India with the usual two line surcharge for official use. The overprint has also been done at Nasik and is slightly different from the former surcharge which was done at Calcutta, the top line measuring 13mm while that of the Calcutta printing measures 14mm.

Paraguay.—Whitfield King & Co. send us a copy of the 1p50c brown, with a map of the country for the central design.

Philippines.—The current 6c unperf. 11, has come out in a new

WALCOTT

United States Collection

1870 - 1927

It gives me great pleasure to announce that I have just purchased, at a price ranging well up into five figures, the wonderful United States Collection of the years 1870 to 1927, gotten together by Mr. George Walcott of New York.

Mr. Walcott's collection is one of the best known and finest collections of United States stamps gotten together in recent years. He not only obtained the mint single in shades, but has most of the blocks in similar condition. It is nothing unusual to find four or five shades of a very rare block. Plate number strips and blocks were one of his pet hobbies, and I doubt whether there is a finer collection existing for he not only obtained the Bureau varieties, but the earlier ones as well. The wonderful collection is now being broken up, and want lists are solicited.

Off hand, I note as some of the outstanding pieces:—

1870, grided blocks, 1c, 2c, 3c, 6c and 30c.
1870, 15 blocks, including 10c, 15c and 24c.
1873, Practically all in blocks.
1879, Ditto.
1879, Plate strips of all.

1882-1927, Practically complete in blocks and singles, shaded.

Including such outstanding items as blocks of 1894 and 1895, the blue pap blocks and one of two known plate number strips of four of the 1893 4c Columbus error.

I also note singles of all of the inverted and most of the coils including a pair of the rare 1910 3c.

It is only when a collection of this magnitude is broken up that it is possible to obtain any of the scarcer shades, blocks, plate numbers.

If there is anything that you desire the way of United States issues, or if you have a fine item or collection for sale, correspondence is solicited.

PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

color, a dark wine-red instead of the violet of former issues. Whether it should be listed as a new variety is a question for philatelists and catalog makers.—PERCY A. HILL.

Russia.—It is stated that, in order to prevent the use of cancelled stamps that have had their obliterations cleaned off, future printings are to be on chalk surfaced paper.

Air Post.—According to M. Kazakof the two air post adhesives chronicled fortnight ago were issued on the occasion of the first (so-called) International Aviation Conference in Russia, 200,000 being printed of the 10k and the same number of the 15k.—Stamp Collecting.

Tannou Touva Republic.—The K Lissick Philatelic Co. report the appearance of the following provisionals, of which only 5,000 sets have been issued:—8 on 1 on 50k gray-black, 14k on 1r blue-green, 18k on 3r red-brown and 28k on 5r dark ultramarine. The surcharge of the first two values is in red while those of the others are in black.

MILWAUKEE LAD ARRESTED

We have received from Fred W. Noske, clippings from Milwaukee papers describing the arrest of Carl Manner for stealing postage stamps. Henry George, a local dealer, reported several weeks ago a substantial loss in stamps and rare coins. The clipping also mentions Manner's failure to obtain stamps at the home of Charles Christensen:—

"Selling rare postage stamps to collectors, then stealing them back for resale to other buyers was proving a lucrative business for a 13-year-old Milwaukee high school boy until police put a stop to his game Saturday night.

Carl Manner, of 1809 Clybourn St., was arrested by Detective George Radtke in his home Saturday night, when the detective went there to question the boy after Aaron Cohen, of 172 Twenty-second St., had reported to police that $2,500 worth of rare stamps had been stolen from his apartment.

Mr. Cohen told the detective that he had purchased the stamps from Manner. When Radtke arrived at the boy's home, he found Manner with more than $6,000 worth of stamps in his possession. At police headquarters the boy told Detective Capt. Harry Ridenour that he had stolen the stamps from several Milwaukee homes recently. Mr. Cohen's stamps were among those recovered.

Manner confessed to stealing $3,500 worth of stamps and $17 in cash from the home of Charles Tully, at 602 Thirtieth St. He also took a magnifying glass, he said.

At the home of Henry George, at 951 Seventh St., Manner said he obtained $2,000 in stamps and $300 in rare coins, after having gained entrance by knocking out a door panel with a pitchfork. A sickle, similarly used, gained him entrance at the home of Charles Christiansen, at 1401 Sixth St., he said, but all he got for his trouble at this place was 65 cents.

Manner was taken to the detention home and he will have a hearing in juvenile court next week. He is slightly deaf."

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

Durban, 1928—From the advance prospectus of the International Philatelic Exhibition to be held in Durban next year, we note H. M. King George is the Patron in Chief, and his representative in South Africa, the Earl of Athlone, Governor General, is Patron. In addition General Hertzog, Prime Minister, the Hon. W. B. Madeley, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, the Administrators of Natal, Cape, Orange Free State and Transvaal are among the distinguished patrons of the enterprise. All communications re the exhibition should be sent to the Hon. Secretary, Philatelic Society of Natal, P. O. Box 588, Durban, Natal.

The Unjust Tax—French philatelists are on the warpath against an injustice in taxation on stamps. There is a luxury tax which applies to prints and engravings selling at 250 francs or more, but it applies to stamps sold at 5 francs or more. The French customs treat stamps as in the same category as prints and engravings, and our confreres want the luxury tax to apply only to stamps at 250 francs or over. Our Amiens contemporary, L'Echo de la Timbrologie, is organising a petition on the matter.

Sir H. M. Stanley on Stamps—Once again the memory of a British journalist is to be honoured on a foreign stamp. The Belgian government is preparing a series of stamps for the Belgian Congo for the anniversary of the arrival of Sir Henry Morton Stanley, the journalist and African explorer, at the mouth of the Congo River.

Mr. Clifford Kissinger—We had an agreeable surprise invasion of the editorial den the other day, when Clifford W. Kissinger, of Reading, Pa., dropped in. Don't say you don't know who Kissinger is. That would be the hall mark of ignorance of the philatelic history of U. S. A. in the 'nineties. As a youngster he was a veritable live wire, a go-getter, and his methods of pushing the American Philatelic Association did not always find favour among his seniors, including the great Mr. Tiffany. But there was ever the way with young folk who have got things in them, and are out to make the most of them. His activities in those days consisted chiefly in putting sparkle into the politics of philatelic organisations in the States, and in publishing those more or less breezy organs, the Pennsylvania Philatelists (1891-98), and the Perforator (1898-1901). Although we had often been in touch with the brisk young Kissinger of the 'nineties, we did not meet him until 1913, when, as a successful dealer in real estate and insurance, and a prominent freemason, his philatelic activities were less public. neither of us, however, is likely to forget that first meeting in company with a mutual friend, William R. Ricketts. Together we went a day's journey in the train to Wilkes Barre, and sat the whole night through browsing over the wonderful Ricketts' philatelic library. This was Mr. Kissinger's first visit to Europe; he arrived on Tuesday, August 2nd, and sailed for home on Saturday the 6th. He brought three of his stamp collections, among the oddest collections we have ever seen. They baffle description.—Stamp Collector's Fortnightly.

SOME STAMP ITEMS

By J. L. RIEDEL.

The new German 8pf stamp just issued is printed in a deep green and for the reason the 5pf has just been issued in new colour, light green, in order to avoid confusion between the two values.

A new 90 cent stamp in carmine has been issued by France for the centenary of Berthelot. It bears the portrait of the professor.

The new German Hindenburg stamp will be put on sale Sept. 29. The 8p stamp will sell at 15pf and all the other 15, 25 and 50pf at double face.

NEWS ABOUT U. S. STAMPS

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

1857, 1c, Type V Variety

Mr. Frank Gumm, Jr., has submitted for inspection a copy of the 1c 1857, Type V, showing a scratch on the plate in the hair on a level with Franklin's eye. This variety may have been noted heretofore, but it is the first time that it has come to my attention.

1898, 2c Rose Carmine

Dr. Carroll Chase kindly submits for inspection two used copies of the 1898, 2c rose-carmine in cancelled condition. One shows an 1899 dated postmark of which the first four letters of the town using the stamp is "Hibb," the last of the postmark does not fall upon the stamp. These are the first two stamps that I have seen that come from other than the original find. No doubt, when the varieties were printed at the Bureau, several thousand sheets were turned out and distributed throughout the country, but had not the collector in Montana saved three sheets, unused blocks today would possibly be unknown.

1922-27, 1/2c Hale

Mr. Vance Holden submits for inspection an upper plate block of twelve, of the 1/2c Hale from plate 17041. In producing this plate, no doubt, a defective transfer roll was used, for the six left stamps show a minor variety, which Mr. Holden states was on the entire first five vertical rows of the pane. This variety consists of a small white spot on the upper right center of the left fraction bar. This is constant, and is of the exact size and shape throughout. As the stamps are clearly printed, it is a transfer roll variety, rather than a defective inking item.

Air Mail Notes

The Pan-American Airways Incorporated, who will carry the first air mail between the United States and Cuba, write under date of October 7th, as follows:—

"We are now in a position to inform collectors and the public in general regarding our plans for carrying mail on the initial flights of Pan-American Airways, Inc., from Key West to Havana and return.

The Assistant Postmaster General is providing a special cancellation for mail coming through Key West designated for the first flight South. The Cuban Government is supplying special Air Mail stamps, which will be required for every letter carried over our line coming North from Havana. This cancellation and these stamps will insure whatever letters may be carried on the first flights in each direction having a particular interest and value to those who wish to send covers on our inaugural flights. The Postmaster at Key West and the Post Office in Havana are willing to co-operate with our line in handling mail during the first day of our service, giving special attention to covers sent by collectors.

The service will start on October 19th. It is, therefore, advisable to send letters as soon as possible, to insure their being carried on the first flights. Such letters will be stored in the Post Office at Key West awaiting the flights. We would advise carrying out the following plan in sending covers to be carried on the inaugural flights:—

A—First Flight Between Key West and Havana—

1. Address the envelope to Pan-American Airways, Inc., Havana, Cuba, if it is to be returned on the first Northern flight. Otherwise, to any other Cuban address.

2. The regular railroad postage rates will be sufficient to carry first class mail over the air line. An ordinary letter will, therefore, require only the regulation two-cent stamp.

3. Write clearly on the envelope "Air Mail Key West—Havana."

B—First Flight Between Havana and Key West—

1. If the letters are being sent from Cuba, simply purchase one special Cuban five-cent Air Mail stamp, together with a regular two-cent stamp, and address the envelope to any destination in the United States. Such letters will automatically be carried on the first Northern flight.

C—Round Trip First Flights, Key West to Havana and Havana to Key West—

1. Write the word "RETURN" in the upper left-hand corner of the original envelope, which is addressed to the Pan-American Airways, Inc., Havana, Cuba, as explained in "A."

2. Enclose a self addressed envelope in the original envelope.

3. Enclose ten cents in United States Postage stamps, which will cover the charges of five cents for the Cuban Air Mail stamp, two cents for the regular postage stamp, and three cents for the office work required in changing envelopes for the return flight.

The Postal Bulletin under date of October 10th, announced that the entire postage, including air mail fees on letters from the United States to Foreign countries, must be prepaid in full. There is no provision for the collection in foreign countries of the deficiency in air mail fees and consequently letters with insufficient postage will not be given air mail services, unless fully prepaid.

The Postmasters are instructed to obliterate the words "Via Air Mail" in such cases, and forward said letters by the usual means of transportation.

TWO NOTABLES AS STAMP COLLECTORS

ENRICO CARUSO AND CHARLES P. STEINMETZ, BOTH DECEASED, DEVOTEES OF PHILATELY

By GEORGE B. SLOANE.

When Enrico Caruso, the great tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co. was alive, we frequently heard reports of his being a stamp collector, and I also heard several times he was a regular customer of one of our largest stamp dealers. It was understood he had a very fine collection of Italy and Italian States, but regardless of this, and whatever lines he collected, I do not recall having heard any more about the collection after his death. However, we in the trade were always interested, because when any man so constantly in the public eye, as Caruso, takes up philately, it helps the promotion of stamp collecting immeasurably.

In the Saturday Evening Post, issue of October 8th, there is a serial story running entitled "Wings of Song" by Dorothy Caruso, the late tenor's wife, and Torrance Goddard, her sister. The story deals with the life of Caruso, and the following paragraph will be of interest as it relates to Mr. Caruso's stamp collecting activities:—

"I had a great deal of time alone, so I often had a book in my hand. Enrico would say, 'Why don't you occupy yourself?' He did not consider reading an occupation, and as he did not like to see me idle, he soon found something for me to do. He came in one day carrying three large albums and two handboxes full of loose stamps. These he wanted me to help him arrange in the books. So that was how we spent the evenings when Enrico was not singing at the opera house. We would sit, one at each end of the dining-room table, in front of us a pile of stamps to be sorted. Enrico, wearing huge gold-rimmed glasses, studied the stamps through a magnifying glass like a benevolent owl. He was perfectly happy doing this or spreading in front of him gold coins from his wonderful collection, of which he was making a card index. He liked to feel that I was keeping him company in his work and taught me about the stamps, perforations, watermarks and various little marks whose presence increased their value. I never dreamed of refusing to do this work, because it seemed to make him so happy. Incidentally I learned a good deal of geography, which I regret to say I have completely forgotten."

Mrs. Caruso speaks of "his three large albums, and two handboxes full of loose stamps" which he was engaged in sorting, and from which one might draw the conclusion that Mr. Caruso was a haphazard collector, or accumulator, and not a real philatelist, but further down in her story she mentions "perforations, watermarks, and various little marks whose presence increased their value" which would indicate, that after all Caruso really knew something about the hobby and studied his stamps. The allusion to Caruso studying his stamps through a magnifying glass like a benevolent owl is quite amusing.

The late Charles P. Steinmetz, the electrical genius, was also a stamp collector. I learned this from my friend, the late Joseph V. K. Wells, who was associated with the "Home of the Postage Stamp," and the story he told me of his first contact with Steinmetz may be of interest.

I believe the "Home of the Postage Stamp" was at that time located further up New York State. Mr. Wells told me that one day they received a letter from a small stamp company, I have forgotten the name he gave me, asking for an approval selection of stamps, and giving Mr. Steinmetz's name as a reference. From the letter, Mr. Wells judged it to be written by a young boy, and hence wrote Mr. Steinmetz in inquiry. Back came a snappy reply, very brief and to the point, something like this: "The So-and-So Stamp Co. is operated by my two nephews, therefore it is responsible."

Accordingly, Mr. Wells sent approval selections for quite a while, and finally used to make trips to Schenectady to see Mr. Steinmetz, for it seems he was the real collector, the boys having little or no interest in them.

Mr. Wells told me that when he would go to Schenectady, Mr. Steinmetz would turn the books over to him to figure up the amount of stamps retained. There would be several long columns of figures, and while he would be laboriously adding them up, Steinmetz would come over, take a rapid glance over the columns and make him a flat offer for all the stamps kept. Wells said, that at the conclusion of his addition, he would find this offer to be considerable less than the actual figures called for. He later learned Steinmetz was a rapid calculator.

SAN MARINO COMMEMORATIVES

(Clipping from J. L. Riedel)

Two series of commemorative postage stamps are shortly to be issued in San Marino. The first of these is dedicated to the Sammarinese volunteers who fought with the Italian armies in the Great War, and will be put on sale in a limited edition on September 25, on the same day as a national cenotaph will be unveiled. It will consist of three denominations only—50 centesimi mauve, 1.25 lira blue, and 10 lire grey, all showing a view of the Cenotaph, which stands on a stone terrace, with some buildings rising on the left, after the design of Professor Enrico Federici.

About the middle of October the second series will be issued in honour of the seventh centenary of St. Francis of Assisi, who is said to have visited Monte Titano and to have been largely instrumental in securing the establishment of various ecclesiastical orders there. The stamps are to be four in number, and of the face values—50 centesimi red, 1.25

SPECIMEN

Stamps with this surcharge have generally not been understood by collectors or even by dealers. When we take into consideration that of every stamp which any government, member of the Postal Union, issues or intends to issue, approximately 400 copies are sent to Berne, Switzerland, to be distributed among the different members, it can readily be seen that these stamps are in reality very rare and as desirable as a mint copy without the "specimen" surcharge.

We have just obtained a large lot of mostly complete sets of the 20th Century including some of the highest values catalogued up to $750.00 each. We offer these at a very low price, some lower than the price of a used copy. If interested, please write for list or state what country, especially of the British Colonies, interests you.

We also have a number of items issued to the Postal Union, but never placed in use.

WE CARRY A SUPPLY OF STAMPS OF ALL COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD. OUR SPECIALTIES:

GERMANY, DANZIG, SAAR, MEMEL, BAVARIA, LITHUANIA, ETC.

NEW RATES POSSIBLE

With a view to determining what change in the rate on parcel post packages now carried by air mail is necessary, Postmaster General New today announced that a conference between officials of the Post Office Department and air mail contractors will be held at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Illinois, on October 22. Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, Eugene R. White, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, and Earl B. Wadsworth, Superintendent of the Contract Air Mail Service, will be present at the conference, and assurances have been received that a large number of private contractors now operating the various air mail routes, will also be on hand. At the forthcoming conference an exchange of views will take place between postal officials and private contractors in order to arrive at an understanding and agree on a rate of postage for parcel post packages carried by air mail, which will be satisfactory to all parties concerned.

The present rate on parcel post packages is ten cents per half an ounce, the same as first-class mail matter transported by air mail. The Department does not wish to fix any rate of postage on this class of mail matter which will conflict with the express business now handled by private contractors.

It will be necessary for Congress to sanction any change in the existing air mail law before a new parcel post rate can be promulgated by the Post Office Department.

MESOPOTAMIA NO. 50

By MAXWELL KRAUSE.

Supplementing Mr. Sloan's article in regard to the mint copy of Mesopotamia No. 50 which passed through his hands when he sold the Stockton Buzby collection, it may be of interest to your readers to know that there is also a fine mint copy of this stamp in the 20th Century British Colonial collection of Mr. Edward R. Wood, Jr., of Philadelphia. It is undoubtedly very rare in mint condition and I remember having seen only one other copy, which passed through my hands at about the same time that Mr. Wood purchased his copy.

Mr. Wood's 20th Century British Colonial collection, which was awarded the gold medal in its class at the New York Exhibition, contains a large number of mint gems, among which might be mentioned superb copies of British Central Africa Nos. 71 and 72, only 17 copies of each of which exist; Natal No. 100;

New Approval Books

OF CHEAP POSTAGE STAMPS BEFORE 1880

I have made up a large series of books of stamps under $25.00 each down to a few cents, especially of British North America, West Indies, South and Central America, Australia, and British Colonies in Asia and Africa.

In all these books stamps catalogued at $6.00 or less, are generally priced at HALF CATALOGUE prices, and better stamps at about 40% discount on catalogue prices.

My approval books, this season, are better than ever, as I have combined in them the many large and important purchases I have made this last year.

May I send YOU a trial book?

THE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION RECORD
SEVERAL THOUSAND NEW NAMES SECURED BY OUR LOYAL BOOSTER CLUB

The results of our subscription contest for the year 1926-1927 may now be summarized. First honors go to the Anchor Stamp Co., Jersey City, N. J., which has a total of 295. The Hawkeye Stamp Co., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is second with 194. The Johnson Stamp Co., Jamestown, N. Y., has 193, and the Payn Stamp Co., Los Angeles, Cal., 185. We are greatly indebted to our many friends for the splendid service rendered. As is our custom we give the record for the closing month, indicating those who have sent in ten or more subscriptions during the month, as well as the detailed record for the entire year.

On October 1, we began a new contest and we shall be very glad to furnish subscription forms to any who can use them. We give a sufficient premium to make it worth while and shall be very glad to hear from any dealer or subscriber who is interested in the growth of philately.

The name of Eugene Klein stands well up in the list of contestants. It will be noted that during September he secured 17 subscribers, and during the entire year a total of 121. Very few metropolitan dealers have been able to aid us in our work and we feel under special obligations to this Philadelphia dealer for his splendid co-operation. He stands in a class by himself.

The contestants having ten or more new subscriptions for September are:—

EDITORIAL

So many readers have called our attention to the article on Caruso in the Saturday Evening Post, wherein stamps are given a most favorable setting that reference is made to it here. Mrs. Caruso tells how she and her husband when unoccupied by engagements passed the time. One day, Caruso entered the apartment with three large stamp albums and two big boxes of loose stamps. Poring over and arranging the specimens, Enrico was absorbed in their fascinations; and he studied them in the approved manner, through heavy-rimmed glasses, "like a benevolent owl." Mrs. Caruso was not averse to helping in the work and it was not long before she became acquainted with perforations and watermarks; and she learned too, through her application, much that she had forgotten about geography. Incidentally, it should be said that Caruso thought that certain rich gowns of Mrs. Caruso were not adapted to stamp work and he designed what he considered an appropriate costume for her. One cannot read the description in the Saturday Evening Post without being impressed by the sympathetic treatment of stamps by the great singer and Mrs. Caruso, as well; and it is interesting to have testimony telling of Caruso's sincere attachment to philately. His stamps yielded him many restful hours uninterrupted by the shouts of admirers and plaudits of the people; and due acknowledgment is made of their charm.

There is another side to the picture of philatelic acceptance and even though we have to transport ourselves back to the year, 1869, to tell of it, the following observations of A. R. Hope, author of "A Book About Boys" should be recorded. The clothbound work of 250 pages was found by Mayor Harold C. Brooks, Marshall, Michigan, who found it while rummaging in his attic. We read on the musty pages: "Seals, stamps, coins and crests are the rage in modern days and the acquisition of them often gives rise to an amount of higgling and trafficking which one doesn't like to see in boys. Take up any boy's magazine and you will read dozens of advertisements issued by juvenile merchants who profess to sell stamps. This is disgusting; but it is almost as bad to see young collectors running about the play-ground eagerly offering to exchange Portugals for Bavarias, Russians for Hong-Kongs. However, it is some satisfaction to think that this particular mania is dying out of our best schools, and that the others are, for various reasons, not so liable to abuse. Philately, as it is called, has had its day, and, so far as I can see, the collection of crests and monograms is the prevalent mania at present." It is evident that Mr. Hope was none too far-sighted and that he did not bring up his boy to be a stamp collector. However, in the light of today, Mr. Hope's remarks on philately could make the columns of Philatelic Smoke.

One year ago, the members of the Hot Stove League, sensing that the psychological moment had arrived concocted a plot that was attended by such unhalloved success that it seems that some of the members are financially independent and so are enabled to devote their remaining years to the promotion of philatelic philanthropy. The aforesaid members, radiating health and wealth, verbally bludgeoned the harassed and pop-eyed visitors to the big New York exhibition last October into shelling out a quarter because they said with veiled menace in their tone that "you'll be sorry if you don't." The harried victim sought to escape by giving the two bits and quitting the rapacious horde. The throaty cry of the mercenaries was: You're a sucker if you do and one if you don't; and many a man who proclaimed, Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute, yielded meekly and bought off the sinister crew. The lowering of the curtain for an instant denotes the passing of a year; and now we behold the aftermath, which is a pleasant one for those who wrote off the 25c on their income taxes. "Huzza!" they shout in glad acclaim. What they thought was a financial debacle becomes a profitable coup. Philatelic Smoke arises on the horizon, the official publication of the famous Hot Stove League; and from stem to stern, it is the best smack ever launched on that familiar but geographically vague, sea of philatelic journalism. The journal is clever and cutting, but the undeniable high spirits of the scribes are a balm for any wounded feelings. The issue represents personal journalism in capital letters.

The Hot Stove League was formed five years ago in a back room of the old Collectors Club, New York, and a forum was established there, where men of positive mind had something to say; or perhaps the atmosphere there was more like that of the old coffee-houses where the wits were wont to foregather. The flies on the wall have many stories to tell of the verbal tilts that were fought around the figurative stove. There are twelve members in the League which "is undoubtedly the most exclusive organization of its kind in existence" and all of them are done in silhouette on a double page and the artist who worked in black face is a genius. He has the human touch to a nicety—and careless of fame, he doesn't even sign his stuff. The report of the treasurer is a hilarious one and with its explanatory graphs is a bit of rich burlesque; it is an original bit of foolery that would cause even an actuary to grin. The treasurer is the only member who has paid his dues, but at that he has three cents in the safe and the graphs top off the story. The whole report is the quintessence of wit. The notes are trenchant and hit near the bull's-eye. Their Philatelic Pepys knows his diary and some erudite notes on the 1864-72 issue of Peru are a rollicking parody on the adulation of the atom, as it were. There are twenty pages and cover; and the covers are filled with ads whose subtle suggestions hit the advertisers on the belt; and on the last page the final curl of smoke almost will cause the eyes of the reader to water with laughter. The first (and possibly last) issue of Philatelic Smoke is the best example of personal philatelic journalism that has ever been printed and while we recognize the handiwork of Lindquist and Konwiser as conspirators, we feel that the other members are not as hardened as they, and so as first offenders should be given a suspended sentence. The readers whose toes are trod upon may know whom to go gunning for.

In the past, there have been examples of free-lance stamp papers and one we remember in particular, Stampic America, that was produced by an anonymous worker whose identity never became known to us. At first, he made only one copy of his lively little pen-written sheet, but as the months went on, he used a typewriter; and because of the attention that his effort received, he issued a dozen duplicates. The editor was exceptionally bright and his wit while pungent was pleasant. There were other attempts in this line and now Philatelic Smoke caps the climax. Our extended notice of Philatelic Smoke is a consequence not only of the sparkling merits of the paper, but also of the placing of another brick in the philatelic edifice. We want the philatelic world to be as complete in its phases as the outside world and an irreconcilable journal, flavored with Attic salt would give us within the ranks, a tonic that will have to be sought elsewhere, if such a paper is not included in our publication lists.

At its convention in Los Angeles recently, the American Federation of Labor charged that the post office department has never segregated in its yearly reports "the actual operating costs of the operating service," such as, we assume, the expense of the franking system. In this connection, the legislation that was enacted that empowered the issue of the department stamps and their subsequent discontinuance would show that such segregation was in force for a time.

Junior Dictionary

Porto.—A German word (derived from Lat. portare, to carry) meaning postage. In combination, i.e., "portofrei," it means postpaid, but as usually used by itself, it means postage due. It occurs (1) in combination as "Portomark" on the Austrian dues, (2) as a surcharge on those of 1916, (3) as an inscription on those of 1916, (4) surcharge, 1917, (5) on the dues of Austrian Levant, where it constitutes the only inscription except the value, (6) on no less than 13 different sets of provisional Hungarian due stamps, as a surcharge, (7) as a surcharge on Italian occupation stamps used in Austria, (8) part of the inscription on the Bosnia dues, (9) surcharged on Jugoslavia and no doubt elsewhere.

Porto Gazetei.—Found on the 5 paras stamp of Moldavia. It means "newspaper postage," this low value stamp being issued for the prepayment of postage on newspapers.

Port Said.—An Egyptian town, on the west side of the Suez Canal. France has long maintained a Consular post office at this port, and since 1899 the stamps used there have been overprinted or inscribed "Port Said."

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

Provisional Govt. HAYTI 1902 2, 5, 10, 50c

Within the past few years, the opportunity to make some capital out of stamp collectors has not been wholly neglected by Hayti. The lack of 2 centime stamps seems to have been a chronic ailment through several issues. But in May, 1902, there appeared a new type of surcharge on the whole series of stamps then in use, which was made for a different purpose.

The stamps were issued in 1898. President Sam succeeded President Hyppolite who died on March 24, 1896, leaving some fourteen months of his term of seven years unexpired. This would end President Sam's term of office in March, 1903, but the latter claimed that his regular term of seven years began after he had filled the unexpired term of Gen. Hyppolite, that is, he should hold office until March, 1904. Here was the chance of his opponents, who succeeded in bringing so much opposition to bear upon him that he at length resigned on May 9, 1902.

When this event took place, the election of deputies was ordered so that the National Assembly might be convened to elect a President in the constitutional manner. This government gave the postal department the opportunity to make the surcharge: "Gt. Pre, MAI 1902," meaning "Government Provisoire" and the date of its formation.

Cabo

An overprint found on many of the stamps of Nicaragua issued since 1904. These stamps are used at Cabo Gracias á Dios, in the province of Zelaya, on the eastern coast, and the reason given for the overprinting is that the currency in this district is on a silver basis worth 42c to the peso, while elsewhere in Nicaragua paper money worth only 25c to the peso is generally used.

Perplexing Surcharges

M.—Military. An overprint shown on various of the earlier stamps of So. Australia.

M. B.—Marine Board. Another So. Australian overprint.

M. QE.—Martinique. These letters were surcharged upon some of the 20c stamps of France in 1887 for use in the colony of Martinique.

M. R.—Manager of Railways. An overprint found on certain of the early stamps of South Australia.

M. R. G.—Main Roads, Gambier-town. Another early South Australian overprint.

N. C. E.—New Caledonia. These letters appear on many French Colonial stamps intended for use in this colony.

"C"

I. An overprint found on certain South Australian stamps used between 1868 and 1874. These labels franked the official correspondence of the Customs department and they were superseded in 1874 by the general official issue overprinted with the letters "O. S."

II. An overprint found on some of the Ecuador stamps of the 1899-1901 series. It was at one time believed to be a control-mark, but specialists are now inclined to consider it a bogus mark or merely a cancellation.

Paper No. 17—Native

Some of the early stamps of Japan and some of the issues of the Indian States were printed on what is known as native paper. This is paper made from rice fibre. As a rule it is very thin and soft and often has a silky feel. There are laid and wove varieties of native paper.

Cabled Anchor

An incorrect term sometimes used in place of "foul anchor," that is, an anchor with which the cable has become entangled or "fouled." It is a watermark shown in all the stamps of the Cape of Good Hope issued since 1884 and also in many of the postal fiscal stamps of Great Britain.

Pictorial Rebus Contest

Our rebus contest was a hard proposition and we must congratulate the Juniors who succeeded at least in part in locating the stamps pictured. We have made prize awards to all who have correctly named five or more of the eighteen designs. The result is as follows:—

- E. Starin, 1260 Frank St., Detroit, Mich. (10)
Roy Bowman Jr., 720 Fort St., Boise, Idaho (9)
James Eastman, North Conway, N. H. (8)
G. H. Kendall, 12 Wales St., Dorchester, Mass. (7)
George Brett, Spirit Lake, Iowa (7)
J. M. Hamilton, Gifford, Ill. (7)
J. A. Horton, Jr., Belton, S. C. (6)
G. H. Nafis, 392 New Britain Av., Hartford, Ct. (5)
R. B. Stetson, Brunswick, Me. (5)
Peter Smith, Millville, R. 2, N. J. (5)
Fewer than five:—Jaroslav Perkowski, David O. Weaver, M. J. Mendelsohn and K. M. Fender.

Mr. Starin, sending in his fine list of ten solutions, makes some comment that we think it wise to quote, and we thank him for his letter, which is as follows:—

"I would like to suggest that in the next Rebus, you take only such parts of stamps as are clearly pictured in a catalog a few years old."

I went through my 1925 Catalog, which is all I have, 6 times and looked over my stamps carefully. Now No. 10, the ear of corn, is on the stamp all right but is not shown in the catalog, and remember that we Juniors do not have every stamp going about.

And if you want to see a healthy flag that beats No. 2, look at Armenia No. 271."

The following paragraphs contain a description of the various designs and the stamps they are part of:—

(No. 1)—Costa Rica, 1892, 2c yellow and is located near the center of the stamp, being between the words Correos and Telegrafos.

(No. 2)—Portugal, 1898, Vasco da Gama Issue, 10 reis, red-violet being on the left side, immediately to the left of the letter "P" to the word Portugal. The arched label near top of stamp can also be found on the issues to the Portugal colonies, Azores, Macao, Madeira, Portuguese India, Timor.

(No. 3)—United States, 1869, 90c Lincoln, black and carmine. Being the letter to the word STATES.

(No. 4)—New Zealand, 1898, 2 pence rose-brown, also imperf. vertically as well as perf. It is the label of value at bottom of stamp. It will be noted that the 2 pence of 1899 issue is unlike the 1898 issue, differing in its shape, being as it were, more squatty, fat, rotund.

(No. 5)—North Borneo, 1893, 2c carmine and black, being the head engraving thereon. Labuan issues, 1894, 2c black and black, and 1897, 2c blue and black and 1900, 2c green and black. Of course the same stamps with surcharges British Protectorate, and as used for Postage Due stamps.

(No. 6)—Germany, 1868, North German Postal District, being found on the lower part of the white band containing the words NORDDEUTSCHER POSTBEZIRK and directly over the letter "O" of the word GROSCHEN, to the 1gr value. It is also found on the 1/2, 1, 2 and 5gr values, including two shades of 1/4 and 2gr values, and also to imperf. values as listed above.

(No. 7)—India, 1883, one rupee, green, being the left hand part of the octagonal shaped border or band enclosing the Queen's head.

(No. 8)—United States, 1893, 30c Columbian, and is noted in the lower foreground.

(No. 9)—Liberia, 1897, 3c red and green, being the central design containing the value, the word "cents" being omitted.

(No. 10)—United States, 1898, Trans-Mississippi issue, and is found on a value, being part of the ornamental frame enclosing the pictures, and the illustration is of the corn at the right side, lower half of the stamp. It is reversed on the left side of the stamp.

(No. 11)—Belgium, Postage due stamps, issue of 1895 and 1900, of the values of 5, 10, 20, 50c and 1fr, being the end at the right side of the top label containing the words "A PAYER." The stamps of the Hindenburg set were placed on sale on the morning of September 26th last, and are of these values: 8pfg green, sold at 15pfg; 15pfg carmine, sold at 30pfg; 25pfg blue, sold at 50pfg and 50pfg brown, sold at 1 mark.

Hungary.—The information noted below was sent to us by Mr. J. L. Riedel of Nurnberg: Hungary has lately issued a new series of air post stamps for use in the Trans-Continental service, comprising eight denominations, the dies for which have been engraved by Professor Schirnbock, of Vienna, who at the age of 80 years is still one of the greatest of living stamp engravers. Four of the stamps depict the legendary "Turul," the sacred bird of the Magyars, after the design of Johan Palinkas—12 filler dark green, 16 filler brown, 20 filler carmine, and 32 filler violet. The remainder, designed in the form of an upright rectangle, by Professor Eugen Haranghy, present the figure of Mercury mounted on an eagle's back and sounding his horn; denominations, 40 filler blue, 50 filler claret, 72 filler dark olive-green, and 80 filler lilac.

Italy.—Mr. R. Roberts has received the 25c green, design as Scott's A49, surface printed, watermark and perforation as before. Also the 1L75c brown and 2L65c rose, line engraved, type of the 1L85c chronicled last May.

Paraguay.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that the 1p50c brown, design as the Map stamp recently issued, has been overprinted "C" in black, in the upper right portion of the background.

Saar.—Mr. J. L. Riedel reports that the four Charity stamps issued last year have had a very restricted sale. Therefore it has been decided to re-issue the whole set on October first with the surcharge "1927". The stamps will again sell at double face.

St. Helena.—We understand that the 4p and 15sh stamps remaining on hand at the colony have been officially destroyed.

Tannou-Touva.—The K. Lissink Philately Co. have shown us the new pictorial series announced for this country. They are of many shapes and designs and the values and colors are as

KING'S LETTER UP FOR SALE

(Clipping from L. F. Beuchel.)

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The question of the ethics of offering for sale a private letter written by the British King was raised here when a business house displayed in its windows a letter written by King George.

The letter in question was written by the King, then Prince George, at the age of 24, while a Lieutenant in the Royal navy, and was addressed to a Mrs. Williams in reference to the collecting of postage stamps, which is to this day one of the King's hobbies. It was dated July, 1889.

Ten guineas ($50) was asked for the letter.

Values of Used Modern Colonials

By "CALABAR".

(Third Installment.)

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

Gilbert & Ellice Ids.—First two issues, used a trifle better; K.G. issues, used = mint. For a list of the P. O's, vide the WEEKLY, No. 1868, p. 593.

Gold Coast.—Curiously enough, the writer of a series of articles on "What Uncatalogued Stamps are Worth," now running in the Philatelic Magazine, considers all stamps of this Colony, commencing with the 2/6 1913, as worth the same used as mint! Frankly, I fail to see how he arrives at his estimation, inasmuch as the stamps referred to almost invariably sell at considerably cheaper prices used. Some of the coloured paper varieties are perhaps rather difficult to pick up in used condition, but as far as the standard varieties go, used are much the cheaper. Whilst the script high values are unpriced used by Gibbons, the 2/6, 5/-, 10/- and £1 MCA's are priced as follows—

| Value. | Mint. | Used. |
|--------|-------|---------------|
| 2/6 | 5/- | 4/- |
| 5/- | 12/6 | 6/6 |
| 10/- | | Unpriced Used |
| £1 | 25/- | 15/- |

Grenada.—Save for the lower d. values, used = mint.

Kuwait.—Used are considerably better. By the way, these stamps are now obsolete, having been so since about 1925. They were issued to order of the local Sultan, who endeavoured to swell his hopelessly inadequate revenues (was there ever an Eastern Potentate, large or small, whose revenues were anything but inadequate?) by the simple expedient of selling little pieces of gummed paper to collectors, dealers, speculators, and other interested parties.

For a year or so all was well. The stream of rupees and annas poured in with soul-soothing regularity, the cash register at the P. O. clanged cheerily, and the Lord of this sun-baked, sand-swept domain pulled contentedly on his hookah and dreamed the dreams of shekel-reaping people the world over.

But all things end, and—in the fullness of time—the stream of rupees and annas dwindled away to the nearest trickle, the cheery clang of the cash register changed to an asthmatic wheeze, and the Sultan—his dreams gone a-glimmering—dropped his hookah, rubbed his eyes, and fell to muttering darkly in his beard.

To make a long story short, the Open for Business sign outside the P. O. was quietly taken down, the Postmaster removed his coat, settled himself in his chair, put up his feet on the desk, and generally made himself ready to enjoy a somewhat lengthy and well-earned rest; and—like a drunken man rudely awakened by a dash of cold water between the eyes—the saddened Sultan wandered disconsolately round the Palace, ruminating, no doubt, on the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

Why he didn't hit upon the idea of keeping his stamps in circulation till the Indian Government took over De La Rue's contract and commenced turning out stamps themselves, and then overprinting these new varieties, is a little beyond the chronicler of this unhappy history. Perhaps the Colonial Secretary—remembering Barbuda, whose philatelic splurge he terminated so abruptly in 1924—penned another of those decrees of his—which, however dreary, can be counted on to get the results—to the effect that little Sultans should be seen and not heard. Perhaps—but who knows?

Incidentally, only 24 complete sets exist of the stamps overprinted "Koweit" and "Koweit Service" (these were never issued, though copies leaked out and, as readers will recall, ultimately made their appearance on the market).

Leeward Ids.—Following are the same used or mint—1897 2½d to 5/-; 1902 surcharges; K.E. single CA 2d to 5/-; MCA 2d to 1/-; Universal 2d to 5/-; Later issues are somewhat better mint, save of course the scarce "white back" printings of the 3d, 1/- and 5/- and a few other coloured paper varieties.

Malta.—The only items in this Colony which come under consideration are the few rarities and semi-rarities, such as the 10/- MCA, 10/- script, 10/- CC Self-Govt., 2/- MCA Self-Govt., 10/- script Self-Govt., £1 unright wmk., 2/- "Postage," etc., etc. These are mostly the same, used or mint.

Montserrat.—Used = mint. Montserrat is the only Leeward Ids. Colony with only one P. O.—which is of course Plymouth, the capital and sole town.

Nauru.—The ovpts. up to 1/- are, strangely enough, considering the small stamp-using population, quite common used (this applies to the 1916 printings with the 12½mm ovpt.). This six 1923 printings (½d, 1d, 1½d and 2d with the ovpt. 13½mm and the 1½d and 2d with the 12½mm ovpt.) are in the same class as the high values and the 1924 series, used copies being much the better.

I believe it is not generally known that stamps overprinted "North West Pacific Islands" were used in Nauru whilst the latter was under Australian administra-

1908 IMPERFS.

We have just purchased a small lot of these stamps, included in which were a number of sets of the 1c value, consisting of the 4 arrow blocks, centre line blocks, four corner blocks, and the eight imprint strips of three (2 from each side, top and bottom); all from the "Star Plates" with 3mm spacing (listing 50% more in blocks). These make a most interesting page with which to start the imperfs., and at the low price offered should prove most attractive.

1c 1908, Imperf.—Complete set as above (9 blocks of 4 and 8 strips of 3), 60 stamps. $1.95 or separately.
Arrow blocks, set of four .70
Centre line block .40
Corner blocks, set of four .60
Set of 8 imprint strip of 3, "Star Plate" .75

ATTENTION!

Every dealer is trying to catch the collector's eye, to tell what he can do for him, etc.

Now it will not take many lines of this paper to inform the readers what I can offer.

I only handle U. S., Conf. and B. N. A. stamps and covers. I find that I can invest a small fortune in just these lines, so I have endeavored to stock above in good shape, and "let the rest of the world go by."

If you want 5c 1847 I can show you 300. If you want 10c 1847 I can show you 100. If you specialize in any particular U. S. issue tell me, I feel sure I can reduce your bank account. I am not depending on stamps to live, so do not have to charge high prices.

Address as usual,

tion from 1914 till October, 1915. Also, although the Nauru ovpt. themselves were issued a year later—in October, 1916—the North West Pacific stamps, for some obscure reason, continued in use down to 1919 and even after!

New Guinea.—Generally used—mint. Copies bearing the old German cancellations, which were used for a short time after the islands were taken possession of by the Australian Expeditionary Force, are rather scarce. The Territory's P. O's are eleven in number, viz., Aitape (New Guinea), Manus (Admiralty), Morobe (New Guinea), Namatanai (New Ireland), Rabaul (New Britain), Tala-sea, Gasmatta, Kaewieng (New Ireland), Kieta (Solomons), Kokopo (New Guinea) and Madang (New Guinea).

"Certain stamps have been offered for sale as being used in Kieta," writes the Rev. W. G. Iremonger, "consisting of Papua and British Solomon stamps, as well as some others. As I doubted the status of these stamps, I wrote to the Postmaster of Rabaul on the matter, and received an answer in which he stated with special reference to the B.S.I. stamps, 'not at any time were British Solomon Ids. stamps used in this Territory, and any such stamps bearing the mark of Kieta is irregular'."

New Hebrides.—Used invariably better. For further notes re. the stamps and pmks. of these islands, vide the article which appeared about a year ago in the WEEKLY by Mr. Romney Gibbons.

New Zealand Dependencies—Aitutaki, Niue, Penrhyn.—Same as New Hebrides, i.e. used invariably better.

Papua.—Used—mint. I quite agree with Mr. Gordon that used copies are hardly scarce enough to warrant Gibbons quotations. The situation as re. Papua seems to me about the same as re. New Guinea—each Colony possesses a goodly number of P. O's—ten, in the case of Papua—and a considerable stamp-using population.

(To be concluded.)

NEWS ITEMS:—

ED. L. SMITH, Butler, Pa., renewing his subscription also remits $1 for another for the Butler Philatelic Society of which Mr. Smith is treasurer.

WE learn from the Conglomerate published by Centenary College, Shreveport, La., that Francis Wheeler, head of the dept. of music, recently entertained the editor with a private exhibition of his stamps, which is strong in U. S. 1851's.

THE new Gibbons Stamp Monthly, heralded for some months, is an assured fact. Stanley Phillips, editor, may well feel proud of Vol I, No. 1, just at hand.

THERE is a stamp club in connection with the Germantown Boys Club of Philadelphia, Pa. G. H. Young in renewing his own subscription includes one for the stamp club.

AN EARLY PRECANCEL

By GEORGE B. SLOANE.

Recently I came across an old folded letter sheet, prior to the use of adhesive stamps, which I believe to be the earliest example of precancellation.

In the upper left corner of this cover is a printed device in black, the shape of a solid semi-circle, forming a curved arch about the top, and flat at the bottom. Inside this device, and set in a curve, is the following: "LITTLE ROCK," in white faced capitals. At the bottom is the abbreviation "Ark." in black letters. Cut out, in the center of this is a shield, partly resting on its side, and leaning to the left, enclosed in which is the following date—"1831—Sept—29" in three lines.

The cover is addressed to Philadelphia, and at the upper right corner has the rate of postage in manuscript—"Double 50," which was probably collected from the recipient of the letter as there is nothing on the face of the cover to indicate its prepayment.

The inside of this letter is printed, and dated "Military Land Agency Office, Little Rock, Arkansas Territory 1831...." The date is filled in with manuscript, "26, Sept., 1831." The contents of the letter are printed in type, of a size I should call 8 point, and in the same color as the printed precancel on the face, undoubtedly from the same press.

I am giving the contents of the letter, since they are historical and indicate some of the difficulties over the currency question which was raging at this time, during Andrew Jackson's administration.

"Sir—Enclosed you will receive the Sheriff's Receipts for the Taxes due on your lands for the present year. You will likewise receive a bill of my disbursements on account of your land, showing a balance in your favor of $..... (20c filled in with pen) to which is annexed an estimate of the sum which will be required for your Taxes, &c., for the ensuing year. The amount required for next year, you will please remit in time for it to be received by me at least as early as the 1st of May next, or earlier, if practicable.

You will please to make your remittances in Notes of the U. S. Bank or its branches, if they can be procured; if not, then in Notes of specie-paying Banks, in good credit. Notes or Change Tickets under the denomination of $1, will not be received; and it is desirable that you send none under the denomination of $5, as those of a smaller amount are uncurrent here, and can rarely be passed except at considerable discount, which I should be compelled to charge to your account.

To prevent any disappointment or misunderstanding on your part, I deem it necessary to state, that I cannot, under any circumstances, make advances of money for persons by whom I am employed as Agent. This rule may, in some cases, appear too rigid; but my experience and losses for several years past,

SPECIMEN

Stamps with this surcharge have generally not been understood by collectors or even by dealers. When we take into consideration that of every stamp which any government, member of the Postal Union, issues or intends to issue, approximately 400 copies are sent to Berne, Switzerland, to be distributed among the different members, it can readily be seen that these stamps are in reality very rare and as desirable as a mint copy without the "specimen" surcharge.

We have just obtained a large lot of mostly complete sets of the 20th Century including some of the highest values catalogued up to $750.00 each. We offer these at a very low price, some lower than the price of a used copy. If interested, please write for list or state what country, especially of the British Colonies, interests you.

We also have a number of items issued to the Postal Union, but never placed in use.

the exhibition fund, disdaining the interests of the stamp trade.

I hear that on the evening of the fifth day when the set became an "old novelty" some spoils were granted to those merchants who had not left the place in disgust.

I personally tried my utmost to have some of the remaining sets allocated to the A.P.S., S.P.A., and other U. S. and Canada philatelic societies, and the philatelic press advised of the action. I further sought to obtain the quantities I needed for my U. S. and Canada correspondents, but I had to leave Luxembourg without even one set. My conclusion will be simple, but drastic. I have decided to have nothing more to do with the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and its stamps in the future, and I hope my correspondents abroad will adopt a similar course.

DEATH OF HENRY LOOK

We are informed by Herman W. Boers of the death of Henry Look of Detroit, which occurred Oct. 18. Mr. Look has been for years actively connected with philately, a member of the local club, also of the A.P.S. He was an attorney-at-law by profession and is survived by a widow, one daughter, and three sons.

SUMMIT (N. J.) PHILATELIC SOC.

By WILLIS M. POTT.

Notwithstanding a terrific storm, some forty enthusiastic collectors of Northern New Jersey gathered Oct. 17, at the rooms of the above society to listen to a remarkable address by Herman Toasperm of New York. His interesting way of expressing the pleasures of collecting was illustrated by his miscellany collection, running from pre-stamp covers, penny-blacks, Wells-Fargo Covers and other classics to the more recent issues depicting commemorative events, birds, war scenes and religious subjects. This talk gained many new friends for "Toasty."

Mr. Fletcher of Summit, exhibited early U. S., which included the evolution of the 3c 1851, from essays, die proofs, etc., to the finished product, together with many pages of interesting cancellations. Many of these rare items were acquired from Dr. Chase's famous collection.

President Bode exhibited his valuable collection of Hayti, which is complete except for Scott's No. 180A. Mr. DeWitt's collection of battleship and navy yard cancellations attracted much attention together with the writer's exhibition of the 5c Huguenot, broken circle variety in full sheet form.

MESOPOTAMIA 1R, NO. 50

By WM. HESS, JR., 1531 Walnut St., Phila.

I have in my specialized collection of Mesopotamia a superb unused copy of this stamp with bottom margin and control.

I also have this stamp used together with No. 227 used and unused. (This being the same stamp with surcharge "On States Service.") I wish you would warn your subscribers that the London market is flooded with these two stamps (Nos. 50 and 227 used) with telegraph cancellations, while the postally used copies are quite scarce.

I might add that my copy of No. 50 unused has been passed on by Mr. Eugene Klein of this city, the Official Expert of the A. P. S.

If any of your subscribers desire information regarding postage and telegraph cancellation, I should be pleased to furnish same.

New Approval Books

OF CHEAP POSTAGE STAMPS BEFORE 1880

I have made up a large series of books of stamps under $25.00 each down to a few cents, especially of British North America, West Indies, South and Central America, Australia, and British Colonies in Asia and Africa.

In all these books stamps catalogued at $6.00 or less, are generally priced at HALF CATALOGUE prices, and better stamps at about 40% discount on catalogue prices.

My approval books, this season, are better than ever, as I have combined in them the many large and important purchases I have made this last year.

MOTOR VEHICLES AND STAMPS

EDGAR SHEFFIELD BRIGHTMAN.

Let us consider motor vehicles and postage stamps. What have they in common? Much, every way. Both have to do with transportation. Both cost money and save time. Both are of social importance. Both are everywhere. But especially, both are parables, signs, wonders, and symptoms.

"Why are motor vehicles parables and symptoms?" you ask. "Is it that they are signs of the restlessness of our age?" Yes, but more. Ever since a registrar of motor vehicles wrote to Zion's Herald accusing it of "pinkness," motor vehicles have become symptoms of what may be called the "force-complex."

From now on, as we have said, motor vehicles symbolize the force-complex. They symbolize the belief that the only way to deal with anarchists is to suppress them by a violence more powerful than that which they are believed to advocate. They symbolize the belief that if a man is an anarchist (or any other kind of "red"), he is probably guilty of any crime with which he may be charged, and therefore should be executed. They symbolize the dangerous idea that dangerous ideas should be suppressed by force rather than discussed in the spirit of love and reason, and that revenge may be better than mercy.

If motor vehicles were the only symbols of such ideas, it would be a waste of time to write this article. But there are motor vehicles and there are postage stamps. Before 1914, postage stamps were symbols. In Austria, they symbolized dynastic hopes and prides, such stuff as wars are made of. In 1908, a set of stamps appeared glorifying the Hapsburgs, with gaudy pictures of the emperor, Francis Joseph, in various uniforms and poses, and equally gaudy pictures of his ancestors. In 1910, in honor of the emperor's eightieth birthday, the same set was reissued in larger and gaudier form. The old emperor is described on the stamps as "Franciscus Josephus I." (Will there ever be a Francis Joseph II?) As the war came on, in 1916-18, another imperial set of stamps appeared, with crowns and coats of arms and Francis Joseph again. But not Austria alone was thinking force-complexes on its stamps. The Romanovs were busy too. In Russia a set of stamps was issued in 1913, just before the fateful year of the war, showing great czars and generals, glorifying Nicholas.

The postage stamps of the United States before 1914 were a happy contrast to those of the decaying empires of the Old World. They portrayed a few generals, it is true, especially Washington, Grant, and Sherman. But most of the persons and scenes represented were peaceful. Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Alexander Hamilton, Abraham Lincoln—such were the men our Government honored on its stamps. Scenes of history and industry were depicted also. Locomotives, post-boys, farming, exploration, invention—such were the themes that symbolized our civilization. On one stamp, even, a missionary is portrayed preaching to Indians. There are few traces of warfare visible on our stamps. Captain John Smith and Balboa appear, it is true, in armour; but no one thinks of either in connection with the military history of the United States. In 1898, rifles appear for the first and only time; sardonically enough, they are intended for use against the Indians and appear in the same set that contained the missionary preaching to Indians. But we were fighting Spain in that year, and rifles were handy.

Since the World War, stamps continue to be symbols. They are symbols of a change in the spiritual life of peoples. Among the stamps of Russia, in 1918, I find a sword—but a sword breaking a chain! I find anvils, books, harps, laborers, factories, hammers, a Russian "inventor" of radio, a celebration of an Esperanto Congress, together, one must admit, with proud portrayals of battles in the military history of the Russian Revolution. In Austria, I find laborers, telegraphs; a special set of musicians—Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Bruckner, Strauss, Wolf; and other stamps symbolizing civilization and peace. Or if I turn to France, I find that Pasteur, the great scientist, is the chief figure on her stamps; while the current stamps of Germany show Goethe, Schiller, Frederick the Great, Kant, Beethoven, Lessing, Leibnitz, Bach, and Dürer—and many Germans have bitterly criticized the presence of Frederick as unsuitable on the stamps of a peaceful republic.

How is it in the United States? Since the fat lady of Teutonic appearance who appeared in 1919 on a "Victory stamp" with a sword in her hand, we have had many stamps of which an American may be proud. The Pilgrim set of 1920 and the Huguenot-Walloon stamps of 1924 were worthy memorials of great facts in our history. The regular current set now in use is dignified and appropriate. In 1925, we had interesting Norse-American stamps, and in 1926, the Liberty Bell, which every one would approve. But of late it seems that another spirit has entered. In 1925, we had a Lexington-Concord set of three stamps, on every one of which were one or more rifles intended for use against the British. In 1926, we had one special stamp depicting John Ericsson, inventor of the "Monitor," that "Yankee cheese box on a raft," which was so successful in the Civil War; and in that same year, the battle of White Plains was celebrated by a cannon, with a pile of ammunition alongside. This year, thus far, we have two stamps, the so-called Burgoyne Campaign stamp and the Vermont Sesquicentennial. The former is adorned with legends naming four battles, and shows Burgoyne's surrender, with cannon and sword. And Vermont is not allowed to celebrate its sesquicentennial without a rifle in the hands of a Green Mountain boy.

Why all this musketry, this military display? It is the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Revolution, truly; but why must we think of it chiefly in terms of the force-complex? No wonder that a British journal remarks that "a mania for militaristic postage stamps seems to have seized the United States Government"—a comment which is weakly answered by Scott's Monthly Journal, which says that it is not militarism, but patriotism. That is just the question before America today! Does patriotism mean the glorification of the force-complex, or does it mean devotion to civilized love? We do not need to rush to the sentimental extremes of a love-complex to detest the emphasis of our Government on military force at this stage in history.

The other day I was writing to a Chinese scholar, who, I suspected, might be interested in novel postage stamps, and I prepared an envelope addressed to him, with the Burgoyne Campaign stamp and the Bennington stamps attached. Then I had misgivings. Shall I send rifles to China, postmarked, as they will be, by an and because of one, we have become overstocked with hinges. We intended to order 500,000, but through a mistake we put an extra cipher at the end of the figure, making it 5,000,000. As we can only use 1,500,000, we have 3,500,000 too many. They are tasteless hinges of a standard English make, the same as everyone uses, and we will sell the lot at a big reduction from the wholesale price. Write us for further information! appeal to attend the military training camps? I took counsel of a Chinese Christian friend, who replied, "The professor to whom you are writing is very critical of Western civilization." I reflected on how greatly the stamps would delight Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago. The envelope is now residing in my chamber of horrors. A five-cent stamped envelope with George Washington carried the letter; George Washington, in whom love and force found a noble union.

Motor vehicles and postage stamps are parables and signs and wonders. They are symbols of the spirit of an America proud of her might, trusting in force, yet afraid of her enemies, or those whom she thinks are her enemies. Is that the real America? Was the Boston which trembled before every expression of sympathy with a Sacco and a Vanzetti the real Boston? On such an America, my Chinese friend made incisive comment. "You executed Sacco and Vanzetti to save face; and I almost had to appeal to the Chinese Government for gunboats to protect me from your police and your mobs, while you prolonged your delay in the case!"

What is the real America? Is it the America of freedom, of culture and art and music and religion? When will this America make itself felt as effectively as the America possessed by the force-complex is felt?—Zion's Herald.

THE COST OF NEW ISSUES

By MAXWELL KRAUSE.

I am interested in "Calabar's" Colonial Notes in your issue of October 10th, and the communication in regard to the "stiff" price of 32c per shilling charged by American dealers for current British Colonial stamps. I am moved to make some reply on the subject.

It is all very well to say that a current pound stamp has an actual face value of only $4.87; but that does not mean that it costs a dealer only $4.87 to purchase and stock it. There are many further costs. The smallest of these is the cost of check or money order, or foreign exchange, and of return postage and registration, as well as postage and registration of the order containing the remittance. There is, then, the matter of damaged stamps, of badly centered stamps which collectors will not accept. Many Colonial postmasters will not accept the return of torn or creased stamps, and some will not exchange stamps under any circumstances. There is also the usual danger of loss—foreign registered letters have a small recovery value if lost in transit—and I regret to state that, on more than one occasion, I have been totally unable to trace remittances, which were without doubt appropriated by some needy individual in some far distant British Isle.

There is also the matter of interest and investment. A filled order is often not received until six months or more after it has been despatched. But the dealer's dollars are invested in the meantime. When a collector orders from a dealer, he asks for this stamp of that

Colony, and that stamp of this Colony. To cater to him, the dealer must carry a large and extensive stock and keep thousands of dollars invested at all times. To let the collector know his address and his ability to serve him, he must spend considerable money advertising in MEKEEL'S or some other stamp paper, he must conduct a business with the necessary overhead expense.

I will venture to say that is costs the average dealer 10% to import stamps—taking into consideration expenses of carriage, commissions to agents, losses from damaged stamps and losses from plain, ordinary crookedness. This brings the value of the pound from $4.87 to $5.36. I will venture to say, also, that no dealer can do business with an overhead expense of less than 10% additional, not counting his own time and labor, but only interest on his investment, advertising, stationery, postage, etc. This brings the pound up to $5.80. And he has left for his work and trouble and his faith in human nature, 60c on the pound, or just about 10%. If that is too much, and he is overpaid, he had better go out of business.

But I am glad to say that the average collector is human, understands that actual face value is not the only item entering into the value of a stamp, and realizes that, in the long run, he is not paying his favorite dealer too much, nor is being robbed in any manner, when he pays out 32c per shilling for a current Colonial stamp.

I invite any stamp collector to fill in his British Colonials now current without the aid of a dealer, fill them in completely, and feel that he has saved money over the standard 32c per shilling rate.

"THE FINEST AUCTION CATALOGUE I EVER WROTE"—Toasty

I have just completed the auction catalogue describing the Railroad postmarks on early U. S. which will be sold at unreserved public auction, Saturday, November 19th. This is the celebrated collection of Dr. Carroll Chase, and it accurately describes and types the early R. R. postmarks.

There are plenty of items well within the reach of the most modest pocketbook, and I would be pleased to forward catalogue on request. Hundreds of items from the greatest rarities to the more common items, but all the finest that Dr. Chase could obtain.

As always, a cash buyer of fine U. S. and Patriotics.

Ample Trade Terms to Dealers [21&33]

BRITISH PHILATELIC ASSN.

In place of the old Stamp Trade Protection Association there has been formed a new organisation styled the British Philatelic Association Ltd. This has been incorporated as a company without share capital, limited by guarantee. Its business is to be conducted by an honorary Council, in which, in addition to representatives of the leading firms of stamp dealers, there will also be a few eminent collectors. In many respects the new Association should prove much more efficient and effective than the old one which laboured under serious disadvantages with its shareholding system.

A circular giving the preliminary details of the organisation and its bye-laws is being widely circulated to collectors and dealers, and it is hoped that they will combine in large numbers to lend strength to the new association. The Secretary is Mr. G. J. Cullum Welch, Ormond House, 63, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C. 4, and the annual subscription is 10s.

The objects of the British Philatelic Association are:—

1.—To protect the general body of collectors, especially those residing in country districts, and throughout the Empire and who are not in close touch with any Philatelic Society or reputable dealer who can guard them against those unscrupulous persons who are trafficking in spurious, repaired, or otherwise faked stamps generally not sold as such, and in many cases offered in misleading advertisements.

2.—To take any practical measures to inform Members and Associates of current philatelic abuses, and of the appearance of new forgeries and, when possible, to take steps to check forgeries and frauds at their source.

3.—To establish a Committee for the giving of prompt expert advice on single stamps or on mixed lots, at moderate fees.

4.—To assist and advise Members and Associates who have been personally victimised in stamp transactions.

5.—Generally to guard Philately against any acts which might interfere with its progress or popularity.—Stamp Collectors Fortnightly.

A CORRECTION

The eminent philatelist, Dr. Emilio Diena, Rome, writes: "Under the heading, 'Stamps Not Listed,' by Mr. Hermann Focke, in the WEEKLY for September 19th, mention is made of several copies of the Luxembourg, 30 centimes value, rose-lilac on vertically laid paper. As Mr. Focke is asking for information on these specimens, I beg to inform him that the stamps are unadhesive, being cut from Money Order forms, issued on October 1, 1877.

THE PRECANCELS OF SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, HAWAII

By FREDERICK W. ALLEN.

In the second part of my article "The Recancelled Stamps of the U. S. Island Dependencies and Hawaii" in covering the precancels of Schofield Barracks, I made the statement that I believed the stamps to be speculative and advised collectors to steer clear of them because of the doubtful status that they held. In connection I feel that I have been in error and reprint portions of two letters.

E. P. Anthony writes: "In 1924 I went to see the postmaster at Honolulu about the Schofield Barracks precancels. He told that all precancels from Schofield Barracks were authorized due to the army soldier mail at Xmas. I saw the Honolulu handstamp made up of 25 small squares with a wire band around them to hold them together. There was also other of ten dies." He writes further: "Vailuku, Maui is a small town with gar mills, pineapple canneries, and takes quite a few curios. Most of the curios stores in Honolulu use precancels and mail your packages back to the U. S. for you. The postmaster seemed very accommodating as to information concerning precancels and informed me that he had used up his remainder of 25c steel Post dues by precancelling with U-60 handstamp."

The postmaster at Schofield Barracks, L. H. Gully, answering an inquiry from Mr. C. F. Richards in regard to the status of these precancels, replied as follows: "My recollection regarding the precancels is about this—The P. O. Dept. for several years published in the Bulletin authority for any office to use precancels where the business around Christmas requires it. So for the past few years we have done this, except the season when we used the precancel stamps from the main office of Honolulu, which this is a station. I had a small stamp made three years ago (1924) and on December 1st precancelled everything we had in stock, including a lot of readings and odd sheets of other stamps. The result was that the rush soon sold everything even before many of the collectors got some of the types used. On my part I mailed out many parcels to persons asking for the stamps and especially the Hardings. I know I, as well as some other collectors, sent out full sets of Hardings on parcels. I sent the fine covers to Saunders and others. This season on account of my stamp being so small, it was decided by Mr. Macnam, P. M. at Honolulu, that this station should use the precancels of the main office, and we sold several thousand sets worth of the various denominations. You are right about some of the precancels, especially the Hardings, having full gum and being purchased over counter. Before the strict order came out I received a number of requests, mostly through the main office, for these stamps where the letters specified that stamps were wanted for collections. Referring this to the P. M. at Honolulu, as told that there was no objection to sending stamps in response to such requests, though I never sent in quantities. So far as I remember, three seasions ago all the current issues were precancelled here as well as some of the older ones. These stamps were used first without any regard to call or demand from collectors and I was surprised when the calls began to come in for them. In most cases I mailed some parcel to the applicant. It seems that these are precancelled properly as they were made with the purpose of reducing work in the office, and I know that none were issued for speculation."

EMILY KING,

P. O. Box 753, Halifax, Nova Scotia

KING EDWARD VII LAND

We are indebted to Percy A. Hill for the following communication addressed to Victor T. Howes, Willoughby, N. S.

W., by H. Wright of the Mitchell Library, Sydney, Australia, and dealing with the 1d New Zealand overprinted in two lines "King Edw. VII Land." It is a stamp considered to have poor credentials, but we gladly print the letter:—

"In Shackleton's book 'The Heart of the Antarctic,' Vol. 1, p. 36, the author says—'The Postmaster General of the Dominion (New Zealand) had printed off for us a small issue of special stamps, and constituted me a postmaster for the period of my stay in the Antarctic, an ar-rangment that much simplified the handling of correspondence sent back from the winter quarters with the Nimrod.'

The Australian Philatelist, Feb., 1908, stated that Sir Joseph Ward had authorised the overprinting of a hundred sheets of penny stamps for use in the Far South.

The same magazine, July, 1909, printed the official report sent by Shackleton to the Postmaster General of N. Z., in which the following occurs—'On reaching the Antarctic Circle in Ross quadrant, North King Edward VII Land, I issued the first of the stamps in order that members of the expedition might despatch letters back to New Zealand by the Koonya, the steamer which had towed

the Nimrod down to the ice. On reaching the territorial waters of King Edward VII land, and while lying alongside the ice, about a mile from land, I formally opened a post office as a branch of the New Zealand Post Office. I received letters for despatch at the first opportunity and issued stamps for future correspondence. The mail brought from New Zealand and then opened, included about 800 letters, addressed to non-existent persons. These letters were no doubt intended to be returned to the sender . . . Letters that could not be delivered were returned . . . I opened a branch of the Post Office on the inland plateau in latitude 88 deg. 5 min.

south, longitude 162 deg. east, on January 7, 1908. Some 2,000 letters passed through my hands and I sold the bulk of the stamps to members of our little community."

EDITORIAL

It is known that the prohibition to the mails of this country of catalogues issued abroad because these works contained illustrations of U. S. stamps that did not comply with the regulations of the post office department has entailed confusion and hardship of persons overseas who do a considerable business in this country. Further, illustrations of foreign stamps without the white lines have been deemed justification for confiscation of copies of stamp journals addressed to collectors in this country.
In seeking information that would be helpful in view of the circumstances, we learn that if the letter of the regulations of the department are adhered to, there is no present remedy. No doubt an attempt will be made to obtain an abatement of the ruling in cases such as indicated. In this connection, "The Question of Stamp Illustrations" as reported in the issue of the WEEKLY dated July 4, 1927, should be referred to as in the explanation, the limitations of the Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1923, in favor of philatelic publishers are definitely named.

News of the death of Percy McGraw Mann of Philadelphia, which was received first from Mr. P. M. Wolsieffer of that city, has shocked many followers of philately who will realize that a most earnest student of stamps has passed on.
Mr. Mann, while known personally to a legion of collectors, was known to many more through his articles and several pamphlets of merit; and also, through his Philadelphia Stamp News, a weekly that was a commendable example of journalism, which was abandoned only after Mr. Mann had expended freely from his purse to provide the reading public with a good paper. At different times in the past, he attended the national conventions and only last August he was associated with the convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans. None will gainsay that Mr. Mann was not a thorough philatelist and while he essayed stamp dealing at times, our impression was that he was a collector at heart. He was the true student who liked the personal contacts of philately, and while not always practical, perhaps, there could be no doubting his affection for stamps. It is sad to realize that Mr. Mann has not been spared to complete his philatelic work that had so strong an attraction

From Roscoe B. Martin, President of the First National Bank, Forestville,
New York, we have heard that the October number of the New York Masonic Outlook, published by the Board of General Activities of the Grand Lodge of New York, F. & A. M., 71 West 23rd Street, New York, includes one of the most remarkable stamp articles that has ever appeared in the outside press. The subject of the story is a fascinating one,
"Masonry in Stamp Cancellation," and the writer, John W. Nicklin, is no philatelic tyro; indeed, he makes the most of his material. There are illustrations of twenty-one cancellations, and all in all, the article is one of exceptional interest and merit, we wish to add. Mr. Nicklin has struck an original lead and his idea of studying the suggestions of special cancellations should be emulated by others who are competent to read the full significance of postal obliterations that were calculated to carry a message to the knowing, in connection with performing the duty of stamp cancellation.
There are a number of other subjects for articles similar to Mr. Nicklin's, ranging from caricature to music, let us say; and non-philatelic editors might be keen to recognize the interest of contributions of the kind.

Through the courtesy of Mr. N. B.
Paulson, we have seen a variety of the pseudo philanthropic labels that were used with the consent, if not the agency of postmasters, in some of the towns in the '70's to serve notice on the recipients of the letters that were held for postage due that the amount in arrears had been paid by some individual or institution, thereby preventing the mail from being sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington. The following is the wording of a label that was placed on a local letter mailed in New Haven, Conn., bearing a 2c brown of the 1870 design: "Pro Bono Publico. This letter was found in the New Haven Post Office Not Stamped, and would have been sent to the Dead Letter Office. John G. Chapman, 'the'
Flour, Feed and Grain Dealer, of New Haven, No. 192 State Street, has paid the postage. If it does thee good, let's hear from thee." This and similar labels are curious examples of charitable and commercial enterprise and without traducing
the motives of those who employed them, the invitation to return the courtesy in some substantial manner is rather pointed in instances. We understand that the postal authorities prohibited the practice after a time as an infringement of their postal monopoly. An article on these stickers would have the attention of those who are appealed to by reflections of earlier American customs; and the material for such a review could be produced only by a cover collector.

A reader recalls that we made the prediction "some years ago" that the match, medicine and perfumery stamps of the Civil War period would again come into high favor. He says that our prophecy was based on the fact that the designs of these private proprietary were so distinctive and so typical of an era that is past that their historical emanations, as it were, combined with their philatelic force would soon make them favorites with all collectors of U. S. issues. The correspondent mildly reproaches us for the failure of our forecast and asks us for an explanation to account for our defective vision. However, he says that he took us at our word and began to get together these stamps, although he has found it slow work to obtain the specimens in good condition. Too, he has become decidedly interested in them and is pleased that his steps were guided to them. Our observations that were made as told by Mr. B. L. Wallace, seem to have gone askew, but we must plead for more time. We do know that several collectors started to collect these revenues and that in two instances they relinquished their pursuit in a short time because of the difficulty that they had to find specimens in fine conditions, when they were able to get the stamps at all.
While huge numbers of many of the proprietary stamps of the first issue were used, yet the number destroyed in removing the contents from the stamped bottles and packages was high. In consequence, immaculate specimens are rare, aside from any question of scarcity; and this consideration coupled with their classification as a specialty retards their popularity. However, we supposed that in view of their admitted fascinations, the wave of interest in all U. S. issues would reach them. Nevertheless, it is known that a fair number of men are quietly progressing with the stamps and that they are as well pleased as not at the neglect with which these issues are treated. Any real demand for them would boost prices in a decided way.

CANAL ZONE AGENCY

(Clipping from E. J. Rall.)
The sales of Canal Zone stamps for collection purposes reached such proportions in 1924, that in order to facilitate the handling of such sales, it was deemed advisable to concentrate all philatelic orders at one office, Balboa Heights, and designate it the official Canal Zone philatelic agency, the Panama Canal Record ys.
Due to the complete change of Canal one stamps in 1924, at which time the e of Republic of Panama stamps surcharged Canal Zone was discontinued, d the use of United States stamps rcharged Canal Zone established, the es for the first three months amounted $1,924.57, the greatest volume of business for the agency for any like period nce its establishment. Excluding this month period, the records show a continued increase in the amount of yearly business. Orders and their value have en as follows:

| Period. | No. orders | filled. | Amount. |

THE LUXEMBURG EXHIBITION

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

It has often been claimed for stamp collecting that it teaches geography, but the philatelist has got to come to Luxemburg to realise how familiar everything is in this small State if you only know its stamps. And Luxemburg is full of stamps and stamp collectors this week, for the country is celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of the stamps of the Grand Duchy. They come from every country in Europe, and you cannot mistake them, for their classeurs, tweezers, and magnifying glasses are spread upon the tables on the terrace of every hotel and café, and they improve the aperitive, and even meal time, by "swapping" or selling. The little town is one great stamp bourse. Not even the great fair now on, founded six centuries ago by the blind King John, can entirely distract them, and some were busy with their stamps in the electric glare while awaiting their chance to capture a car in the "course des autos."

One might have estimated the popularity of stamp collecting in Luxemburg by the vast crowd that queued up at the gates of the Palais Municipal, where the International Philatelic Exhibition was held. The town, with a population of less than 50,000, has a philatelic society of 1,200 members, which organised the exhibition under Government auspices in celebration of the seventy-fifth year since the introduction of stamps in the Grand Duchy. Long before his Royal Highness Prince Felix performed the opening ceremony there were between 3,000 and 4,000 people awaiting admission, and at midday the Place d'Armes in front of the exhibition was full. Many had come to secure sets of the pretty issue of commemorative postage stamps made for the occasion, which could only be obtained at the little post office established temporarily within the exhibition itself.

These stamps were in five denominations, 25 centimes purple, 50 centimes green, 75 centimes red, 1 franc black, 1 1/2 franc blue. The total face value of the set was thus four francs, but only one set was allowed on each admission ticket, which cost three francs, so the net cost per set was seven francs; these sets were soon changing hands at the café tables in the Place d'Armes and the bourse improvised at the "An der Stuff" restaurant and the Hotel Continental at from twenty to twenty-five francs per set. Exhibitors and visitors from abroad were courteously allowed to procure a limited supply of these sets without having a long and tedious wait in the queues to get them, and the whole edition of 70,000 sets was absorbed during the five days of the exhibition.

Prince Felix of Luxemburg is himself a collector, and spent several hours in the exhibition. His Royal Highness took a great interest in the British exhibits, which were among the best and most valuable in the show. They carried off many of the chief awards, including the grand prix, a magnificent marble statue, which was awarded to Captain R. F. A. Riesco for his two exhibits of Cape of Good Hope and Chile stamps. Mr. Riesco's Capes also received a grand gold medal and the Chiles a gold medal. Mr. Henry Harvey, of London, received a grand gold medal and a trophy for his collection of Victoria (Australia) stamps. A third grand gold medal went to Mr. A. J. Warren, of Epsom, for his Dutch stamps.

Mr. E. J. Lee, of Stoke d'Abernon, scored a remarkable success on the first occasion on which he has competed at a stamp exhibition. He entered exhibits in three classes, and secured the gold medal award in each. He showed a small but very choice collection of the "barquitos" or steamships of Buenos Aires, a study in the plating of the rare "Diligencias" of Uruguay containing many superb copies of these stamps, and an extensive collection of the proofs and essays of the Argentine Republic.

The early stamps of Luxemburg were much in evidence. A fine collection of them was shown hors concours by M. Lucien Hansen, a member of the jury. M. Alphonse Schon, of Luxemburg, and M. Antoine Simons secured grand gold medals for stamps of the Grand Duchy, and M. Bernard Wolff, president of the exhibition, received a gold medal for his collection of unused Luxemburg stamps and a silver medal for a new monograph he has recently written on these issues. The Grand Duchy Institute exhibited the original plates of the first two postage stamps. The stamps of the neighbouring Belgium were very strongly represented in the show, and a Croydon philatelist, Mr. Edwin Lee, is to be congratulated on securing the premier award in this class, a gold medal. An item in his collection which attracted much attention was a corner block of eight stamps proving the existence of a second, and until recently unknown, plate of the 20 centimes "Epaulette."

In addition to the Grand Prix and one other trophy the British exhibitors carried off twenty-five medals, including three grand gold, and ten gold. It was a surprise for many frequenters of international exhibitions to find Sir Nicholas Waterhouse showing United States stamps hors concours. About two years ago Sir Nicholas sold his fine U.S.A. collection at auction in London, when it fetched about £16,500, and it was not generally known that he had no sooner parted with his great collection than he started a new one. The twenty pages he selected for display indicate fairly well the richness of the second collection; there were some pages of the New York "Postmaster's" stamp, including a superb pair without the usual penmarked initials, some specimens of each of the printings of the rare St. Louis stamps, and in the general issues a unique used block of four of the 24 cents, 1871, with red cancellation, a full set of the "premières gravures" of 1861, and the 30 cents 1869 error with flags inverted.

A great collection exhibited for the first time was that of Mr. J. Van Nifterik, of Haarlem, comprising stamps and proofs of Holland and the Dutch Colonies. The part displayed filled one entire hall in the Palais Municipal, while there were many volumes left over for the jury to inspect. Mr. Van Nifterik received a grand gold medal, and an objet d'art presented by the Union des Timbrophiles de Luxemburg.—Postage Stamp.

A Study in Stamp Triangles

Here you are again Juniors! You wanted another Rebus contest and here is a good one:—"A Study in Triangles." Note the numbers 1 to 16 and send in as many answers as possible.

NOTE—Every Junior who sends in at least ONE correct triangle answer will get a stamp prize. Get busy as we want to print a big list of names.

No. 18 is taken from a U. S. stamp and of course is not illustrated in catalog. Contest closes Nov. 15. Study your catalog.

Junior News Items

—Alma Newcomb, So. Brewer, Maine, is a "shut in" who has a huge quantity of mixed stamps, especially U. S. Juniors will receive good treatment from her.

—Albert Broska of Cleveland writes us a newsy letter and we thank him for it. He tells us about the stamp club at the East Technical High School and some of the stamps in his collection. A couple of newspaper clippings are also noted.

—In a second letter Mr. Broska sends us another clipping from the Cleveland Plain Dealer describing the collecting activities of Donald C. Van Buren, assistant U. S. attorney of Cleveland. Mr. Van Buren has a boy named Hiram, and two months ago he tried him out on stamp collecting. It is very evident that "dad" got the stamp fever himself, because the article quotes Mr. Van Buren as saying:—"I soon discovered it is not a kid's game, but an old man's game, so I took the collection away from him." We have a good many Juniors reading this page who will not admit Mr. Van Buren's contention that stamps are not for boys.

—Bert Hayes of Dorchester, Mass., sends us a clipping from the Boston Post giving considerable publicity to air-mail stamps and their values.

—We want to hear from our Juniors at any and all times. If you write a little article for this page, we will try and use it.

A Study of the Current 2c

By GEO. P. FISH.

Take a copy of our current two-cent stamp and hold it with the long dimension horizontal, Washington facing down. Lay a piece of paper over the right-hand portion of the stamp so that the edge touches the "E" of the word postage and the "U" of the word United. Now cover Washington's face with tip of your finger. In the angle thus formed you will see a face, fashioned by the highlights and shadows of the hair and ear of the picture of Washington. Who is it? Some say Uncle Sam, others contend it is a witch. The same face is shown on other United States stamps. See how many you can find.

Junior Dictionary

Portomaerke.—Found on the postage due stamps of Norway and the Danish West Indies. It means literally "postage stamp," but as the latter expression is usually translated "briefmarke" (letter stamp) or "freimarke" (frank stamp), "portomaerke" is given the signification of "strafpostmarke," i.e., "penalty postage stamp."

Porto Pflichtige Dienst Sache.—Found on the municipal service stamps of Wurtemberg and means "Service matter liable to postage."

Porto Rico.—A fertile West Indian island lying 75 miles east of Hayti. It was a Spanish settlement until 1898, when, as a result of the war with the United States, it was ceded to the latter country. Civil government was conferred in 1900. Postage stamps under Spanish dominion were first issued in 1873.

Porto Scrisorei.—Found on the early stamps of Roumania (Moldavia and Moldo-Wallachia) meaning "letter postage."

Porto Stempel.—This inscription, meaning "postage stamp," appeared upon the first envelope stamps of Finland.

Portuguese Congo.—The Portuguese section of the Congo district, excluding Angola, which has its own postage stamps. Postage stamps for this region were first issued in 1893.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

HUIA BIRDS
New Zealand A23
3 pence brown

We illustrate a New Zealand stamp designed with the avowed purpose of advertising this far away colony to the world at large. New Zealanders are up to the times and desire that their wonderful country should become better known, as a favorable impression would tend to increase both immigration and trade. One method immediately thought of was by depicting typical scenes and objects on the postage stamps of the colony, which would carry them to all lands and climes.

Among these attractive designs we have selected the 3 penny A23 for the subject of our present sketch. New Zealand, as well as Australia, is noted for its peculiar forms of animal life, many being unique. In the present case we have a pair of the sacred huia birds. These are about the size of a jay and are particularly notable, to the naturalist, for the extraordinary difference in the bill between the two sexes. In the male bird, the upper one in the picture, the bill is comparatively short and fairly straight; but the female, the lower one of the pair, possesses a bill about twice as long and much curved.

In color these birds are black, but there are two wattles beneath the beak which are a rich orange. The most notable part of the plumage, however, are the tail feathers which are tipped with a broad band of white. These are much prized by the Maori chiefs, and are used as ornaments for the hair and also as a badge of mourning.

BRUNEI AND "CUTCH"

By ROBT. S. GORDON, Middletown, O.

There has always been a faint suspicion in my mind that the Sultan of Brunei put something over on the British Government when he allowed his domain to be included within the British Empire. He thereby acquired for himself a comfortable yearly income without the necessity for working for it, and invaluable ally in case of warfare, and a convenient partner to whom he could refer all obnoxious matters of state. Just what he gave in return for these privileges, I have been unable to discover; unless it might be the exclusive right of the British to develop the country.

If there is one thing that Brunei needs badly, it is developing. Of course, it is sadly lacking in territory; its climate is within a few degrees of being the worst in the world; and its total population

Advertising Chat

I was in Helen's Stamp Shop, 15 John St., N. Y. City, a short time since and was very pleased with the way our books are being displayed. If you want one of our books call and see Miss Helen. She knows stamps, too.

Alma Newcomb, a shut-in of Brewer, Me., uses Adlets occasionally and we hope any of our subscribers interested in common U. S. will write her. She has a barrel mixture to dispose of.

G. F. Rapkin, 151 Goswell Rd., London has just issued a revised price list of supplies. It is handsomely printed and will no doubt be sent on request.

The firm of W. C. Phillips & Co. has planned an ambitious program for this winter. We quote from a recent letter:—"We shall offer week by week extracts from our 'Bulletin' and compel those who have not seen our list to heed our offerings. It will be the most complete line of stamps ever quoted in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY and will prove that we have the goods for the great general class of collectors." For several years they have used under contract 5000 lines but in writing us Mr. Phillips states that they will probably use around 10,000 lines during the year. This will mean one of the strongest advertising campaigns ever launched in the WEEKLY and this firm has done a number of big things in advertising in the years gone by.

Our old time advertiser, F. E. Hook, is back for a "tfn" period.

The Premier Stamp Co. announce a change of address. The firm can now be reached at 65 Western Road, Hove, Brighton, Eng. Elsewhere in this issue will be found a Premier advt.

Cleveland Cady, who has used Adlet space for many months, has taken out a 3-in. contract, a sure evidence of business prosperity. The Managing Editor became acquainted with Mr. Cady at the N. Y. Exhibition and feels now justified in recommending him and his stock of U. S. stamps covers and cancellations to our readers.

Harry Huber sends us greetings from Trinidad.

Our old advertiser, C. D. Reimers of Ft. Worth, Tex., has recently returned from a three months' trip in Europe. He has brought home a big lot of stamps and he is now talking over with us a 5000 line contract. Somethin' doin' soon!

Write Portland for missing papers and changes of address. Send money and advt. to Beverly.

We feel it in our bones that the winter of 1927-8 will be the biggest stamp season ever known. The WEEKLY is going well over the 10,000 mark.

Advt. copy must reach us Wednesday to appear 12 days later.

Change your ad copy even though you use the same material.

These are busy days for us and we want to make YOUR days busy. Give us the chance.

Buffham's Bargain Bulletin will be sent anyone on application. Address 927 Lake Av., Racine, Wis. It's worth while.

The sale of the Fennell Stamp Co. to the Queen City Stamp and Coin Co. announced elsewhere, is an important business change. We urge a careful perusal of the Fennell advt.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

would hardly suffice to replace the page boys of the Capitol. Such matters as these, however, can scarcely be changed on short notice. But there is nothing, outside of Brunei itself, to hinder its immediate development.

At present its one industry of importance seems to be the raising of cutch. Every time I remember it, I intend to look up "cutch" in the nearest dictionary and see what it means. To date, however, it is still a mystery to me. But that does not alter the fact that the raising and exportation of cutch is the one and only industry of importance in Brunei. Such an important industry is it that it accounts for the majority of Brunei's European population, which, at the most one time the Sultan of Brunei was to have been ruler of quite an extensive domain. He was the "Big Bug" of the region, and what he said, went. His expeditions were famous all over South China Sea. He became so famous, in fact, that the British decided to do something about it. They were considerate of the feelings of the Sultan, however; so they promised to give him hard cash what he would lose by giving up his pirating profession. Moreover, to save his face, he could call himself Sultan. And he still was. Moreover, the British in their worthy desire to be of service, retained the Sultan of all those multitudinous details of administration which fall to the lot of every honest Sultan. All of this was most thoughtful on the part of the British.

Brunei has fallen on hard times. In an expansive moment, one of the Sultans donated about three-quarters of his territory to an up-and-coming young Englishman, Brooke. He probably regretted it the day after, but it was then too late. Then Brunei has declined with pathetic regularity. Its capital city is only a fraction of the people who inhabited it fifty years ago. Even its business is decreasing. Altogether, it is quite likely that Brunei will one day wake up to find itself incorporated within the limits of the Straits Settlements, and thus the fiction of another "dependent" country will disappear.

WHY DO WE DO IT?

Often we are asked "Why don't you offer definite sets, singles or packets in your adverts.?" It's easy!

If we offer a set of Bongoland errors probably only one per cent of MEKEEL'S readers are interested, but

1851, 3c Steamship Postmark

Dr. Carroll Chase has shown me a most interesting cover wherein a copy of the 3c 1851 was used in posting a letter in Cuba for America. The stamp is tied to the cover with the well known, but rather scarce postmark, within a circle reading, "Steamship 10" in black. On the cover we find in a concentric circle postmark in green, "Cienfuegos—20 Feb., 1855—Isla de Cuba." Dr. Chase writes that as far as he knows, this cancellation on this stamp is unique.

Recent Issues

Mr. Sumner Gary has submitted for inspection a block of sixteen, with top margin, of the current 7c perforated 10, rotary press, wherein on the first stamp of the fourth horizontal row, of which the plate number is unknown, we find a very minute double transfer. A portion of the right line forming the upper left rectangular corner piece is double. This can only be noticed by inspecting it very carefully with a strong glass. Mr. Gary certainly examines his stamps most carefully, and is to be congratulated on locating this oddity.

Mr. Charles E. Jandru, Jr., submits for inspection a block of eight of the 5c Walloon from a lower pane of plate—15753, wherein a variety is noted in the stamp to the left of the second stamp above the plate number.

In the lower right figure "3," we find three good sized ink spots, which are readily noticeable without the aid of a glass, but as I have not inspected the plate, I cannot state whether this is a plate variety or whether it is due to drops of ink falling at this point.

Mr. H. Clay Reeds submits for inspection a new revalued envelope of interest to collectors of entireties only, namely—the 1c green circular variety, Bartels No. 2,700c, Die A, Size 13, Watermark 22, knife 89, on white, overprinted with the double line type 1½c. As all of the dies used for making the double line overprint are identical, we are unable to state where this envelope was surcharged.

Air Mail Notes

Mr. Charles E. Jandru, Jr., kindly sends an air mail cover bearing a special circular postmark in green, 1½" in diameter reading, "Worcester Airport Dedication, Worcester, Mass., Oct. 12, 1927."

Mr. Jandru writes that this mail was carried from Worcester to Boston to connect with C.A.M. No. 1. The Pilot was Mr. Harry Stark, and his trip was sponsored by the Colonial Air Transport Company, the owners and operators of C.A.M. No. 1. The trip was made on the Dedication Day only, and is not a regular stopping point. The cover in addition bears a Boston postmark of October 12th—5 P.M., and a Philadelphia postmark of October 13th—10.30 A. M.

The same correspondent writes that when the passenger service was opened up between Boston and Nantucket, Pilot Wickford signed six covers which he carried from Boston to Nantucket, and mailed them from that point. They bear no special postmarks, but are interesting souvenirs of the occasion.

The Information Service of the Post Office Department announces under date of October 10th, that the Continental Air Lines Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio, were the lowest of four bidders on bids opened on July 16th last, covering the carrying of mail by air between Cleveland, Ohio, and Louisville, Ky., via Akron, Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati, Ohio. This firm has been awarded the contract for carrying the mail, which will leave Cleveland—12.45 A. M. eastern time, and reach Louisville—7.15 A. M. central time. In the opposite direction, planes will leave Louisville—6 P. M. and reach Cleveland—12.05 A. M. The length of the route is 339 miles, and it is expected that service will begin early next spring when the lighting of the air way will have been completed. This is necessary, as practically the entire flight will be made by night.

The Post Office Department announces under date of October 14th, that during the winter there will be a suspension of certain air mail routes from London, to the Continent. The routes suspended, however, are not mentioned.

With a view to determining what change in the rate on parcel post packages now carried by air mail is necessary, Postmaster General New today announced that a conference between officials of the Post Office Department and air mail contractors will be held at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Illinois, on October 22. Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, Eugene R. White, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, and Earl B. Wadsworth, Superintendent of the Contract Air Mail Service, will be present at the conference, and assurances have been received that a large number of private contractors now operating the various air mail routes, will also be on hand. At the forthcoming conference an exchange of views will take place between postal officials and private contractors in

UNITED STATESPostage and Revenue

I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional collector. At the present time, I especially desire to add to my stock. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:

- (1) Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847-1880
- (2) Mint blocks, 1881-1900
- (3) Bureau errors, including part perforations, inverts, etc.
- (4) Fine early covers
- (5) Revenues—Inverted centers
- (6) Rare Confederates
- (7) Carriers (All Issues)

The highest cash prices will be paid for such properties, and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for properties upon consignment, but I am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.

If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me. Best of banking, commercial, or philatelic references, if required.

order to arrive at an understanding and agree on a rate of postage for parcel post packages carried by air mail which will be satisfactory to all parties concerned.

The present rate on parcel post packages is ten cents per half-ounce, the same as first-class mail matter transported by air mail. The department does not wish to fix any rate of postage on this class of mail matter, which will conflict with the express business now handled by private contractors.

It will be necessary for Congress to sanction any change in the existing air mail law before a new parcel post rate can be promulgated by the Post Office Department.

Philippines

Mr. Walter Bruggmann has submitted for inspection a new variety of the Philippine Legislative series, namely—a pair of the 18 centavo, in which the black center is doubly printed.

As the two impressions are more than one-eighth inch apart, the center portion was run through the press twice.

He states that ten copies were found in Mindanao, one of the southern islands. No doubt, an entire sheet of fifty were so printed, but Mr. Bruggmann writes that the others were used up by the natives, who did not appreciate their philatelic value.

Ascension.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the new 5p value. The colors are sage-green and mauve on white, same design as before, script watermark.

Eritrea.—New Pictorial Issue is in preparation, according to Il Corriere Filatelico. There will be three designs: (1) A native postman carrying a spear in his right hand and a letter in a cleft stick in his left; (2) native leading a laden camel; and (3) a native soldier. The series will contain fourteen values, viz., 2, 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50 and 60 cent and 1, 2, 3, 5 and 10 lire.—Philatelic Magazine.

Indo-China.—The Paris Agents for the French Colonies will place on sale on the 26th inst. entirely new postage and postage due stamps for Indo-China, as well as a postage series for Kouang-Tchéou-Wan, comprising the following denominations in the two postage sets:—1/10, 1/5, 2/5, 4/5 cent, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40 and 50 cents, and 1 and 2 piastres; and the following Dues for Indo-China: 2/5, 4/5 cent, 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 20, 40 cents and 1 piastre.

The current postage sets of Indo-China and Kouang-Tchéou-Wan, as well as the Dues of Indo-China, will be withdrawn from sale at the Paris agency on September 24th.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie.

Italy.—Whitfield King & Co. report the 50c slate, in the Volta design, and also the 2 lire 55c lake, in the type of Scott's 85.

Newfoundland.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the following information:

Thanks to the High Commissioner for Newfoundland, I am able to give the following information with regard to the projected issue of stamps which is to appear on the 1st January next. They are engraved and printed by Messrs. Whitehead Morris & Co. The designs have been proved and all the colours with the exception of the 15, 20 and 30c. They are all pictorial stamps, a little larger in size than the current issue, but not quite so large as the Caribou.

1c green, Map of Newfoundland; 2c red, S. S. Caribou, steamer between Newfoundland and Sydney; 3c brown, Portraits of Their Majesties, the King and Queen; 4c purple, most recent portrait of H. R. H. Prince of Wales; 5c grey, S. S. Sylvia, steamer St. John's to New York; 6c blue, S. S. Newfoundland, steamer St. John's to Liverpool; 8c lavender, View of Hearts Content, where the 1st submarine cable was laid; 9c dk green, Cabot Tower, First transatlantic wireless signal station; 10c dk purple, War Memorial; 12c maroon, Picture of G.P.O. St. John's; 15c (brn.), Picture of first Airplane to cross Atlantic; 20c (greenish-blue?), Parliament House, St. John's; 30c (Royal blue?), Grand Falls, Labrador.

I understand the slightly increased size gives far better scope for the pictorial scenes which are portrayed, and I think we may expect a very handsome and picturesque series of historical and general interest.

New Zealand.—2sh. The Victorian Philatelic Record reports that the 2sh Admiral has recently been on issue in a new shade of dull blue, much paler than the original indigo.—Philatelic Magazine.

Nigeria.—We have received a change of color in the 2p value of this colony. It is now being issued in orange-brown. Mr. R. Roberts submits a copy for inspection.

Peru.—Whitfield King & Co. inform us that they have received the Tacna y Arica design in a new denomination. It is the 20c and the shade is carmine. The only difference from the original issue is that the numerals "20c" are not enclosed in circles.

Russia.—Whitfield King & Co. and K. Lissiak Philately Co. send for chronicle the three values of the stamps issued to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the October Revolution. The 3k scarlet bears the likeness of three types of citizens in profile, the 14k pictures the territory of Europe, Asia, and part of Africa with the Russian country in red and bearing the letters "C C C P," the background being in blue; the 28k is in brown and shows the front facial features of three types of men, surrounded by a wreath and a view of the city in the distance. Each stamp bears the dates "1917-1927" except the 14k.

St. Helena.—Mr. R. Roberts submits for chronicle the 5p carmine and green on green and the 5sh lilac and blue on blue. It is curious that the values of the 5p of this colony and also Ascension should appear in different colors.

Turkey.—Exhibition Overprints. On the occasion of the opening of an Agricultural and Industrial Exhibition at Smyrna, on September 9th, the current postage stamps of 1, 2, 2.50, 3, 5, 6, 10, 15, 25, 50 and 100 grouch were overprinted with an inscription, in two lines, in Turkish. According to the "Echo," the first line indicates the date in the Gregorian calendar (this being the first time this calendar has been used on the stamps), and the second "IZMIR THOKOUZ ELOUL SERGHISST" (Smyrna Exhibition, September 9th). The stamps were available for postage only up till September 20th, on which date the Exhibition closed. The surcharge is in black, except on the three high values, where it is silver on

OUR POSTAL SERVICE

(Clipping from Ray Jones)
The first postoffice to be established in the American colonies appeared in Massachusetts in 1839. A few years later a postal service was established in Virginia under a law which required every planter to provide a messenger to convey the dispatches, as they arrived, to the next plantation, and so on, on pain of forfeiting a hoghead of tobacco for default. In those days it took as much time to transport a letter 50 miles as it now does to send a letter across the entire continent.
A weekly mail service between New York and Boston was established in 1672 over what is still known as the Boston Post Road. In 1683 William Penn set up a postoffice in Philadelphia.
The American colonies had their first postmaster general in 1692, Andrew Hamilton, and he undertook the task of establishing an inter-colonial service. The American post thus established was purchased by the British crown in 1707, and from that time until a year prior to the Revolutionary War the postal service in America was controlled by the general postoffice in London.
In 1711 the mail was carried every two weeks between Boston and New York, and in 1717 a weekly service was established between New York and Williamsburg, Va. Ten years later there was a service every two weeks between Philadelphia and Annapolis.
Following the assembling of the Continental Congress at its second session in July, 1775, it was decided to have a governmental supervised postal service and Benjamin Franklin was placed at its head with a salary of $1,000 a year. That marked the actual start of what today is the finest postal service in the world with the modern airplane its latest and fastest medium of transportation.—San Fran. News.

West Indies at Collectors Club

Reported by CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

M. R. W. E. HAWKINS showed his magnificent collection of unused West Indies, 19th Century, at the Collectors Club on Wednesday, October 19th.

The whole collection is arranged throughout by Stanley Gibbons catalogue and the owner seeks for every variety catalogued therein. For this reason it is generally reckoned to be one of the most complete general collections, if not the most complete, of unused stamps that exists in the world, the condition throughout being remarkably fine. If any varieties are catalogued in Scott's catalogue that are not in the Gibbons catalogue, they are also sought for. In general, all the West Indies are complete in major varieties with few exceptions and in a very large number of cases blocks of four and even larger blocks are included of rare and interesting old stamps. Among the better stamps noted were:

Barbados.—1sh blue, error, one of the only known 9 copies. Pair of Provisional 1d on 5sh and 3 singles and most of the varieties of the early issues with the rare watermarks and perforations.

Bermuda.—There was a great surprise to the members in seeing the wonderful strength in the Provisionals, due, no doubt, to Mr. Hawkins' recent visit to Bermuda. For instance, in the 3d on 1d rose, there were 2 singles, 2 blocks of 4, and a block of 6. In the 1d on 2d blue, an unchronicled variety was noticed "no stop after the surcharge." This has been chronicled on the 1d on 1sh, but never that I know of, previously on the blue stamp. Major Charlton Henry, who was present, examined the stamp and pronounced it undoubtedly good. Also in the same country there was an absolutely unique block of the War Tax, 1d rose, one stamp showing the word "Tax" omitted.

Br. Guiana.—There was an extremely rare 1856, 4c black on magenta, unused, and a number of copies of the 1858-59 issue, 1c red and 4c blue, including some pairs. In the 1862 type-set stamps about 14 copies unused, many of them signed.

Br. Honduras.—The noticeable items were 1d blue, strip of 3 imperf. vertically. 2c on 6d rose with the "2" showing the curved foot, very rare variety. The error 5c on 1sh gray. The "TWO" in black on the 50c gray. The 50c with the error "Revenue" in the middle of a strip of 3.

Grenada.—Is very complete in all the varieties, especially the Fiscal stamps surcharged.

Jamaica.—Very strong in blocks of the "pineapple" watermark, several values being shown in blocks of 4 and even in blocks of 10. Also a number of the imperf. varieties in the later issues and the 1sh orange with centre inverted, of which only 9 unused copies are known.

Nevis.—A beautiful lot of the reconstructed and uncut sheets of the twelve types. I noticed the 1d, 4d and 6d engraved and three sheets of the 1sh lithographed, several sheets of 1d.

St. Lucia.—Major numbers all complete and many fine blocks and a beautiful lot of Provisional errors.

St. Vincent.—1861 clean cut perf., the 1d and 6d. 1866 the rare 1sh perf. 11½ in slate-gray. The Provisionals of 1880 were a very fine lot, including a pair of the ½d on 6d one with fraction bar omitted.

Tobago.—Included the £1, unused, most of the Provisionals and many of the double and inverted surcharges.

Trinidad.—We all know how extremely difficult it is to get the rarities in this country, unused, and here as one would expect, there are many gaps. In the blue lithographed we noticed a 1d deep blue, early impression, and two later impressions, and many other rarities. The 1860, 1sh indigo with intermediate perforation and the very rare 1863, perf. 13, the 1sh mauve.

Turks Islands.—Included the 1sh lilac and a very large number of the Provisional issues of 1881, many in blocks, several with double surcharges. Here also is the very scarce 4d on 1d red, inverted surcharge.

Virgin Isles.—Noticeable items were the 1d green, perf. 15 x 12, and the 4d on 1sh, double surcharge.

A very hearty vote of thanks was carried unanimously to Mr. Hawkins for this fine display and also to Sidney Barrett for his interesting description of the collection.

Special Despatch to the WEEKLY ASCENSION & ST. HELENA

I understand that the 4d and 6d Ascension and the 4d and 15/- St. Helena are now obsolete. The 15/- may turn out quite a good stamp, being a rather odd value and I presume having been little used, in consequence. By the way, don't neglect the 1/6, 2/6 and 5/- 1922-23 on old CA paper. The 5/- in particular is bound to show a marked rise before very long, unless I miss my guess. Incidentally, Gibbons and Whitfield King now price it as 17/6 and £1 respectively. Fine used copies of the 5/-, as well as the 15/-, are going to be pretty scarce one of these days.—"CALABAR."

1908 IMPERFS.

We have just purchased a small lot of these stamps, included in which were a number of sets of the 1c value, consisting of the 4 arrow blocks, centre line blocks, four corner blocks, and the eight imprint strips of three (2 from each side, top and bottom); all from the "Star Plates" with 3mm spacing (listing 50% more in blocks). These make a most interesting page with which to start the imperfs., and at the low price offered should prove most attractive.

1c 1908, Imperf.—Complete set as above (9 blocks of 4 and 8 strips of 3), 60 stamps. $1.95 or separately.

Arrow blocks, set of four .70
Centre line block .40
Corner blocks, set of four .60
Set of 8 imprint strip of 3. "Star Plate" .75

FLOTSAM

THE versatile secretary of the American Philatelic Society, Dr. Holland A. Davis, Denver, Colorado, has compiled "The Rocky Mountain Coin Encyclopaedia," a new coin book that has just been published by the Adair, Book, Stamp and Coin Co., of that city. Such of our readers who are interested in coins will find that the little work of 80 pages and cover, which is priced at 25c, well carries out the promise of its title; and it not only gives the value of all U. S. coins, but tells the number issued as well as when authorized, issued and discontinued among other data.

SINCE Mr. J. Wallace, with Mrs. Wallace, left England on September 24th, on his first leg of a trip around the world to last eight months, he has been in this country almost a month. He will be in Chicago, November 8th to 13th; and working his way west, he will make Vancouver on December 12th. Thence, he sails for New Zealand and Australia, via Honolulu and Fiji. He has with him a good representation of the better stamps, especially British colonials.

WE have a number of letters in which the writers ask questions that have been answered in the "Stamp News for Juniors" department in the course of the last few months. In this connection, attention is called to the Stamp Collectors' Guide which answers the problems that confront the new collector and which may be had from our publishers. One of the reasons that induced us to have Mr. Poole prepare the book was to have the answers to questions most commonly asked, in convenient printed form.

MR. BERNARD E. CHARTER, P. O. Box 278, Milford, Conn., gives details in our advertising columns of an offer to supply our readers with the new Newfoundland set at cost.

THE Minn-Dak-Ada Accelerator, of the Fifth District of Lions International, published at Aberdeen, S. D., presents a fine half-tone of Samuel Valentine Saxby, "our district treasurer" who is remembered as a stamp dealer twenty or more years ago. He has been executive secretary of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce for the last five years; in fact, he has just been elected for his sixth term.

ONE of the air mail companies sent souvenirs of a first flight to their stockholders, explaining in the accompanying letter: "Several of our stockholders have expressed interest in saving these first flight covers and we thought you might like to have one."

MR. K. BAUMAN, Roselle Park, N. J., writes: "I read about the lad arrested in Milwaukee. It is said that a person bought $2,500 worth of stamps from a thirteen-year-old high-school boy. I really cannot understand how any man can buy such a collection from a school-boy, without finding out where the stamps came from." Mr. Bauman is not the only one who is puzzled.

IN answer to several inquiries as to the market price of Lindbergh autographed letters, Chicago to St. Louis flight, we can only say that several have been sold for from $50 to $60 at auction. We understand that at private sales, higher prices have been paid.

THE October number of Stampless Covers is a revelation of the enthusiasm and sincerity of purpose of the editor, Prof. Frederick S. Eaton, 70 Sachem Street, New Haven, Conn. Here we have fourteen pages of type-written matter that are replete with acceptable notes and the major part of the Bulletin is devoted to a list of Ship Letters. Prof. Eaton is stout-hearted, but he should receive material support in his work, or else he cannot withstand the pressure.

DEATH OF HENRY LOOK

The death of Henry Look of Detroit, Mich., was announced last week. Herman W. Boers sends us a picture of Mr. Look by courtesy of the Detroit Times. His funeral occurred Friday, October 21, many friends gathering to pay him a last tribute of respect. The Detroit Philatelic Society sent a floral offering and many members of the Society attended the funeral.

Great Britain issued the first postage stamps.

HAVANA-KEY WEST AIR MAIL

The first flight over the Key West to Havana air mail route took place on October 19th. I offer a first flight cover from each city, the two covers, for only $1.00.

Each purchaser will receive free six issues of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS, the monthly circular which tells about new air mail routes and new U. S. stamps.

FIRST DAY COVERS. If you are interested in first day covers send for free prospectus telling about my First Day Cover Club.

RARE GIBRALTARS

Among the scarcest of 20th century British Colonials are some of the high values of Gibraltar. Particularly so the 1 Pound deep purple on red, No. 47. We have one fine, full o. g. copy at a modest price. Also the 2s and the 4s in the same series. On approval or quotations on request.

British Colonial Covers

A few months ago we acquired a large accumulation of British Colonial covers. Most of these were registered covers from the smaller African colonies or protectorates, but many are from the West Indies and other colonies. Priced at less than catalog for the stamps off covers. They make attractive pages. Will you have some on approval? Also some nice Colonial items off cover, including pairs and blocks of Cape triangles, New South Wales, British North America, etc.

TOUVA SAYS IT WITH STAMPS

(Clippings from J. Cadek and A. B. Moss)

Touva wishes to announce to the world that it is a republic. It has been in existence as a modern State less than a year and its name has not yet a place in the gazetteers or on the maps. In introducing itself it thus defines its location in the interior of Asia: "Touva lies between Soviet Russia (Siberia) and Mongolia in a valley formed by the mountains of the same name and watered by the river Uluh-Kema, on whose banks stands the capital town of Krasny."

Being a republic is, however, not a new experience to the people of this valley. They set up a republic of their own, according to their traditions, when China was young and Russia still in the making. The name of their country was temporarily lost when some powerful neighbor took it over and made a change to suit its new owners. China gathered it under the dragon flag; then Russia incorporated it with the empire and the Soviet made it a part of Siberia. All this time Touva declared in effect: "I am a republic, despite what any person or any nation says." Touva, in fact, is in a situation somewhat similar to San Marino in the Apennines or Andorra in the Pyrenees—too little to be whipped into submission; so it was humored in its pretensions.

From its nest in a mountain valley in the heart of central Asia, Touva had little intercourse with the world. But it noticed that whatever came in through official sources bore a stamp and what-ever went out had to have a stamp. While peoples and nations differed in their usages and customs, there was one thing that was universal—the stamp. Thus, in joining itself to that great outside world it decided to issue its own stamps and make them a means of introducing and explaining what Touva is.

On its largest stamp, the one that is to be most in use, was reproduced a map showing Touva's geographical position. Other large stamps showed a typical valley scene, with fir-clad hillsides, a lake and a cavalcade of native horsemen fording an upland stream. Another set of stamps pictured the deer and the mountain goats of Touva. One stamp showed a native man, another a Touva woman in her fete costume, and a third the Touvan conical huts (yurtas), one built from bark for the forest people and the other covered with felt for the dwellers on the plains.

On one set of stamps were shown the amusements of the people—riding, drinking kumiss and archery; another set showed their industries, herds of grazing reindeer and flocks of sheep, women at looms weaving carpets and the great camel caravans which cross the Gobi Desert and link the Touvans with northern China. It would be difficult to imagine a more complete pictorial exposition of a country, its people and its industries than is afforded by this series of Touva's first issue of stamps. The inscriptions were originally in Mongolian, but a second printing is in English as a compliment to peoples with whom Touva has a considerable trade.—N. Y. Sun.

MR. C. I. CROWELL SAYS:—

"One thousand dollar sales from a single advertisement is my recent record from one of Oct. 10th, in MEKEEL'S."

As a result of that ad I sold a mint Hawker airmail at a record price, and filled other orders in high grade British Colonials.

I am satisfied better than ever that good stamps in fine condition can be marketed at fair prices thru the medium of the advertising columns of MEKEEL'S.

These are Danzig postage due stamps.

TRADE PROTECTION

We have had occasion to remark that there may be some understanding on the part of young collectors as to the obligations implied when they receive stamps on approval. While this uncertainty that doubtlessly exists in some instances seems far-fetched to most of us, yet it must be remembered that beginners have had no experience whatever, as a rule, in the business of philately. In fact, it has been noticed that many of the accounts that have been turned into the stamp trade protective organizations are against boys and girls who have answered advertisements in the juvenile magazines or Junior Departments of stamp papers. Some of those reported do not mean to be dishonest, but really do not know of the responsibility entailed by sending for stamps "on approval." Mr. Marvin Allion, a member of the Stamp Trade Protective Association, has an unprejudiced and practical view of the situation and he has submitted suggestions to the president of that society, Mr. Chas. H. Garrett, which we have seen. Mr. Allion in speaking of the young collector says that "he will do the right thing if he knows what that is"; and he asks that editors of all publications that have a considerable number of philatelic beginners on their lists address the young readers about the Approval System. The crowning instruction is: "Remember that when you ask for stamps on approval, you give an implied promise to be responsible for them, no matter what may happen." The subjects of form of remittance, time limitation, commission, etc., should be dwelt upon. We may add that the Stamp Trade Protective Association has made great progress under the capable leadership of the president, Chas. H. Garrett of Kalamazoo, Michigan; and that its helpful activities have been commended abroad as well as in this country.

SUBURBAN OF BOSTON CELEBRATES

The Suburban Stamp and Curio Club of Boston celebrated its 15th anniversary with a dinner at the City Club on Wednesday, Oct. 26. It was a notable occasion. We go to press too early to give an extended report, but we shall try to do justice to the event next week. Pres. Ohlund and his associates provided a program that was varied and greatly enjoyed.

New Approval Books

OF CHEAP POSTAGE STAMPS BEFORE 1880

I have made up a large series of books of stamps under $25.00 each down to a few cents, especially of British North America, West Indies, South and Central America, Australia, and British Colonies in Asia and Africa.

In all these books stamps catalogued at $6.00 or less, are generally priced at HALF CATALOGUE prices, and better stamps at about 40% discount on catalogue prices.

My approval books, this season, are better than ever, as I have combined in them the many large and important purchases I have made this last year.

May I send YOU a trial book?

20TH CENTURY CHINA

The eyes of the world are focused on China. Will she be able to throw off the yoke of foreign oppression and settle her internal disputes to the satisfaction of all factions?
From a philatelic point of view the country has never been as popular as at the moment.
We are fortunate to be able to offer at this time a quantity of the medium priced hard to get items.

1482 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

NEWS ITEMS:—
OUR friend Harry E. Huber has returned from Trinidad. He had a nice trip and saw considerable of the islands down that way.

STAMP-ITIS is the name of the official organ of the Texas Philatelic Association. It is an interesting sheet and deals especially with the happenings in Texas.

CLIFTON A. HOWES, past-president of the B. P. A. and an old-time contributor to the WEEKLY, has experienced an accident. About the middle of last month he was run down by an auto truck and badly shaken up and bruised.
Luckily no bones were broken and after being confined to the house for a number of days he is now able to get around again. He had a badly sprained left shoulder and hip, and he writes that he has what feels like "a cracked head."
The congratulations of a large circle of friends will go to Mr. Howes for his escape from what might have been a serious accident.

WE have received from E. Strasser a specimen cover from the Key West-Havana first flight of Oct. 19. It bears a Key West marking of 7 A. M. and Havana 10 A. M. A handsome airmail design features the face of the cover.
Mr. William H. Avery also favors us with this cover.

L. B. GATCHELL, Binghamton, N.
Y., an old stamp collector, is editor of the Deyo Oil News, published in that city. He sends us a sample copy and pays the WEEKLY a compliment in making the publication the same size as our paper. He writes:—"It developed on my job down here that we had need of a house organ for employees. Faced with this task I took my size from MEKEEL's and am enclosing the result.

MEKEEL's can't be beaten for size of page." Thanks. Mr. Gatchell shows that he is right on the job as the Volume 1, Number 1 submitted is well gotten up. It is nicely printed and illustrated.
CAN anyone send Herman Olick, 588
East 139 St., Bronx, N. Y., the present address of Samuel Barnett, formerly on E. 136 St., Bronx, N. Y.?

WE have been shown by Mrs. E. M.
Appleby some photographs of her collection of slogans, which secured honorable mention at the Third Canadian Philatelic Exhibition at Montreal, and also a prize award from the Tacoma, Wash., Club. The slogans are grouped under various headings and mounted upon cards in a very handsome manner.
The photographs at hand show the designations:—U. S. Liberty Bonds, Travel, Expositions and War. The latter is sub-divided into Training Camps, Army, Food, Navy, Red Cross, etc. Any of our subscribers who may wish to purchase or exchange slogans should write Mrs. E. M. Appleby, 301 N. Jay St., Tacoma, Wash.

"THINGS move sort of slow down in these Pennsylvania hills, but I have noticed for some time that MEKEEL's wasn't coming. I make haste to renew on the form which you sent." The humor in this can be felt when we add that the renewal slip is dated Oct. 1, 1910.
Welcome back, Mr. Campbell.

A number of letters have been received, describing campaigns for further issues of commemorative stamps by the government, but with all due respect to those who have written us asking that favorable comment appear in our columns. In behalf of the movements, we feel that the authorities at Washington, as a court of last resort, are competent to pass upon the merit of the claims that are presented. Our assumption is that the question of added work entailed by additional issues is one that must be taken into calculation and that the department knows best when and where to give a decision.

The stamp celebration and exhibition to be held at Cleveland is an event that will attract increasing attention as the time for the culmination draws near. We welcome this evidence of activity on the part of the Cleveland collectors and from our knowledge of their spirit, it is certain that promise will be succeeded by happy reality in due time. The work of preparation is being undertaken with full realization of the magnitude of the results that are anticipated by those who have their shoulders to the wheel and there is no doubt but that the philatelic calendar for the next year will be graced by the occasion. As particulars of progress are released, we shall be glad to transmit them to our readers.

Mr. Max Golding, Chicago, has shown us a first flight from Brunswick, to the romantic Brocken, the highest mountain in the Harz range, dated, 9-10-27, with the rubber-stamped inscription, "Mit Luftpost Beforderd—Postagentur Brocken," and the cachet, "Mit Luftpost—Par Avion."

The "semi-final edition" of the Prospectus of the International Philatelic Exhibition at Durban, July 2nd to 12th, 1928, under the auspices of the Philatelic Society of Natal, in co-operation with seven other African societies gives an indication of the importance of the great enterprise and the thoroughness of the plans under way to ensure its success. The Patron-in-Chief is H. M., King George V, and in the imposing list of patrons, we find among other influential names, that of Francis H. Styles, Esq., Consul for U. S. of America. There will be a post office at the Exhibition where a special stamp will be em-

The death of Henry Look, Detroit, recently on October 18, 1927, removes a collector from our world who through attendance at conventions of the American Philatelic Society had become known personally to many collectors and whose qualities as a man and as a philatelist gained the regard of those who knew him. While his death was foreshadowed, yet his loss comes as a shock to us who for so many years had the pleasure of contact with him periodically. As a collector he gave special attention to general United States and revenues and he had a fine show of twentieth century blocks. Mr. Look was fifty-five years of age, and was in the real estate business. He leaves a family, three sons and a daughter, Dorothy, who had just passed the bar examination for admittance at Detroit. The pall-bearers were stamp friends and included Mr. F. E. Franham of Chicago. Many of the Detroit collectors were in attendance at the funeral. To the bereaved family of Mr. Look, all sympathy is extended by the philatelic fraternity.

We have been shown a Pony Express cover bearing a three-cent of 1857 adhesive, the property of Mr. E. L. Stuart, Chicago, that has the early oval type of the Central Overland and Pike's Peak Express Company, May 29 (1860), Denver City, K. T., and the St. Joseph postmark over the adhesive stamp dated, St. Joseph, Mo., June 7, 1860. The destination of the cover was a point in Wisconsin. This date antedates that given in the remarkable article, "Handstamped Franks Used as Cancellations on Pony Express Letters, 1860 and 1861; and the Pony Express Stamps and their Use," by Mr. H. C. Needham and Dr. V. M. Berthold, in the Collectors Club Philatelist for October 4, 1860. This date is fifty-six days after that of the inception of the Pony Express.

Every now and then, a new idea based on collecting in a specialistic sense is broached by a writer and in an article from Mr. Roe, who has contributed many readable studies to our columns, he mentions a new wrinkle. In short, he calls attention more or less seriously to the field afforded by collecting the work of stamp engravers as exemplified by their products, much in the way that prints and pictures by certain artists are the objectives of art-lovers.

The recent references to the geographical locations of obscure stamp-islands have not passed without comment from readers. Mr. Eugene S. Stull, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., says that other countries present difficulties in this regard; and another correspondent calls attention to the trouble of finding out anything about certain of the celebrities shown on postage stamps and wishes that particulars about them would be given in the WEEKLY. However, he submits no sample names and he has been asked to send them in. There have been a good many articles on this subject in this paper and elsewhere, and the information is available in the aggregate in the columns of the philatelic press. We remember what a search we had for information concerning William Brown, pictured on the twenty pesos of 1891; and at the suggestion of a Spanish friend, we wrote to a learned society in Buenos Aires for details, which were long in forthcoming. When we had the sketch, it seemed that others were in a position to give the biography; and so the story of the Irish sailor, born in 1777, who rendered such signal service to his adopted country, Argentine Republic, as an officer in its Navy, became known to collectors. Scott's Monthly Journal has contained some instructive articles on stamp portraits.

Mr. Benjamin Cadbury, Philadelphia, to whom we are indebted for attentions periodically, has furnished us with the October number of the monthly, International Conciliation, issued by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The pamphlet of over fifty pages is devoted to the "Genesis of the Postal Union," by John F. Sly, Lecturer on Government, Harvard University. The brief preface by Nicholas Murray Butler says that more than 126 million square kilometers with a population of 1,792,000,000 inhabitants is within the service area of the great institution. The work is of surpassing interest and is an authentic record of the birth and growth of this most beneficent and humanizing of organizations. References to stamps are to be found on the pages and it is of interest to discover that the only countries that are not under the administrative wing of the Postal Union are: In Africa, Nigeria and Northern Rhodesia. In Asia, Afghanistan, Arabia, the Malay States of Johore and Trengganu, the Laccadive and Maldive Islands, the State of the Alaouites and Transjordan. In Oceania, the Tonga or Friendly Islands. Up to the present time, there have been but two withdrawals: The British Colony of Nigeria and the State of the Alaouites. We notice that a question that is booked for consideration in the future is that of the universal postage stamp.

LIOTT PERRY TO THE FORE

Liott Perry, well known in various circles of philatelic fame, will have considerable to say in coming weeks from his advertising standpoint. A full page advertisement heralds his taking a prominent place in the ranks of those dealing in U. S. stamps. Mr. Perry has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances and he has no hesitation in recommending stamps to those who in recent years have followed the philatelic fold. His stock of United States stamps will be duly set out in his advertisements and will no doubt attract the attention of our readers.

De surcharge means "Poor Regulation" and was for official use.

THE "NEWSETTE" HABIT

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN MINT 20TH CENTURY EUROPEAN ISSUES—YOU ARE A BUYER AND NOT JUST A "WINDOW-SHOPPER"—YOU APPRECIATE CAREFUL SERVICE AND FAIR PRICES—

THEN AND ONLY THEN WILL OUR LISTS APPEAL TO YOU—WILL YOUR REQUESTS APPEAL TO US—

We long ago abandoned the miscellaneous approval method of selling stamps — We are perfectly willing to send definite items to people who really want to buy, provided their references are satisfactory and their check is prompt—
HOWEVER—WE LIST OUR ENTIRE STOCK—And month by month it is placed before our customer's eyes in the "HOME NEWS" and "NEWSETTES".
TWICE A MONTH a group of from three to five sheets of offerings, called the "HOME NEWS" go to our mailing-list. These always include the "CHERRY BLOSSOM", which is a list of the newest issues and special offerings of the rare or recent acquisitions. Then there are country check-lists, set-lists and a variety of other lists which are brought out as our ever-changing, constantly-growing stocks demands. November 1st "HOME NEWS" will feature Denmark and Lithuania—November 16 will present Roumania and Belgium.

Experienced customers order promptly, and with their order goes "NEWSETTES", which is also printed twice a month, alternating with the "HOME NEWS". "NEWSETTES" lists only new and current issues—many items appear here two weeks before the papers advertise them, because we tuck them right on as soon as they arrive. We are really giving a WEEKLY SERVICE OF NEW ISSUE LISTS—The proof that it is appreciated is our GROWING GROUP OF STEADY WEEK-BY-WEEK BUYERS.

OUR BOOK REVIEW

By C. A. Howes, Editor.

We have received from the publishers a most sumptuous volume on "The Postal Issues of Hejaz, Jeddah and Nejd," by D. F. Warin, who had previously published a small pamphlet upon the earlier issues. The present work, however, is most exhaustive in every detail, and while every collector is not interested as a specialist in these issues, yet every one who has a good philatelic library will want this book for its own sake to occupy an honored place upon his shelves.

We cannot do better than quote from the publishers' announcement as follows: "The trend of historical affairs in the Near East, and in the Hejaz in particular, during the past decade has been, as is usually the case, reflected philatelically by many special issues of stamps. Extraordinary interest has been manifested in these emissions in practically all European countries, and in America, for collectors at once recognized a comparatively self-contained group and one where it was possible to 'begin at the beginning' so to speak. In these days of multiplicity of issues—and consequently enforced specialism—it is a relief for the collector to discover a group of countries wherein a certain range of completeness is possible. The quaintly picturesque designs, coupled with their attractive coloring, and their almost unique historical and geographical interest, are responsible to a great extent for their extensive popularity."

The volume comprises 130 pages of letter press, replete with 38 half-tone illustrations and 152 drawings showing the stamps, enlargements and details of varieties. There are two key plates lithographed in nine colors with enlarged reproductions of the central panels of the 1916-17 issue of Hejaz, so that students may recognize the Arabic characters which spell the values. Another loose plate reproduces the sheet of surcharges upon the Hejaz-Jeddah provisionals of 1925. In addition there is a fine large map of Arabia with adjacent Palestine, Syria and Mesopotamia. The first chapter gives an interesting geographical and historical résumé, after which the various issues are taken up in detail in a most exhaustive study. The work is beautifully printed on the finest art paper and the edition is limited to 350 copies, so early application would seem to be desirable for those who may want the work. The price is twenty-one shillings, post free, from the publisher, D. Field, 7 Vigo St., Regent St., London, W. 1.

An auction catalogue of imposing proportions has reached us from E. Luder-Edelman & Co. of Zurich, Switzerland, for a sale dated November 3d to 12th, 1927. Over these nine days of auctions there are spread a total of 6,660 lots, the first four days comprising old German States, principally a wonderful lot of Braden, unused, used, on cover, on piece and with practically all varieties of postmarks, including the numbered town cancellations. The Empire and former German Colonies follow.

THE BROOKLYN STAMP CO.
Box 149, Times Plaza Station, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Early stamps of New South Wales.

The rest of the sale includes the remainder of the world, with a fine lot of early Spain, this section taking up a day and a half of the sale. Also included are 166 lots of fine early issues of Mauritius, showing all stages from early to worn plates. The last 736 lots are largely early Swiss, including the Cantons, and comprising a fine lot of stamps. The character of the sale is well shown by the supplement of half-tone illustrations which accompanies the catalogue and itself contains 106 pages.

Mr. Charles J. Phillips has sent for review a copy of his new specialized Priced Catalogue of Confederate States General Issues. This catalogue is modeled upon the United States Specialized Catalogue issued by the Scott Co. and is therefore very complete in its listing of varieties, cancellations, pairs, strips, blocks, on cover, etc. Considering what has been done for the United States issues by the Specialized Catalogue, we agree with Mr. Phillips that it must be "for some incomprehensible reason that all the publishers neglect the famous issues, produced under such great difficulties, during the Civil War."

Mr. Phillips has certainly made a notable contribution to overcome this lack and the brochure will be found a companion to the United States Specialized Catalogue by all those who enjoy collecting the general issues of the Confederacy in the same way. There are thirty-one pages of text and each has a blank page opposite for memoranda. The lists are preceded by a table of important historical dates in connection with the secession and the war.

As Mr. Phillips has purchased many stocks and collections of these stamps, including the famous Curtis and Ackerman collections (the latter having incorporated the great collection of H. E. Deats), he not only has the material for writing up a catalogue of this kind, but his great experience and fine judgment give him a solid basis for the prices he has attached to the items, and he has the stock for those interested. The price of the catalogue is $1.00, post free, from Charles J. Phillips, 10 West 86th St., New York City.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

ZÄHLMARKEN PRUSSIA 01 1903, 2pf-50pf

In 1903, it was heralded that Prussia was to issue a set of official stamps. This was rather startling news, as the kingdom of Prussia had been philatelicly defunct since its stamps were superseded by the issues of the North German Confederation on January 1, 1868. It seems that the German Empire is divided into thirty administrative sections, each one of which pays a lump sum per year to the Imperial Postal Department for the cost of carrying its official correspondence, under a frank. The Kingdom of Prussia constitutes one of these sections and previous to 1903 paid some 8,000,000 marks for its yearly indemnity. But the Imperial Post thought this sum too small, and to settle any doubts the following expedient was resorted to:—

A series of eight stamps was printed, corresponding in denominations and colors to the regular German stamps up to 50 pfennig, excepting the 30 pfennig. These stamps were called "Zählmarken," that is "number stamps" or "accounting stamps." They were supplied to officials of the army, church, etc., authorized to frank official correspondence, in the amount necessary to pay the postage had it been ordinary mail matter. But during their period of use, from Jan 1, 1903, to Jan. 1, 1904, they really represented no payment of postage, as they were furnished free to all officials concerned; but at the end of the year the total amount of the accounting stamps used during that period would represent the actual amount of postage due the Imperial Post by the Kingdom of Prussia.

Brain Teasers

(The answers to the following questions will be found scattered through the columns of this week's paper. Do your best to solve them before consulting the answers. We shall be very glad to print the names of the Juniors who can pass this examination 100% strong. This feature will be continued by Mr. LeDuc.)

1. What second-hand article increases in value from year to year?
2. Name the person whose picture appears on the current 17c U. S.
3. When did the U. S. first issue postage stamps for general use?
4. What country was the first one to issue postage stamps?
5. What stamps appeal most to the younger collectors?
6. Stamps for Cuba have been issued under what governments?
7. To what country do the stamps belong that are surcharged "Posta Ceskoslovenska 1919"?
8. What is the meaning of the surcharge "Armenwet" on certain stamps of the Netherlands?
9. Certain stamps have only "Vom Empfänger Einzuziehen" on them. To what country are they assigned?
10. What is meant by the term "Sydney Views"?

Estados Unidos Do Brasil

This inscription means "United States of Brazil" and it may be found upon some of the stamps of that country. Similar inscriptions appear on several of the stamps of Colombia, etc.

French Sinking Fund Stamps

We have received from J. L. Riedel information concerning a new set of stamps issued October 1, by France. The three values used are the current 40c, 50c and 1.50fr and they are surcharged respectively 10, 25 and 50c. The surtax is to be used for the cancelling of the national debt and will go into the "French Sinking Fund." The stamps will be available for the payment of postage both local and foreign until Sept. 30, 1928.

Embossing

One of the processes occasionally employed in the manufacture of postage stamps, Embossed stamps are, of course, those in which the whole or some portion of the design is in relief. Stamps are embossed in exactly the same way as letter-heads, seals, etc., and the embossing may be perfectly plain on tinted paper, as in the case of the first stamps for Natal, or, as is more general, the raised portions are in white and the balance of the design in color. In this process two plates are necessary; one, on which the paper rests, forces the parts that are in relief upwards, and the other assists this and at the same time applies the printing ink. The first 6d, 10d and 1s stamps of Great Britain were embossed and these were struck one at a time, but later and improved methods made it possible to emboss all the stamps in a sheet at one operation. The envelope stamps of the United States form excellent examples of embossing as applied to stamp manufacture.

Junior Dictionary

Portugal Continente.—Found on many Portuguese stamps, and meaning "Portugal-Mainland." This is meant to emphasize the fact that though Madeira and the Azores are integral parts of the republic, they have their own separate series of postage stamps.

Portuguese East Africa.—A dependency of Portugal situated east of Rhodesia, and consisting since 1891 of the three provinces of Mozambique, Zambesia and Lourenço Marques, each of which has a separate postal administration. The territory as a whole is now known as the "State of East Africa."

Portuguese Guinea.—A colony of Portugal on the west coast of Africa, south of the British possession of Gambia. Postage Stamps were first issued in 1881.

Portuguese India.—The general name by which the various Portuguese settlements in India are known. The chief of these are Goa, Diu, and Daman. All the Portuguese settlements in India are under one administration and the same stamps are used in all. These were first issued in 1871.

Poschta.—Russian for "post."

Dios, Patria, Libertad

This motto appears upon many of the stamps of the Dominican Republic and means "God, Fatherland, Liberty."

1851, 3c Oddities
Dr. Carroll Chase has shown me a most unusual cover, namely—one with two strips of four and a vertical pair of the 3c—1851, orange-brown, on one cover. The two strips look on first glance to be a strip of eight, and Dr.
Chase writes that they belong together.
This shows sheet margins at the top and to the left of one of the strips. The pair has a margin at the bottom. This unusual cover shows a red town postmark of Clairsville, Ohio, and the stamps are tied by means of red grids. A second cover which Dr. Chase submits shows a strip of four and pair from plate six in the normal shade, tied to the cover with an olive-green Summerville, Ga., postmark.

1898, 2c Rose-Carmine
My numerous remarks relative to this scarce shade, has resulted in further copies being submitted for inspection. Mr.

George W. Bye, who has saved a number of covers used in the late ninety's, submits three showing this unusual shade.
One is postmarked—Carbondale, Pa., April 12, 1899. A second shows the postmark of—Flint, Mich., June 1, 1899, while a third cover with the rose-carmine variety, is postmarked—Marysville, Mont., June 5th, of the same year. All of these stamps, as well as the one recently submitted by Dr. Carroll Chase showing a dated postmark, were used in the Spring of 1899, at which time this shade was undoubtedly placed on sale.

Air Mail Notes

Mr. Charles E. Jandru, Jr., submits for inspection an air mail cover posted at Claremont, N. H., bearing the normal postmark of that town, dated October 11, 6.30 P. M. In addition, we find a large concentric circular postmark in magenta, reading—"First Aviation Meet, Claremont, N. H., Oct. 6-7-8, 1927."

Mr. Jandru writes that a special flight was made from this town to Boston, which connected with the outbound plane to New York on October 11th.

Owing to the inclement weather, the Meet was held over, which accounts for the discrepancy in the dates. The Post Office, however, used the special cancellation previously prepared. It is said that about one hundred and fifty covers were carried.

Under date of October 18th, the Postmaster General announced that on November 19th, bids will be opened at the Post Office Department for the operation of a contract air mail route from Atlanta, Georgia, via Jacksonville to Miami, Florida, and return. Provisions will also be made to supply Tampa. It was my

BUY TWENTIETH CENTURY BRITISH MINT COLONIALS

Collectors of these popular stamps are on the eve of many interesting developments. Pending changes are coming quicker than expected, and the market is being combed for the best in the speculative possibilities. New sets from a half dozen Colonies are about to be issued, new overprints from So. West Africa are in the market. The 5d values from the West Indies are in great demand with mounting prices. An active season is assured, and with a dozen stamps jumping in value it's a difficult task to pick the best stamp of the month. For the moment the 15sh St. Helena is far in the lead, but a dozen others are selling faster than it's possible to re-stock. If you collect 20th century and don't include British, you are neglecting a field second to none in philatelic interest and investment.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith)
W. Somerville, Mass.

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional, and solicit want lists from the serious collector. At the present time, I especially desire to add to my stock. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:—
(1) Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847-1880
(2) Mint blocks, 1881-1900
(3) Bureau errors, including part perforations, inverts, etc.
(4) Fine early covers
(5) Revenues—Inverted centers
(6) Rare Confeederates
(7) Carriers (All Issues)
The highest cash prices will be paid for all properties, and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for proper upon consignment, but I am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.
If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me. Best of banking, commercial, or philatelic references, if required.

impression that an air mail route between these cities had previously been established, but evidently that was discontinued for some reason.

Under date of October 20th, announcement was made by the Information Service of the Post Office Department as follows:—

"Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover will leave for Chicago tonight where, on October 22 and 23, he will confer with air mail contractors in order to determine what changes in the rate on parcel post packages now carried by air mail are necessary. Eugene R. White, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, and Earl B. Wadsworth, Superintendent of the Contract Air Mail Service will also be present at this meeting.

The present rate on parcel post packages carried by air mail is ten cents per half ounce, the same as first class mail matter. It is not the intention of the Post Office Department to fix any rate of postage on this class of mail, which will conflict with the express of the private contractors.

Whatever arrangement is agreed to at the Chicago meeting will be submitted to Congress for approval by the Post Office Department.

From Chicago, Mr. Glover will go to Helena and Butte, Mont., and address flying clubs in those cities on the feasibility of establishing an air mail route from Great Falls, Montana, to Salt Lake, Utah, via Helena, and Butte, Montana, Idaho Falls, and Pocatella, Idaho."

A communication has just been received from the Traffic Agent of the Air Mail Service at Chicago.

He calls attention to the fact that arrangements are progressing, which will result, in the near future, with Madison, Wis., becoming a point of exchange on the air mail route which operates between Chicago and St. Paul. The date of the first flight from that point has not been definitely decided, but it may be necessary that it become effective upon short notice. Under the circumstances, it is suggested that those wanting first flight covers should dispatch them at once.

A SWEDISH OPPORTUNITY

We have for sale a beautiful collection of this popular country containing 425 stamps listing about $1100 in Scott's 1927, and complete from 1855 to 1926 except for six stamps of the 19th Century, nearly half are mint, while of the 20th Century, 99% are mint. Of the owner was very particular as to condition, almost every stamp could be called super.

Among others, we note the following rarities:—1855 4sk gray blue and ultramarine (the latter unlisted); 6sk gray brown; 8sk yellow; two 24sk; both shades of the 18 9 ore; the 17 9 gray; the rare 1891, 55 blue green, 506 gray and 1kr imperforate; mint copies of the 1918, 556 and 806; the rare Landstorm errors, Nos. 437 and 438 (only 1 copy issued); etc., etc.

This superb collection cost the owner over $650, but as he needs the money, he will sacrifice it for only $440! A wonderful buy for collector or dealer alike.

British Honduras.—In the latest printing of the 50c, shown us by the Rev. W. G. Iremonger, both the blue and the purple are rather brighter than before. The new printing of the $2 is in very distinct colours, the green, though still a yellow-green, being less yellow, while the purple shows a much greater admixture of blue than that of the previous printing, which was a full reddish-purple. —Gibbons Stamp Monthly.

Czechoslovakia.—The K. Lissiuik Philately Co. report that they have had come to hand the 4k sepia, design as A18, perf. 14, watermarked Linden Leaves.

Dominican Republic.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two values of stamps of new design bearing the inscription "Recuerdo La Exposicion Nacional E Interantillana De Santiago R.D. 1927." They are the 2c red and 5c blue.

Egypt.—Mr. R. Roberts submits for chronicle the 1m orange, in the new King Fuad design.

French Indo China.—Whitfield King & Co. submit copies of four new designs of stamps recently placed on sale in this colony and advise that the following values in each type have been received: 1/10c olive, 1/5c orange-yellow, 2/5c blue, 4/5c brown, 1c orange-red, 2c green, 3c slate-blue, 4c magenta and 5c lilac, all in one type; 6c red, 7c brown, 8c green, 9c purple, 10c turquoise, 11c orange and 12c blue-green, in another design and the following in oblong format, 15c carmine and brown, 20c mauve and slate, both showing a large building in the centre with "R" and "F" in opposite upper corners; 25c brown and magenta and 30c blue and sepia, both as the 25c design; 40c red and blue, 50c yellow-green and slate, both as the 40c design and $1 blue-black and yellow, and $2 red blue and orange, in the same type as $1.

Germany.—J. L. Riedel informs that an entire new set of officials was soon be issued consisting of eight values, 3, 5, 8, 10, 15, 20, 30 and 40pf.

Great Britain, Offices in China.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the appearance of the 50c emerald green all through, scri watermark.

Italy.—Whitfield King & Co. report the 60c grey airport stamp with the surcharge "Cent 50" in black. Three narrow parallel lines obliterate the former value.

Russia.—Two more values are at hand from Whitfield King & Co. in the series to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the October Revolution. They are the 5k sepia and 18k blue, both in oblong format, the former value picturing a battle scene, while the 18k shows the likeness of six native citizens.

South West Africa.—Mr. R. Roberts advise of the appearance of a new definite surcharge on the Union of South Africa pictorials. The overprint "S.W.A." in black and the following values have been thus treated: 1/2p, 1p, 2p, 3p, 6p, 1sh, 2sh6p, 5sh and 10sh. I referring to the above Mr. J. Robertson editor of the South African Philatelist writes: "Why the authorities have applied the overprint over the words POSTAGE and POSSESS I do not know. I think that it should have been applied at the top of the stamps, thus obliterating the words SOUTH AFRICA and SUIDAFRIKA."

Turkey.—From July 19th, international postal rates have been raised as follows:—

Ordinary letter, from 5 to 6 grouch.
Registered letter, from 10 to 12 grouch.
Postcard, raised from 3 to 4 grouch.
Local postcard, from 2 to 3 grouch.

25th Anniversary Announcement

25th Anniversary Announcement

This is the most important announcement I have ever made.

During the season 1927-'28 many of my customers will have an opportunity to acquire items in United States stamps that have not been available for many years.

The opportunity will include all general issues of the 19th Century (Carriers only excepted), and also one of the few nearly complete lots of U. S. Local Post issues in existence, as well as a fine range of Postmaster's stamps and general issues of the 20th Century.

The opportunity will embrace singles, pairs, strips and blocks, both used and unused, an extraordinary showing in fancy, rare and interesting cancellations, and, tho I don't wish to over-work the superlatives, it is doubtful if anywhere in the world can such a marvellous gathering of U. S. general issues used on original covers be seen. The covers include rates galore both in single issues and in combinations of various issues and denominations used at home and to almost every corner of the world.

Single items worth from a few cents to thousands of dollars each in the condition that brings joy to the fastidious collector's heart go to make up an aggregation the like of which has never been offered before and which I suppose is not likely to be offered again. Certainly no competent collector or dealer even tho backed by unlimited resources would reasonably expect to duplicate this aggregation in less than fifty years.

In short, this is an opportunity to acquire really wonderful material for rounding out "De Luxe" collections or to further philatelic study in any U. S. issue covered.

Correspondence invited. It is suggested that inquiries from collectors unknown to me should mention at least one first class bank reference.

Some 25 years ago I began dealing in stamps.

During the past ten years many high-grade collections and lots worth from a few thousand dollars up have been purchased, sold or broken up by me. The list is too long to quote here. And rather than name any of the rare pieces that through my assistance now grace many of America's most famous collections, I prefer to state what I believe my customers consider to be of far greater importance;—I sell satisfaction—not just stamps.

Since the advance sheets for the 1928 edition appeared prices on the "August" 1861 issue and a few other items have been changed, but for the present at least 99% of the stamps and covers will carry prices based on the 83rd (1927) editions.

Our Washington News-Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

A New Postmaster Provisional?

Dr. Chase sends a photograph of a supposed Postmaster Provisional, showing in the upper right corner a circular postmark in black reading, "Woodstock Ct., Paid 3 cts." To the left is a circular postmark without the outer ring reading, "Woodstock Ct., 10 July." At the end of the cover there is a manuscript notation reading, "July 10, 1851." In writing about this, Dr. Chase states,—

"There has recently come into my possession the cover here illustrated. It was mailed from Woodstock, Connecticut, July 10, 1851, to Quinebaug, Connecticut, some five or six miles distant—both towns being in the extreme northern part of the state. The year is made certain by the addressee's notation on the left end. Both postmarks are in black, the one at the left without an outer ring being the postmark ordinarily in use about this period. The one at the right enclosed in a circle has no date, but instead 'PAID' and '3 Cts.' Of the utmost importance is the fact that this last mentioned postmark is clearly visible on the back of the envelope. The other postmark, equally heavily struck, cannot be seen from the back; the inference being that the postmark at the right was applied while the envelope was empty and the other after the letter had been enclosed.

It is a well known fact that for a period of a few weeks after the 1851 issued appeared on July 1st, of that year, the supply of stamps was entirely inadequate to meet the rather unexpected demand. For example, then current newspapers state that early in July, 1851, not more than one sheet of 100 stamps would be sold to an applicant at the New York City post office. It is, therefore, extremely probable, if not absolutely certain, that many of the small post offices were not supplied with stamps for the first few weeks after the issue made its appearance.

It seems reasonable with these facts in mind to conclude that the postmaster at Woodstock, Connecticut (then as now, a tiny town), had no 3c stamps and that to indicate prepayment he either sold envelopes handstamped by himself with the postmark shown in the upper right corner of the illustrated cover, or else that, upon request and the payment of the postage, he would handstamp empty envelopes in this manner for his customers.

I have been collecting and noting unusual items such as this for nearly twenty years and with the exception of the Tuscumbia, Alabama, envelope which is listed in Scott's Catalogue under the number 27a, this is the only cover of the kind from any town which I have seen.

Many of the Confederate Provisional envelopes now listed in Scott's Catalogue were made in exactly this same way until the regular issue of Confederate stamps was available. The only difference between this and the Tuscumbia envelopes as compared with the Confederates, is the extreme rarity of the former.

Can anyone show a similar cover? It is hardly necessary to mention the fact that the ordinarily stampless covers which were used during the first few years of the life of the 1851 issue are common and not at all like this envelope, because in this case the two postmarks were obviously applied at different times.

Mr. Luff has very kindly examined the cover and is favorably impressed by it. Should it be listed in Scott's Catalogue as No. 27b, and placed after the Tuscumbia, Alabama envelope? Undoubtedly there is considerable to be said on both sides. Expressions of opinion will be welcome. Whether or not it is deemed wise to list this envelope, it appeals to me as being of the greatest interest and rarity."

Air Mail Notes

The first International Air Mail flight from the United States was inaugurated on October 19th, when the flight was made from Key West to Havana. Covers carried on this date did not require air mail postage, but simply the regular rates in effect between the United States and Cuba. Covers carried on the first day bear the regular Key West, October 19th, 7 A. M. 1927 postmark, and to the left we find the well-known octagonal marking with the air mail insignia in the center, and reading in several lines, "First Flight, Under New Contract, Key West-Havana, October 19, 1927, Foreign Air Mail Route, Key West, Fla." Those that I have seen bear this postmark in magenta. On the back, we find the black Havana receiving postmark dated October 19th, 10 A. M., "IER Viaje Habana-K. W., Servicio Postal Aereo."

Mr. Herman W. Boers kindly submits a cover coming from Havana via Key West and this cover bearing the 5-cent Cuban stamp has on the face the exact postmark just described as being on the back of the other cover. This

U. S. 1916-17, PERF. 10, NO WATERMARK

This set is the hardest to complete of all the 20th century regular issues. We have just had the good luck to secure a small quantity of all values which we offer herewith. Whilst the price on these may not seem cheap compared to catalogue, we may confidently anticipate further advances in the near future in this issue.

H. A. ROBINETTE (Successor)

time it is dated October 28th, 3 P. M., and bears no receiving postmark. I am not aware as to whether this is the first flight from Cuba or not.

Under date of October 27th, the Postmaster General announced that bids would be opened on December 28th for the operation of an air mail route between Salt Lake City, Utah, and Great Falls, Mont., via Pocatello, Idaho, Butte and Helena, Montana. The distance between the extreme terminals is 476 miles, and all of the flying will be done during the day. Planes leaving Salt Lake City at 10.10 A. M. (Mountain Time) are supposed to reach Great Falls at 3.35 P. M. Planes leaving Great Falls at 9.50 A. M. will reach Salt Lake City at 2.50 P. M.

Under date of October 28th the Second Assistant Postmaster General revised a previous notice appearing in the Postal Bulletin, and the new notice reads as follows:

"All first-class mail reaching Key West, Fla., for Cuba, except registered articles, and except all articles addressed for delivery to the United States naval station at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, will be transported by airplane from Key West to Havana over route F. M. 4."

This route is established for the purpose of expediting first-class mail passing between the United States and Cuba.

Post offices and railway post offices will please cause due notice of the foregoing to be taken.

Covers carried to Europe on the Chamberlin-Levine trip have been returned, so we are told, by Levine to this country. It is stated that he has given most of the covers away, and I cannot learn whether those who ordered them are necessarily going to get them. As yet, I have seen none of these, hence I am unable to describe them.

THE PARIS STAMP AGENCY

By J. B. BOGUE.

Under "News Items" page 539 of your Oct. 3 issue, I note a query concerning the obtaining of French Colonials from Paris. Having just received a letter from Paris bearing on this subject, I am glad to pass the information along. The following is the extract from the letter received:

"Your letter came to the Agence Comptable des timbres poste coloniales, 36 Rue Vaneau where alone Colonial stamps are sold. The regulations there do not allow the sending abroad of the Colonial stamps."

The letter is dated Oct. 6, 1927, and signed by L. Nathan Caben (sous chef du Service Administratif au Ministère des Colonies). From this letter I would conclude it would be useless for anyone in the U. S. to order French Colonies stamps from the Paris Agency.

Incidentally Mr. Caben is a stamp collector, and a very courteous official indeed. I ordered some American Legion stamps from the Agency at 36 Rue Vaneau in error, and Mr. Caben very kindly bought them for me and mailed them to me personally.

By C. A. HOWES, Editor.

We are in receipt from the author of a neat little volume entitled "A Short History of the Falkland Islands and Its Stamps," by D. O. Sloan and F. C. A. Goodman, F.R.P.S.L. These beautiful and popular stamps of the lonely British Colony in the South Atlantic have not been extensively written up in the past, but they have not been neglected; and the present work comprises not only a summary of previously published information as to the stamp issues, but also includes what amounts to a concise Gazetteer of the Islands, which proves very interesting for those who like to know more or less about the countries themselves as well as the stamp issues they are responsible for. This occupies about half the volume and includes a description of the famous Falkland Islands' naval battle in December, 1914, when Admiral Sturdee destroyed the German fleet of Admiral Von Spee that had previously annihilated a British fleet off Chile.

Quite a little interesting information is given about the early postal franks that were used before stamps made their appearance and which have been more or less listed in various catalogues as if they were actually stamps. The book says of them, however:—"Although these franks are not stamps—some philatelists treat them only as postmarks—they form undoubtedly to the specialist an important link in the philatelic chain of the early Victorian issues, and must therefore be included in his collection." Then follow descriptions and statistics of the Victorian issues from 1878 to 1904, in which we learn that they were all manufactured by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., and were not the product of Messrs. De La Rue & Co., beginning with the watermarked stamps of 1884, as has generally been supposed. The latter firm had nothing to do with the stamps of the Islands until the new King Edward issue of 1904 and the King George stamps that followed in 1912.

An effort was made to find out why some of the stamps of the Victorian and one of the Edwardian issues were printed with the watermark sideways, but no official reasons are given and the statement of the authors that "it was simply done for convenience of printing at the time" leaves the question still in the air about as before.

The postmarks used by the Islands and also those of the dependencies where their stamps are employed (South Georgia, South Shetlands, etc.), are described, and the book closes with comparative tables, in both "mint" and "used" sections, of the prices according to Gibbons Catalogue from its 1906-7 edition to date, a most useful compilation for those interested in these stamps and one which will prove even more so as time goes on.

Bound in maroon cloth, 71 pages, the book can be obtained from Messrs. F. H. Vallancey, 89 Farringdon St., E. C. 4, or

Have You a Surplus of These?

We always want to buy for ready cash and at the top of the market anything fine in early U. S. stamps or covers. If you have a specialized collection of any stamps or series; a find of old correspondence; an accumulation of 3c '51s, '57s or '61s on or off cover; patriotic covers of the Civil War, either Confederate or Union, or of the Spanish American war; a few thousand Bank Note issues, even the common 2c and 3c stamps if there are enough to bother with.

Send them to us with your best cash price. Particularly if you have items you think are worth more than anyone else will pay, for that is just the kind we want. Our check or the stamps will come to you by return mail if you ask it.

Just now we are anxious to spend some real money for fine items, but don't want the culls at any price.

HERE AND THERE:—

IN the Masonic Outlook for October is an interesting article on "Masonry in Stamp Cancellations" by John W. Nicklin. A score of illustrations accompany the article, which is well featured. Clipping from V. L. White.

THERE is a letter at this office for G. B. McBean. We shall be obliged if someone will send us Mr. McBean's address, that the letter may be forwarded.

WE have received a copy of the Mack Avenue (Detroit, Mich.) Enterprise. It contains an article by Herman W. Boers seeking to interest collectors of that vicinity in the Wayne Stamp Society. Mr. Boers is one of the most public-spirited philatelists we know and is all the time boosting things philatelic. It would be a good thing for our hobby if every community had a booster like Boers.

OUR old friend Robert E. Sharp, 114 Garnett St., Atlanta, Ga., would like to receive gifts of stamps to be used in his work amongst juniors and shut-ins. We are well acquainted with Uncle Bob, as he is familiarly called, and any donations will be properly distributed.

WE regret to announce that Rev. E. A. Butler has recently been quite ill and unable to attend to business as usual. This news item will account for any delay in filling orders. Mr. Butler has just issued a catalog of Newfoundland stamps. No price is given, and it will no doubt be supplied on request.

"I have a cover from Bolivia that might be of interest—can fully vouch for it. It has a single No. 121, and a diagonal half of No. 121, both tied by one cancellation, 4 Sep. 1923. Name of P. O. not clear, but I believe it is LaPaz. This is just at the time when rates were changed, and the surcharges Nos. 138 to 143 follow; and No. 145 appeared in 1925."—ARTHUR BRUCE MOSS.

LANDSDOWNE (PA.) EXHIBITION

By C. W. BRAZER.

The Landsdowne (Pa.) Stamp Club is to hold its second annual exhibition on the first and second floors of the Landsdowne National Bank on Friday and Saturday, November 18 and 19. The exhibition will be divided in the following classes:—

1.—U. S. and Possessions; 2.—Great Britain and Colonies; 3.—Europe; 4.—Africa and Asia; 5.—North, South and Central America; and West Indies; 6.—Any Colonial except British; 7.—20th Century Stamps only; 8.—Specialties such as Precancelled, Cancellations, Aero, 1st day and pre-stamp covers; 9.—Open to Juniors only (under 18 yrs.); 10.—Non-Club Members.

Entries may be made direct to Robert H. Thomson, Secretary, 105 S. Wycombe Avenue, Landsdowne, Pa., in any of the above classes, a nominal fee of two or three dollars being charged to those not members of the club.

A special design for certificates of award, which may be mounted in the stamp album, has been prepared under the direction of Clarence W. Brazer, Chairman. The drawing which is in the form of an enlarged postage stamp has been made by Oliver W. Wilson. The certificates for first prize will be in blue, second prize in red, and third prize in green, similar to the colors of the five, three and two cent stamps, and the number of the prize, class, name, year, and kind of collection will be filled in upon the certificates when awarded. The central feature of the certificate is, of course, a composition showing the various methods of mail transportation now in vogue.

The exhibition last year was an exceptional success resulting in a considerable increase in membership of the club. From the entries already received it is expected that this year's exhibition will far surpass that of last year, as a number of important collections by non-members have been especially invited. Last year Col. Steinmetz exhibited his collection of 1869 ninety cent stamps and the Hungarian Prince's wonderful collection of cancelled stamps of his own country was also a feature. This was obtained through the efforts of Mr. Eugene Klein, an honorary member of the club. The Committee in charge is composed of Dr. F. E. Locy, Chairman, John Huston and Robert H. Thomson.

WHY BILL SAVES STAMPS

Sometimes I come home feeling blue, and ornery, and cross, and glum, from thinking of the bills come due, and business being on the bum. If I was like some ginks I know, I'd beat my wife and tear my hair, and round the house I'd loudly blow, and growl and snarl like Old Man Bear. But such procedure is for scamps who haven't learned a better way, for I get out my postage stamps to chase the troubles of the day.

I light my pipe, and go to work, among my friends from lands afar, and soon am dreaming of the Turk, or temple bells of Zanzibar. This Iceland speaks of midnight sun, this Panama of the canal, and as I sort them one by one, in every one I find a pal. I soon forget the bills to pay, and that the world is full of bunk, as with my postage stamps I play, the stamps that some folks think are junk.

Some nights I go to Argentine, or through Bulgaria I roam, and when enough I think I've seen, I simply quit—and I am home! I've met strange folks, and princes, too, and kings, and queens, and heroes brave, and animals to fill a zoo, among the postage stamps I save. I've journeyed down the river Nile, and penetrated far-off nooks, and yet I've stayed home all the while, and pasted postage stamps in books.

I might play cards or Kelly pool, or sit around and chew the fat, but with my stamps I'd rather fool, right in the back room of my flat.

BILL BLOSS.

NEW YORK ARREST

We learn that Fred Schmidt, a stamp and coin dealer of N. Y. C., has been arrested and held in $10,000 bail on a charge of possessing stolen postage stamps. The stamps, reported to have been found in Schmidt's office, were believed to have been part of $225,000 worth stolen nearly a year ago from the postoffice at Pawtucket, R. I.

SUBURBAN'S ANNUAL BANQUET
Boston's Well Known Stamp And Curio Club Has A Very Successful Celebration
By FRED O. OHLUND.

Another page of philatelic history has been written in the life of the Suburban Stamp and Curio Club of Boston. On the evening of Wednesday, October 26, there assembled 80 members and friends, to observe the 15th anniversary, at the Boston City Club, and also to honor the founders.

The guests of honor were, Roland M.
Baker, Postmaster of Boston, and Rep.
Willard O. Wylie, managing editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

After a sumptuous dinner, our toastmaster and vice-president of the club, Albert A. Marcher, opened the program by introducing Henry Schumacher, member No. 1, at whose home the club was organized, and who was its first president. He spoke briefly of the early days of formation. The minutes of the first two meetings were read by Dr. F. C.
Thompson, the original Secretary-Treasurer. These meetings founded the club on Oct. 24, 1912, with seven members, who met at each other's homes twice each month, until an increased membership made it necessary to have a larger meeting room.

Mr. Schumacher then introduced the founders of the club who were present, Fernald Hutchins, Jerome A. Gallant,
Dr. E. C. Thompson, and Col. J. R.
Smith.

As a mark of appreciation for his activities in making the Suburban known as the premier stamp collector's club, a gift of a bronze elephant cigar lighter and ash tray was made by Mr. Schu-macher, to Frederick O. Ohlund, President. The gift was contained in 15 wrappers, one for each year of the club's existence, and each had a typewritten note to be read before proceeding with the next one. The 15th wrapper contained the gift. These notes were full of wit and made a lot of fun.

The President responded with remarks on what the club is and why it is so successful, with a membership of over 200, and applications submitted at every meeting. He also recalled to those present that the aims and objects laid down by the founders for their guidance had served so well that there had been but slight change or addition thereto in all these years.

A philatelic gathering is not complete without some well known philatelic personages. These were well represented by the guests of the evening. Roland

M. Baker, Postmaster of Boston, expressed his interest in the Club, and called attention to the activities of the Philatelic Agency at Washington.

Willard O. Wylie, State Representative and Managing Editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, is a much sought individual at stampic gatherings. His topic covered a clever dissertation on the four "F's" of stamp collecting:—Friendship, Fun, Finds and Financial profit.

A souvenir was given each individual,
being a large button printed for the occasion with a bell attached to a blue ribbon, with "I was there with bells on"
in gold letters.

The entertainment was under the direction of "our own Sam," S. Wilson Bailey, who is a performer of note in magic and wizardry. The talent was of good quality, keeping the members quite enthused thruout the evening: Sadie
Campbell, Scotch Lassie act; Ginger
Gordon, Cabaret; Mary Rumrill, Pianist;
Charlotte McCabe, Shoe Dancing; Ray
Hillier, Magic; Andrew Vichoci, Piano
Accordion; Arlene Shrower, Contralto Soloist. The program was in charge of Mr. Schumacher and C. A. Davis, the chairman of the club Entertainment Committee. This Committee provides entertainment and exhibitions for the monthly meetings.

The following clubs were represented:
Boston Philatelic Society, Lynn Philatelic Society, Metropolitan Stamp Club, Worcester Coin Club. The Club meets at the Quincy House on the 1st and 3rd Thursdays, and have three parlors.

The next big event will be a grand Christmas Tree party at the 2nd December meeting, to which all local collectors and friends are invited.

HAVANA-KEY WEST AIRMAIL

We are indebted to Wm. H. Avery, Erwin Strasser and Herman W. Boers for specimens of the Havana-Key West airmail flight. The flight actually occurred on October 28, but some of the covers bear an additional marking of October 15. The mail had been prepared for despatching on the earlier date, but the flight was summarily postponed. We are grateful to our correspondents for the courtesies extended.

EDITORIAL

The Eighty-Fourth Edition of the Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue was distributed promptly at the appointed time and many collectors now have before them a book of over 1,600 pages in which all the issues of the world are incorporated. The growth of philately is graphically portrayed by the work. First the increase in the number of stamps is evident and secondly, the augmented demand for the catalogue each year makes the circulation of it feasible. A general catalogue has now become a publishing problem in that some assurance must be felt that the call for the book will make its production no financial burden. Proof of the solid foundation of philately is found in the fact that a publication of its size is sold in such number that the publisher can risk his capital without misgivings. As for the catalogue itself, its appearance is indeed slightly and an examination of the pages shows that price adjustments have been made evidently with increasing care. While the price trend is upward the fluctuations are not violent, and while we have no doubt but that in some cases, exception will be taken to quotations, yet it must be realized that the task of pricing is one that is so complex at times as almost to defy regulation. Each year, this catalogue becomes more secure in its position as the standard work of reference and price current in this country and its prestige in other countries is not diminishing by any means.

The Brooklyn "Daily Eagle" of October 30, 1927, carries a somewhat sensational article telling of a campaign that has been instituted by the postal inspectors against the stamp "fences" that handle unused stamps that are the proceeds of most of post office robberies by criminals throughout the country. It is said that the government lost about $700,000 in the last eighteen months through the burglary of offices and that nearly all of this booty has been sold to fences by the thieves at cut-rate prices. Indications have not been lacking that the authorities are in earnest in curtailing this loss and it behooves stamp dealers to act with circumspection in buying lots of unused stamps from unauthorized holders. The department encourages the use of metered, bulk and precanceled mail as safeguards and in view of the drain by theft of unused stamps, the policy is for postmasters to keep only a moderate stock of stamps on hand.

SCOTT STAMP AND COIN CO.

1 WEST 47TH STREET,

NEW YORK, N. Y.

Miss Amy L. Swift, Whitman, Mass., whose contributions to the stamp press in the past have placed her in the front ranks of philatelic authors has sent in the following absorbing story of how she solved a mystery that had many of us baffled twenty-five years ago: "I noticed your reference to Stampic America, coupled with the remark that you never knew the identity of its originator, who called himself, 'I. B. Unknown.' I solved the mystery myself at the time, in Sherlock Holmes fashion, but promised to keep the secret until all the fun was over, which I have done (now never say that a woman cannot keep a secret!) but at this late date I am sure there would be no objection to my telling you that 'I. B. Unknown' was really Albert M. Platt, of East Dubuque, Illinois, son of that town's postmaster and assistant in the post office. He was about 18 or 20 then, as I remembered him. I reasoned that as the postmark never gave any clue it must be applied either by the 'editor' or by some one closely allied to him; then, in one item he hinted he was planning to join a stamp society, so then I watched the society applications in every paper I received, which meant most of the current ones, as I was then reviewing. In course of time, the Virginia Philatelist published an application that seemed to fill the bill, and the name, Albert M. Platt, struck me as being familiar for some reason. I soon remembered it was the name of some one who had sent me a 'stampic' query of some sort, looked up that note, compared it with the address on Stampic America wrappers, and then I had him! I promptly wrote the charge and had as much fun making him guess how I found out, as he did with his reading public, but of course soon explained. He said that he had written in his own name to every one of those to whom he had mailed his papers, especially mentioning yourself, Mr. Dietz and Mr. Paalzow, but not one had made the connections between the writings. I do not know if he is still in the land of stamps or even of the living, as I lost run of him years ago, but seeing your mention the other week, I thought that even at this late date you would feel an interest in knowing his identity."

Miss Swift certainly was the first person to pierce the anonymity of the publisher of Stampic America, 1899-1900; and Lord Crawford in his catalogue, names Albert M. Platt, as aforesaid, as having credit for thirteen numbers of the extraordinary production, the earlier numbers of which were partly in manuscript and partly printed by some duplicating process. Only two copies of Nos. 1 and 2 were made and one of each came to us. There have been other examples of this personal journalism, but none had the distinction carried by Stampic America.

Dr. J. A. Rankin writes that he read some time ago that "one reason for the scarcity" of the Pilgrim Tercentenary issue of 1920 is that the stamps were recalled because the name of the issuing country and "Postage" did not appear in the designs. We suppose that this statement was made in the outside press as the philatelic journals reported at the time that the post office department denied that there was any reason to retire the stamps. The WEEKLY file shows that in January 25, 1921, the acting Third Assistant Postmaster General wrote us: "There is no necessity for the name as the stamps are fully identified and authenticated to the postal service in a notice of which a copy is enclosed. Any additional lettering would have overcrowded designs which required all of the space assigned to them." At the time, however, we gathered from a Washington correspondent that there was some surprise expressed in post office circles that the omission of "postage" was not considered as a serious lapse by those directly responsible for the stamps.

The Havana "Evening Telegram" of October 19, 1927, contains an account of the arrival of the first plane carrying mail from Key West to Havana. That collectors took advantage of the opportunity to add to their store of first flights is indicated in the following paragraph: "The plane carried thousands of letters, many of them sent by souvenir stamp collectors and addressed to the American consulate and the postal officials here with the request that they return them to the senders. At the Havana post office special airplane mail has been piling up mountain high awaiting the coming of the plane from Key West to carry them across the channel on their northward journey." Special cancellations were used at Key West and at Havana, but we did not find any of the new Cuban airmail on the first day's mail from the Cuban capital. For the Telegram and also, El Mundo, we are indebted to our faithful correspondent, Mr. Ash, who writes: "As I started this note, I was stopped by the arrival of a plane-US1054 landed in the bay in front of our offices. I understand she is for the Santiago-Santo Domingo postal route." The Havana newspapers are giving liberal and intelligent treatment of what may be called the stamp developments of the island, showing that they recognize the drift of the times.

This page is primarily for you, the Junior collector. We are interested in what interests you and we want you to take possession of it, if in any way it can serve you. We also invite the Senior collector to extend words of advice, encouragement and stimulation and thus develop in the Junior a real passion for Philately. Bear in mind that two short articles of from 50 to 75 words read better than one long one. Address the Beverly office.

Junior Gossip

—Robert G. Richart, Fort Riley, Kans., is thirteen years old and the son of an army officer. He would like to correspond with other stamp collectors, and we are very glad to start Robert in the right direction. He thinks there is no paper like MEKEEL'S.

—Many entries have already been received in the contest based upon our issue of October 10. Other contests will be inaugurated from time to time.

—We regret to say that one entry in our recent pictorial rebus went astray. It was sent in by Dellard Surbrugg. He informs us that nine correct answers were sent in, and we feel compelled to give him this belated credit. The letter must have miscarried.

—A cartoon is going the rounds of the press, picturing a boy looking with despair upon a letter from which the Egypt stamp has been removed. Interest in the cartoon, however, centers mostly in the fact that a superb cancellation is shown on the spot where the stamp came from. Many thanks, Mr. Faser.

—Our Oct. 10 issue hunt had the decimal point in the wrong place on Number 10, "$1000, No. 4288, $1.00." It should have read as given here not $100. for use on official correspondence.

School Spirit

By BUD MEKEEL.

(Bud is editor of the magazine "On Bounds" published at Montclair (N. J.) Academy. He is the son of Isaac A. Mekeel, former owner of the WEEKLY, and our Juniors will be interested in this editorial written by him.—W. O. W.)

It is a hard thing to define, but a thing practiced almost unconsciously. It might be said to be, "Love and loyalty for one's school."

Why shouldn't we love the place in which we have created friendships with the faculty and our schoolmates? Why shouldn't we be loyal to the school in which we were prepared to be men? Does one wonder that we feel a personal interest and pride in an organization that some of us have been members of for a decade or more. No wonder we love it. No wonder we are loyal to it. Some of the newer fellows can not understand how we can feel this way about a thing that is only synonymous with the words, "Books," "assignments," "bad marks," "work," etc., but they become of the "Old Guard" in a few years.

I did not realize what an outstanding thing "Montclair Spirit" is till a few years ago; a close friend of mine had gone away to school from the Academy and when I asked him how he liked it, he said, "They have nice buildings, a good bunch of fellows, and decent faculty, but I miss something that the Academy has. It's the School Spirit."

Though the Spirit comes natural in phases, some have to be reminded of the different forms it takes. One is to be present at all games, giving the team your fullest support. A second is to support your school publications, and a third and lastly do the assignments daily that seem annoying and dry.

The Best Advt. Oct. 10

By EDW. C. LOVELL.

The best advertisement in the issue of Oct. 10 takes an entire page. It is best not, however, for that reason, but because the ad is attractive in a unique way.

We all collect because it is an interesting game; it appeals to us, and here on this page we follow a delightful, well-planned tour of Europe. Just as if we were to actually board a steamship from the Home of the Postage Stamp and sail for the old country: so does this ad sweep us in its quaintness and soon we are in France, Luxemburg, Belgium, Roumania, and Germany. We travel by auto, aeroplane and ship on the quest of the stamp. All is so clear and interesting because we know of the places afresh. We meet King Albert, Mussolini, the Little King Mihai, and the charming ladies of Latvia. We visit the tomb of Lenin, the wind-swept shore of the Baltic Sea, and linger in the Saar Valley with its quaint old-world buildings and its busy smoking chimneys. We are reluctant to turn homeward, so wonderful has been our trip.

This ad is not a common announcement of a stamp for sale—"Monaco No. 70, 50c myrtle green, for 15c"—it is a work of art. The Home of the Postage Stamp is to be congratulated on its ability to display the lowly postage stamp in such an attractive manner.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

THE TUGHRA

1863, 2pi black

We have here a very interesting design from the stamps of Turkey, and it shows what is called the "tughra." No doubt our juniors would like some information. The tughra, which is the peculiar object like a spider or an octopus above the crescent in the illustration, is the device of the reigning sovereign, and hence undergoes a change at each accession to the throne. It is placed on the coins as well as the stamps, and is embroidered in white on a red flag as the royal standard. It consists of the name of the Sultan, the title Khan, and the epithet El muzaffar daima, signifying "the ever-victorious," that being the first of the seventy-one titles appertaining to Abdul Hamid, the present incumbent.

The tughra has a curious history. When Sultan Murad I entered into a treaty of peace with the Ragusans, he was not sufficiently scholarly to be able to affix his signature to the document, so he wetted his open hand with ink and pressed it on the paper, the first, second and third fingers making smears in fairly close proximity, while the thumb and fourth finger were apart on either side. Within the mark thus made, the Ottoman scribes wrote the name of Murad, his title, and the epithet that bore testimony to his ever-victorious career. The tughra remains the symbol of this, the three upright forms being the three fingers of Murad, the rounded line to the left the thumb, and the line to the right the little finger. These leading forms do not vary, but the smaller characters change with the sovereign.

Epirus

This is the name sometimes given to the southwest portion of the Turkish province of Janina (lower Albania) and it is philatelically famed from the fact that a series of stamps were issued here, under the authority of a provisional government, during a rebellion against the Albanian government in 1914. Later other stamps, which have a better standing, were issued for this district, including a number issued by the Greek authorities during the military occupation and subsequent annexation of Epirus. Thus history has again repeated itself, for in ancient times Epirus was a country of Greece and its original inhabitants were probably identical with those of Greece itself.

Junior Dictionary

Poschta, Pochta, Poshtsha, Poshta.—Variations, and in some cases misspellings of the word "Posta," meaning post or postage.

Posnania.—The native name for Posen, a province in Polish Prussia. In 1919, due to the Polish occupation of this territory, German stamps were surcharged "Poczta Polska" with new values for use there.

Advertising Chat

We have received from M. Ohlman the catalog of his 128th auction sale, to be held Nov. 16-17-18. Mr. Ohlman evidently thinks that this sale is worthy if special mention and we are inclined to agree with him. The sale consists of 1600 lots covering a good line of U. S. and foreign. It is not our practice to review auction catalogs, but we feel that this particular one is especially deserving of mention.

W. H. Avery has taken out a 3-in-1 contract and Elliott Perry one for 3000 lines. Mr. Perry had a striking page advt. last week.

The Scott Stamp & Coin Co., 1 W. 47 St., N. Y. City, sent out under date of October 24 a very complete wholesale pricelist. It has been given a wide circulation and will no doubt be very welcome to the trade.

The Old Colony Stamp Co. has removed to more commodious quarters in Room 306 same address as previously, 333 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Two retail pricelists are just at hand. One from the Economist Stamp Co. consists of eighty pages. It is devoted entirely to U. S. stamps, colonies and philatelic accessories. The other list is from the Old Colony Stamp Co. and is also given over to U. S. stamps. Copies of these two lists will no doubt be sent upon request of the respective firms.

A pricelist is also at hand from Wendover Neefus dealing entirely with the stamps of the United States and Colonies. It is convenient in size and will be a useful book for any collector of these stamps.

For back numbers apply to our Portland office. Send all money and advertising copy to Beverly. For expert advice and editorial mention write Chicago at the new address.

CHRONICLE

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa., who will also be pleased to pass on oddities and varieties of all U.S. stamps from 1900 to date. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 75 Electric Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

Algeria.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that the 2fr postage due stamp has appeared in red-violet, type D1.

Esthonia.—"On November 15th a set of 5 Charity stamps will be issued. The total face value will be 174 Marks, half of which will go to the invalids of the World War."—J. L. RIEDEL.

Germany.—Anton Huber of Munich submits a set of stamps consisting of the 8, 15 and 25pf bearing an overprint of "I.A.A." at the top and at the bottom the figures "10-15.10.1927." This set was issued in connection with the session of the International Work Committee held in Berlin from October 10 to 15. J. L. Riedel also writing us regarding these stamps states that the Berlin meeting was unusual because of the fact that it was the first time the Committee has sat in any other place than Geneva. "I.A.A." are the initials of the German words for this International Work Committee or International Labor Bureau as it might be called. The stamps were in circulation from Oct. 10 to 31, and 300,000 of each were printed.

Hungary.—Whitfield King & Co. submits for chronicle the following new design air post stamps: 12f green, 16f brown, 20f rose-red, 32f brown-violet, 40f blue, all in oblong format picturing an eagle in flight; 50f claret, 72f grey-olive and 80f violet, in upright oblong shape bearing an eagle with a messenger sitting on its back with his left hand holding a letter and his right holding a trumpet.

Luxemburg.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us several stamps of the Duchess profile set in changed colors. They are 25c purple-brown, 30c green, 75c olive-brown, 90c rose and 1½frs blue. The same values have been overprinted in the usual manner for official use.

Russia.—Whitfield King & Co. reports three values of a new set of stamps which is to be a permanent one. The values are 1 kop. orange-brown, 2 kop. green and 4 kop. blue. The 1 and 4 kop. are of the same design, picturing the working man while the 2 kop. features a man of learning.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith) W. Somerville, Mass.

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional, and solicit want lists from the serious collector. At the present time, I especially desire to add to my stock. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:—

- (1) Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847-1880
- (2) Mint blocks, 1881-1900
- (3) Bureau errors, including part perforations, inverts, etc.
- (4) Fine early covers
- (5) Revenues—Inverted centers
- (6) Rare Confederates
- (7) Carriers (All Issues)

The highest cash prices will be paid for such properties, and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for properties upon consignment, but I am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.

If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me. Best of banking, commercial, or philatelic references, if required.

PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,

P. O. Box 4216 G't'n, PHILA., PA.

A VERY FINE SPECIALIZED COLLECTION of U. S. numbers 135, 146, 157, 178 and 183. This collection was gotten together at considerable expense for cancellations, it contains about everything in this line, there are about 800 stamps in the collection all in fine condition and will sell as a lot at a very reasonable figure, for much less than it cost the original owner to make it. A few of lot on original covers.

If interested write at once, will be sent on approval to prospective purchaser. Just want to emphasize that I handle only U. S. of all kinds, C. S. and B. N. A. stamps, blocks, covers, etc., no foreign. I stick to these three lines and have a very good stock, so will be glad to hear from anyone really interested in these stamps which have a future from an investment standpoint.

Only those who have at least twenty dollars to invest at a time interest me, as any sum under that does not warrant me making up fine lots for approval.

SAN FRANCISCO

Collectors will find a full line of the new 20th Century albums and 1927 catalogues, and a very large stock of both 19th and 20th Century stamps on sale at our new offices.

BRITISH EMPIRE

It does not matter what you collect within this field—19th or 20th century, "popular" or "unpopular" Colonies, I am bound to have your wants sooner or later,—and chances are that I have them right now.

Do not overlook the benefit derived from buying from a stock like mine: Thousands of varieties are held each in a quantity, and I am always pleased to let you have the best copy in stock. Fully 25% of my sales are made to established dealers, and I will also be glad to have dealers offer me anything worthwhile. However, it should be noted that I do not have to "shop around" to fill your want list when it reaches me. My stock is so huge that it is very seldom, indeed, that I am not able to fill right from stock quite a considerable part of any want list for single, straight varieties. What this means in the matter of prices is evident—and it is one of the reasons why I can safely invite you to compare my quotations with any other offerings.

Within the last week or two, I have had calls for exceptional things like Great Britain K. E. 20sh. St. Kitts Tercentenary High Values, Cyprus K. G. obs. Script High Values, Ireland High Values, Malta Rarities, etc., ALL IN BLOCKS (!)—Shades of Australian C'wealth High & Low Values, Nyasaland 19th Cent. £10 & £25, Zululand £5, Bechuanaland Pst. 10sh, Tobago £1, Ceylon Pence in blocks, Rhodesia Rarities, etc., etc.,—and all have been supplied. That is a noteworthy record.

During the same period, I have sold dozens upon dozens—in many instances several full sheets—of the medium and lower priced popular stamps.

It does not matter whether you are a large or small buyer — I am here to attend to all wants irrespective of the value involved.

MINT—unless otherwise stated.

Minimum two lines.
This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell, exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world. It is impossible to guarantee advertisers in this department, and patrons must satisfy themselves as to the reliability of the parties with whom they desire to engage in business relations.

RATE.—30c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words (32 letters) to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $12.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

P. O. DEPT. ISSUES STAMP BOOKLET

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

THE Third Assistant Postmaster General, Hon. R. S. Regar, has again manifested his interest in the stamp collector, by arranging for the publication of a booklet dealing with stamps, to be distributed to the public. The booklet is entitled, "A Description of United States Postage Stamps and Postal Cards," issued by the Post Office Department from July 1, 1847, to December 31, 1927.

It will be recalled that the Philatelic Stamp Agency is under the supervision of Mr. Regar, and in handing me a copy of this new booklet, he impressed upon me that it was the desire of the Department to aid the stamp collector in every legitimate way. Much praise is due not only Mr. Regar, but also the former Third Assistant Postmaster General, and present Second Assistant Postmaster General, Hon. W. Irving Glover, as well as Mr. Michael L. Eidsness, Jr., Superintendent of the Division of Stamps. It is through the interested activity of these three officials that the stamp collector is enabled today to secure choice specimens of available stamps without a great amount of trouble.

The new booklet is a fifty-four page pamphlet bound in blue paper, and starting in with the 1847 issue, gives a description of all postage stamps both regular and commemorative from the very first to date. This also includes the Parcel Post, Postage Due, Special Delivery, Department Issues, and the Newspapers. In the last several pages we find a list of all of the postal cards bearing different designs.

The compiler, Mr. P. W. Gibbon, Assistant Superintendent of the Division of Stamps, searched the post office files and other records for the information contained. Where possible, dates of issue are given, together with the name of the artist painting the picture from which the design was taken. In the case of the latter series, we are even given the numbers of the different varieties printed. To adequately review the booklet would take several columns, and under the circumstances it is suggested that each interested reader obtain a copy, free of charge, for his own information. Letters requesting a copy should be addressed to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, % Division of Stamps, Washington, D. C. In the lower left corner of the envelope in which the request is enclosed, place the four letters—"U.S.P.S." Please see that these instructions are followed carefully, and such requests will be favored with a copy. Those desiring more than one copy should address their communication to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., and enclose ten cents for each copy.

HON. R. S. REGAR

wanted. It is personally suggested that dealers interested in the distribution of United States postage stamps should arrange to place copies of this publication in the hands of their clients.

Before closing this review, I cannot help but quote from some of the high points. We are told that United States adhesive postage stamps were first issued under Act of March 3, 1847, and placed on sale in New York, N. Y., July 1st, of the same year.

Books of stamps were first issued April 16, 1900. Coils appeared for the first time on February 18, 1908, and Postal Cards were first issued May 1, 1873, under Act of June 8, 1872. Stamped envelopes appeared in June of 1853 under Act of August 30, 1852. Newspaper Wrappers were first issued in October, 1861, under Act of February 27, 1861. Printed stamped envelopes were first issued in the spring of 1865, but has anyone seen any of the earlier envelopes with the printed return card.

Mr. Gibbon calls our attention to the fact that in addition to the regular series of ordinary stamps seventeen commemorative issues, and three memorial stamps have been authorized and placed on sale. The three designated are the 1909—Lincoln, 1923—Harding, and the 1926—Ericsson. They have evidently overlooked the 1866 Lincoln, which was certainly a memorial stamp, and the 1882—5c Garfield. In the latter case the stamp was even submitted to Mrs. Garfield for her approval, and she selected the brown color, in which the stamp is printed, rather than have black.

This set is the hardest to complete of all the 20th century regular issues. We have just had the good luck to secure a small quantity of all values which we offer herewith. Whilst the price on these may not seem cheap compared to catalogue, we may confidently anticipate further advances in the near future in this issue.

The booklet further lists the sixteen presidents and nineteen other prominent persons in American History who have been used as subjects for our stamps.

There is one paragraph in the booklet that I cannot account for, and would like to learn as to the official source from which the information was gleaned. This paragraph referring to the 1847 to 1857 issues, reads as follows:—

"These stamps are now obsolete and worthless for postage. A reasonable time, after hostilities began in 1861, was given for the return to the Department of all these stamps in the hands of postmasters, and as early as 1863, the department issued an order declining to longer redeem them, the Confederate States having adopted their use, and so far as they could be reached in the hands of postmasters within the territory of those States, they were confiscated to the use of the Confederate postal authorities."

It has been generally stated in the past that the early stamps were demonetized at the outbreak of the Civil War. Mr. B. K. Miller who looked into the subject quite thoroughly, informed me that he could locate no Act of Congress demonetizing the early stamps, and that he did not believe the Postmaster General had sufficient authority to demonetize what might be classified as an United States security. In other words, how could the Postmaster General demonetize a stamp any more than the Secretary of Treasury could demonetize a five dollar bill.

In the latter part of the paragraph just quoted, it is stated that United States stamps were confiscated to the use of the Confederate Postal authorities. I have never heard of a single instance, for one of the first acts of the Confederate Postmaster General Regan, on entering office, was to send out a four-page circular instructing the postmasters in the seceding states to make a full report to the Federal Government and return all stamps on hand. I have not only seen a copy of this document, but purchased one at a recent sale of old documents, and it is now in the hands of one of our well known collectors.

If this booklet is reprinted, this paragraph certainly should be revised.

THE Managing Editor has received through the Chicago office one of the Havana, Cuba, airmail covers bearing date of Oct. 28. It was sent with the compliments of Joel H. DuBose, Atlanta, Ga. We regret that this acknowledgment was not possible in connection with the regular story of this flight.

The remarks of "Calabar's" correspondent, quoted in the issue of October 10, 1927, on British colonials, in so far as they applied to the prices for new issues have aroused resentment because of the stand taken by the writer of the letter questioning whether 32c a shilling was justified as a retail price. The writer mentioned by "Calabar" asks for the views of readers and dealers on the subject and they have been forthcoming in ample number and the attitude of those who write is distinctly hostile, as a rule, to the attitude of the critic, "Ad Rem". It was said by "Calabar" that the writer's opinion was not necessarily his own and thus he escapes the darts and arrows of those who agree that the correspondent "is entitled to the formality of a hearing, at least."

One of the best presentations of the case against "Ad Rem" comes from an experienced follower of American philately who is well qualified to represent both the collector and dealer; he retorts: "I read with interest the remarks . . . and I am glad to supplement Mr. Krause's statement in rebuttal . . . Without trying to follow the fine-spun theory of questioning the shilling ratio to the pound, I want to say that it is unbelievable that anyone who has had practical knowledge of new issue importation could say that 32c a shilling was an unjustified rate. I think that this price is low rather than the contrary and I would not undertake to furnish new issues at a less price, or for even as much, for that matter. If it were a case of handling an imperishable and standard commodity, this rate would not be out of proportion, but when goods of the 'hazardous' and varying condition as typified by stamps are under consideration, the 32c rate a shilling certainly is confirmed by all fairness. There can be no sustained controversy on the subject and based on experience as well as observation, I say that 32c for the shilling is not too high; instead, it may not be high enough. I wonder if the man who raises the question has ever had the wracking experiences that fall to the lot of the stamp importer; I could name a list of contingencies that are not to be brushed aside as immaterial testimony. Turn the question as you may a solid front in favor of 32c or more a shilling is shown." We agree with the findings; and the subject could be discussed at greater length and in more emphatic tones, but the foregoing is enough to show the general trend of opinion.

STOLEN POSTAGE STAMPS

We have received from Herman Toas-pern a circular which is being sent out by the N. Y. Post Office indicating that an energetic campaign has been inaugurated to wipe out the postage stamp fence—the receiver and dispenser of stolen postage stamps. It seems hardly necessary for us to publish the letter in its entirety, as any dealer in stamps appealing to the public for patronage in

More than $700,000 in postage stamps were stolen from post-offices during the past eighteen months, and it is charged that one stamp broker in N. Y. Tough Turkey !!!

Every collector knows what a scarce bird is. Practically every general collection of XIXth century has looked for Turkey Nos. 25 and 26, and wondered why it didn't fill those two spaces. They are old Turkey. I have on hand a half a dozen of each, at ten off Scott's, $2.70 for No. 25, cash with $2.60 and 90 cents for No. 26, cash with $2.50.

United States "Educators"

This is the name we give to a series of approval books designed especially for those who want to know more about the 19th Century issues of United States stamps and who are interested in filling as many as possible of those empty spaces with stamps that are presentable in appearance and correctly classified.

These "Educator" approval books have helped scores of collectors to find the missing varieties they were not so sure of identifying, and have further given them some idea of values as governed by condition. They are priced for what we think they are worth, perhaps twice catalog, or perhaps 1/4 of catalog according to the desirability of the particular specimen.

SENIOR "EDUCATORS"

Are similarly arranged, but designed for those who want only fine copies and who are willing to pay for superior quality.

Both series of "Educators" represent all 19th Century issues with considerable completeness. Ask for any particular issue that interests you, or start with the 1847-51 booklet and work through the lot.

SPECIALIZED SELECTIONS

Made up to suit individual want lists, and include varieties of cancellation, of paper, of printing, of shade. Pairs, strips, blocks, covers; whatever your speciality our stock is at your service and should be of some use to even the most advanced specialist.

Quite a miscellaneous gathering here, and some of unusual form and interest. These two Bees, Nos. 2 and 3 are seldom found in cancellation collections. There are a large number of Bees to be had if one specializes in these insects. No. 1 is a bird in flight apparently, which is rather unusual, and is one of the few blue birds. No. 4 is seldom seen. No. 5 is one of the familiar pointing hands. No. 6 is a blue fly, or bee. No. 7 is often seen, the six points are doubtless some thinner actually than here shown. It is an odd little cancellation, I have seen it on the 24c 1862 stamps also. No. 8 is a fish from Gloucester, where the "boneless cod" comes from. No. 9 is a common three leaf clover—these come from many towns. No. 10 is very unusual, and has the "ear marks" of a donkey, which it was probably intended to represent.

One does not often see as many good cancellations as are listed in the auction of Mr. George B. Sloane. This sale held in New York on Aug. 3rd, contained the cancellations of Dr. Evans, and I am just going to review a few of the odd items which appeal to me.

Cancellations on that 3c 1851 imperforate stamp are sure hard to find, and we see few here as is usual in most sales.

If we omit odd shaped postmarks, we will find that all of our odd obliterations on the 1851 issue make a meagre showing. The obliterations most found in cut cork are of no particular shape or design, and the percentage of colored ink obliterators is small too. We find some crudely cut stars, maybe, a heart, or a diamond, and then we are at a loss how to make this collection look better.

So we save all unusual types of postmarks, of which there is a wider range. We get an elliptical form now and then. In this sale is one listed as from "NEW LONDON, N. H." (Another is from "CORNWALL, CONN." and there are several other towns using this form of pmk.)

So you see if you are after odd cancellations on the 1851 issue, you will have to hunt hard to get these. If you run into a little lot of covers from CANTON, Miss., you are indeed fortunate. Worcester, Mass., offers a few oddities also. Then they come one at a time for the most part. It is well to save a few of the postal markings that generally fall on the cover away from the stamp, such as "MISSENT, PAID, STEAM BOAT in two lines, STEAM, and such printed instruction wordings.

In the issue of 1857 we fare somewhat better for our cancellation collection, for

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

VICTOR WEISKOPF, Inc.

505 Fifth Avenue, (At 42nd Street) NEW YORK

here the "Odd" cancels began to appear in larger numbers. There are odd styles of the word PAID, and more colors of ink began to appear. In the sale several types of PAID cancels are listed, several dates such as Feb. 29, July 4, etc., PAID 3 appears, etc., etc.

When we strike the issue of 1861 we find cancellations at about their maximum of interest. This issue lasted for a long time, and is very popular for its cancellations. This sale lists the devil and pitchfork from West Meriden, Conn., indian head and feathers in blue. The soldier's cap, in blue. The Corry, Pa., eagle with a small shield on its breast. Then a blue head and bust of a man with beard, which may be a Union General. On cover is a cancellation described as follows, N. Y. City black cancel wherein without color, can be discerned the figure of a man dancing, with swinging arms, flying coat-tails, etc. This is "new" to me. Barrel in black, Oil City, Pa. Then a lot containing the horse's head in blue, and a boot. The next lot is made up of eight shields, all different. Then a shield from Madrid, N. Y., and a black Phila., Jack o' Lantern. Next lot shows a cut out (white) Masonic cancel from South Wilbraham, Mass.

Then follow larger lots of shields, targets in color, etc. And after these start the various postal markings, such as PAID, U. S., O. K., U.S.M., U. V., etc., etc. At the end of the '61 issue is a selected series of covers with the odd cancellations and markings, such as "due

2 cts" SHIP, FREE, U. STATES, REGISTERED, STEAMBOAT in blue, etc., etc. Also HELD FOR POSTAGE, MISSENT, RETURNED TO WRITER, UNCLAIMED, NOT CALLED FOR, ADVERTISED, DISPATCHED, and others.

This listing may give you something to look for in your cancellations, and if you care to have a priced auction list this may be had of Mr. Sloane for the price as listed, $2.00. The sale continues past the 1861 issue of course, and shows many fine cancels in the Bank Note issues and later on till the present time. The second part of the sale is made up of foreign stamps. This auction is detailed in this column, as so many write in asking me for valuations, and I do not care to appraise small items of little value. This priced list can do most of that for you with the actual selling figures.

The only way I know of to keep posted on values of odd cancellations is to get the results while you may, and this is one of those times. If this meets your favor, will make note of further sales that contain numerous lots of Good Cancellations.

THE PRECANCELL REVIEW
MONTPELIER VT. LINCOLN NEB. SEATTLE WASHINGTON

Part I—The Illustrations
Montpelier, Vt.—This is the popular U-12 style of electroplate. It is a bit of a surprise to see Montpelier receive it, as precancels from there have always been scarce, in spite of the fact that it is the capital city. Perhaps precancels will be used to send out the 1928 automobile licenses, though metered mail is a more logical assumption. A second city to appear this month in this style is Kohler, Wis. Perhaps your plumber can find a few of them for you.
Lincoln, Neb.—Still retains the resemblance to previous types in its new plate, which seems to have been produced locally. This new type will be easy to tell as the letters are shorter and wider than heretofore. John L. Parker reports the following as having been issued with this overprint: 1/2, 1 1/2, 3, 7, 10 and 11 cents. The 1 1/2 and 3 cents exists with a double printing.
Seattle, Wash.—Changes the U-10 to a more simpler style, U-8. I have the current 10 cent.
Portland, Oregon, has received a U-12 plate, but has done very little precancelling with it as yet, as only the current 8 and 10 cents have appeared. This type can be expected to supersede the U-1.
Its appearance would have been improved had the state name been spelled out in full instead of abbreviated "OREG."

Part II—Bureau Prints
The new perforation is proving of interest to specialists and is becoming quite general, as old stocks of the perf.
10 Bureaus are being replenished with the new.
Worcester, Mass., adds the 1, 6, 7 and 8c to the three varieties ordered in July. In about six months these should be as plentiful as the Bridgeport, Conn., Bureaus.
Cincinnati, O., finally orders the 8c.
The 7 and 9c will probably be requested before long.
Hasting, Neb., is a newcomer to the Bureau class. It has been issued 5,000 sheets of the 1 1/2c ordinary.
Elgin, Ill., receives the 1 1/2c coil, and Oklahoma City the same.
Los Angeles adds the 4c coil, which will be a hard item to pick up.

Part III—General
Charleston, W. Va., has been furnished a handstamp of the same style as New Berlin, N. Y. J. F. Moore sends a block of four of the Bennington stamp with this overprint, and states that the postmaster informs him that the office will not use this handstamp for general precancelling, but only to fill in any varieties that run short. The regular precancelling is done about twice a year with a U-5 electroplate. Ten sheets of the Bennington were in stock and these were all precancelled. The 10c due is the only other variety which the handstamp has created.
Eaton, N. Y., appears on the 1 1/2c in a handstamped style similar to the above.
Nappanee, Ind., likewise is using this style of handstamp on the current series.
I have the 3 and 4c.
Pottsville, Pa., has the U-1 electroplate with which to precancel, but seldom uses it any more, resorting to hand-stamping to produce the necessary pre-cancels. The latest handstamped productions are coming in the same type reported for Nappanee.
Hutchinson, Kans., is another owner of this cheap looking serif style. I have seen it on the 1, 1 1/2, 5, 10 and 20c.
Greensboro, N. C., can be secured in this style also, which has been shown me on the 11 and 25c.
Stanchfield, Minn.—Marvin A. Cox shows me a current 8c from this little town precancelled in small lower case type between heavy bars. It is hand-stamped attractively and should prove a scarce item.
Anaconda, Mont., is precancelling with a handstamp that closely resembles the U-10 electro. The work is well done as the overprints are clearly defined. I have seen it on most of the current series and some values of the 1917 set, including the 7, 9, 11 and 13c.
Mitchell, S. D., in a new hand-stamped style of small capitals between heavy bars is an interesting addition to the album. Two varieties noted are the current 50c, reading down, and the 10c due.

I have, in preparation, a prospectus of my forthcoming new issue Service of British Colonials to Collectors.
Those collectors desiring to be assured of a prompt and careful supply of these stamps, run on systematic lines and common sense, will do well to write for this folder.

BRITISH COLONIALS

One of the fascinating sides of collecting modern British Colonials is the investment possibility of these stamps. In this country alone, they are taken by thousands of collectors, investors, speculators and "what not"—and owing to this and a similar worldwide demand they are sound to the core. In recent years, stamp papers both here and abroad have been devoting special columns to these stamps, and in which their investment possibilities are dealt with almost exclusively.

A great many of these "tipsters" are decidedly bad, some are slightly better, few are good—and mighty few are excellent. Good "tips"—in order to be good—must first of all have some actual basis—they must be more than the offspring of a writer's imagination, hope or fancy—really, stamps are often "tipped" because some dealer or speculator happens to have an accumulation to be disposed of. Secondly, "tips" must be given early in order to be good—so the purchaser can "get in" before prices have already entirely discounted the speculative merits of the stamp.

That is one reason why a dealer or semi-professional is not likely to be a desirable market adviser. He would in most cases be defeating his own efforts in getting himself in on "the ground-floor"—were he to broadcast his knowledge immediately. The best adviser is the one who early, and in a disinterested way, can report coming or quite recent changes either in the stamps themselves or in conditions which are likely to affect certain stamps.

It is, for instance, rather late to proclaim the MONTERRAT 5d "the stamp of November"—when it was decided already in April to discontinue this denomination!

This paper has time and again given excellent information—I am referring particularly to notes and articles by such writers as "Calabar", Mr. Huber and others. Their contributions have contained facts from which, if acted upon, readers were bound to reap rich harvests.

We expect and want information that is previously unknown to us. For instance, we all know by this time that current stamps on the Block Watermark are bound to become obsolete sooner or later. In fact, I thought most of us had known that for some years (1)—yet, it is only within the last few weeks that I have seen in a leading stamp paper a 2/6 MCA BERMUDA or ST. KITT'S—or whichever Colony it was—proclaimed as a "shining star"—classified or even taking the lead from stamps of real merit! How come? I challenge anyone to give me the reason why such a 2/6 is better than most of the other 2/6's of the same watermark!

As long as you feel yourself unable to draw your own conclusions, the success of your investments will depend much not only on the kind of advice you take but also on the kind of dealer you use. What you want is a dealer who has the knowledge and the integrity to sell you stamps at fair market prices—regardless of catalogue quotations, believed possibilities, etc., etc.

Many modern Colonials are over-rated in the Standard Catalogues, in many instances grossly so. It is quite common to see dealers advertise such stamps at the usual percentage of catalogue. Why? The answer must be: Lacking knowledge—or lacking integrity. Or when you make the mistake and believe a GRENADA 5d soon to come in the class with a MONTERRAT or VIRGIN IS. 5d, you do not like to realize later that your dealer—knowingly or unknowingly—"capitalized" your lack of knowledge and sold you that stamp at a fancy price!

So many present-day collectors use the standard catalogue unhesitatingly as a guide to the value of each and every stamp, and so many dealers "base" their prices blindly on the catalogue quotations that it cannot be denied that the catalogue is the backbone of the market. However, more experienced collectors realize the importance also of other priced lists. The quotations given in the latter are "live"—they really represent something because there are stamps behind them to back them up. A standard catalogue quotation is often—and perhaps in most cases—made without the stamp in stock.

I wish it understood that my prices are not based on either the 1927 or 1928 catalogue—or on any catalogue for that matter. They are based on the present market, and in arriving at my prices I am utilizing the experience years of trading and collecting here and abroad have taught me. For that reason, my prices will not consistently follow the standard catalogue quotations. Having gathered together one of the world's greatest stocks of modern British Colonials, I also feel myself able to fix my prices in accordance with the market—and not necessarily in accordance with another dealer's price list, i. e. the standard catalog!

It should also be noted that I am not of the opinion that stamp values change only once a year—when the new catalogue appears! Needless to say a change in value may occur at any time—suddenly or gradually—as soon as the influencing factors present themselves. The new catalogue prices represent only one of these factors—though in a general way, perhaps, the most important one. My policy is to change prices when I feel a change is warranted—and as the following offers show my price changes do not necessarily coincide with the appearance of the new catalogues.

SOUTH WEST AFRICA

Few—if any—modern Colonials are as popular as these stamps. Recent changes in type are bound to increase the interest still further. Here is your opportunity—compare these scattered offerings with other recent quotations:—

STAMP NOTES AND NEWS

BRAZIL.—We have received two new stamps issued to commemorate the Centenary of the Foundation of the School of Law, the denominations are 100 reis blue and 200 reis carmine and the stamps are dated "11 de Agosto 1827-1927." We understand that three millions of the 100 reis and five millions of the 200 reis have been issued.

CANADA.—With reference to certain Air Mail labels which have recently been issued, we have received official information that the Postal Department of Canada has absolutely nothing to do with the issue or sale of these labels, but that permission is given to promoters of flights to print such labels for sale. They are used merely as labels and can only be affixed to the backs of letters, they are not in any way postage stamps.

COSTA RICA.—The current postage stamps overprinted "Renta Postal" have been misdescribed in some journals as parcel post stamps. Our correspondent at San Jose informs us that the stamps so overprinted are employed solely for the purpose of collecting Customs Duties on parcels of books imported from abroad by local booksellers. They are consequently revenue stamps only.

CUBA.—To celebrate the Pan-American Congress which is to be held at Habana next January, a set of postage stamps is to be issued, the denominations being as follows:—1, 2, 5, 8, 10, 13, 20, 30, 50 centavos and 1 peso. According to the "Official Gazette" 50,000 sets will be issued and larger numbers of the lower values, but we have no doubt that the issue will soon be bought up by local speculators.

FRENCH INDO-CHINA.—A complete new set of stamps comprising all values from 1/10 cent to 2 piastres has been issued and we are distributing them through our New Issue Service. A similar set is also expected for Kouang-Tcheou, which will probably be distributed next month. The old issues of both these sets were withdrawn from use on September 23rd.

GIBRALTAR.—In a recent requisition sent to Gibraltar we included a quantity of the £1 denomination and to our great surprise we are informed by the Postmaster that no more of the £1 stamps are available. We are not informed whether this denomination is to be discontinued or whether a further printing is being made, but as usual with Gibraltar postage stamps changes are made so suddenly and without any notice that it is just likely this denomination may be withdrawn or that a new issue is contemplated.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—We are informed that the 5d denomination is to be discontinued, also the same value of Montserrat, in the latter case there are no more of these stamps in the island and they are likely to be scarce.

LIECHTENSTEIN.—As is usual at this time of the year Child Welfare stamps

re to be expected from a number of European countries, the first information we have received of these comes from Liechtenstein. We are informed that there are to be three denominations, 10, 20 and 40 rappen to be sold for 15, 25 and 40 appen. These stamps are inscribed at the top "Caritas" and "Fürstenthum Liechtenstein" at the base and will be issued on October 5th.

Nicaragua.—We have seen specimens of some of the current issue of these stamps overprinted "Resello 1927" and we understand that the following denominations have received this overprint, 1/2, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, 15, 20, 25, 50 centavos and $1. The reason given for this overprint is that large quantities of the uncharged stamps were seized by the revolutionary forces and the overprint has been made to prevent these looted stamps being used for postal purposes. All the stamps without overprint have been demonetised and have no postal validity.

SAN MARINO.—Two new sets of stamps are now being prepared by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., one to commemorate the unveiling of the cenotaph at San Marino, erected to the memory of the Sammarinese war volunteers, the denominations and colours are as follows:—50 centesimi mauve, 1 lira 25 centesimi blue and 10 lire grey. The other set is to commemorate the Seventh centenary of the death of St. Francis Assisi, whose connection with the Republic had a very marked influence on the freedom of the inhabitants of this small State during the troublesome times of the Middle Ages. The denominations and colours in this set are 50 centesimi d, 1 lira 25 centesimi blue, 2 lire 50 centesimi brown and 5 lire violet. The 50 centesimi and 1 lira 25 centesimi show the Church of Capucini in San Marino and the two highest denominations represent the death of St. Francis d'Assisi with two monks standing on the left. The stamps will be on sale in San Marino by the middle of October.

SOUTH WEST AFRICA.—The recently issued pictorial stamps of South Africa reprinted in English and Afrikaans for use in South West Africa have certainly not had a very long life and will obviously rapidly increase in value. We have received official notification from Windhoek that the existing overprint reaches too much on the pictorial design of each stamp and in consequence it has been decided to dispense with the "South West Africa" and "Zuidwes Afrika" overprints and utilize instead the letters "S.W.A.," which will afford full recognition to the three European languages in general use in that Territory, that is, Afrikaans, English and German. All values of the pictorial issue will receive the new overprint, except the triangular 4d, of which no more will be printed, either for South or South West Africa. In addition the 1sh3d and 1l of the King's head issue are also to be overprinted "S.W.A." Full supplies of the new stamps are on order and will be distributed through our New Issue Service as soon as they are received. The new overprinting will also be applied to the Postage Due stamps as soon as existing stocks with the present overprint become exhausted.

SWITZERLAND.—The Pro Juventute stamps (for the children) will appear on December 1st, and there will be four denominations, 5 centimes brown and yellow, 10 centimes violet and green, 20 centimes red and 30 centimes blue. The two lower denominations will be lithographed and the other two printed from a copperplate.—Whitfield King & Co's Bulletin.

EDITORIAL

The Post Office Department recently sent a notice from the office of the Inspector in Charge to business houses and others telling of the determination of the authorities to curb the growing traffic in stolen U. S. stamps. The co-operation of business men and others is asked for and the injunction is stressed that stamps for postage be bought at the post office. The point is made that the surplus of postage stamps received by mail-order firms and legitimately sold at a discount is but a small percentage of the volume of the business of stamp brokers who sell to business men at a slight reduction from face. Something was said last week about the strides taken by this method of making a market for stamps taken as loot originally and soon after it was written, word comes from New York that a stamp dealer has been brought to book for his connection with the sale of unused current stamps. To buy and sell unused U. S. stamps in bulk is a dangerous game to play and we believe that many stamp collectors have no wish to engage in the business as an off-shoot of the regulation trade.

A person with half an eye can see that the advance of philately during the past decade has been due almost wholly to the publicity that collecting has received in outside publications. The stamp collector who is instrumental in obtaining for his pursuit a notice of any kind in the public prints makes two blades of grass grow, where there was only one before, to speak poetically. It is our belief that we have done much to encourage this plan of direct action and it is needless to say that we shall continue to sing the cause of the man who helps philatelic understanding on the part of the uninitiated. Some time ago, the Chicago American began a series, "Hobby-Horses" wherein the relaxations of prominent Chicago business men were reviewed in a readable way. We have been waiting for philately's inning and now it has come, with a fine picture of Mr. John P. Oleson, one of Chicago's foremost collectors, poring over his album pages. We read: "John P. Oleson, vice president of the First National Bank, forgets the cares of business in his Kenilworth home over his stamp collection—his hobby." In the text, Mr. Oleson does not mince words, but comes out with no reservation whatever for collecting as an antidote for business cares; and all in

Mr. W. F. Goerner, Edgewood, Rhode Island, has shown us a cover of the civil war period that bears the large round postmark in blue, "Bank's Division, Aug 2." The letter was sent to a point in Maine by a soldier who was stationed in Virginia, as indicated by the written return "card" in the upper left-hand corner of the large envelope, reading: "Culpepper Court House, Va., Co. K, 10th Me. Vols., July 31st, 1862," followed by the striking statement, "Postage Stamps are Scarce." Six cents postage due was recorded on the cover which was stampless. General Banks' Division seems to have been fully aware of the importance of the careful handling of mail and we know of no other arm of military service afield that employed the postal paraphernalia that this division did. There are various markings of the "G.B.D." franks.

We have received many inquiries for particulars of the various postal agencies maintained by the different countries of the world for the benefit of collectors; and latterly, we have hesitated to recommend these bureaus of accommodation because of a feeling of uncertainty that has resulted as a consequence of complaints from readers who have followed our information. In some instances, complications have ensued that have been annoying to those who sent the orders and at present we are slow to rely on the lists that are sometimes seen in contemporaries. It is not insinuated that a misunderstanding is not the basis for the complaints, and in order to have the latest authoritative details regarding the methods of the agencies, we are trying to secure the proper data. We need not refer at any length to the agency at Washington, which sends out lists from time to time, giving descriptions of the stamps that are available at face. These lists are kept up to date by crossing off such stamps as are no longer in stock even though they were on hand when the leaflets were prepared, and on the September 20, 1927, sheets, the 1c Walloon is lined out, for instance. The full address of our agency is: Post Office Department, Division of Stamps, Philatelic Agency, 216 City Post Office Building, Washington, D. C. The Canadian Agency issues lists offering stamps at face, but some only in limited numbers, while certain of the obsolete stamps are quoted at a premium. It is necessary to consult the list to order intelligently: Post Office Department, Financial Branch, Ottawa, Canada.

In our issue of October 3, 1927, we had reason to ask what conditions prevailed at 36 Rue Vaneau, Paris, governing the sale of French colonials to collectors. We have received from Mr. E. Bunge of Paris, the following particulars which we are glad to transmit to readers: "I beg to advise that blanks are lying on the counter in this office, which should be filled in, and a purchase of not less than twenty francs at a time can be made; and any one is free to order one copy of any particular French colonial stamp, provided that the total of the purchase amounts to twenty francs or over. After handing in this blank, you have to wait four or five weeks and on receiving notice that the stamps are ready, you are requested to call with the money and take delivery of the stamps. The notice also says that if you have not complied with this request within two weeks the stamps will no longer be available; and any one failing to comply with this request is barred from any further purchase. I am quite sure, however, that dealers ordering in large quantities are receiving quick service, possibly with the aid of some influence or giving a gratuity. I cannot tell you whether mail orders are received from foreign countries."

A reader who gives much attention to the historical suggestions of stamps and covers has written an interesting letter in the course of which he says that in an exhaustive work, "The American Railway," published by Scribners, in 1899, the author, former postmaster Thomas L. James, says that the first postal car ran between Quincy, Illinois, and St. Joseph, Missouri, as a result of the conception of one W. A. Davis, St. Joseph postal clerk, in 1862. No doubt this car antedated that of Armstrong, associated with the year, 1864. Our informant asks if the different types of railway mail cancellations are properly classified in the minds of those who give attention to them. He says that the postal car cancellations could be coincident only with the "traveling post office" that was originated in the '60's, and that the earlier railroad cancellations were not of this class, but represented the names of the postal routes. However, it is known that there were postal compartment cars that were baggage cars with one end partitioned off before the advent of the "real" car. Here a postal employee presided at a counter on which mail was dumped and then pigeon-holed by him. We wish that some student of railway cancellations would furnish us an article

HUNGARY OCCUPATION ISSUES
The fact that most of these stamps were issued in very limited quantities and that catalogue prices have been quite steady for the past few years, should make them very desirable from an investment point of view. A fortunate purchase enables us to offer at exceptionally low prices the following sets:
Cat.
HUNGARY, New Air Mail, #662-69, 8 var., comp. .. 1.25
According to reliable information, these stamps are already obsolete and will, therefore, no doubt prove good property.
All of the above stamps are mint, o. g., and guaranteed genuine. Want Lists in the above and some of the other occupation issues can also be filled.

NOTES ABOUT THE NEAR EAST
By M. J. FENSTER.

A year ago, while traveling through Syria, I bought a mint copy of Mesopotamia stamp, Scott's No. 50, either in Beirut or Damascus. I sold it since for about half of the last auction price. I wish I had kept it.

I notice that the new set of Palestine stamps has no piastre value. The reason for this is apparent. Since the evacuation of Palestine by the Turks and up to about last September, the country has been using for money, the existing Egyptian currency. The denominations of the metal coins of Egypt are 1 mil, 2 mils, half piastre, one piastre (equal to 5c U. S. money), two piastres, five piastres, ten piastres, and twenty piastres. So Palestine using Egyptian money used the above values or denominations on her stamps.

However, since September 1, Palestine has in circulation currency of her own and is redeeming the existing Egyptian currency for the new currency. The denominations of the new coins are as follows:—Mils, 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100. The first five denominations are nickel bronze and the last two silver. As the new coins have no piastre denominations the new set of stamps were therefore printed with values of the new existing denominations, namely mils. On account of the severe economic depression through which Palestine has passed in the past two years, the issuance of new currency of her own and new stamps was a good business stroke.

The two lowest values of Egyptian coins, one mil and two mils, were very scarce in Palestine, in fact, hardly seen in circulation. Egypt, being a country of over 12,000,000 people, kept these two low values within her country. Therefore when buying stamps in any postoffice in Palestine should there be small change coming to you as one mil (1/2c) or two mils or up to four mils, the change would be in stamps.

With the new currency in operation and more elastic in value than the Egyptian, the practice of giving low value stamps as change at the postoffices is done away with.

As in previous issues of Palestine stamps, the new or current issue has the word Palestine printed on each stamp in three languages, viz.:—English, Arabic and Hebrew. The reason for this is that the above are the three official languages of the country.

The denominations of the coins are also in the three official languages. There is also in circulation among the currency notes a one-pound note which takes the place of the existing Egyptian pound.

ODD ENDS:—

A FLOURISHING stamp club exists in Johnson City, N. Y., called the William H. Seward Stamp & Coin Club in honor of its president and founder. The club has fifteen members. Judd Young is vice-president, H. E. Snediker, treasurer, and Mrs. Benj. W. Ash, secretary. Meetings are held the second and fourth Thursdays at 6.30 P. M. in the Johnson City Home Library. Visiting collectors will be cordially welcome.

WE have received from William Lyett, secretary of the S.P.A., a copy of the Year Book for 1928, and desire to congratulate him upon its prompt appearance. The book contains a great deal of matter of interest to the membership, but the most interesting feature is the up-to-date list of members with their philatelic specialties and full addresses. The book indicates in no uncertain manner the prosperity of the organization. R. C. Bach is the publisher of the Year Book and the price is $1.00. Sec. Lyett may be addressed at 1221 Washington St., Cape May, N. J.

EGYPT

The Black Land

Six thousand years ago this country saw the dawn of civilization. Modern Egypt is again awakening—motor trucks crowd camels off historic caravan trails; improved irrigation systems make the desert blossom like a rose; and King Fuad collects postage stamps!

This progressive monarch therefore ranks with George of England; Alphonse of Spain; King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium; Hirohito, Emperor of Japan; Alexander of Yugoslavia; the Prince of Monaco; the maharajah of Gwalior; the nawab of Sachin; the raja of Sarawak; the Bishop of British Guiana; and the reader of this price list—stamp collectors all!

LIBERIA

Land of the Free

Colonized in 1822 by negro freedmen from the United States, Liberia has the hottest temperature on the globe, and lies along a section of the African coast commonly known as "The White Man's Grave". The little negro republic gallantly declared war on Germany in 1917, but lost her entire navy when it was run into by a German torpedo.

Many collectors consider Liberian stamps superior to all others in interest and beauty of design and color.

SERBIA

Nearly all portrait stamps, but what portraits! Meet—among others—Black George, who assassinated his father for being loyal to the Turks; Alexander, once crown prince of Serbia, now million-dollar-a-year king of Yugoslavia; and the famous Death's Head stamp (above, left) which, inverted, shows the death mask of a murdered king!

Montclair, N. J.—A. F. Gamber always me to inspect a strip of three of the Schermack coil, precancelled in Type I. This is an unlisted variety.

Peterboro, Mass., on the 1½ and 2c, makes its debut in a handstamped style similar to U-59, which is not at all striking.

Fredericksburg, Va., another newcomer, has the same style, which I noticed in the ½c.

Wilmington, Calif., a branch station in Los Angeles, is precancelling with a handstamp similar to the above two, but using serifs on the lower case letters. I can report the 14c and 24c Aeroplane.

Spring City, Pa., can be added to the list. It has used the U-74 handstamp for some time, but the only variety which has been shown me is the current 6c (10 x 10).

Knox, Ind., precancels are seldom seen. A bunch of them were sent in recently for my inspection. Type I consists of large plain capitals between lines (U-75), and evidently was used for but a short while. The 20c up, and 30c inverted were all that appeared with this reprint. Type II consists of thin medium sized serif capitals between lines and is to be chronicled on the following: current series perf. 11—1, 3, 4, 8, 10, and 12; perf. 10—1½, 2, 3, 9, and 10c.

Provo, Utah, can be found in a new style like that of Knox Type II. Raymond Freshwater sends me specimens of ½, 1½, 1 and 2c.

Appleton, Wis.—Chas. A. Konrad shows me the 13c inverted, 14c and 17c in the U-12 electro, and reports the 2c Harding, 1c Lexington, and 1c Eugenet in the same type. W. O. Mede reports the 13c, 11 and 12c inverted, and the ½, 1 and 2c dues in the U-12 style. Mr. Konrad sends for inspection some interesting unlisted Wisconsin precancels, among which are the following: Oshkosh—U-73 handstamp, 1917 series, 12c inverted and 13c double; 1923 series 13c normal. These should be hard to duplicate, especially the 13c stamps.

The most common style appearing in handstamps right now is an inferior looking set up of plain non-serif caps between lines. It can be classed as similar to U-73. Some new ones to report in this style are Millersburg, O., on the 9c perf. 10 rotary, and 25c Special Handling; Cucamonga, Calif., in purple ink—4 ways on the ½c, and also on the 7c and 9c; Raymond, Ill., on the ½, 1, 1½, 2, 3, 4c; Waynesboro, Va., 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c perf. 10 rotaries; Woodstock, Va., 13c; Sun Prairie, Wis., 13c, 14c; Spartanburg, S. Car., 20c double and 25c up; Easthampton, Mass., 3, 4, and 50c; Greensburg, Pa., 4, 5, 9, 10, and 11c;

Stamp News for the Juniors

This page is primarily for you, the Junior collector. We are interested in what interests you and we want you to take possession of it, if in any way it can serve you. We also invite the Senior collector to extend words of advice, encouragement and stimulation and thus develop in the Junior a real passion for Philately. Bear in mind that two short articles of from 50 to 75 words read better than one long one. Address the Beverly office.

Lines to a Penny Black (On selling one to a dealer)

By JAMES A. R. DRYDEN.

(With apologies to Robert Burns.) Wee, modest, unused penny black, I sell thee now, for funds I lack, In times like these when trade is slack, The tide to stem. Perhaps some day I'll buy thee back Thou bonnie gem.

Alas! 'tis not thy neighbor sweet The penny red, companion meet, That I am taking down the street To 391. But you—a copy hard to beat— My only one.

So proud was I, when I got you For an old worthless 2d blue, That swop I never once did rue— Not yet did John— But now I don't know what I'll do— Now that you've gone.

—Stamp Collecting.

Emblems Watermark

One of the watermarks found in connection with various stamps of Great Britain issued during the period 1856-67. The watermark consists of two roses, a shamrock and a thistle, thus being emblematic of the three sister kingdoms of England, Ireland and Scotland. It is sometimes known as the "four flowers" watermark.

Junior Gossip

—One of our subscribers in Hangkow, China, Lum Young by name, sends in some answers to the rebus published in our Sept. 5 issue. His entry was received too late for us to include in our summary and in the awarding of the prizes. He writes the WEEKLY a very interesting letter and we appreciate the value he places upon our paper.

—We have received many replies to the several contests recently inaugurated in the Junior page. Yes, we have more of them in the making. We will give you lots of fun during the long winter evenings. Radio and stamp collection—what a fine combination for the Junior.

—C. A. B.—If you will go to your local Y. M. C. A. secretary and tell him a stamp club is wanted, he will no doubt give you a meeting room and help you organize a club. Try it out.

—We are always glad to help out the Juniors. If, however, you want a personal reply to your letter it is the courteous thing to enclose a stamped envelope for a reply.

—Ask your friend collector if he takes the WEEKLY. If not—put the proposition right up to him good and hard.

Danube Navigation Company

A private post, authorized by the Austro-Hungarian government, for the conveyance of mail between certain cities in Serbia, Bulgaria and Roumania along the Danube and the Black Sea, and also from those cities into Austria and Hungary. The service was inaugurated in 1865, during the Russo-Turkish war, and was in operation as late as 1874. At least nine different steamers made regular trips in connection with this service, and a special series of four stamps was issued for the prepayment of the mail carried. The genuine stamps are quite scarce, those so frequently found in collections being nothing better than reprints.

Little Michael's Picture

We learn through Howard E. Wong, that little King Michael's picture will soon appear on Roumanian stamps, replacing that of the late King Ferdinand. It will show the six-year-old boy king in a simple white shirt-waist of American design, with turndown collar and silk tie.

Junior Dictionary

Posta Fiume—"Fiume Post".—An ancient seaport city at the north-east end of the Adriatic Sea formerly belonging to Hungary. As a result of the world war it became a football in diplomatic negotiations. Under Italian occupation Hungary stamps were surcharged "Fiume" while "Posta di Fiume" and "Posta Fiume" appear inscribed on later issues.

Posta Romana.—Found on most of the Roumanian stamps issued between 1865 and 1887. It means "Roumanian Post."

Posta Ukr. N. Rep. Schagiw.—A surcharge applied locally at the city of Stanislaw, in western Ukraine, on various Austrian stamps. The abbreviation is for "Ukrainska Narodna Respublika," or Ukrainian Peoples Republic. The word "schagiw" is the monetary denomination.

JUNIOR

STAMP STUDIES

VICTORIA FALLS

Rhodesia All — 1905, 1d-5sh

The student in geography would himself be puzzled to locate the Victoria Falls. It is true they do not rival the Niagara Falls of our own country, but sufficient is their importance to warrant their being made the subject of a set of stamps for Rhodesia, as witness the issue of six values ranging from ½p to 5sh.

It is known as a commemorative set, the occasion commemorated being the visit of the British Association to Rhodesia and the opening also of a bridge across the Zambesi. This river in its run of 1,600 miles to the Indian Ocean has no attraction of greater interest than the falls pictured on this set of stamps. The opening of the Transvaal Railroad in 1895 gave rise to a single penny stamp, but this seems a modest attempt at celebration compared with a set whose face value is something over 9 shillings.

Book Review

Of the making of stamp books for beginners there appears to be no end. When one is issued such as "Stamp Collecting for the Million" by Stanley Phillips, the collector may well be resigned to the situation. The book before us is written by one who knows his business and we take great pleasure in recommending it to our readers, especially our junior collectors. We insert this review on the junior page, contrary to our usual practice, in order that it may be brought to the attention of every reader of this page. The contents of the book are varied, dealing with stamps and designs, stamp finance, the outfit, famous collectors and collections, great rarities, stamp dictionary and exchange table. There are two hundred illustrations. You can get this book for only 14c by sending to Stanley Gibbons, 391 Strand, London, W.C. 2, Eng.

Commission Fur Retourbriefe

An inscription shown upon the so-called return letter "stamps" of Bavaria and Wurtemberg meaning "Returned Letter Department." These labels have no philatelic significance whatsoever though they were listed in many of the old catalogues and at one time spaces were provided for them in many printed albums. On some of the labels of Bavaria the last word of the inscription is "Ruckbriefe."

Perplexing Surcharges

O. H. H. S.—On His Highness' Service. An overprint found upon several of the current stamps of Egypt intended

O. H. M. S.—On His Majesty's Service. An overprint found on some of the stamps of the Somaliland Protectorate used on official correspondence.

On H. M. S.—On Her (or His) Majesty's Service. Found on certain Indian stamps used for franking official letters.

Advertising Chat

A notable auction sale will be held by Bela Sekula of Lucerne, Switzerland, beginning Nov. 30 and ending Dec. 7. The catalog of the sale is at hand and no fewer than 4611 lots are in the sale. In addition to the regular catalog of 180 pages there is a supplementary catalog showing 68 pages of halftones. The publicity given this sale is of a very high order and reflects great credit upon the firm.

Last winter Edgar C. Cantrell of San Antonio, Tex., was with us quite frequently and we are glad to have him with us once again as per his advertisement found elsewhere in this issue.

The Boylston Stamp Co., 120 Boylston St. Boston, Mass., has issued a neat price-list of United States stamps. It is very complete and will be sent upon request.

The advertisement of Th. Berg is a most striking one. It deserves to be read because Mr. Berg is paying for space in which to tell the philatelic public a few things about stamp values. Look up the advt.

The Acme Stamp Co. of N. Y. City is working on a new 3000 lines contract, but the firm expects to make it 4000 lines before the year is over.

A fine WEEKLY binder can now be obtained for $1.50 plus parcel post charges of three lbs. It is of the spring back variety strong and durable.

Bryant Pollard of Vermont has returned to our columns after a bit of a vacation.

CHINA'S THIRD SET, 1894

By HOWARD E. WONG.

It was during the winter of 1894, He Majesty the Empress Dowager "Tz Hsi" of China celebrated her 60th birthday. Mr. De Villard, of the Custom Statistical Department, designed a beautiful set of stamps of which were printed November 16, 1894, in honor of the Empress's birthday. This same set is known in commemoration of the commercial treaty between China and the foreign countries for fifty years.

The first issue were lithographed in Japan, and the later issues at Shanghai. Printed on white wove paper, value in tael cents, in nine denominations (1 Candarin to 24 Candarins).

The 1 Candarin to 6 Candarins, measures 22 x 27mm and in panes of 20 stamps, complete sheet consisting of 240 copies. The three highest values 9-12 24 Candarins, each measures 28 x 35mm and in panes of 25 stamps, complete sheet consisting of 100 copies. Perforation, 11½, 12. Watermarked, a sign of Chinese Geomancy, called the Ying Yang of which representing the male and female principles in nature.

No record being accessible to distinguish the Japanese from the Shanghai imprint. The only record available shows that a local printer, named Yih Tse Yun printed 8,542 sheets for the Statistical Dept., in Nov., 1894, but it is surmised that the stamps were unwatermarked for specimen and mostly used as official gifts. These stamps were in use up to March 20, 1896, when the Chinese Post Office was officially recognized by Imperial Edict.

(2) Candarins (light green). Dragon center, hydrangea leaves and fruit of passiflora above (a favorite ornamentation on auspicious occasions).

(3) Candarins (orange-yellow). Dragon center, p'an-t'ao or flat peach above (this fruit being an emblem of longevity, as it is said to flower and bear

A VERY FINE SPECIALIZED COLLECTION

U. S. numbers 135, 146, 157, 178 and 183. This collection was gotten together at considerable expense for cancellations, it contains about everything in this line, there are about 800 stamps in the collection all in fine condition and will sell as a lot at a very reasonable figure, for much less than it cost the original owner to make it. A few of lot in original covers.

If interested write at once, will be sent in approval to prospective purchaser. Just want to emphasize that I handle only U. S. of all kinds, C. S. and B. N. A. stamps, locks, covers, etc., no foreign, I stick to these three lines and have a very good stock, so will be glad to hear from anyone really interested in these stamps which have future from an investment standpoint.

Only those who have at least twenty dollars to invest at a time interest me, as any man under that does not warrant me making up fine lots for approval.

fruit for 3,000 years) pa kua, or "8 diamonds" at corners.

(4) Candarins (rose). Dragon center, with peony on top.

(5) Candarins (yellow-orange). Carp center (this fish in epistolary language being styled the "messenger fish"), surrounded by jui-chi plant (emblematic of long life), the wan-nien-ch'ing or Chinese immortal (rhoea) beneath.

(9) Candarins (gray-green). Center same as the 1 Candarin, rampant dragon on each side, with seal form of characters or "Chinese Postal Service" above.

(12) Candarins (brown-orange). Center, "Chinese Postal Service" in seal characters, rampant dragon on either side, and peony above.

Lithographed in Japan, one inverted stamp in a complete sheet (bottom left-hand of plate) of the 9 Candarins. This forms a "Tete-Beche pair."

Lithographed in Shanghai, for surcharging, but issued in error unsurcharged. The inverted 9 Candarins were correctly placed on the sheet for this printing.

Imperforate either horizontally or vertically on 1-2-3-6-9 and 24 Cands.

The same set unwatermarked, thicker paper. Cancelled specimen are known, but as whole sheet in set have been seen, it is surmised that when it was found necessary in 1897 to reprint from the plates, for surcharging purpose thicker unwatermarked paper was used. Some on opaque paper and thin cigarette paper, with and without perforations, no watermark.

The Book You Can't Get

The 1928 edition of the Gibbons Catalogue is admittedly the best we have ever published, as both pricing and listing have been greatly improved.

We regret, however, that we are unable to send copies to collectors in the U. S. A. owing to the regulations in force regarding illustrations.

STAMP MARKET GOSSIP

By "THE SEER OF THE STRAND."

Falkland Islands.—In my notes of last month, I made mention of the 2½d "Orange" of this Colony. I hasten to correct this, as my meaning was, of course, the 2½d purple on yellow. I'm rather afraid the error was due to my only just having returned from holiday, and being rather late for press and in a hurry. My apologies are due to all discerning readers.

Montserrat and Leewards.—I have previously advised filling blanks where the 5d stamps of these small Colonies are concerned. I now have it on the best authority that both the Montserrat and the Leeward Islands 5d current types are no longer available, and will not be reprinted. Such being the case, we may look forward to these two stamps shortly ranging alongside the 5d Virgins. I advise all to make sure these items are not missing from their proper places, especially while they can be procured at reasonable rates.

St. Helena.—From first-hand information obtained, I am in a position to acquaint my readers with the fact that two values of this Colony will shortly be discontinued. Already, I learn there are no more 4d or 15sh denominations to be obtained from the Colony, and moreover, there is no intention of reprinting these values.

Whilst the 4d is of a low value and should be found in practically every British Colonial collection, the 15sh is on a different footing, and I think I may be bold enough to prophesy that this stamp will shortly turn out to be extremely good. In fact, I think so much of this that I am, without hesitation, making it the "Best Thing of the Month." I should say, if it is offered by any dealer under 25sh, it is well worth procuring.

South West Africa.—This country has always been a favorite of mine, despite the fact that we have been rather inundated with emissions from here in many different overprints, etc. Recently, it has been said, and there certainly did not seem to be any reason for contradiction, that all new overprinting was to be arranged so that the centres of the Pictorial stamps should be left clear, and that all overprints would show more or less on the borders of the designs. This now appears to have been an invention emanating from the mind of somebody who evidently wanted something to write about, as I learn it was never the Official intention.

We are now to have a different form of overprint altogether in the shape of just the three letters "S.W.A." overprinted on the Union stamps. There is no intention at present to have a definite issue for S. W. Africa, and the three letters will suffice for the stamps in both Africans and English.

Please, everybody, take my advice and get your full sets of the present issue. For many reasons we shall find these in the near future at prohibitive figures, so a little outlay just now will more than repay itself in a few months' time. Even now, I am under the impression that the new overprints have begun to be issued in the Colony, so there is not a lot of time to be lost.

Incidentally, the latest printing of the £1 South-West Africa with the pale green centre, 9½mm between lines of overprint, will, of a surety, pay for acquisition.

Philatelic Exhibition Stamps.—These stamps are always popular to a certain section of stamp collectors only. That is to say, when they are first issued, there are a certain number of collectors who fight shy of them just because they appear to be speculative or otherwise unnecessary outlay. I am of opinion that these should always be obtained immediately they make their appearance, as it is the general rule that prices begin to rise from the start. There is usually a small premium charged, but this is infinitesimal compared with the rapid appreciation manifested when supplies appear to be running low. I allude, perhaps, more to the recent Strasburg, Marseilles and Luxemburg commemoratives. The first-named, comprising two stamps only, 5 francs and 10 francs, although originally could be obtained at a mere fraction over their face value, are now hard to get at three times that amount. The second named are almost impossible to get at any price. As regards the last-named, I have no information on the point as yet, but certainly expect them to reach a pretty high figure.

Catalogues.—We are now on the threshold of what is generally termed the "New" season, and are expecting the new catalogues to be with us very shortly. Already the Zumstein has made its appearance, and others will shortly be following.

It would be interesting, and probably very remunerative, if some of my clients were to take the trouble to analyse the appreciation or depreciation of the various items I have recommended during the past twelve months. This, of course, cannot be done until the catalogues make their appearance, which will be some time next month. I venture to say that practically without exception, they are all winners—so much so, that I note continually, other correspondents manage to make out good cases for my selections, though on more than one occasion the same have been "damped."

UNITED STATES

If you have been following the market for United States stamps during the last two to three years, you have perhaps noticed that the larger portion of the finer collections, as well as individual items have passed through my hands.

The most valuable collection of United States General Issues ever to come upon the market at one time, was broken up by me about two years back. The finest collection of Revenues sold in recent years, was broken up just a year ago. The finest lot of used Departments on and off cover ever gotten together, was recently distributed, and one of the finest collections of unused Departments was broken up shortly after. I recently had the pleasure of giving my clients the pick of a famous United States collection covering the issues from 1870 to date. Many smaller collections, as well as outstanding individual pieces, are constantly coming to hand.

If you are looking for the finest that the market affords in the way of United States stamps, a list of your requirements should be in my hands. If you are thinking of selling, I am in position to offer the highest cash prices for fine properties. Funds to any amount are available, and correspondence is solicited.

Department's Booklet

Elsewhere in this issue I have the pleasure of reviewing a very attractive booklet recently issued by the Post Office Department, entitled "A Description of United States Postage Stamps and Postal Cards."

In my remarks I mention that I have never heard of any case where our early stamps were confiscated to the use of the Confederate Postal Authorities, and wondered where the Department had obtained this information.

In communicating with Washington, since the article was written, I am informed that the third paragraph of their booklet covering this subject was taken word by word from the report of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Edwin C. Madden, for the year ending June 30, 1900.

Mr. R. S. Regar, the Third Assistant

Postmaster General, in discussing the subject, states that the information in the original report was probably compiled by Mr. H. S. Mandel, who assisted the Department in preparing some of its early stamp exhibits.

The authenticity of the information published in the report of 1900 has never been questioned, so far as known, and for this reason, it was embodied in the booklet just issued.

The Department will make an effort to verify these statements that certain postage stamps were confiscated to the use of the Confederate Postal Authorities, also that the Department issued an order declining to longer redeem certain stamps. We are looking forward with the greatest of pleasure to further information upon the subject.

A copy of this booklet should be in every Philatelic Library, and one may be obtained without charge by addressing the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Stamps, Washington, D. C. In the lower left corner of the envelope place the letters "U.S.P.S." as it will enable the Department to more readily classify the requests.

Plate Varieties

Mr. C. W. Bedford has just sent for inspection two of our issues showing plate varieties well worthy of mention. One of the stamps is a copy of the 1890, 2c lake, showing on the left shoulder, sharp and distinct diagonal lines, running from upper left to lower right. These lines are so sharp and distinct that they were undoubtedly cut with a graver after the plate had been completed. They are too sharp and differ too

The second variety submitted by Mr. Bedford consists of a vertical pair of the 1910, 1c coil, No. 385 showing plate number 5179, in the paste up joint. The stamp immediately under the plate number shows most of the lines of Franklin's coat doubled, as well as the elliptical frame line at the bottom. This is a very distinct double transfer which can almost be seen with the naked eye.

Air Mail Notes

Mr. Charles E. Jandruie, Jr., sends an interesting cover which he writes is one of about fifteen bearing the Boston post mark, which was carried on the unsuccessful flight from Squantum to the Leviathan. It seems that the New York mail bag was opened in Boston and these letters added. They bear postmark of August 20th, and are signed by Lt. C. H. Schildhuser, U. S. N., who piloted the plane which failed to reach the ship. The mail was returned to New York where it received a backstamp of the Varick Street Station, together with two line marking, reading—"Air Mail Flight, Failed to S. S. Leviathan." Whether this latter marking was placed upon the envelope officially, I cannot say.

The same correspondent sends for inspection one of the first Railway Express communications carried via air on September 1st, from New York to Chicago. This bears a similar express label to the one previously described in this column, and in addition we find marking on the cover reading, "American Railway Express Company, Carried on First Air Express Flight from New York, September 1, 1927." This cover differs from those carried on the first express flight between New York and Boston, in that it bears no postal markings whatsoever showing that it was handled by the Express Company exclusively.

Mr. K. C. Park writes that on August 12th, Grand Rapids used a special postmark on air mail and special delivery letters reading, within a rectangle 5/8" x 1 3/8", "Lindbergh Day, Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 12, 1927."

Mr. Herman W. Boers kindly sends one of the first Cuban air mail stamps posted from Havana on November 1st, and bearing a special postmark in violet reading, "Habana, Cuba, Servicio Aereo, Nov. 1, 1927,—Habana-Key West." This new stamp, we understand, has been placed on sale to pre-pay postage on air mail communications to the United States.

New Revenues

Mr. John W. Nicklin has submitted for inspection a copy of the current playing cards, 10c blue with large figure in the center, printed from the flat bed press, and perforated 11 on all sides. Inquiry at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing brings the information that this stamp, which has only recently been noted, was first made in June, 1924, and from that date to November, 1927, approximately 112,500,000 stamps have been printed and perforated all around. These stamps, which are still in use, are not to be confused with the rotary press coil playing card stamp previously described. It seems that the Department is prepared to furnish either type wanted, to the playing card manufacturer. It is indeed odd that a stamp should be in use in excess of three years without having previously been noted.

Mr. Norman Serphos kindly submits for inspection a strip of three of the 1c Narcotic, Type II, which shows a double impression under a strong glass.

As these are printed by the off-set method, the variety occurs in a similar manner to most of the 1c and 3c off-set print postage stamps, now in collections.

Canal Zone

The Economist Stamp Company has submitted two new varieties of Canal Zone, which have not been noted heretofore. They have located one pane of a hundred (100) of the 1c perforated 11 x 10 1/2, in which the bottom horizontal row is without surcharge, thus giving us ten pairs, of which one stamp is with and one without surcharge.

A similar pane of the 2c rotary, perforated 10, has been found in which the left vertical row is without overprint. While the Bureau seems to be turning out millions of our own stamps with but very few errors slipping through, it seems that every time a lot is supplied to the Canal Zone something unusual happens.

Mr. R. S. Carter writes that they expect the 5c rotary print with Canal Zone surcharge in the near future. He also sends a report of the Canal Zone Philatelic Agency, where stamps may be purchased at face value under certain conditions. The report mentions that the agency was established on August 28, 1924, by the Director of Posts, in order to facilitate the handling of sales of Canal Zone stamps for collection purposes. During the three years since the establishment of the agency at Balboa Heights, 2,421 orders amounting to $12,578.71 have been filled.

Due to the complete change of Canal Zone stamps in 1924, the first three months' sales amounted to nearly $2,000, the greatest volume of business handled by the agency for any period since its establishment.

Belgian Congo. — New Values, to complete the set, are foretold by M. H. Weber, viz., 1fr 60, 3fr 50, and 20fr. Colours are not yet announced. These values are necessitated by the new postal rates.

The 60c red stamp is now obsolete, and will not be reprinted.

L'ECHO states that the portrait series, foretold in our issue of April 2nd, will consist of thirteen or fourteen values, and will be produced at Malines.—Philatelic Magazine.

Bulgaria.—Whitfield King & Co. report the appearance of the 30 stot orange and black, design as A3.

Ceylon.—Mr. R. Roberts under date of October 27th last, writes that he has received the 10R, green and orange and the 20R purple and black in new designs. They are small format Nyasaland type as A3 script watermark. Mr. Roberts adds that the inscription of name and duty plate is in sans serif capitals with "CEYLON" and "R10" (or R20) without any stop. This duty plate looks rather unfinished, the 10R reading "R10" the spacing of the three letters or words varying in different portions of the sheet. Also the 100R has come to hand in purple and ultramarine, large format, same type as before, but change of color. It is the same color as the 10R Nyasaland type.

Czechoslovakia.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that the 1kr red, design as Scott's A10, has been redrawn and the new stamp is a much brighter shade than previously. The clear cut features of the portrait are very noticeable when comparing the new issue with the former.

Eritrea.—A new lithographed set is imminent, comprising the denominations of 2, 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 60c, 1, 2, 5 and 10 lire.—Stamp Collecting.

Estonia.—Charity Stamps are announced for issue on November 15th, according to L'ECHO. Five values will be issued, three of normal size and two rectangular. The quantity will be 500,000 sets. 5+5m, Chateau of Kuresaare; 10+10m, Ruins of the Cathedral of Tartu; 12+12m, View of Tallin; 20+20m, Fortress of Norva; 40+40m, View of Tallin.

The stamps will be on sale for one month and valid until January 15, 1928.—Philatelic Magazine.

French Indo China.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle a copy of a new type of postage due stamps and advise the following values and colors: 2/5c brown and orange, 4/5c mauve and black, 1c red and slate, 2c green and sepia, 3c claret and blue, 4c blue and brown, 6c carmine and red, 8c sepia and mauve; also a new design for the following denominations: 10c blue, 12c olive, 20c rose, 40c green and $1 vermilion.

German South West Africa.—"As soon as the current set with the bi-ligual surcharge "South West Africa" and "Suidwes Afrika" will be used up, the stamps will reappear with a new and abbreviated surcharge consisting of three letters only: "S.W.A."—J. L. RIEDEL.

Gibraltar.—With reference to our recent notes concerning the £1 value, we are now informed by the General P. O. at Gibraltar, that as far as they are aware no stamps are being withdrawn, and that the value in question is simply out of issue temporarily.—Stamp Collecting.

Italy.—New denominations pending:—Air Post: 80c on 1 lira. Pneumatic: 35c (replacing provisional chronicle July 30th).—Stamp Collecting.

Japan.—Mr. R. Roberts send copies of the 10s, Nagoya Castle design, in blue instead of dark blue as heretofore and the 20s pale blue, with a view of Mount Fuji. Both stamps are perf. 13 x 13 1/2 on granite paper, watermarked wavy lines.

Liechtenstein.—Whitfield King & Co. reports the appearance of the three values of the Child Welfare set. In the centre is a shield of red, blue, yellow and green shades, but the border of each value is of a different color as follows: 10+5rp olive-green; 20+5rp brown-red and 30+10rp blue.

Mongolia.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that they have received copies of the 5 mung value with dotted background.

Netherlands.—Our Rotterdam correspondent, Mr. P. Gordon, intimates issues of the 1c, 6c and 12 1/2c current adhesives with watermark.

Olympic Games.—The Olympic Games set, says Mr. Gordon, will shortly be put on sale, comprising six values, viz., 2, 3, 5, 7 1/2, 15 and 30c. The 2, 5 and 15c show a horseman, fencers, and a rower, designed by Fokko Mees, and the 3, 7 1/2 and 30c a footballer, boxers, and an athlete, designed by L. O. Wenckebach.

Child Welfare.—A new Child Welfare set will be put on sale this year from December 15th to January 15th. There will be four values, viz., 2, 5, 7 1/2, 15c to be sold at 4, 8, 11 and 18c. The designs

18 kop. Group of peasants.

28 kop. Workman and Eastern peasants.

We are glad that the Russian Jack Tarsky is at last to be philatelically honored. We were wondering that no protest had been raised by the sailors against the regular appearance of Soviet soldiers on the stamps of the Republic, while they themselves had not been depicted.

Our correspondent does not say if this set will appear imperf. and perf., both watermarked and unwatermarked, but we could give a pretty good guess.

The above issue is, of course, in addition to the regular issue of 25 values, which we mentioned recently.—Gibbons Stamp Monthly.

Saar.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the four Children's Charity stamps mentioned some few weeks ago. They bear the overprint "1927-28" and it is so neatly applied that it almost looks like a part of the original stamp. The values are 20c+20c olive, 40c+40c sepia, 50c+50c orange-red and 1fr50c+1fr50c blue, all Charity stamps of the 1926 issue.

San Marino.—Provisionals are chronicled in L'Echangeiste Universel as follows:—

(1) The 25c violet of 1925, perf. 14, wmk. Crown, surcharged 50 (but not issued), overprinted "Espresso," has now been issued for ordinary postal use, newly surcharged 1.75 lire with the word "Express" barred out by two black lines. Quantity 70,000. 1.75 lire on 50c Express on 25c violet.

(2) Express. The 25c carmine of 1907, perf. 12, surcharged 60 cents in 1923 has now received the surcharge 1.25 lire. Quantity 50,000. 1.25 Express on 60 on 25c carmine.—Philatelic Magazine.

Venezuela.—President Gomez signed a decree on August 30th (says the Echo) authorizing the following:— 5c black-brown (2,000,000), 10c green (500,000), 15c yellow-brown (500,000), 25c red (2,750,000), 40c blue (1,750,000), 3b orange (300,000), 5b violet (200,000).—Stamp Collecting.

U. S. CIVIL WAR REVENUES

A Price Résumé With Some Explanatory Notes Concerning The Imperforate Varieties Of The First Issue Existing In Multiple Form

By HENRY L. DEAN, 239 Windsor Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

TO clarify the situation generally and in so doing to respond publicly to those who have inquired during the past two years concerning values of imperforate pairs, strips and blocks, the writer will discuss the more important items in the standard list treating them in the order of their relative scarcity as pairs.

This procedure appears desirable in considering these multiples, for while colors, size, denomination and the possibilities of new finds are all factors in establishing a reasonable valuation the primary determination for the student striving for completion is based on the rarity of the pair. Blocks necessarily present peculiar considerations of their own, especially those pieces, rare in themselves, which are underlaid by an adequate number of pairs or strips and while the writer would prefer to eliminate them from the present discussion the interests of completeness demand their inclusion. None of the better blocks have ever changed hands except at sound and conservative levels and with these prices available it is possible to correct any fanciful ideas of the uninformed and produce a schedule of reasonable accuracy and one that is workable in practice.

Before entering into an active treatment of these stamps a brief resumé of some of the important accumulations of them may be of interest since it may come as a surprise to many to learn that but one complete collection of multiples is possible and that but one has ever been assembled. This was the property of Mr. Clarence Eagle, shown in competition in New York at the International Exhibition in 1913, awarded a gold medal, and dispersed about three years later. Ranking next is the present collection of the writer which lacks one piece but also contains rare and fine material not available to Mr. Eagle. The former magnificent collection of Sen. E. R. Ackerman rates third, lacking five items, two of which while scarce at the time having no particular importance today so but three outstanding pieces were absent. Next in order of completion ranked the properties of Messrs. A. Ballard and Wm. S. White, the latter gentleman assembling two fine and separate collections, each lacking but seven imperforate rarities.

The writer fortunately has been afforded an opportunity over the years to list the contents of these wonderful properties as well as the collections of Messrs. Burton, MacDaniel, Adenaw, Bishop, Lapham, Georgantus, Gibson, Bister and others and having tabulated all of this data feels that he possesses a background at least which is shared by no other and which is invaluable in a serious study of market values.

Seven of the multiples are of extreme rarity as will be set forth later, but three others are lacking in practically all collections, hence the writer will now deal individually and in order of scarcity with the group which he has termed, "The Ten Rarities."

(1) $2.50 Inland Exchange Imperforate

But one unsevered pair of this stamp has ever been found a horizontal piece coming to light originally in Massachusetts and subsequently owned by only four collectors, i.e., Messrs. Morgan, Eagle, Ackerman and the writer. Having in mind that the single stamp is the second rarest imperforate revenue and easily worth $125. in really fine condition several qualified contemporaries have placed the value of the pair at $1000., at which figure it would find an immediate taker. As a matter of general information it is canceled C. C. C. June 19, 1863.

(2) $10.00 Probate of Will Imperforate

In common with the $2.50 value only one pair of the green Probate has so far been located and this is a vertical piece whose history prior to the Eagle collection is obscure. It is slightly damaged but nice looking and brought $110. at the time of its sale about ten years ago. Considering all factors, a fair price today would seem to be about $400., although it should be borne in mind that all figures on the great rarities are largely academic since there is little likelihood of any of them coming on the market.

(3) $1.60 Foreign Exchange Imperforate

The full history of the two known pairs was recorded in the October 10th issue of MEKEEL'S and the value of $1500. placed on the pair canceled Nov., 1864, is induced by the superb condition and great beauty of the piece and the im-

This set is the hardest to complete of all the 20th century regular issues. We have just had the good luck to secure a small quantity of all values which we offer herewith. Whilst the price on these may not seem cheap compared to catalogue, we may confidently anticipate further advances in the near future in this issue.

probability of further multiples of this odd value being found.

(4) $10.00 Charter Party

Imperforate

No unsevered pair has ever been seen in any of the larger revenue collections, the only multiples being blocks of four and six used on the same document in Nevada and canceled Dec. 17, 1868. My inclination is to avoid pricing blocks, but others lacking, my data purpose doing so hence I will make a firm offer of $600. for the block of four formerly owned by Mr. Gibbs and later by Mr. White.

(5) 70c Foreign Exchange

Imperforate

Not more than two horizontal pairs are known, the most celebrated being the "Phelps" piece, which went to Eagle about twenty years ago, its earlier history not now being recalled by Mr. Phelps. It is canceled April 29, 1864, and would find a ready sale at $500.

(6) $2.00 Probate of Will

Imperforate

Here is a stamp decidedly rare as a real fine single, and there are but two horizontal pairs with full margins, the writer who had both of them recently disposing of one for $850. There is a very poor vertical pair and another horizontal, clipt on one side and canceled Feb. 23, 1863.

(7) 50c Surety Bond

Imperforate

Where the 50c S.B. is such a common piece in vertical part perforate pairs, special scrutiny should be given to imperfs vertically, and I have never seen such a piece which could be rated particularly high. A horizontal pair is a real rarity and worth $400., the price at which the last transfer was made.

(8) 3c Playing Cards

Imperforate

Of the five vertical pairs seen by the writer (there are probably six known), three were badly damaged, although making a presentable appearance in the albums. The stamp is excessively rare as a fine single and one of the poorer pairs represented good value at its recent sales price of $125. One of the good ones brought $750. and the finest one cannot be purchased for that.

(9) $3.50 Inland Exchange

Imperforate

About the same number of pairs exist as of the 3c P.C., but the stamp is not as rare and is more likely to develop additional multiples in the future. A pair of the $3.50 is thus rated lower, the last two fine ones selling for $400. each, but worth $500. today.

(10) 10c Power of Attorney

Imperforate

Always a rarity in the form of a horizontal pair and lacking in even the largest collections the writer was surprised to locate two previously unheard of blocks of four during the past year. One is fine, the other short on two sides, but nevertheless a desirable piece on account of rarity. Concerning prices, the fine "Burton" pair brought $85.00 at public sale twenty-six years ago, I paid $150 for the White pair in 1925, so it seems reasonable to appraise the superb block at $500.

Further comment on the rarities is superfluous except to again emphasize the fact that no complete collection of them exists today, and that there are but four properties in the country that come within six items or less of the goal.

Attention will now be given to those multiples which are better known, and in which transfers have been sufficiently numerous to permit the establishment of sound market prices. Following the adopted scheme they will be dealt with in the order of relative rarity, this method largely eliminating the possibility of serious errors, although other factors than rarity enter into price determinations. This group for purposes of convenience will consist of nine items, which in the form of fine pairs are worth $50.00 net each and upwards.

NEWS ITEMS:

PHILA. BRANCH, No. 6, S.P.A., now holds monthly meetings at the Phila. Stamp Club, 1626 Arch St. J. J. Waygood, M.D., Pres.; J. A. Morrison, Vice-Pres., and Samuel Gittis, 2341 N. 32nd St., Sec.-Treas. Philatelists in Philadelphia and vicinity are cordially invited.

WALTER LUSK, Liberty, Miss., was recently awarded a prize at the State Fair for the best, handsomest and most tasteful collection of any kind. Mr. Lusk entered a mounted collection of domestic and foreign stamps neatly framed, and was given first honors. Congratulations.

A NEW marking is being used by the P. O. Dept. It consists of an oblong rectangular shaped box in which are the words in four lines:—"Return—to writer—undeliverable—as addressed." Thanks to J. Allison Stevenson for specimen.

THE A. S. D. A. and S. T. P. A. should have the hearty support of every dealer. Mr. Garrett of the S. T. P. A. has just cleared two accounts for the WEEKLY. However forceful a letter you may write a delinquent, the fear of publicity through an organization is much more so. Get behind both of these associations.

HURRAH FOR UNCLE SAM

Unused U. S. stamps, to the philatelist, offer one of the best kinds of investments. When you have a few spare shekels to invest you naturally want to know what the Philatelic Agency has to offer you at face value. That means that you must consult the current list of Philatelic Agency stock. The current list will be found in each issue of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS, published monthly. So it is very much to your advantage to subscribe,—and have a list on hand.

The United States Government has published a fifty-four page, 6x9 inch book entitled A DESCRIPTION OF UNITED STATES POSTAGE STAMPS AND POSTAL CARDS ISSUED BY THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT FROM JULY 1, 1847, TO DECEMBER 31, 1927. This book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents. It is not for sale by the Agency or Post Office Department. As the title indicates it contains a description of all U. S. postage stamps ever issued. It gives the dates of issue of most of them and a great abundance of other information of interest to a stamp collector. You can't imagine how much philatelic information is packed into this book.

Here's the biggest bargain ever offered you. Send me $1.00, in any convenient form, and I'll enter your subscription for 20 issues of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS and send you FREE the Government publication referred to above. I'm so sure you'll like the book that I GUARANTEE that you'll be pleased. If not you may send it back and I'll refund your dollar.

Have You a Surplus of These?

We always want to buy for ready cash and at the top of the market anything fine in early U. S. stamps or covers. If you have a specialized collection of any stamps or series; a find of old correspondence; an accumulation of 3c '51s, '57s or '61s on or off cover; patriotic covers of the Civil War, either Confederate or Union, or of the Spanish American war; a few thousand Bank Note issues, even the common 2c and 3c stamps if there are enough to bother with.

Send them to us with your best cash price. Particularly if you have items you think are worth more than anyone else will pay, for that is just the kind we want. Our check or the stamps will come to you by return mail if you ask it.

Just now we are anxious to spend some real money for fine
items, but don't want the culls at any price.

NEW YORK AT SPRINGFIELD

By H. P. ATHERTON.

On October 28th the New York Collectors Club visited the Springfield, Massachusetts, Stamp Club. This is the first of a series of exchange visits between the New York and other clubs;
the Springfield Club returning the visit on January 18th.

The idea, and the successful carrying on of it is directly attributable to Mr.
Charles J. Phillips, who has made things hum since his arrival in the U. S. A.

In no way can the entente cordial be fostered to better advantage among collectors than by a gathering of two clubs, for on such occasions we find there is no aloofness and the visitors mingle freely with their hosts, business is forgotten and stamps are the uppermost thoughts of the assembled clans.

Eight of the Collectors Club were our guests, Mr. Lindquist, the president, acting as master of ceremonies in a most efficient and snappy manner. It is worthy of note that all eight exhibits were shown and explained in detail in a short space of time.

Mr. Lindquist showed three of the early stamps of Norway, the 4 sk of each of the first three issues. His hobby is reconstruction of plates. He dwelt particularly on the amassing of copies of the two later issues, and then the assorting of them into their correct groupings. We got the idea that this was great fun for a true stamp student.

Mr. Perry showed a wonderful array of Postmasters' Provisionals. These started with Baltimores and Brattleboros, and ran on down through the St. Louis Bears. The New York 5s were there in all shapes, many going to foreign countries, a large portion of the collection being on the cover. We never saw an uncommon stamp look so common for there they were—hundreds of them!

Mr. Steinway unlimbered a large and surprising volume of early issues of Great Britain. He seems to think it great sport to get an imperforated strip the full width of the pane of stamps, put it at the bottom of the page as a base, then get a strip with one less, and so on, mounting them into pyramids. We can see those pyramids now.

Mr. Chittenden exhibited Bosnia and Hungary. He said he did not see why more collectors did not collect more of the early issues of Hungary, and why don't they dig up more of the scarce Bosnian perforations. There is much to learn in studying these two countries.

Mr. Curie, the club Vice President, showed the collection that created the most interest. It was a General Collection of 19th Century stamps of the world. It was wonderful. At first we looked at the stamps and there were so many to look at that we ended by trying to find a blank space in the printed pages. Few blanks were in the collection, and as he showed only the first page or two of each country, we decided that he had an idealist's collection.

Mr. Barrett showed some of the early stamps of the West Indies in mint condition. They were remarkably neat, the coloring being rich and every now and then a block of great rarity held our attention.

Mr. Konwiser showed a collection of Danish used in the early days. These were on and off cover, and attention was called to the varieties of cancellations, many being very seldom found.

Mr. Phillips showed a collection of stamps in mint and used condition, these being the early issues of Liberia, a much neglected country. We learned that the heavy bars on early stamps were quite proper and got an idea how to tell the good and bad stamps from each other.

The benefits of these interchanges of visits is not entirely absent after the guests have departed. When we see certain stamps now we are able to fasten some data and interesting feature to the copy in hand, which we should not have noticed before this get-together.

The Springfield Stamp Club is now going through the process of assembling its material for their coming "return engagement," and of course are looking forward to this visit with much pleasure.

THE MID-WEST EXHIBITION

By W. W. MACLAREN.

The Midwestern Philatelic Exhibition, to be held in Cleveland next May should interest every collector, and every dealer and publisher in this country. It is an experiment. Its success is assured, provided it has the support it deserves. At no time in the past, or for that matter, the present time, has any group of clubs and dealers in any city outside the metropolis, New York City, felt itself sufficiently strong to undertake holding a first-class, public, philatelic exhibition.

The Garfield-Perry Stamp Club now says: "We will undertake it, by bringing into the enterprise the combined strength and resources of all the stamp clubs within a reasonable radius—making it a regional affair." So an invitation has been extended to the clubs, big and little, to join us, and the response has been enthusiastic and almost unanimous in favor of the project.

Now what does this mean for Philately in America? Just this—if this exhibition proves a success, the plan will be copied in a score or even a hundred centers throughout the country, and first-class exhibitions available to all collectors, everywhere, will become a common thing.

Can anyone possibly overestimate the tremendous boom that will give our hobby? Already plans are on foot to follow out this plan in several localities, provided the Midwestern Exhibition proves successful.

The writer appeals to his friends everywhere, and to his enemies as well, if he has any—to every devotee of the hobby to rally to the support of this enterprise. You can help by taking a few shares, or even one share, of stock in the Exhibition Co., by planning to attend the exhibition if you live anywhere in this part of the country, by using advertising stickers on your stamp mail, by talking it up (up, not down) amongst your stamp acquaintances. If a dealer, by taking a booth, by advertising in the Catalogue, etc., etc.

The purchase of stock is merely an underwriting proposition—after the exhibition, the Company will liquidate its affairs, and there is every indication at the present moment that a dividend of close to 100% will be paid, with the possibility, of course, that it may be a little less, or possibly a little over.

By next month the official prospectus will be out, and a copy will be sent to every Stamp Hunter subscriber. Do not wait until then, however, before doing "your bit"—let me hear from you now. I am pleased to report that sales amongst Garfield-Perry members have already passed the $1,000.00 mark.

Favorable reports are coming in from other clubs, and every development of the past month has been favorable to the enterprise.—Stamp Hunter.

THE "PRECANCELS" OF SHANGHAI

By FREDERICK W. ALLEN.

In a recent article "The Precancels of the U. S. Island Dependencies and Shanghai," which appeared in this paper,
I mentioned at some length certain stamps which exist with two types of overprints reading SHANGHAI-CHINA. These have been listed in the precancel catalogues for years, and on the basis of the following should be deleted.

Mr. E. G. Young, A.P.S. No. 8140, writes me:

"The title of your recent article in the WEEKLY caught my eye and attention immediately, for while I am entirely unable to get any real kick out of precan-cels, anything related to Shanghai is my meat. And then you disappointed me hugely in the last installment (Oct. 10, 1927, p. 572), for I hoped to get some real information on the subject of these things—whatever they may be.

I think perhaps I can help you to some extent. In a WEEKLY article of my own, in the installment published June 23, 1924 (general title 'The U. S. Postal Agency in Shanghai'), I paid my respects to these issues as far as I could learn anything about them. Perhaps you have not this available for reference; at any rate, as I got the story from an active American collector who was resident in the city from 1911 on, these stamps were overprinted by the Shanghai postal agent on his own authority, to put the office on a parity with the other foreign offices in the city, which were using characteristic stamps. Some said he was innocent philatelically; some said that he was urged on by collectors and fell for the argument that the sales would be clear profit and greatly improve his showing.
At any rate they were not precancels in any sense; they were as you state invariably cancelled on the mail matter with the regular postmarks or killers. My informant placed the date as 1917—you say 1913, and are probably more nearly correct. I saw quite a few of these, mostly in the hands of Chinese dealers;

they held them for stiff prices—$2 or $3 per stamp, and puzzled regretfully over the absence of their treasures from the catalog. As a side-light on this subject
I was present at a stamp auction in Shanghai, at which a set of these was in the catalog, but previous to the auction they were withdrawn after a vociferous argument—no more standing than if I overprinted stamps for my own use on a typewriter, etc.

I never knew that these were considered as precancels until some months ago when I noticed that they were features in an auction-route break-up of some important collection."

Mr. Young has probably solved for precancel collectors what has been more or less of a mysterious issue.

MULTIPLE COLUMNS OF ADVG.

Many advertisers are attempting to run their matter in double or triple column form with single column measure, also triple column form in double column measure. Due to the extra labor and expense to set these up on our linotypes the following additional charges must be posted:— 1 in. D. C. form in S. C. measure 40c
Each additional inch, 40c
1 in. T. C. form in S. C. measure, 80c
Each additional inch, 80c
1 in. T. C. form in D. C. measure, 40c
Each additional D. C. inch, 40c
This expense can be avoided by arranging your offers in paragraphs.
Prices can be given bold display.

THERE seems to be a general impression that new issues of British Colonies can be secured in London at face by anyone who applies for them. Such is not the case. Only certain Colonies sell their stamps in London through the Crown Agents (hence CA in the watermark). And the Crown Agents only supply

- (I.) British Subjects resident in Great Britain
- (II.) Who are recognized wholesale stamp dealers
- (III.) Who are charged a percentage for the accommodation.

Not all Colonies sell their stamps in London and these issues have to be imported through the Postmasters themselves in the Colony.

Thus you will see it is not so easy.

It is with great pleasure I am able to announce the formation of what I believe will be a perfect new issue service of British Colonials and I have ready to mail a Prospectus of this Service, its terms, and its workings. To serious collectors who put Service above Price I can recommend this service and shall be glad to mail the prospectus on request.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION

By CHARLES E. ROE.

I have been inspecting a wonderful collection of die proofs and it was while enjoying one of the most beautiful stamps in existence—the one dollar black United States stamp of the Trans-Mississippi issue—that an idea struck me. Probably, like most of mine, it isn't original—in deed, I hope it isn't—but in the hope that it may have some value I'm going to present it.

One of the great possibilities of stamps has apparently been neglected. Philately as a hobby?—lots of us don't like that word—study?—that doesn't cover it either—movement?—n-no, as a movement philately ranks just a little ahead of chess—cult?—we-ell, unless some Brother more conversant with the language can help out, we'll say "cult," but tentatively, understand. I have to start somewhere.

So. Philately, as a cult, has about two million variations, assuming that to be the number of its more serious followers. In that lies its strength, and its weakness, because the focal point of all is the Catalogue. Enthusiasts in Art, Antiquities, Ancestors, Americana, Autographs and other things are inclined to sneer at us. We have, they say, so commercialized our Cult (see above) that no self-respecting temperament, aesthetic or otherwise, can consider it or us seriously; we so judge everything by the frank mark of the dollar. And we, who know a darned sight better, haven't any comeback that they will accept.

I do not understand why it should be considered a proof of commercialism coupled with a defective mentality to pay thousands of dollars for a piece of red paper with a picture and a Latin motto printed on it, while to pay other thousands for a larger piece of white paper bearing the signature of a Signer shows artistic appreciation. I have read such things, but they don't seem to make sense.

Consequently if we wish the high-brow collectors to take us as seriously as they do themselves, we shall have to start thinking about stamps from a new point of view. So I suggest a new branch analogous to precancels, or covers, or cancellations having for its foundation the recognition of the designers and engravers, and the collection of stamps from that angle. For that there is real merit in stamp design is something that we know quite well and the other folks might recognize in time if the subject were properly presented.

Too little attention is paid to the services of the designer and engraver. Concerning the classics, of the beautiful work of those early craftsmen who didn't have to worry over the possibility of making billions of copies of a single die, much has been written, and the names of the artists are known to the specialist. But to the ranks those great names mean nothing because the rankers can't afford to buy the stamps. Hence, some kind soul—there are lots among the Fellowship—should start to teach us groundlings and dubs to identify the work of the hundreds of men who create the little squares of beauty that we call stamps and which we value by quantity. (I had 24,136 varieties at last count. How many have you?) I should like to see the work of the individuals who are responsible for the good things that the great firms like Waterlow, De la Rue, and the American Banknote Company turn out, appreciated, and credit given where it is deserved.

Conceive of stamps designed by Dürer, or Doré, or Hogarth, or Hatshepu—no, that isn't correct—Havasupai—doesn't sound right, either—well, you know who I mean, that Japanese artist. Even the virtuoso might notice such things. Yet isn't it highly probable that among the many anonymous engravers who have given us of their best since 1840 there are some of high worth; unrecognized as yet save by their fellow craftsmen? I think so.

I picture a collector who concerns himself not at all with countries, perforations, dates or watermarks, but whose aim is to assemble the work of each artist by itself and to grade the items according to their worth as Art. It wouldn't matter whether the stamps were put out by a great nation in sober earnest, or by a couple of grafting officials in the wildest sort of speculative issue; such things would move my collector not at all. His album, instead of being geographical, would have pages headed "Henry Johnson," "Andros Demopoulous," "Ivan Istvostchik," and such. (That name, by the way, was Hokusai.) His gems would be so mounted as to bring out the full beauty of line and shade, and to show the best of each master. Here would be seen the influence exerted by public and official opinion, by Victorian smugness, by half-baked patriotism, by the sometimes dismaying new schools of Art, by the self-determination of small peoples, and by Karl Marx. And other things. He would have a gallery of miniatures done on paper instead of ivory or other classic material, but which for sheer beauty would be hard to equal. And I would sure like to see that collection.

We have, all of us, the makings of such a collection in our books, but most of us lack the knowledge to assemble it, or the means and time for the necessary research. So as a representative buck-passer in a nation which believes in letting George do it, I am asking those who have done work along these lines to let the rest of us have the benefit of it. That is an outrageous request which no one but a stamp-collector would make, and, by the same token, no one but a big-hearted philatelist would heed. And knowing the gang—pardon me, cult was the word—as I do, I'd be willing to bet eight dollars that someone will respond.

If you are collecting Chinese stamps you need a good catalogue of them. You need my

Catalogue of the Stamps of China And The Treaty Ports

(Third Edition published October, 1927), because there is no other good priced catalogue of Chinese stamps yet published anywhere, by anyone.

This edition lists 449 major varieties, including the dues and limited validity stamps, and prices most of them. Then there are 108 minor varieties, real varieties, not counting shades, perforation gauge or missed perforation varieties. These, including the Treaty Ports stamps, are fully illustrated where needed.

The price of the book is 25 cents, postpaid by bookpost. If you want it sent sealed (advised when to Canada or the U. S.) the postage is ten cents; registration costs five cents, sealed or unsealed. Better send a postal note or money order, payable at New York, N. Y., as I don't want stamps. And if you find out that you don't like the book, return it and get your money back.

I am dealing in Chinese stamps and when want-lists are sent me I fill them or else keep on trying.

I will pay from 75% to 90% of my selling price for any Chinese stamp needed in stock. Couldn't do this if the prices were too high. Don't offer me any but Chinese stamps. You can save time by stating your price at first.

NOVELTY COLLECTING

By A. P. FRANCIS.

Many are the dissertations that have been presented to the collector reminding him of the history, art, intrigue, love, music, and numerous other points of interest represented by his stamp collection—small though it may be.

This brief article is written with an unanswered question in the author's mind—does the average collector get even half the pleasure to which he is entitled from his collection, through his failure to seek out the history, art or that phase appealing particularly to his personal temperament? There is unquestionably one that does, as was refreshingly set forth in only a recent issue. A music lover has found something unusual, blended perfectly with his comparatively common recent commemorative issues. This is what I term for want of better words—one side of novelty collecting, the novelty position being the thought, time and physical effort expended over and above the mere routine of stamp gathering. Stop for a moment and picture in your mind's eye how much more interesting even common stamps become when associated with historic events, works of art, or the like.

Let us assume that the idea of forming a simple novelty collection has found an appeal "inside" us; the question is here to begin? My choice is history! Let us take a war, and by means of present day covers with current two cent stamps, if you like, visit the battle-field of that murderous spree in which man indulged himself—it can be any war we like, in our own country or abroad, it will be fun no matter what the choice; or while waiting for a cover to come back from Atlanta, we are reading our story and making brief notes of what Sherman was doing there in the course of his march to the sea! Where was he next? Only our history will tell us and the answer is instructive and apt to be remembered when dug up as it will of necessity have to be.

It's a game and a good one. Our junior collectors can play it probably faster than their fathers, but when completed both have better knowledge of history and geography, and the desire to add color to the album by showing stamps of the time in question has continued the philatelic interest in a full degree.

Stanley's African Explorations would make an unusual collection along these lines and I dare say the subject matter worked out would be as readable as the original book accounting his experiences.

Another plan following the same idea and possibly more adaptable for juniors, tho I contend refreshing for the senior "T.B.M." (tired business man) of stamp collecting would be to follow the course of a transcontinental railroad or river from its source to its end getting covers at points of interest along the way and then showing the cause for these points being worthy of attention.

The scope of these schemes is unlimited, for one can enlarge at their pleasure; stamps of early dating, bearing town cancellations, have a place in such a scheme, covers before stamps, etc.; it can be started small and continued indefinitely, and all the while the necessity of producing data of interest keeps the collector busily engaged, if not on stamps, certainly on his books!

Another routine to follow in novelty collecting is names—one can have fun, spend little money, and accumulate an interesting side line collection of present day covers with town cancellations, for example, of girls' names, I have noted over a dozen with no effort—they range from Anna to Hannah, with Doris, Edna, Grace and others on the list and all genuine U. S. towns. I wonder if our presidents could be shown from Washington to Coolidge via the medium of town postmarks? Boys' given names are equally as numerous as the girls'; surnames might prove harder.

If not content with names one might establish a zoo as there is Alligator, Bird and Deer, quickly found and each a town in our U. S. A. To portray them it would be, I am sure, necessary

RED LETTER DAY FOR THE S. P. A.

(It will come as very welcome news to learn that President Camp's administration completes payment of all old loss claims. The WEEKLY congratulates the S.P.A. and Major Camp as well, on this splendid achievement.—W. O. W.)

Thursday, November 10, 1927, hereafter will be regarded by members of the Society of Philatelic Americans as one of the "Great Moments" in its history, for it marks the completion of the most momentous task it has ever undertaken, and at the same time shows that the Society has come back with a vim and vigor that few expected would ever be attained.

According to a statement made by Major Guy W. A. Camp, chairman of the Board of Governors, who also happens to be president of the organization, the claims of all present members sustaining losses in the old sales department were settled in full by the Board in July last, but no action was taken on the claims of those who had suffered such losses, but subsequently had relinquished their membership. On the date mentioned, November 10, the Board directed its treasurer to pay in full all the claims of these non-members immediately, an action which completes a full reimbursement to all those who had property in the lost or stolen circuits, and whose claims were approved by the former Ways and Means Committee. When it is taken into consideration that these claims totaled a large amount, running well into the thousands of dollars, the importance of this action and its effect on the reputation of the Society, as well as on Philately, will be realized.

President Camp took occasion to comment in the highest terms upon the vim and enthusiasm which has marked each member of the Board in promoting the well being of the Society with no thought of individual preferment, and also remarked upon the loyalty which had been shown by the rank and file of the membership who have supported the Board in its every endeavor.

With the Society freed from the handicap of this large indebtedness, with money in its treasury, and with a constantly increasing membership of dependable, enthusiastic philatelists, President Camp sees an era of great prosperity in store for the organization. Plans have been perfected for an aggressive campaign for membership, which will be inaugurated the first part of the coming year, and it is evident from the attitude of the Board that the united strength of its members will be used during the coming year in pushing the S.P.A. to the forefront.

EDITORIAL

A correspondent who prefers to remain anonymous says that the Confederate label of ten cent denomination in blue, showing the Confederate flag is an authentic essay, whose origin he can prove by a letter that he has seen himself, or has been printed somewhere. The letter was sent by Hoyer & Ludwig, Richmond, in April, 1861, in response to an invitation from the Confederate States of America, dated at Montgomery, March 27, 1861, for bids on the manufacture of postage stamps "well gummed, put up in packages of 100 stamps each and delivered to the post office department free of charge, and in such quantities as required to fill the orders of postmasters." The letter of Hoyer & Ludwig was addressed to Mr. John H. Reagan at Montgomery and read: "Enclosed we send our samples of postage stamps. The ten cent stamps represent the C. S. Flag, which we have engraved. The two and five cent stamps we have only made the drawings of, which we intend to make if the order is given to us. The twenty we should like to make with President Davis' portrait, in which case you will have to furnish a good likeness, if you should favor us with the contract for making the stamps. The stamps will be perforated around the edges and well gummed. We are willing to make, at 30 cents per 1,000 stamps, including all expenses for packing, according to contract. Hoping you will give us the preference to Northern Houses, we remain, Respectfully, Hoyer & Ludwig." About the same time, George F. Nesbitt & Co., the stamped envelope manufacturers, solicited a contract for stamped envelopes for the Confederacy. We doubt whether the letter from Hoyer & Ludwig has not been published heretofore, although we cannot place our finger on a paper that contained it. However, it is of interest and answers a question that is sometimes asked for information as to the character of the ten cent Confederate Flag label.

The controversy as to the identity of the steamer pictured on the twelve cent of the 1869 issue, U. S., indulged in by correspondents of The Ocean Ferry, published in New York, has not been unnoticed by collectors and through the courtesy of Mr. Harry F. Kohr, who scintillates on the Star of Kansas City, Mo., we have reprinted the developments. Now, Mr. Kohr sends the November number of The Ocean Ferry in which a strong case is made in favor of a Collins Line vessel; and elsewhere, we present the findings of a proponent of one of these steamers, which if not the last word on the subject is a most interesting one, at any rate.

Mr. Arthur L. Cooper of New York, writes a letter that develops a phase of the philatelic investment problem that has been mentioned occasionally, heretofore. He deplores the refusal of banks in this country to regard postage stamps as appropriate collateral for loans and contrasts this condition with that found in Europe where bankers are not disinclined to accept stamps as merchantable collateral. He tells how in some of the European countries, the banks abide by the appraisal as arrived at by various competent philatelists and make loans accordingly, without delay. He submits other particulars that have a bearing on the question, all of which have a tendency to make us feel that undue restrictions are placed upon an important factor of commercial conduct. We think that there is every justification for the remarks of Mr. Cooper and while we shall not say that there are not exceptions to the rule in this country, it is probable that when loans are made, they are a consequence of considerations affecting the individual borrower. It is unlikely that no bank loans are made on stamp collateral in this country, but even so, the practice is an isolated one. It is not easy to suggest remedial measures, but in the course of time, banks should relax their present severity. There are many collectors in banking institutions here and it may be that through their special knowledge of philatelic values, they will be helpful in lowering the bars.

A reader with a long memory asks what has become of the project for a society of "serious collectors of philatelic literature in this country" concerning which we had something to say a good many years ago. Action was delayed on any attempt at organization soon after the suggestion was made because of the war; and since that time, as our correspondent says, we have been silent on the subject. Frankly, comparatively little interest was shown at the time and later, and the proposal was allowed to sleep without any attempt to awaken it. It is true that some of the literature collectors approved of the plan, but they were few in number. The systematized collecting of philatelic literature seems to have made little headway, even though the number of philatelists who have libraries has increased. Too, the old publications have become scarce and libraries such as that of Mr. Howland Speakman of Chicago, are almost unknown. We suppose that this library is much better known abroad than here, but the time will come no doubt when the pendulum will swing the early printed records of philately into favor with many collectors of the necessary cast of mind.

Air mail letters from Habana, first flight, October 28, 1927, to Key West, Florida, were not backstamped at Key West, and the statement was made somewhere that this mail may not have been carried by plane. In consequence, Mr. Richard J. Schwarz, Chicago, addressed the postmaster at Key West on the subject and received a prompt reply from him, as follows: "You are advised that your understanding of air mail is correct, provided the letters passed through this office. If your letters were addressed in care of the postmaster at this office and the Havana office dispatched them properly, they should have been backstamped. On account of the very close connection from boat or plane to train, mail addressed for delivery in the United States (other than this office) does not pass through this office, but is transferred direct, hence no backstamp of this office. If your letters were addressed to you in Chicago and the Havana office dispatched them in pouch labelled Jacksonville and Key West Train 76, as should have been done, they went direct from the plane to the train. The first flight from Havana was scheduled as letters are stamped; and the Havana office made up its dispatch accordingly, but owing to the extreme high winds and an 11 inch rainfall, the plane was unable to leave Havana until shortly before noon of the next day, Oct. 29th, arriving here at 1.00 P. M., the very first time that a plane brought mail from Cuba." This statement by Mr. Chas. S. Williams, postmaster at Key West, Florida, clarifies the atmosphere and shows that while letters were postmarked at Havana on October 28th, they were not actually flown until the day following. The explanation of why the air mail was not backstamped at Key West is of interest, but strangely enough, a "Primer Viaje" from Havana, Oct. 28th, 3 P. M., did come through with the backstamp, Key West, Oct. 29, 2 P. M.

Mr. A. W. French, Ancon, Canal Zone, sent us a copy of a newspaper telling of the abandonment of the town of Culebra and of the consequent closing of the post office there on September 30th. He favors us with a last day cover, as a memento of Culebra, whose stirring history is so closely associated with the digging of the Panama Canal. The story of the post office is of interest

FIVE YEAR HONOR CLUB

John H. Clapp, Washington, D. C.
Emil Jahnke, Flint, Mich.
Charles A. Parr, Glen Head, L. I., N. Y.
Samuel Gittis, Philadelphia, Pa.

We have no fewer than four applications for membership in our Five Year Honor Club this week, and we are greatly pleased at the renewed interest that is being shown in it.

Applications are at hand from John H.
Clapp, Washington, D. C., Emil Jahnke, Flint, Mich., Charles A. Parr, Glen Head, N. Y., and Samuel Gittis, Philadelphia, Pa. All four have sent checks for $5.00 for subscriptions for five years, and we are very glad to add them to our Honor Club, which now numbers nearly one hundred members.

Mr. Gittis is sending in his subscription sends us a news item in regard to the Philadelphia Stamp Club, which we are pleased to insert under our news items. He is secretary-treasurer of the organization. He is also a member of the A.P.S. Mr. Gittis is contemplating an advertising campaign in the WEEKLY, and our readers will doubtless soon have an opportunity of patronizing him.

MARKET NOTES AND NEWS

By "CALABAR".

St. Kitts.—Once again this popular little Colony is in the forefront of topics, this time the 5/- and 10/- being the items around which interest is centering. Quite a number of dealers are offering these two stamps at figures which show a noticeable increase over the normal prices of current 5/- and 10/- duties.

By the way, well-centred copies of the 2/6 old wmk. (Scott No. 33) are rather the exception.

5d Scripts.—I understand that every Colony has now withdrawn the current 5d duties, so it will be as well to get these before anything unexpected happens. The 5d Montserrat is already soaring, being offered at $2 in the WEEKLY for 10th Oct., which looks as though it should run the 5d Virgins a close race. It would be interesting to know the numbers issued of both stamps. Perhaps Mr. Harry Huber, who is now visiting the West India Islands, will be able to give us this information when he returns.

Solomons.—Can anyone tell us whether the 2½d on old CA paper is still current? Several dealers, I notice, are quoting it above their usual rates for current 2½d's, whilst others price it the same as any other current 2½d. I see no reason why it should be obsolete, as I presume the foreign letter rate is the same here as in the other So. Pacific Colonies, viz., 2½d. Any information is welcome.

Edwards.—These much-neglected issues have been rapidly coming to the fore lately, particularly on the British market, and I understand that the high values of quite a number of them will show rises in the new Gibbons. In this connection I recall that one well-known English dealer recently ran a half-page advertisement in a contemporary giving a list of K.E. and K.G. items "wanted," and it is significant that fully half the stamps listed were K.E. high values. Amongst the latter were the £1 Bahamas, the $5 Br. Honduras, the 5/- Dominica CC wmk., the 5/- Falklands, 1905, the £1 Fiji, 1903, the $10 Hong-Kong, single CA and MCA, the 10r Mauritius, 1910 the £1 Natal, 1908/09, the £1 St. Vincent, 1911, etc., etc.

COLONIAL CO. 60% DISCOUNT

We require that when better than 50% discount is quoted, stamps must be definitely indicated and described. The advertisement of the Colonial Stamp Co.
this week illustrates our idea. Our aim is to prevent the impression that the stamp trade is run on a basis of from 60 to 90 per cent discounts.

"PIECES OF EIGHT" and BLOCKS OF FOUR

The modern collector pursues blocks of four as keenly as CAPT. KIDD chased "PIECES OF EIGHT" in the good old days.

MY TREMENDOUS STOCK MAKES IT POSSIBLE TO OFFER BLOCKS OF FOUR, PAIRS, STRIPS, AND YES EVEN PIECES OF EIGHT.

I HOLD ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT STOCKS OF SO. WEST AFRICA IN AMERICA. PRICES ARE UP IN GIBBONS MONTHLY FOR NOV. AND SCOTT'S JOURNAL FOR NOV. WILL CONTAIN IMPORTANT PRICE ADJUSTMENTS.

This offer will hold good until Dec. 15, 1927, so, "DO YOUR XMAS SHOPPING EARLY."

ALL IN HORIZ. MINT PAIRS. BLOCKS OF FOUR SO. WEST AFRICA WILL COST TWICE PRICE OF PAIRS.

THE SHIP ON THE STAMP

Editor The Ocean Ferry:
 Referring to the 12-cent green U. S. stamp of 1869, concerning which you have printed some correspondence, I beg to state that I have examined one of the original stamps, sent me by William C. Ancswert, manager of the International Mercantile Marine Company, at Detroit, with particular reference to the identity of the ship shown thereon.

This is a brig-rigged paddle steamer, with a straight stem; and I have not the least hesitation in saying is a picture of one of the Collins liners, of the fifties—either the Arctic or Pacific, and therefore, American.

In 1869, on the North Atlantic proper, it is to say, the Liverpool and New York route, which is practically all that matters just now, the Cunard, Inman, Union, and National Lines were so prominent as to constitute the "lot." The ships of the last three were all screw steamers, with various rigs, and can be ruled out. There remains only the Cunard Line, the British & North American Royal Mail steamers, as was their title. They did paddle steamers, culminating in the Arctic, and the Scotia.

But these ships, though also brig-rigged, had clipper bows, and so are out of the running. There remains, therefore, nothing but the Collins Line vessels, which obtained celebrity deserving of remembrance. They made American maritime history, and what was more natural than that the American government should seek to commemorate them on a stamp?

This I consider in the nature of positive evidence; and the mention of the Arctic in the Ocean Ferry's article is, in my opinion, additional confirmation, if it were needed.

The legend, as stated in the Ocean Ferry, that the ship on the stamp was copied from a menu card on the Oceanic, which ship came out in 1871, may be quite true, probably is true, and it is not at all improbable that the steamer so depicted was the Arctic. In fact, I should say it is extremely probable. From whence did the White Star Line, in the first place, get its now celebrated terminal "ic" in the nomenclature of their ships? I think it is a reasonable conclusion to come to that they adopted this distinctive terminal from the Collins Line. If that is true, it is more than probable that they would adorn the menu card with a picture of the Arctic and give the name also. Hence it requires no stretch of the imagination to suppose that someone, without any idea of the facts, has jumped to the conclusion that as the ship represented was the Arctic, and the White Star ship's names ending in "ic," was a White Star liner.

Yours faithfully,

J. H. DRINKWATER,
 Marine Superintendent's office, Frederick Leyland and Company, Ltd., Huskisson Dock, Liverpool.—The Ocean Ferry, N. Y., Nov., 1927.

A PHILATELIC TALE OF THE SEAS

By CAPT. A. B. RANDALL, A.P.S. 6635
 Commander of the U. S. Liner "Republic."

In renewing my subscription I thought I would tell you of an interesting incident that occurred aboard my ship last May.

The writer is in command of the Trans-Atlantic Liner Republic of the United States Lines, and, hearing that former Postmaster General Burleson was to be a passenger to Plymouth, I brought along a First Flight Cover "May 15, 1918 Washington, N. Y., Phila.," which had been personally sent by Mr. Burleson to Mr. Ralph Pulitzer of the N. Y. World, and written on the other end of the large Under the 24c stamp in Mr. Burleson's handwriting was "From A. S. Burleson" official envelope, "Carried on the Initial Trip of the Airplane Mail Service, May 15, 1918." This fine cover is a gift from one of the officials of the N. Y. World.

One afternoon, I invited Mr. and Mrs. Burleson with their charming daughter for tea in my cabin and in the course of conversation I mentioned the airmail and asked if he recalled the initial trip and the envelope which I then handed him.

Mr. Burleson was taken in pleased and complete surprise, with the exclamation, "Where did you get this and why?" and then I told him that I was a stamp collector and had been one since a small boy.

After this, he told me many interesting inside matters pertaining to the P. O. Dept. and another day he asked for the above mentioned cover and seating himself at my desk he inscribed the following on the back of the cover:

"Again, after nine years I write on this envelope, this time in appreciation of a delightful voyage on the SS. Republic under the command of my friend Captain A. B. Randall."
 May 1927 A. S. BURLESON."

And, this was not all; on Mr. Burleson's return to his home in Austin, Texas, he most graciously sent me a copy of the 3c Victory affixed to a card, immediately under which is the autograph of Pres. Woodrow Wilson, together with Mr. Burleson's as Postmaster General and:

"I hereby certify that the three-cent Victory stamp affixed to this card is stamp No. 2 of the first sheet printed."

(Signed) A. M. DOCKERY,
 Third Assistant Postmaster General.
 You may be sure your old subscriber is very proud of these two items and I think the incident of Mr. Burleson "meeting up" with his old envelope in mid-Atlantic is interesting, he, at least thought so, for he alluded to it many times over and back, for he returned with me the last of August.

—David Lowe, 627 Hendrix St., Brooklyn, N. Y., would like to organize a stamp club in his vicinity, and interested collectors will please take the matter up with him.

—Our several contests will be reported on in the near future. The editor is staggering along under a load of entries, but will soon have things fixed up.

—Our triangle contest proved a hard nut to crack from the standpoint of completeness. Our report will be awaited with interest.

—Remember Juniors, this page is yours. Write the Editor anytime you please and on any phase of stamp collecting that strikes your fancy.

—Elmer Rominger, Bloomfield, Iowa, a shut-in for nearly 25 years, will be grateful for any duplicates that our subscribers may send him.

Crete

By TED H. PLATT.

This island in the Mediterranean Sea began the issue of stamps in the year of 1898. Since that time it has issued a large number of specimens.

The earliest specimens were used in the British sphere of Administration were handstruck and resembled obliteration marks, while the later issues were lithographed at Athens were no more attractive. In the Russian régime, the designs were equally primitive.

When a government that was permanent came into being, a far more presentable issue was prepared. The designs in this case were very interesting, consisting of some mythological characters, as: Diana, Jupiter, Hermes, Hera, Mones and Ariadne.

In the year of 1905, a revolution broke out in the island and the unattractive designs became current once more. Since 1907 a number of issues have appeared, produced by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., in London.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

THE CATHEDRAL Mexico A34 1899, 5 pesos

feet high, were not completed until 1791. The walls alone cost two million dollars, while several millions more have been expended in interior decorations. The building is in the form of a Latin cross, 426 feet long and 203 feet wide. The Doric style of architecture is used within, while on the exterior the mixed Doric and Ionic of the Spanish Renaissance prevails. It is one of the largest and most sumptuous churches in America.

U. S. 1887 2c Env., Dies A and B By G. A. HUNT.

A quick way to distinguish dies A and B of the 1887 issue, U. S. 2c stamped envelope is shown by the accompanying illustrations:—

DIE A.

DIE B.

Die A. Little ornaments each side of bust before the word "United" and after the word "Postage" are similar to the hub and spokes of a wheel.

Die B. Ornaments are more "ovate" like the petals of a flower.

These drawings show merely the outstanding difference. It is the easiest way to identify the two dies and a big improvement upon counting the serrate ornaments. There are, of course, other distinguishing features, but none so noticeable as that pictured above. If I had known this when I was a kiddie with the great mass of these two-centers that passed through my hands I could have found some of these elusive Die A's.

Hidden Face on Bulgaria

By RAY JONES.

I noticed the article published on the Junior page of the October 31st issue in regard to the face on the current 2c stamp, and was very much interested.

In looking over my foreign stamps, I noticed another hidden face on a Bulgarian stamp; the 1s of 1911. The face is in the lower left corner of the central design, taking up almost the whole corner. It appears to be a man with beady eyes, a hooked nose, and a pointed chin, facing to the left. He also appears to be wearing a turban.

The Best Advt. Oct. 10

I think the best ad is the one of the J. O. Moore, Inc., found on page 547. It stands out and it is not crowded, stating in a few words all that is needed. It is easily readable and does not contain glaring bold face type, but an attractive kind. It is addressed more to the individual and not collectors in general. Its straightforwardness does not arouse doubt in your mind about its reliability. Therefore I think it is the best ad because it not only puts faith into most people, but it gives you a guarantee of service.—GEORGE BRETT.

In my opinion, the best advertisement in the Season Opener was the full page one, page 559, which was put in by The Home of the Postage Stamp, proprietors, J. A. and J. Van Kirk Wells. My reasons are as follows: (1) The unique way in which it is printed; it attracts attention. (2) It has many interesting bits of news and facts worked into it. (3) The prices are about right. (4) It gives a description of the stamps and sets offered, besides giving the catalogue numbers.—J. ROBT. SNAVELY.

The best advertisement was the H. E. Harris & Co. advertisement found on page 563. I consider it the best because it is very attractive and so neatly arranged. They describe each set so completely, too, that one knows in an instant whether the set is the one desired or no.—FRANCES PATERA.

The best advertisement is on page 569. It is the advertisement of Stanley Gibbons Limited. It is unquestionably the best ad in the issue because it is exceptionally well written, attractively made up, has sufficient white space to catch and hold your attention, and caters to all classes of collectors.—JAS. F. ABELL.

Cuban Air Mail Stamp

We have received from W. H. Avery a copy of the new 5c airmail stamp. It is in blue and the design is a handsome one. It shows an air plane on duty and some tropical palms are shown in side panels. Shape, oblong rectangular.

What is "Cutch"?

A dry, brown astringent obtained from the Acacia catechu and several other plants by a process of evaporation. It grows in India and contains a large part tannic acid. Cutch is used in medicine and arts. It is also known as terra japonica, catechu, gambier, etc.—ROBERT K. STORY.

Cutch is the commercial name for Catechu, a substance used in tanning and dyeing, and medicinally as an astringent, obtained from the heartwood of several East Indian trees, including the "betelnut."—BARTLETT MCKINNEY.

Fiji Times Express

The inscription shown upon the crude typeset labels which formed the first postal issue for Fiji. The stamps were set up from ordinary printer's type and printed at the office of "The Fiji Times," whose proprietor organized and owned the post until it was taken over by the Government in 1871.

Echoes of the Contests

—The following answers are submitted for the ten questions listed on the Junior page for Oct. 24. I am fourteen years old and am confined to the house because of a weakened heart following rheumatism fever. Have been ill for nearly eight months.—EDW. H. PETERSON, JR., Mayville, N. Y.

—I am going to take part in all of your forthcoming contests, and you can expect a letter from me for every contest you publish. Take it from me; the addition of your Junior department has increased the Juniors' interest 100%. Keep it going.—RICHARD RUTTAN.

—This is the first time I have answered any of your contests, but it is not going to be the last. It passes much time away and even if you don't win a prize you have had a lot of fun, but some of them were pretty hard to find, in fact, I am writing this letter and I still have one more to find, but I expect to find it.—ARTHUR COWDERY.

—The Junior Page is the brightest one in the WEEKLY, and I want to thank you for conducting interesting contests.—KAZUO SAKANE.

—I went through my catalog three times and through my stamps once. I believe that I have correct answers to all the triangles, but some of them were certainly well hidden. Numbers 8, 14 and 15 were the hardest and the last found. I am looking for your next rebus.—CHARLES HELBER.

—Although this letter is in answer to the contest, I don't think it would do any harm to say that I enjoy reading your paper very much, my subscription is only for one year, but after that it is going to be for the whole five years.—ARTHUR COWDERY.

—I am a member of your Honor Club and am fourteen years old. The Junior Page is fine and I hope there will be more contests for the Juniors soon.—JOHN BOLAND.

British Colony "Postage and Revenue" Stamps

By STEPHEN G. RICH, Verona, N. J.

In a large number of the British colonies some or all of the stamps are inscribed "Postage and Revenue" and are duty for both purposes. In some others they are inscribed "Stamp Duty," and serve both purposes. How can you tell which purpose they have served?

It does make a difference which way they were used; for some values were often used as revenues and rarely for postage.

As a rule, you are safe in considering that any pen-cancellation on a "Postage and Revenue" stamp means that it is used as a revenue. There are a few exceptions to this, but they are not often met with. If the pen-cancellation shows either a person's initials or a date, it is at least a 100 to 1 shot that it is a revenue cancellation.

On Queen's Head stamps of this sort a cancellation that has oval lines for boundaries is likely to be puzzling. If the cancellation is in black, with one outer oval line and no other oval lines it is probably a registration-cancellation and shows postal use. You are safe in considering any oval-line cancellation in color—red, blue, purple, or green—as a revenue cancellation. If the oval is made of two lines close together or has an oval within the lettering as well as outside it, it is almost always a revenue cancellation.

How can you tell whether the cancellation is oval or round if you only see part of it? Use a cent, a nickel, a quarter, and a dime as convenient circles. One of these fits smoothly and evenly

A WORD ABOUT WANT LISTS

HAVE you ever heard of the dealer who had in stock every issued stamp and variety? We fear he died before either you or we were born.

Doubtless, however, you have heard of, or met, the dealer who is not very interested in your want lists. What he has on hand he will supply—more or less quickly—and there the matter ends.

At "391" we take a pride in filling want lists. We do not claim to fill every want, in days when so many stamps are practically unobtainable, but we do say that our big stock must contain many of the items you lack.

Those it does not include we try to get for you, and every one here makes it a point of honour to fill as large a percentage of your wants as promptly and efficiently as possible.

A trial want list commits you to nothing, as all stamps are sent on approval against usual references.

U. S. 1898, 279c ROSE CARMINE

By HOO CAN TELL.

What is rose-carmine?

What is carmine-rose?

What other stamp, either U. S. or foreign, in Scott's catalog, matches up with the elusive U. S. 279c?

If this stamp is so awfully rare, why is it only cataloged at $7.50 new and 65c used?

What is the difference between Guam 2a and U. S. 279c as regards color?

Who will answer these questions?

against the curved line, the cancellation round; if none of them fit, it is oval. This matter of oval cancellations does not hold good for all cases on the King Edward and King George issues. There are a few oval colored postal cancellations on some of these.

Any cancellation with straight lines forming part of the border, or with a circle inside a square, is a revenue cancellation. But do not get confused on this: Cape of Good Hope and a few other British colonies used circular cancellations with separate parallel bars outside the circle and making a square. This square has not an outer line all the way round.

All this applies only to British colonies, it does not apply, to any great extent, to Canada or the colonies that became provinces.

There is one other item that you will find in the way of queer cancellations. In Transvaal, Natal, and Union of South Africa, especially high values, a cancellation was used consisting of a heavy circle with a heavy, large numeral in the center. The numerals 1 and 4 are the most common ones. This is a telegraphic cancellation, for the stamps were used as telegraph-stamps in the government telegraph-offices. But a triangular cancellation with one or two large letters inside a triangle, on these same stamps, is a regular postal cancellation.

It is not only worth while to separate out these cancellations, because the real ones are often more valuable. It is also lots of fun. I've tried it.

The Best Advt. Oct. 10

By CHAS. R. RUTTAN.

The best advertisement was that by the Home of the Postage Stamp for the following reasons:

(1) The psychology of the idea "European Tour De Luxe" idea catches the eye and holds the interest.

(2) The countries were not alphabetically arranged. This forces the prospect search for his country, which results in his probable finding of something else besides.

(3) The different styles of type, while not a new idea, is a good one. This breaks the monotony.

(4) The items are introduced in such a way as not to appear crowded. Here the variance of type also comes into play, as well as the vertical bars.

(5) The size of the advertisement is a big factor, and (be that as it may) the right page is always a superior position than the left.

CANAL ZONE "ERROR"

Several years back the "Canal Zone" 1c green on U. S. issue of 1924-26 printed from the flat bed press, was found with the "Zone" overprint inverted. The variety which Scott lists as #67b, is priced at $50. and has been selling at this full price. As the flat plate 1c stamp is no longer printed, the error is not likely to again occur. I have just been fortunate in getting ten sheets showing this error, at an advantage figure, and while they last, offer an entire mint pane of one hundred at $35.00. As the supply is limited, I can only furnish one to a client at this figure.

Want lists of United States Colonies in general, are not solicited, as I do not endeavor to stock these stamps; however, at present I can offer two copies of the PHILIPPINE—1926 Legislative issue 18c double center, mint at $100.00. Only two copies on hand. It is said that a sheet of fifty were printed, and ten saved.

Revenue Oddity

I recently had submitted for inspection a copy of the second issue $1 blue and black without the center medallion. The cancellation covered the center quite clearly, and from all appearances, after examination under a strong glass, it looked to be the variety with center omitted. The stamp in question was written up in the Collectors Journal of Chicago for November, 1916, at which time it was illustrated. Since then it has remained in the hands of the original finder until recently shown your editor. When the stamp was placed under the violet-ray lamp, the head of Washington was to be noted very clearly, showing conclusively that the center had been removed. This new violet-ray lamp is going to help us very materially in the case of fake varieties in the future.

Air Mail Notes

Announcement has been made that a regular north and southbound exchange of air mail will start at Madison, Wis., on November 22nd, the city being covered by C. A. M. No. 9. On the day of the first flight from Madison, Wis., there will be a special plane leaving that point for the Chicago-Maywood Field about 5 P. M. A special cancellation has been arranged, and will no doubt be similar to the octagonal postmarks now being used on such services.

The Postmaster General announced on November 15th that the Department had awarded the contract for carrying mail via air from Chicago to Cincinnati via Indianapolis, to the Embury-Riddle Company of Cincinnati at a bid of $1.47 a pound. It is expected that the service will start around December 15th.

The schedule as tentatively arranged, provides for taking up the connection from the eastbound transcontinental route due in Chicago at 5:45 A. M., with arrival in Cincinnati about 9 A. M.

The services from Cincinnati will call for a late afternoon dispatch to connect with the same route due to leave Chicago at 10:50 P. M. Special postmarks will also be used on this occasion.

Air Mail services have been used to furnish the flooded areas of New England with mail service. Beginning on November 10th, an emergency flight started from Concord, N. H., to Burlington, Vt., via Montpelier. This service takes care of all first class mail in the cities affected by the flood. Special attention has been given to mail for—Barre, Middleburg, St. Albans, Essex Junction, Waterbury, and Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, as well as other points in the vicinity. The plane used carries five hundred pounds of mail each way. In a recent Chronicle mention was made of the establishment of an air mail route from Atlanta to Miami. Mr. C. A. Carroll writes that this new route will be laid out somewhat differently from the original, which was established on September 15th, 1926, and discontinued in December of last year. Originally there was little saving of time, but it is expected that the new schedule will result in the air mail being used much more extensively over this route.

Canal Zone

The 10c yellow, portrait of Monroe, perforated 11, and printed by the flat bed process has been reported with the "ZONE-ZONE" error overprint. The 15c also exists in addition to those already mentioned in the new catalogue.

We wish to thank Messrs. E. S. Potter, N. C. Comfort, S. R. Secor, F. E. Disent, W. L. Morse, and Fred Klingenstein, for notes and information of interest.

Belgium.—Gibbons' Stamp Monthly prints the following: "We learn from the Revue Postale that the Belgian authorities have two new postal emissions in view: firstly, a stamp to provide funds for the restoration of the Cistercian Abbey of Orval and, secondly, a whole set bearing the portrait of famous Belgians, the latter to be issued in 1930."

Bermuda.—Mr. R. Roberts reports that he has received the 1sh on emerald, ordinary paper, script watermark.

Cirenaica.—Mr. R. Roberts informs us that the 20c deep violet, 50c orange and L1.25 blue Volta stamps of Italy have been surcharged "Cirenaica" in black.

Curacao.—Whitfield King & Co. are authority for information regarding seven new items of this colonial territory: Floating Safe stamps overprinted "Frankkeerzegel" and new value, 3 cent on 15c blue-green, 10 cent on 60c carmine, 12½ cent on 75c sepia, 15 cent on 1g50c blue, 25 cent on 2g25c chestnut, 30 cent on 4½g grey-black and 50 cent on 7½g red.

Eritrea.—Mr. R. Roberts advises that he has had come to hand the 20c deep violet, 50c orange and L1.25 blue, Volta commemorative stamps of Italy surcharged for use in this colony, in black.

Estonia.—Whitfield King & Co. submit a copy of a 40mk blue and sepia, design as A14, but with a different central view. This one has a large public building pictured in the centre.

Fiji.—There has been considerable uncertainty whether the 1 pound value was still on sale, but Gibbons' Stamp Monthly learns from Mr. C. E. Mansell that this value is still to be had at nearly all post offices at the time of writing (his letter was written mid-August) and there has been no local rumor as to its withdrawal.

France.—Sinking Fund.—Surchage "Caisse d'Amortissement" and new value: +10c (in red) on 40c blue (Sower, solid background), +25c (in blue) on 50c olive-green. Surchage "CA" and new value: +50c (in black) on 1f 50 orange-red.—Stamp Collecting.

French Guiana.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise that the 3fr magenta postage due stamp of France has been surcharged "Guyane Francaise" in two lines in black.

On approval—Selections of medium high priced and rare U. S. Postage and Revenue stamps in 2nd and 3rd class condition at low prices—also hundreds of Foreigns.

One of my clients asking for a selection of punched and cut cancelled stamps concludes his letter as follows:—"I would rather have them 'inferior' than not at all". Besides, you need have no stamp in superfine condition if you wish to study history, geography, biography or currency therewith—a stamp though a mite heavily cancelled or one having a tiny rent or tear will offer you the same opportunity and incidentally will save you a bunch of money—Try it!

Germany.—Hindenburg Stamps.—According to Die Briefmarke, these stamps will be sold until the end of January, 1928, and available for postage until April 30, 1928. Mr. Melville states that the design is taken from a portrait by the Berlin artist, Eddy Smith.—Philatelic Magazine.

Guadeloupe.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 1fr blue postage due stamp with the surcharge "3 francs a percevoir" in three lines in black.

Italian Somaliland.—Mr. R. Roberts sends copies of the four values of the Italian Volta commemoratives noted above with the overprint for use in this colony.

Liechtenstein.—M. Champion informs us that the total printing of the Charity stamps described last month comprises 150,000 of each denomination.—Stamp Collecting.

Martinique.—The Economist Stamp Co. inform us that the following values of the postage due stamps of France, type D2, have been overprinted "Martinique" in capital letters at the top of the stamp below "Chiffre": 5c light blue, 10c chocolate, 20c olive-green, 25c rose, 30c carmine, 45c green, 50c brown-violet, 60c green, 1fr red-brown on straw, 2fr bright violet and 3fr magenta.

Netherlands.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie states that a new contract has been made between the Dutch Government and the Netherland Navigation Co., with the result that new Marine Insurance stamps will be issued in November.

New Caledonia.—The Economist Stamp Co. inform us that the 1fr brown postage due stamp has been overprinted "3f." in black.

Rarotonga.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the 2sh New Zealand stamp, Admiral design, thick Cowan paper, with the surcharge in red "Rarotonga," watermark N Z and star, single line.

Roumania.—Michael Stamps.—Further to our last note we learn from the "Echo" that the new series will probably be issued on January 1st next. The design, the photograph for which was chosen by the Queen-Mother Hélène, is now being engraved and will show the bust of the young King wearing a white silk blouse, a turned-down collar, and a white tie. The colours will be the same as for the current issue. The issue will be produced by the new National Stamp Factory and it is anticipated that they will present a creditable appearance. It is stated that the toute ensemble will be very simple, being simply the portrait of the King, the inscription "ROMANIA POSTA," and the indication of value.—Philatelic Magazine.

Ruanda-Urundi.—Bukavu Postmark. M. Weber writes that a new post office was recently opened at Bukavu. At first having no regular cancellation, it made use of one with Bukavu in large capitals, without date, in black or violet. In the disorder of the opening, quite a few letters went by stamped with stamps of the Congo (without overprint)—none of those letters had to pay postage due as the P.O. allowed them to go through. This cancellation is already scarce as it was short lived and is sought by collectors.—Philatelic Magazine.

Russia.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle two more values of the new series. They are 5kop brown and 20kop dark olive-green.

St. Pierre and Miquelon.—The Economist Stamp Co. send for note the 3fr magenta postage due stamp of France, type D2, surcharged "SAINT-PIERRE ET MIQUELON" in three lines in black.

San Marino.—Mr. R. Roberts and Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new Cenotaph Commemoratives, Unveiling of Memorial to San Marino War Volunteers. The three values are of the same design and at the top have the inscription "Ara Dei Volontari." Values are 50c mauve, L1.25 blue and L10 grey. The design and inscription is by Prof. Enrico Lederici and the stamps were executed by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co. First time being printed in England.

South West Africa.—Mr. J. Robertson, editor of the South African Philatelist, in writing to us under date of September 28th last informs us that:—

Further to my recent letters I am now in a position, having seen complete sets, to give you full details of the South African postage stamps overprinted "S.W.A." The denominations which have received this new overprint are: 1/2d, 1d, 2d, 3d, 6d, 1/-, 1/3, 2/6, 5/-, 10/- and £1. The 1/2d, 1d and 6d are Pretoria-printed pictorials, the 2d, 3d, 1/-, 2/6, 5/- and 10/- are London-printed pictorials, while the 1/3 and £1 are, of course, King's head stamps. The 1/2d, 1d and 6d of this series are the first Pretoria-printed postage stamps to be overprinted for S. W. Africa.

In all the above eleven denominations the overprint is the same on all stamps in the sheet, namely, "S.W.A." in sans serif capitals. Thus, while it will be necessary to collect the pictorials in pairs, as before, the 1/3 and £1 need only be collected in singles. In all cases the overprint is in black and has been applied by the Government Printer, Pretoria, from type-set formes.

There are three styles of this new overprint, namely, (a) at foot of the stamp (on the 1/2d, 1d, 6d, 1/3 and £1), (b) just above the centre of the stamp (on the 2d, 1/-, 5/- and 10/-) and (c) towards. the top left hand corner (on the 3d and 2/6). Thus the overprint does not interfere with the central designs.

Spain.—In L'Echo de la Timbrologie we find an illustration and chronicle, under reserve, of three values in transverse oblong format, viz. 10c., 1 and 5 pesetas, stated to have been issued in accordance with a royal ordinance dated October 30, 1926. Unfortunately the illustration is poor, but the stamps themselves are said to be particularly handsome specimens of the taille douce work of Messrs. De La Rue & Co. They have a view of a palatial building and an inscription which we are unable to decipher.—Stamp Collecting.

Tripolitania.—Mr. R. Roberts advises that the four Volta stamps referred to under Cirenaica have been surcharged "Tripolitania" in black and issued in this country.

Uruguay.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle the following values of the current issue, redrawn design (imprint at right): 2c rose, 3c grey-green, 5c blue, 8c pink and 20c brown, all watermarked.

STAMP NOTES AND NEWS

CHILI.—We have received a letter from Santiago referring to the recently issued Air Post stamps, stating that the issue of these stamps has been made by a private concern, and the benefit derived goes solely to the owners of the concession. It is true that the stamps were printed at the Mint, but as an entirely private affair, and unused copies of these labels are unobtainable, letters or parcels to be sent by Air Post have to be handed to the officials who affix the necessary labels themselves. The stamps are not on sale at the Post Office and therefore they will not be included in our catalogue.

CYPRUS.—A new series of pictorial postage stamps is to be issued to commemorate the Jubilee of the British Occupation of Cyprus, denominations as follow:—3/4, 1, 1 1/2, 2 1/2, 4, 6, 9, 18, 45 piastres and £1. The date on which these stamps will be issued is uncertain, but we are informed that it is hoped to have them available in Cyprus on January 1st next. They will be on sale for twelve months only, replacing the King's head stamps, which will be re-issued when the commemoratives are finally withdrawn.

ESTONIA.—A new set of postage stamps is to be issued here this month, the denominations being as follow:—5 + 5 marks, 10 + 10 marks, 12 + 12 marks, 20 + 20 marks, 40 + 40 marks. The additional charge on these stamps is to be given to a special fund for the erection of a War Memorial. These stamps will be available for international as well as local postage. Next year new stamps of quite a different type and in the new currency, kronors instead of marks, will be issued.

FRANCE.—A set of three stamps has been issued for the benefit of the Sinking Fund, the denominations are 40c + 10c blue, 50c + 25c green, and 1fr 50c + 50c orange-red; the two first mentioned are overprinted "Caisse d'Amortissement," and the highest denomination has "CA" in large block letters at the top of the stamp. These stamps have been specially printed in different colours to those of the current issue for the purpose of overprinting, and will be on sale for one year only. The 40c + 10c and 50c + 25c stamps are of the Sower type, and the 1fr 50c + 50c orange-red, Pasteur.

GERMANY.—The Charity stamps for 1927 have arrived from this country, all bearing a portrait of President von Hindenburg. The denominations and colours are as follow:—8pf green, 15pf red, 25pf blue, and 50pf brown. The face value of the set is 98 pfennig, but is sold for Mk. 1.95, the additional charge being given to military charities. A set of stamps was issued for the use of members attending the meeting of the International Labour Bureau, which was held in Berlin from October 10th to 15th. The stamps are the ordinary current issue surcharged in two lines "I.A.A. 10.—15.10.1927." The letters "I.A.A." stand for Internationales Arbeits Amt. The stamps were also sold to the public for use on ordinary correspondence.

ITALY.—A new Air Post provisional is expected shortly, 80c on 1 lira, also the 35c Pneumatic. The Volta stamps, 20c, 50c and 1 lira 25c have been overprinted for the four colonies, Eritrea, Somalia, Cirenaica and Tripolitania.

LATVIA.—A special issue of postage stamps will shortly be made showing the portrait of the first President of the State. The stamps will be produced by copper plate printing and will consist of the following denominations: 2, 6, 15, 25 and 30 santim. Each stamp will be sold at a premium of 10 santim, which will be given to the "Tschakste" Fund, to provide scholarships tenable in educational institutes. The issue will consist of 35,000 stamps of each denomination.

MANCHURIA.—The $1, $2 and $5 stamps overprinted for the provinces of Kirin and Heilungkiang have been additionally overprinted at the base of the stamp with Chinese characters signifying "San-Sing" and the stamps thus overprinted are used only in the San-Sing district Post Offices. The overprint is in

PLACING THE STAMPS IN EXHIBITS

By STEPHEN G. RICH, Verona, N. J.

THIS article is written for the benefit of the committees that are now busily engaged in arranging for stamp-exhibitions in various parts of the world in 1928. It is written as a retrospect or post-mortem on the 1926 exhibition in New York, and aims to give the people who are planning the exhibitions some useful information. All it deals with is the matter of locating the various kinds of exhibits within the exposition.

To understand how these exhibits can be most advantageously placed, we need to know what sorts of people visit a stamp exposition, and what each sort wants to see. Now I do not have any census or traffic-count of the visitors to the New York exhibition; but I watched the crowd of visitors during parts of four days and have a fairly good idea of the make-up of this population.

About half the visitors are people who know nothing whatsoever about stamps beyond vague memories of their own childhood collections. Juvenile collectors form about a quarter of the visitors, and the adults that the juveniles drag along form perhaps an eighth. The remaining eighth is composed of stamp-collectors, ranging from the recently initiated enthusiast to the specialists in broken plates, curly-whiskered King's heads, and kicking-mule cancellations.

Therefore, seven-eighths of the appeal of the exhibition ought to be such as to reach the non-philatelic public and the young collector. These people have paid their admission, and are expecting to be interested at the start. Whatever is of most interest to them should be placed where they will run across it early in their visit, and thus become enthusiastic at once. The items that the non-philatelic person and the juvenile collectors like to see might well be arranged so that they are in a continuous row, leading these visitors along so that they do not cluster in a mob in any one spot. Meanwhile, the philatelist will have hunted out the specialties that he wants to see, and will be happier with them to the extent that the general public, not interested, is detoured from disturbing him.

The New York exhibition scored heavily in certain cases in meeting these needs. It failed equally conspicuously in other cases.

Those visitors who turned to the left after leaving the entrance-enclosure, ran at once on a strikingly interesting exhibit. That was the gunman-guarded showcase of great rarities. Back of that, they had an equally interesting pair of exhibits: the post-office and the printing of White Plains stamps. This was fine: this was as it should be. Those who turned right past the post-office and philatelic agency, ran into another good set of exhibits. The short banks of frames in the southeastern corner of the hall had material in them that was interesting to the uninitiated. It may sound strange to say this, but the choice exhibition of platings of early Belgians in this section seemed to fascinate the non-philatelic visitors. This is probably because so many of the platings were incomplete: the spaces in the reconstructed sheets attracted notice.

Those visitors who turned to the right as they entered, did less well. They ran against a set of short banks of frames filled with airmail covers. This airmail section, in the northeast corner of the hall, was undoubtedly interesting to the specialists in that line; but the run of visitors was bored stiff by frame after frame filled with covers looking much alike and differing only in date and place of cancellation. I strongly suspect that the airmail experts would have been glad to be not bothered by the general crowd, as they met and looked over their competing frames.

Opposite the rarities exhibit, at the entrance to the main banks of frames, were two lots of philatelic material that could with advantage have been widely separated. The government exhibits, on the left, were well placed. They were exhibits that attracted and interested. The specialized exhibits of U. S., on the right, were neither understood nor liked by most of the visitors. But, straggling through these aisles of frames, intent on seeing what first came, the general mass of visitors was sadly in the way of the experts in U. S. who wanted to examine these really fine collections in detail.

One of the fortunate things in the arrangement of the exhibition was the combination of accidents that placed the Lichtenstein and the Le Roy collections of three-cornered Cape of Good Hope where they could easily be spied from the center aisle. There is a fascination for the non-philatelic in three cornered stamps—as in all oddities—and it was very fortunate that these two collections were in convenient sight.

The general public did not get into the side-aisles between the frames in any great numbers west of the middle of the hall. From section L westward, the public was conspicuously absent. It was far more interesting to them to range around outside the exhibits proper, watching the various interesting things at the booths, from the Hot Stove to the bargains in Neuropo. And yet it was precisely in this western half of the exhibits that the things were placed that most interested the comparatively few of the general public that insisted on going through every aisle. Here was Berthold's Western Franks collection; here was Poole's wonderful educative and explan-

Collection For Sale

A client has placed with us for disposal a choice little collection, nicely arranged in loose leaf album, consisting of Holland all 3 Dutch Colonies, Bavaria almost complete (including a superb used copy of #1), and many other nice German states. Condition is very nice throughout. This would make an ideal start for a general collector weak in these countries, or good re-sale property for a small dealer. The catalogue value is guaranteed over $700.00 and first check for $175.00 takes it. [26c]

WASHINGTON, D. C.

atory exhibit; here were the Paris Bal-lon-Monté covers of 1871; here were the post-cards that delight by their mere size.

This comparatively neglected rear end of the exhibition would have been the ideal place for the specialized exhibits. That magnificent exhibit of Black Jacks was entirely lost on the crowd that watched it. The specialists who might have enjoyed it were continually jostled and pushed by the unappreciating passers-by—unappreciating because philatelically uneducated.

I therefore suggest for future exhibi-tions that the following arrangement should be made:

(1). Put the "educational collections" and the oddities of all sorts in the most conspicuous places. The two aisles of frames nearest the entrance should be given over to government exhibits and these miscellanies. I would go so far as to put the postal stationery, the tele-graph-stamps, and the like in this section—simply because I notice that the general public is interested.

At the end of each aisle of frames, the last frame of two should similarly be given to the exhibits of popular appeal. Patriotic covers at the end of one row of frames; three-cornered Capes at another; a fine piece of plating at another; Con-federates at another; U. S. telegraphs, which the general public dotes upon, at another; Sanitary Fairs at another; and so forth.

Down in the aisles of frames, where the general public won't come and annoy the specialist who wants to study them, put the fine exhibits, which are worked out in technical detail. And to carry the general public around the rear end of the exhibition, furthest from the entrance, place the general collections there.

I hope somebody will disagree violently with this article and start a discussion that will lead to action by the exhibi-tion-arrangers. Perhaps I can start this discussion by remarking that the New York exhibition was apparently arranged so as to make the most expensive ex-hibits and those by the wealthiest men, rather than the most interesting ones, conspicuous.

FRANK B. ELDREDGE, philatelist-mail carrier of Attleboro, Mass., has rounded out twenty-five years of Service for the government and on Nov. 11, be-came entitled to the silver service star. Mr. Eldredge is A.P.S. 3245, and is well known to many of our readers. Not a single complaint against him has been entered during his long service as a car-rier and he is today one of the most active of the men on the local force. Congratulations.

HURRAH FOR UNCLE SAM

Unused U. S. stamps, to the philatelist, offer one of the best kinds of investments. When you have a few spare shekels to invest you naturally want to know what the Philatelic Agency has to offer you at face value. That means that you must consult the current list of Philatelic Agency stock. The current list will be found in each issue of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS, published monthly. So it is very much to your advantage to sub-scribe,—and have a list on hand.

The United States Government has published a fifty-four page, 6x9 inch book entitled A DESCRIPTION OF UNITED STATES POSTAGE STAMPS AND POSTAL CARDS ISSUED BY THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT FROM JULY 1, 1847, TO DECEMBER 31, 1927. This book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents. It is not for sale by the Agency or Post Office Department. As the title indicates it contains a description of all U. S. postage stamps ever issued. It gives the dates of issue of most of them and a great abundance of other information of interest to a stamp collector. You can't imagine how much philatelic information is packed into this book.

Here's the biggest bargain ever offered you. Send me $1.00, in any convenient form, and I'll enter your subscription for 20 issues of WASH-INGTON STAMP NEWS and send you FREE the Government publication referred to above. I'm so sure you'll like the book that I GUARANTEE that you'll be pleased. If not you may send it back and I'll refund your dollar.

MILWAUKEE "BANKWETS"

(accordin' t' M. T. Dome.)

Dear Mr. Mekeel,—

Th 1927 Bankwet ov th M.P.S. wuz held at th Hotel Blatz Sat. evnin Nov. 5th at 7 PM with 40 members an 10 visitors settin.

Dokter F. A. Kraft wuz foreman an wittily flattered evry speaker befor th poor guy spoke. He also told how he got his start bi sum man trustin him with 40 dollars wuth ov stamps. But Doc fergot to tell th crowd that he wore whiskers in them daze like th Smith Bros. an sum ov ar Match an Medicine gents, wich guaranteed his credit beside makin a nek-tie onnessessary.

Charles E. Severn alias "Honey-tongue Charley" wuz th main attraction. Th Chicagoan wuz in fine wind. After fightin 7 rounds with Filatelia th contest wuz deklared a draw th Charley sure hed th Greek wobblin.

Paul MacGuffin, th Idle ov Libetyvil, Ill admitted he wuz Scotch an spent th evenin with us. (But honest he wuz not th wun who tride t' slip th waitress a Canadian dime.) Without a bag-pipe accompaniment he sang a few verses on "Th Stamps a Scotchman Buys." Sum feet.

Sumyun musta stole "Bathtub Tom" Hunter's notes, so of Joe Miller hed a nite off. With Mare Tomson chasin all th Kings outa Chi I dont see how heez ovrlotk this King ov Ireland.

Zalud tride hiz watermark-detektor on the soop. It wuz thik soop, lik th Chi-cago River, an at 1st he wuz a littul suspishus ov it.

W. N. Emerson spoke on "Sellin Off-center Stamps T' Th Blind" an also deklared ther wuz a ready markit fer old benzine, carbona er wood-alky amung th blind ov Chicago as a drink. No wonder Mare Tomson wants more water!

J. L. Kirkland, Harry Rech and A. J. Boehm, all ov Tomsonville, Ill. wuz with us,—an ther rugged beauty addid mutch t' th ceremony.

"Bill" Staab, formerly ov Chi. but now Presidunt ov th M.P.S. told how 2 ov Chicago's biggest hotels is owned by a former stamp-collector. "Wich proves all of us collectors aint nutty," sez Bill.

"M. T." Dome also wuz called on but yew cudent heer wat he wanted t' say on account ov th long an kontinude ap-pause of them az wanted t' hear him an those az dident.

Ov corse thair wuz now an then sum menshun made ov stamps, but like salt in the cookin thair wuznt too much,—ony enuf t' add a filatelik flavor t' th doins.

It wuz trooly an injoyabel "get-to-gether" feed,—an So Frendly!—Say, we M.P.S. fellers got so thik with them

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

Review of Gibbons' 1928 Catalogue Prices of Modern Colonials

By "CALABAR."

Part I of the 1928 Stanley Gibbons' Catalogue is now to hand, the new volume, as usual, showing several marked improvements over the previous edition. Quite the most outstanding of these is the adoption of yet another new paper. This is a decided change for the better, as the paper used for the 1927 edition, readers will recall, was rather too transparent, the printing on the reverse side showing through the page quite plainly.

"The prices in the present edition," write the Publishers, "have been thoroughly revised, and many important changes have been made. Particularly is this the case with many of the rarer stamps of the early issues, supplies of which are now quite insufficient to meet the world-wide demand for them. Of particular groups, those most affected are the British North American and West Indian sections, which are in particular favour at the present time. Of more modern stamps, the issues of the Irish Free State, Rhodesia, and South West Africa will be found to show sharp rises in value."

"Some of the rarer items in the Edwardian issues have been raised in price, whilst the Georgian stamps of most Colonies continue to show an upward tendency; but, generally speaking, there are not so many very sharp rises in modern stamps, such as characterized recent editions of this Catalogue."

Two other paragraphs of the "Introduction" may be here noted—

"In spite of the difficult trade conditions resulting from the General Strike and Coal Strike of last year, we are glad to be able to record that business in stamps shows no signs of any falling off; in fact, so far as the firm of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., is concerned, trade for the first eight months of 1927 is greatly in excess of that recorded for the corresponding period in any year since the 'boom' period, 1920/21."

The demand for stamps is increasing, whilst the field of interest is steadily widening to include more and more of those countries which have hitherto been regarded as unpopular. As regards rare items and fine pieces, particularly in the stamps of the British Empire, the demand is greatly in excess of the supply, and very high prices are now being paid. In view of these facts, collectors and dealers can look forward with every confidence to the future."

Now for the prices—

Antigua shows practically no changes, but in Ascension the 8d, 1/-, 2/- and 3/- of the first series are now priced at 6/6, 7/6, 17/6 and 27/6. All the s. values of the Georgian issues of Barbados are up, the 1/-, 2/- and 3/- 1912 being at 13/6, 40/- and 65/-, the 1916 s.'s at 6/-, 10/- and 75/- respectively, the 3/- 1918 at 25/-, the 1920 s.'s at 4/6, 7/6 and 12/6, the 1921's at 4/-, 7/6 and 12/6, and the 1/- script, 1924, at 25/-. The 2/-, 3/-, 4/- and 5/- Barbuda's move up to 10/-, 12/6, 17/6 and 25/-. In Bermuda the 1/- on "olive" goes to 4/- and the 10/- MCA to 35/-. The two Tercentenary series show an all around rise. There are few changes in Bahamas, outside the 5/- and £1 1912, and the "Peace" issue. Br. Guiana stays about the same, as does Br. Honduras, though in the latter Colony the $1, $2 and $5 1913 are now at 12/6, 45/- and 80/-. The only important changes in Br. Solomons are the scarce 3d 1923 and the 10/- 1914, these jumping to 20/- and 35/- respectively. The 5/- MCA on buff is now listed, and rightly so, as it is a quite distinct printing, being from Plate 2, and was issued in 1920. Only a few changes added here and there in Br. Somaliland, the same thing being true of Brunei. The Bushire overprints stand still, whilst the only rises in the C.E.F. surcharges of Cameroons are the 2s, 3s and 5s with inverted "s."

Canada makes several scattered advances, the most notable being the 50c K.E., to 25/-. The thick paper prtg. of the K.G. 1c orange, 2c green, and 3c carmine, imperf. x perf. 8, are listed for the first time, and priced at 2/6, 4/6 and 12/6. Caymans shows a number of rises in both the K.E. and K.G. high

British Colonies

The most satisfactory way of filling in a few of those vacant spaces is to see the stamps before you buy them.

My net approval books contain a good line of British and French Colonies, all marked with the catalogue number, catalogue price and net price.

I also have a few books of U. S. marked the same way.

Why not send for a selection on approval?

Business reference required.

Local buyers are invited to drop in and look over my counter books of U. S. and Foreign.

VICTOR WEISKOPF, Inc.

values, the 5/- 1907 moving to 80/-, 1907/08 surcharges to 85/- for the 1/2d, 75/- for the 1d, and £12 for the rare 2 1/2d, and 5/- Universal to 30/-, and the 5/- 1912 to 35/-. The ordinary prtg. (on green) of the 10/- 1912 goes to 45/-, the olive back prtg. to 30/-, and the white back prtg. to 40/-, whilst the 5/- yellow-green on pale yellow, 1921, goes to 22/6, the 5/- blue-green on pale yellow to 55/-, and the 5/- on buff to 30/- The scarce 10/- 1921 is now at 70/- Ceylon makes a few changes here and there, whilst Cook Ids. is more or less dormant. In Cyprus the 45pi 1912 moves to 35/-, the 6, 9, 18 and 45pi 1921/23 to 8/6, 12/-, 60/- and £8, and the rare 10/- and £1 to £10 and £24.

The Dominica 5/- 1914 advances to 20/-, the 2/- and 2/6 1921 to 12/6 and 20/-, and the popular 3/- and 5/- 1923 to 35/- and 30/-. Falklands shows only one important rise, viz., the 5/- K.E. to 35/-. Nothing worth mentioning in Fiji, except the local post. dues. These are now unpriced mint, whilst prices for used copies are as follows—1/2d at £8, 1d at 45/-, 2d at 40/-, 3d at 80/-, 4d at £12, and 1/2d type 2, at £10. The Gambia K.G.'s increase slightly, with the 5/- 1922 now at 30/-. The high values of Gibraltar, as might be expected, show a general rise, the exceptions being the 4/- and 8/- scripts, which have dropped to 50/- and £10. Gold Coast moves forward, so far as the K.G. issues are concerned, whilst Grenada shows a general upward trend.

Scattered rises in Hejaz and Hong Kong, and an upward movement in the India K.G. high values. General rises, of course, in "Irish," with startling prices for several of the high values. The 2/6, 5/- and 10/- Thoms are now at £7, £5 and £8 for the July/Nov. prtg., and 10/-, 22/6 and 60/- for the Dec. ones. Quite a number of rises in Jamaica, and in the rupee values of East Africa & Uganda and the 1921 series of Kenya.

Kuwait makes slight advances, as does Leeward Ids. Malta, as usual, has quite a crop of changes. The 5/- Universal goes to 30/-, the 2/- and 5/- K.G. to 20/- and 80/-, the 2/6 and 10/- 1919 to 75/- and £35, the 10/- CC Self-Govt. to £12, the 2/-, 2/6 and 5/- MCA Self-Govt. to 65/-, 20/- and 40/-, the 2/- and 10/- script Self-Govt. to 20/- and 75/-, the 2/-, 2/6, 5/- and 10/- "Melita" to 17/6, 12/6, 16/6 and 27/6, and the 4d, 1/-, 2/-, 2/6, 5/- and 10/- "Postage" to 6/6, 6/6, 45/-, 27/6, 17/6 and 20/-. The two £1's remain at their 1927 figures, viz., 80/- and 60/-.

Mauritius shows a fair number of alterations, whilst Irak stays pretty much the same. The Montserrat rises take place mostly in the 1916 series, with the 5/- 1914 reaching 60/-. The De La Rue prints of the 2/6, 5/- and 10/- Nauru increase slightly, and in Newfoundland the Cabot issue, the 1910 series, the "Caribou's," and the 3c Air Post 1919, move forward. The New Guinea and Marshall Ids. G.R.I. surcharges show only a very few changes, though as usual there is increased activity in the North West Pacifics. Save for the 2d on 40c, with "RF" wmk., which goes to 65/-, New Hebrides keeps its 1927 level throughout. New Zealand shows a pretty general revision, but the Dependencies (Aitutaki, Niue and Penrhyn) are quiet. The minor coloured paper varieties of Nigeria have moved upwards, though N. Nigeria is dormant. Several changes in Nyasaland, whilst Rhodesia shows a decided upward trend.

Quite a few of the scarce ovpt. and wmk. varieties of Papua are now priced, though there is little change in the ordinary issues. The high values of St. Helena are up, with the popular 1/6, 2/6 and 5/- 1922/23 reaching 6/6, 10/- and 17/6. St. Kitts shows important rises. In the 1920 issue the 2/- goes to 8/6, the 2/6 to 5/-, the 5/- to 10/-, and the 10/- to 20/-. The 1923 series is still mounting, the 6d going to 6/-, the 2/- to 20/-, the 2/6 to 30/-, the 5/- to 65/-, the 10/- to £8, and the £1 to £14.

The St. Lucia 2 1/2d orange script goes to 5/- Many minor rises in St. Vincent. Samoa is quiet, as is Sarawak and Seychelles, only a few d. or s. being added here and there. All the Sierra Leone high values are up, as are those of the Universal and 1912 series of So. Nigeria. There is an all around rise, as usual, in S. W. Africa, pretty stiff in spots. The much-despised Malaya-Borneo ovpts. move forward, and rightly, as many are really rare items.

All the recent Tanganyikas are up, both the 1921 series and the "Giraffes" advancing sharply. In the latter the 1/-, 2/-, 3/-, 5/-, 10/- and £1 sideways wmk. are now at 4/6, 8/-, 10/-, 20/-, 40/- and £5; the same values with upright wmk. are at 4/-, 8/-, 15/-, 30/- and 75/-. Trinidad & Tobago are mounting, especially the high values. The rare Turks & Caicos 2/- on "greenish-white" goes to £5, the 1/- 1921 to 32/6, and the 2/- 1922 to 60/-.

The 1913 series of Virgin Ids. moves forward, whilst the 5/- 1922 and 5d script of the same Colony reach 45/- and 12/6 respectively.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

JAMAICA 1927

By HARRY E. HUBER.

In their Bulletin of April-June, 1927, the Crown Agents announced that the ½d Postage and Revenue stamp for Jamaica, was being printed in the Nyasaland keyplate type, and in their next issue (July-September), that it had been dispatched to the island, along with fresh supplies of all denominations of the pictorial series, 1d to 5s excepting the ½d.

This new stamp supersedes the ½d olive-green and dark green, "Jamaica Exhibition, 1891," first issued on November 12, 1920, on Roman CA paper. Before being replaced on February 5, 1922, by the script CA variety, a total of 3,616,320 were sent out to the island.

In the Nyasaland keyplate design, first used in 1908 for the stamps of the Ny-asaland Protectorate, the head of King Edward VII, facing the left, is on a horizontal lined ground, within a pearled oval. At the same time, a keyplate was made up for a stamp in receipt size, 25 x 30mm, intended for high values, in which the pearled oval is surmounted by a Crown, and the whole superimposed on a shield with garlands of fruit and flowers.

Originally, i.e., with the head of King Edward VII, the receipt size design was used by none of the British Colonies in the Western Hemisphere, and the conventional size, i.e., 18½ x 22½mm, only by Jamaica, for the 2d gray, issued February 16, 1911, almost a year after the death of His Majesty King Edward VII.
In the following year, when the new keyplate (with the head of King George V substituted) was made available, this design was adopted by Jamaica, and subsequently used for all denominations from 1d to 5s; by St. Lucia for the 4d, and by British Honduras for all denominations of their 1922-27 series. The receipt size keyplate was used by Bermuda for the 2/6, 5s, 10s and £1 issued March 30, 1918, and the 2s and 4s issued June 19, 1920.

The Nyasaland conventional size key-plate consists of two 120 set plates, which when clamped together produce sheets of 240 stamps, four panes of 60 each, with plate number 1 (a colorless numeral on a solid circle of color, surrounded by a narrow band of color) over the 2nd and 5th stamps of the first horizontal row of the upper left and upper right panes, respectively, and under the corresponding stamps of the lower row of the lower left and lower right panes.
The lower margin of the two upper panes, which is also the upper margin of the two lower panes, is devoid of plate number marking. When 120 stamp sheets are required, either sheets of 240 stamps are cut in halves, or the plates are unclamped, and the upper or lower 120 set, used separately.

This same Nyasaland keyplate design was used for the first Georgian series of Jamaica, introduced on March 6, 1912 (with the 3d) and used for all values (1d to 5s on Roman CA watermarked paper), except the ½d which continued in the Arms type of November 8, 1906.
Only the 6d of the Georgian series, Nyasaland type, was ever printed on script CA paper, and that was due to an unexpected change in plans. After the 6d gray and red, Abolition of Slavery, of the pictorial series, was printed, and supplies were in the island, it was decided to destroy the whole issue, and bring out a new design which would not be apt to create local agitation.

(The 6d Abolition of Slavery was printed on both Roman and script CA papers, and 408,400 copies were in the island.) Until new plates could be manufactured, printings were made in the 6d Nyasaland type, on script paper, and issued October 21, 1921. The 6d blue and black, "Town and Harbour of Port Royal, about 1850" script CA watermarked, was issued December 5, 1922.

The ½d Nyasaland type stamps were received at Kingston, in the latter days of September, 1927, and gazetted on October 25, for appearance Thursday,
November 3, 1927.

"Stamp Office, Kingston, 25th October, 1927.

The following is a description of a halfpenny Postage and Revenue stamp, which will be put into circulation on 3rd
November, 1927.

The design of the stamp is denoted by a profile of King George the Fifth, on a ground of horizontal lines, in an oval frame, surmounted by a Crown, on each side of which is inserted ½d.

To the left and right of the frame respectively, are the words "Postage,"
"Revenue," and underneath, "Jamaica."
The colour of the stamp is green, printed on white script watermarked paper.

Signed, C. C. MANTON,
Deputy Stamp Commissioner.

The stamps were typographically printed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., Ltd., London, on script CA watermarked paper, in sheets of 240 stamps, four panes of 60.

At the top of the border plate design is the Imperial Crown, with tablets in the two corners, on which the value,
"½d," is expressed in colorless figures and letters. Conforming to the oval at the bottom is "JAMAICA" in colorless

1/2d green.

1d Arawak Making Cassava.

The 1d orange and carmine, "Arawak making cassava" is also slated for a change at a no distant date. It was first issued October 3, 1921, on Roman CA watermarked paper (3,582,080 were received in the island), and with the border plate changed to incorporate "Postage & Revenue," and printed on script CA paper, was issued December 5, 1922. The 1/2d and 1d of the pictorial series were typographically printed, and all other denominations recess printed from line engraved plates.

1 1/2d Contingent Embarking.

When the present large stock of the 1 1/2d green, "Contingent embarking, 1919," is exhausted, it will probably be changed also, to a smaller size, and in a new design, as it is too large for every day use. (Between April 1, 1916, and August 2, 1923, 1 1/2d was the inland letter rate; it is still the letter rate to the British Empire.) It was first issued on Roman CA paper, July 3, 1919 (7,975,160 in all having been sent to the island), and replaced by the script CA variety on February 2, 1921.

6d Abolition of Slavery.

When passing through Barbados on October 6, 1927, on return from Trinidad, I was shown the G.P.O. collection of postage stamps. In this I noticed two copies of the 6d Jamaica, "Abolition of Slavery," both overprinted "Specimen" (reading up on one, and down on the other), one Roman CA watermarked,

U. S. CIVIL WAR REVENUES

A Price Résumé With Some Explanatory Notes Concerning The Imperforate Varieties Of The First Issue Existing In Multiple Form

By HENRY L. DEAN, 239 Windsor Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE SECONDARY GROUP

(11) $20.00 Probate of Will

Imperforate

Strange as it may seem all multiples of this stamp generally known (the writer has located eight) are vertical, but the horizontal piece ought to exist and no doubt will eventually appear. Three fine pairs have changed hands privately during the past few years at $150., $175. and $200. respectively, and a figure of $225. seems to be the accepted net for a perfect piece today. A fine horizontal pair, if and when found, should command a modest premium, but no sound basis of argument exists that would justify anything beyond $275 or $300 at the outside. The largest piece is a strip of three.

(12) $25.00 Mortgage

Imperforate

Some few years ago pairs of this stamp were very highly regarded, but three new ones coming to light plugged two vacancies and the market is now about $200. for a fine item. All but one of the known pieces are horizontal, the list comprising five pairs, a strip of three, two strips of four and a block of four from the Lapham collection for which the writer paid $750. This block is particularly interesting in that it carries the signature of Daniel Drew, Pres. of the Erie R. R., at the time.

(13) $15.00 Mortgage

Imperforate

Pairs of this stamp have never been quite as highly rated as have those of the $25.00 Mortgage and this condition seems to be borne out by my data which credits at least eleven multiples, including three strips of three. All but two are vertical, the "finest" pairs being now worth $175. The horizontal strip from the Burton collection brought $80. in 1901, and sold privately for $225. twenty years later.

(14) $200.00 U.S.I.R.

Imperforate

This position does not reflect the true condition of relative scarcity of multiples of this stamp, but size, colors and denomination play their part in the price makeup, so I am setting it ahead of rarer but cheaper items. Two full sheets of eight are known, likewise blocks of four and of five, two strips of three, one of four, and to my own knowledge seven pairs. The latter will command $225. being helped by the high catalog rating of the single stamp which is out of line with others in the list. A block of four should bring about $550. today, although one of the full sheets from the Church collection went for $575. in 1917, and has about doubled in value since.

(15) 1c Playing Cards

Imperforate

Much scarcer in multiples than the $200. stamp just discussed horizontal pairs of this 1c will bring about half the price of the higher value, but they are drab, unattractive pieces at best, and further are practically all more or less defective. Vertical pairs are open to the suspicion of being part-perforates trimmed. Recent prices of horizontal pieces include the Hartell-White pair at $75.00 and the Lapham pair a year later at $100. The writer will gladly pay somewhat more, however, for a perfect full margined, horizontal example. A truly unique piece is a block of four, cancelled Aug. 11, 1863, but unfortunately torn across the lower pair. I have a block of thirty (Originally fifty) of this 1c P. C. Perforated, found on the back of a town collector's bond, so this tip may aid some enterprising hunter to uncover a comparable thing in the imperf.

(16) $10.00 Mortgage

Imperforate

Here is another multiple consistently scarce, in fine condition, all known pairs being horizontal and if perfect worth $75. to $85. There also exists a strip of four from the MacDaniel collection, block of four and a magnificent block of nine with sheet margin. I would as praise the block of four at $400., having in mind the value of $600. established for the block of $10.00 Charter Party when no pairs are of record.

(17) $5.00 Probate of Will

Imperforate

Another stamp truly scarce in full pairs, and while not as attractive or quite as desirable as the $10.00 Mortgage pair the perfect piece is worth $60. to $70. There are important blocks of six, eighteen and twenty-one.

(18) $1.00 Passage Ticket

Imperforate

There appears to be almost as many strips of three, as pairs of the value and title, all but one being horizontal and the bulk of them in generally good condition. A fine pair is worth $50. to $55. today. There is one block of four which would seem to be fairly priced at $200.

(19) $5.00 Charter Party

Imperforate

Quite likely if the full data were available, multiples of C.P. are probably slightly rarer than those of the $10. P. T., but it is assuredly a fact that they are closer held and in very strong hands. One pair recently sold by the writer went at $50.00, a fair market price. I have likewise been searching for a long time to locate a block, knowing that a piece of seven subjects was sold by Mr. R. R. Bogert in 1891, but can find no further trace and have come to the conclusion it was subsequently cut up. Mr. White had the largest piece known in recent times, i.e., a strip of five, but on stamp was slightly defective and I cut the item down to four upon acquiring it. Perhaps the block went the same way, but by other hands.

Having disposed of the nineteen major items in the imperf. list the balance exist in sufficient numbers of multiples of each to make any listing by relative scarcity impracticable and I prefer to handle them in groups embracing pairs of approximately the same value. Fine pieces only are being considered, and even minor defects would involve liberal discounts from the prices noted.

THE THIRTY DOLLAR GROUP

(20) 1c Telegraph

Imperforate

Like the 1c P.C. this is a dull and not particularly pleasing stamp, but it is important in its group and horizontal pieces are not numerous. Vertical pair outnumber the horizontal in the ratio of better than 2 to 1, but it by no means follows that they are only worth half as much, in fact, they bring $25. to $27.50 against $30. for the horizontal. I have seen strips of three and of four, but never heard of a block. Such a piece is less likely to come than blocks of the 10c—25c—50c and $1.00 values, but if a fine block should develop its real worth would be about $150.

(21) 10c Inland Exchange

Imperforate

Satisfactory vertical pairs no doubt exist, but I have never seen one, and the consideration here is wholly of horizontal pieces. They are more numerous than similar pieces of the 1c Telegraph, and besides pairs, include at least two strips of three, one of four, one of five, and a fine block of four with unquestionably not all the returns in.

(22) 10c Certificate

Imperforate

The recent discovery of a few new pairs may seem to make them less desirable at the moment than Inland Exchange, but they are entitled to equal rank and receive the same recognition by posted students. No generally known block exists, but is more likely to come forth than the 1c Telegraph and in the event it does, my rating would be the same at $150., for while personally I would take the 1c, others would prefer the more attractive 10c stamp.

(23) $1.00 Life Insurance

Imperforate

For many years a sort of glamor has

UNITED STATES 1851-1856, IMPERF.

I have very much pleasure in announcing that I have just purchased what is probably the finest collection in America, of the famous imperf. stamps issued between 1851 and 1856.

This collection is in six large volumes and has been most carefully selected for condition, most of the unused having gum with full margins, and the used being the choicest copies with the rarest known cancellations. A speciality has been made of pairs, strips and blocks, the larger the better the owner liked them, and there are an enormous number of stamps on covers. Space in a small advertisement of this nature will not allow of much description of the gems in this collection, so I can only draw attention to a few items.

"1 CENT"

In the unused stamps there are 5 blocks of 4, 2 blocks of 8, and a number of singles, pairs and strips showing many varieties. An extremely fine item here is a pair from the left hand upper corner of Plate II, with the full plate margin showing the crack in stamp No. 2, extending right through the right of the stamp and across the margin. This, I think, is the finest and rarest pair of this variety.

The used one cent occupy about fifty pages in the volumes and amongst them are blocks of 4 and 9, two strips of 9, strips of 6, 5, 4 and many strips of 3. Many of the rare types, and stamps on cover.

"3 CENTS"

The three cents are a great collection occupying three volumes. An extremely important item here is a unique sheet unused, with gum, of Plate III, with full margins and imprint. There are a large number of unused blocks and a great collection of stamps on cover with many very rare cancellations. It is impossible to list these in the small space in this advertisement.

"5 CENTS"

This famous stamp is represented in a truly regal manner. First there is a superb unused and then a number of pairs and strips of three on and off covers and all kinds of rare combinations. Beyond any doubt, I think this is the finest collection of the famous five cents in existence.

"10 CENTS"

In the imperf. 10c, we have a block of four, horizontal strip of three and several singles, unused, with gum. In the used there is a magnificent block of 12 with large margins all round used on the front of a cover addressed to Switzerland. There is a block of 4 and a number of strips of 3 and 4 and many pairs. All varieties of re-cutting and rare combinations on covers.

"12 CENTS"

Here we have a block of 10 and a large number of strips of 3 and 4 and many pairs, also many letters franked with numerous combinations. In the bisected stamps there are no less than 6 superb copies of the half stamp used on cover, well tied on by beautiful cancellations and used in combination with other values. Here also I must mention the famous quarter of the 12c stamp used for 3c and found in the great correspondence of Buchanan, Carroll & Co., afterwards better known as Carroll, Hoy & Co. This unique variety was written up by Dr. Carroll Chase and full details are included in the collection.

As the demand for these stamps is so exceptionally great in New York, I am not at present prepared to send the books away, but I should be glad to hear from serious collectors who would like to make appointments to inspect them at my office as below. Later on I shall be very pleased to send the collection personally to serious collectors in the country who are desirous of making a fair purchase.

LAGERLOEF'S NEWFOUNDLANDS SHOWN AT THE COLLECTORS CLUB, NEW YORK

Reported by CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

On November 2nd Mr. Hans Lagerloef gave a display of his collection of Newfoundland. Mr. Lagerloef desired that special mention should be made of the fact that this is one of the last countries that was arranged for him by the late Mr. Percy Mann. It is beautifully written up and well displayed. The collection is a little lacking in rarities, but many of us understand the reason for this, which is that Mr. Lagerloef while an American citizen is of Swedish birth, and extremely interested in the great Postal Museum in Stockholm, his native City, and to this he has donated many of his greatest rarities from all countries. To give some idea of the class of stamps so generously given by Mr. Lagerloef, we might mention that in his last visit to Stockholm this summer, he gave the Museum the exceedingly rare Mauritius 1d and 2d Post Office, and here we might take the opportunity of saying that the stability or great rarities of this class, is being more and more established by rich and generous collectors who are leaving their treasures to Museums.

In the case of the 27 known copies of the Post Office, the British Museum, has two copies, Berlin Museum, has two copies, and the Stockholm Museum, has two copies. These six out of the 27 known are forever out of commerce.

In the stamps shown by Mr. Lagerloef, we are glad to say that the papers and printings have been carefully worked out. For instance, in the dull rose stamps, we have the sets on thick, medium and thin paper, some of these in entire sheets, and a number of used as well as many unused copies. All through the collection attention has been paid to stamps on cover, rare cancellations and well centered copies and the display was much appreciated.

surrounded pairs of this stamp, horizontal or vertical alike, but I am inclined to believe that condition, or rather lack of it, has played its part well, for considerably over one-half of the pieces known are inferior in some particular. For this reason the really superb pair is probably worth $35. rather than thirty, but the ordinary good ones average about $22.50. A horizontal block of six from the Lapam collection is the only block known and must therefore rank with the 10c Inland Exchange at $150.

The next grouping which I have seen to make is the eight pairs which sell at present from $20.00 to $25.00 each, at there is almost no floating supply of most of these and two more active collectors of multiples, especially of men insistent upon fine condition would make quotations jump. The deterrent to most specialists in Imperf. multiples is the time and patience required to form a collection, the real enthusiast looking for instant action and these stamps are too scarce to fulfill that requirement.

| Value and Title | Price (Hor. Pair) |
|---|-------------------|
| $3.00 Charter Party, | $25.00 |
| $3.00 Manifest, | 25.00 |
| $5.00 Mortgage, | 25.00 |
| .30 For. Exchange, | 25.00 |
| $5.00 Manifest, | 22.50 |
| .00 Conveyance, | 22.50 |
| .25 Bond, | 22.50 |
| $0.00 U. S. I. R., | 22.50 |
| Blocks are not well represented in the above list being distributed as follows: | |
| $3.00 C.P. (block of six), | $200.00 |
| $0.00 Conveyance (block of four), | 125.00 |

| | |
|---|-------------|
| Horiz. block of eight. | |
| Vert. block of eight. | |
| $0.00 U.S.I.R. At least five blocks of four, | $80.00 ea. |
| One block of twelve. | |

Next for consideration we have the pairs that sell from $10.00 to $20.00, and should rate them in the following order of general desirability:

| Value and Title | Price Hor. Pair | Price Block Four. |
|----------------------|-----------------|-------------------|
| 50c Passage Ticket, | $17.50 | |
| 50c Inland Exchange, | 17.50 | $50.00 |
| .00 Conveyance, | 16.00 | 60.00 |
| .00 Mortgage, | 14.00 | 60.00 |
| 50c Life Insurance, | 12.50 | 50.00 |
| 50c Probate of Will, | 12.50 | 50.00 |
| .00 Probate of Will, | 12.00 | 50.00 |
| 50c Lease, | 10.00 | 50.00 |
| .00 Lease, | 10.00 | 50.00 |

The remaining thirty odd multiples in the list are worth from ten dollars down to a pair, although there are some rather hard to get pieces in fine condition, and the catalog rating of the single is no index of the scarcity of pairs or larger.

Blocks of varying numbers and dimensions exist of all these cheaper stamps with the exception of the 25c Life Insurance, which for my part at least I have never seen in this form. It probably exists, however. Collectively blocks are not numerous and thus are always sought for by the specialist, but at the same time there is a great difference in the relative desirability of certain ones and the vast majority of collectors are uninformed concerning them. For instance, the 2c Express and 3c Telegraph blocks are real prizes, likewise, as probably would be suspected, the 60c Inland Exchange, while on the other hand the $1.00 Mortgage is four times as common as the $1.00 Power of Attorney or $1.00 Foreign Exchange, which catalog half to one-third as much singly. It would not be feasible, however, to price these blocks altogether on the basis of numbers, which may be generally known, for the tyro will purchase the cheaper ones when available at probably more than they are worth and the experienced pick off the better ones at less.

As an example, take the conditions existing between the 50c Conveyance and 50c Original Process blocks where there are several of the former up to one of thirty-two subjects against but two of the latter known to me in perfect condition in the large collections. Now the Conveyance block of four will readily bring $27.50. But I know of only two men who would rate O. P. as high as that.

These lower priced items are decidedly interesting, but space limitations seem to warrant passing them in the present article although if from comments received there seems to be a general desire for amplification it can be attended to somewhat later on. Meanwhile the writer cannot but feel that in the numberless accumulations and collections throughout the country there certainly repose many items coming within the scope of the current discussion and it will be extremely helpful to be informed concerning these, or to see them in order that the data already gathered can be extended and made more authoritative. Thanks are also extended to those kindly souls who have submitted material in the past their interest and courtesy prompting me to now release the information which various interests have sought, but which I felt should be generally distributed.

CHINA'S STAMPS

By HOWARD E. WONG.

First of all let me express my indebtedness to Mr. E. Busch, Chairman of Shanghai Philatelic Society, for his wonderful little work on the album recently printed for the Chinese postage stamps with Chinese and English explanation compiled by the able philatelist, Mr. Church Chu. It contains wealth of information of all kinds on the straight issues, including the stamps of the Treaty Port of China and of Formosa.

The history of the various issues of Chinese stamps is very interesting. There is charm about the quaint designs of these attractive stamps that adds greatly to the interest of stamp collections.

Two interesting sets of stamps in collecting Chinese stamps are the 1913 and 1915 issues of the Republic of China. These require special attention and careful study. In Mr. Church Chu's explanation,

Some offers in these desirable and advancing stamps, taken from our 32 page "Monthly Bulletin", the latest FREE house organ in America. Remember we carry one of the largest all around general stocks of stamps in the World and will offer a different lot each week in this paper. Watch our ads nation, he has clearly shown the way to define the difference that exist between the two sets, and I hope the following information will enlighten the collectors who are having difficulties with their Chinese collection.

The two sets of stamps are of the same design. First set in 19 denominations (1/2 cent to $10). Second set in 20 denominations (1/2 cent to $20). Design: 1/2-10 cents, junk and railway train, representing "Communication," 15-50 cents, design: Reaper, representing "Agriculture," $1-$10 and $20, Design: Arch, (Pai-lou) in the enclosure of the Hall of Classic in Peking, representing, "Literature."

Each stamp of the first set measures 22 x 26mm, unwatermarked, perforation 14. Engraved and printed by Messrs. Waterlow and Sons, London, on thick white wove paper.

The second set, each stamp measures 22 1/2 x 25 1/2mm, unwatermarked, perforations 14, 14 1/2. Re-engraved and printed by the Chinese Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Peking, on white wove paper.

The difference between the two sets can easily be distinguished. London Printing (1913 issue) 1/2-10 cents, the three waves in front of the junk appear as almost regular dots, while in the Peking Printing (1915 issue) the three waves are composed of two thin lines and one dot. London Printing, 15-50 cents, the instrument in the reaper's hands has an outer line ending in a sharp point, while the Peking Printing, does not show this point. London Printing, $1-$10, the middle window on the top of the arch appears as a rectangular, in the Peking Printing, $1-$20, it appears as an ovaliform.

In the 1915 issue a complete sheet ($2) consisting of 50 copies shows the "arch" center inverted. They were issued by the Post Office of Tai-yueu-fu. It is known that one of them was used on a Postal Money Order so that only 49 copies are now in existence.

EDITORIAL

Mr. Walter N. Emerson, Evanston, Illinois, whose recent philatelic hegira was the subject of a notice by the Associated Press, which in admiring accents told of his stamp travels, has now become house-broke again; and he sends in a little article "from the pen of my friend William Feather of Cleveland. He was once my editor-in-chief, and even yet he continues to publish the world's best house magazine." Here is the way in which the little study begins: "I look out and see the windows of a dozen large buildings. Behind each window someone is earning a living, pounding a typewriter, pulling teeth, polishing finger nails or trading in postage stamps" and the closing sentence reads: "Nor does it matter what one does, as long as one likes to do it." We shall not inveigh against the juxtaposition of stamps with epidermis as he merely wishes to give a professional variety to his list of occupations.

From Mr. Donald E. Dickason, Wooster, Ohio, the following observations have been received: "In view of the recent discussion on the financial side of collecting, I believe that you might find the following information of interest. I have a general collection of stamps of the twentieth century since 1910, including all countries. At the present time, this collection numbers around twenty thousand varieties. For the past two years, I have definite figures of the changes in prices in each of the new catalogs. I find that the increase one year ago amounted to just a fraction less than seven per cent. over the value of the previous year. The increase shown by the current catalog over last year totals seventeen and one-half per cent. of last year's value. While these figures may be said to approach the question from a somewhat different angle than I have seen mentioned, I believe that they are significant." Precise information of the kind given by Mr. Dickason is of interest and is not without value. It is safe to say that each year the cataloguers become more critical in price adjustment and are prone to give more serious attention to this important factor. The necessity for market wisdom in this particular is granted and the hand of the apprentice has no place in this delicate operation of weighing current values of stamps. Those who will preach philately as an investment primarily have arguments colored with reason, but at the same time, blanket claims of great increases in value of stamps generally should be based on statistics of the kind that have been given by our correspondent. Until the collector has some experience in actual collecting, he will not be able to exercise his "stamp sense" to best advantage.

Mr. Stanley B. Ashbrook, Cincinnati, Ohio, was one of the first intensive collectors of prisoner-of-war letters of the civil war period; and it was through his inquiries that fuller details of the postal operations of Camp Douglas, Chicago, were ascertained. We regret to hear that the mother of Mr. Ashbrook recently passed away, but his father is still living at the age of 89. Last May, husband and wife celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary. The father was in the Confederate army and was one of Morgan's famous cavalymen, who penetrated farthest north. They crossed the Ohio River from Kentucky into Indiana, and made a raid through the southern part of Indiana and Ohio, having been in the saddle for twenty-two days. They were constantly pursued and finally captured by the federal soldiers and sent to Camp Douglas, the war prison at Chicago, where they were confined until the end of the war. It is not difficult to understand why Stanley B. Ashbrook has a fondness for prisoner-of-war letters; sentiment points his way to them with a large finger. In this connection, occasion is taken to correct mis-statements that were a consequence of the sale early in the year by Mr. Edward S. Knapp, New York City, of his specialized collection of the 3c New Orleans Confederate local. A report was started that Mr. Knapp had sold his entire collection of Confederate stamps, and as a result he was under the necessity of writing to those who addressed him on the subject to spike the rumor. Mr. Knapp is still devoted to his Confederates and recently, he had the satisfaction of acquiring from its owner in Macon, Georgia, a strip of six and a single, outer line 10c, all used.

A letter has been received from Mr. Henry C. Needham, New York, correcting a note concerning an early date express company envelope that appeared in the issue of November 7th. He writes: "The interesting cover owned by Mr. Stuart did not go over the Trans-Continental Pony Express Line. It went over the Stage Route of the old Leavenworth and Pike's Peak Express Company between Denver and St. Joseph, which company had been absorbed by the Central Overland, California and Pike's Peak Express Company in February of 1860. As you probably know, Mr. Russell, one of the organizers of the Stage Route was an incorporator of the Denver Town Company; associated with him was William Larimer of Leavenworth, and through the influence of these gentlemen, Denver City and Auraria were incorporated under the former name by Act of the Legislature of the Territory of Jefferson (now State of Colorado) December 19, 1859. I am taking the liberty of sending you a pamphlet, being the reprint of the article written by Dr. Berthold and me, which appeared in the Collectors Club Philatelist. We have read much history of the Pony Express and its origin, and at times thought that the subject was fairly well in mind, but evidently some of the ramifications of it were lost sight of. With this pamphlet at hand, there will be no excuse for any inaccuracies in the presentation of phases of this romantic episode of our history. The book gives in compact form all the data available on "Handstamped Franks Used as Cancellations on Pony Express Letters, 1860 and 1861, and the Pony Express Stamps and Their Use," and while the text and illustrations are reprinted from the admirable Collectors Club Philatelist, it is comforting to have the work in pamphlet form.

While on the ocean, returning from France, Mr. H. Bedford-Jones sent us a balloon post cover, a "Lettre-Journal de Paris" of October 29, 1870, conveying his greetings. The text of the "Gazette des Absents" is an interesting reflection of the troubled times when French enterprise developed the balloon post, which has been the theme of so many articles, philatelic and otherwise. Mr. Bedford-Jones has given particular study to "Par Ballon Monte" covers and he has a fund of information that makes him an authority on them; and our readers have had the privilege of sharing some of his knowledge. Too, Mr. Bedford-Jones was a caller recently at the Chicago office where he discoursed on balloon post and other issues of France, his stay in that country having afforded him exceptional opportunities for gaining specialistic lore on the spot. Mr. Bedford-Jones is a writer whose name is familiar to readers generally, and his career in the world of letters is followed by many philatelic well-wishers.

We always consider it a fine tribute to the WEEKLY when a Canadian subscriber joins our Honor Club. It means a renewal of his subscription for five years and the remittance of $7.50. We make this acknowledgment to J. G. McConnell of Quebec, Can., who has taken out membership in our Club.

George W. Unger of Columbus, Ind., has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY for thirty-three years. His subscription record dates back to 1894. Mr. Unger joins our Honor Club this week and we are glad he has faith enough to risk a five-year renewal of his subscription.

In the morning mail of Wednesday, Nov. 23, two letters were opened in succession, each of which contained a remittance of $5.00 for membership in the Honor Club. They were from two old friends of the WEEKLY, Marcus W. White of Worcester, Mass., and Fredrick D. Markee of Needham, Mass. Both of these names will be very familiar to many of our readers and we enter them upon the membership list of the Honor Club with pleasure.

In completing our list of applications this week, which shows a total of seven, we must include W. E. Hawkins of Islip, N. Y., Harry R. Zuckerman of N. Y. City and S. M. Frechie of Woodside, N. Y. This is the finest showing we have made for many weeks, and is very gratifying.

In January, we shall publish a mid-winter special, which will include in its pages, a complete list of our Honor Club membership. It will make a superb showing and we hope that many of our subscribers who have not yet joined the club will find it convenient to do so during the next month.

OUR BOOK REVIEW

By C. A. HOWES, Editor.

Mr. Theodore Siddall of Shanghai, China, sends us the third edition of his "Catalogue of the Stamps of China and the Chinese Treaty Posts," brought up to October 1, 1927. This is a very concise and complete list of these popular stamps, with plenty of explanatory notes and illustrations of varieties. The only thing we should criticize in the latter regard is the fact that the cuts of the stamps in the current designs for the London engraving and the first and second Peking engravings do not in themselves show clearly enough the distinguishing differences in the three sets of stamps, and there are no explanatory notes to point out these differences. The fact that this has been done for the London and Peking engravings of the current postage dues leads us to hope that Mr. Siddall will do the same for the regular postage stamps in his next edition.

Mr. Siddall says: "Effort has been taken to include and identify by number every major variety, without discouraging beginners and others by giving a list of all the varieties of perforation gauge, or the very numerous varieties caused by omitted perforations between the stamps, causing both vertical and horizontal pairs and strips. . . . Those collectors who are not millionaires, or who have other things to do, would be well advised to stick to the major varieties herein given, and if they have the good luck to obtain any of the sub-varieties to be duly thankful, but not encouraged to think they can make a complete collection of Chinese stamps. Nobody has done that yet." This is very good advice and the lists keep to the major varieties, with all the principal minor varieties sub-lettered under their proper numbers, this being in general the method employed by the Scott's Catalogue. A representative collection can therefore be made by following the numbering and those who desire can add the sub-lettered varieties each to his own taste.

We feel we must strongly differ with Mr. Siddall in one point. He excludes the "so-called Express Letter Stamps . . . because they are not postage stamps." Inasmuch as the particular section or coupon of the Express label which bears the value "ten cents" used to be the only postage that carried the letter to which it was attached, even though (like our own official and postage dues) it was not sold to the public, we fail to see why that section is not as much a postage stamp as our own Special Delivery stamp, the "postage" from ancient times being simply the fee paid for the carriage and delivery of a mis-sive "by post," whether paid in advance, collected on delivery, by "slow freight" or "express."

Following the Empire and Republic issues, comes a list of the Treaty Port stamps which were once included in the principal catalogues, but have long since been dropped from most of them. These once popular and later neglected issues seem to be coming into their own again and these lists will be quite welcome to many who found them attractive in former years, or who may now desire to add them as a "side show," so to speak, to their regular Chinese collection. They are attractive in color and design, some are crude and others finely executed,

The fact that this has been done for the London and Peking engravings of the current postage dues leads us to hope that Mr. Siddall will do the same for the regular postage stamps in his next edition.

Mr. Siddall says: "Effort has been taken to include and identify by number every major variety, without discouraging beginners and others by giving a list of all the varieties of perforation gauge, or the very numerous varieties caused by omitted perforations between the stamps, causing both vertical and horizontal pairs and strips. . . . Those collectors who are not millionaires, or who have other things to do, would be well advised to stick to the major varieties herein given, and if they have the good luck to obtain any of the sub-varieties to be duly thankful, but not encouraged to think they can make a complete collection of Chinese stamps. Nobody has done that yet." This is very good advice and the lists keep to the major varieties, with all the principal minor varieties sub-lettered under their proper numbers, this being in general the method employed by the Scott's Catalogue. A representative collection can therefore be made by following the numbering and those who desire can add the sub-lettered varieties each to his own taste.

We feel we must strongly differ with Mr. Siddall in one point. He excludes the "so-called Express Letter Stamps . . . because they are not postage stamps." Inasmuch as the particular section or coupon of the Express label which bears the value "ten cents" used to be the only postage that carried the letter to which it was attached, even though (like our own official and postage dues) it was not sold to the public, we fail to see why that section is not as much a postage stamp as our own Special Delivery stamp, the "postage" from ancient times being simply the fee paid for the carriage and delivery of a mis-sive "by post," whether paid in advance, collected on delivery, by "slow freight" or "express."

Following the Empire and Republic issues, comes a list of the Treaty Port stamps which were once included in the principal catalogues, but have long since been dropped from most of them. These once popular and later neglected issues seem to be coming into their own again and these lists will be quite welcome to many who found them attractive in former years, or who may now desire to add them as a "side show," so to speak, to their regular Chinese collection. They are attractive in color and design, some are crude and others finely executed,

OUR BOOK REVIEW

By C. A. HOWES, Editor.

Mr. Theodore Siddall of Shanghai, China, sends us the third edition of his "Catalogue of the Stamps of China and the Chinese Treaty Posts," brought up to October 1, 1927. This is a very concise and complete list of these popular stamps, with plenty of explanatory notes and illustrations of varieties. The only thing we should criticize in the latter regard is the fact that the cuts of the stamps in the current designs for the London engraving and the first and second Peking engravings do not in themselves show clearly enough the distinguishing differences in the three sets of stamps, and there are no explanatory notes to point out these differences. The fact that this has been done for the London and Peking engravings of the current postage dues leads us to hope that Mr. Siddall will do the same for the regular postage stamps in his next edition.

STAMPS WITH PLATE NUMBERS

By R. W. BECKER, Treas. of the Philatelic Plate No. Assn.

Like most stamp collectors, I started as a boy to accumulate a general collection, and my father added his collection early, to give me a good start. It grew steadily until at the end of the late war the increase became unmanageable. Two foreign agencies were sending the new issues in ever increasing packages and my limited time did not permit the sorting and mounting of the vast accumulation. It was then I decided to limit my collection.

I continued to receive the British "Colonials" from a new issue agency and to collect the old issues of U. S. and the British Empire. But to get these all complete, including the pound values and the early issues, required a larger expenditure than my limited banking account permitted. Again I had to call a halt and this time I limited my activities to U. S. stamps only.

I love to accumulate large lots of stamps. I also want to feel that should it be necessary to sell my collection at any time I could recover my investment. A careful selection of U. S. stamps has met my requirements, and as I have the major varieties of all issues, I turned to the stamps with the Plate Numbers attached.

Mint copies U. S. stamps can always be sold at face value for postage and at a premium to stamp dealers and collectors. They are, therefore, a comparatively safe investment. Current issues can be bought at face value at all Post Offices and thereby avoid the premium claimed by dealers. Used copies can be obtained through the mail or from receivers of mail at practically no expense. An average expenditure of a little over $3.00 per month will purchase one copy of every plate number as issued by the Government, including the high values. This investment is within the means of practically every collector. A collection can be started at any number. I know collectors who are starting with numbers 5,000, 10,000, 12,000 and 14,000 respectively. You can start today with Number 18,000 and keep up to date without paying premiums.

Our Government started to print its own stamps about 1894 and has numbered every plate used for printing consecutively from number 1 up. Plate number 19,000 was recently used to print the 10 cent "Lindbergh" stamps. While there are a number of these 19,000 plates which were never used, there are more than 19,000 varieties of Plate Numbers, because the same numbers appear on two or more issues in some cases. The result is that the same number appears on paper with and without watermarks, with different watermarks, or with different perforations. On our present rotary prints, the same Plate Number may appear on stamps perforated 10 x 10, or 11 x 10½.

The Plate Number always appears on the margin attached to the stamps. On the flat die printed stamps, they may appear on the margin of either side, top or bottom. For convenience of mounting most collectors save only the top and bottom numbers. On the rotary stamps the number appears on the margin near the corner on the left or right of the stamp only. These are collected in all positions.

I receive a considerable "kick" out of this hobby in trying to get all the numbers. I collect all numbers on single stamps in top or bottom position and the commemorative and airmail issues in bloc of six with the plate number on the margin of the middle stamp of the block. I have no more desire to collect "Foreign Labels."

My next article will be "How Collect Plate Number Stamps."

and the other script CA. These "Specimen" stamps were sent to the Universal Postal Union Bureau at Berne, and distributed from there, before steps were taken to suppress the issue.

New Slogan Cancellation.

During October, 1927, a new slogan die was inserted in the electric cancelling machine at the Kingston G.P.O. superseding the pictorial "Spend your vacation in Summerland—Jamaica," which has been in use for somewhat over a year. In the new die, the slogan reads "BUY—BRITISH GOODS," enclosed in a single lined frame, 55 x 20mm. The vertical lines at the left and right are not connected with the horizontal top and bottom lines, and consist of two short, rather than one continuous bar. The postmarking circle portion is as before, a single lined circle, 20mm, with "Kingston, Jamaica" conforming to it, at the top and bottom, with the date in the center in three lines, "9.30 A.M.—Oct. 26—1927."

Report of the Postmaster for Jamaica, for 1926.

The report of the Postmaster for Jamaica (R. H. Fletcher) for the year ended December 31, 1926, discloses that the revenue of the Post and Telegraph Dept. was £93442.12.11½, and the expenditure £93692.12.7¼. In the figure of postal revenue (£75435.4.1¼d—telegraphs accounting for the remaining £18007.8.9½), £64256.4.11¼ represents the value of stamps sold, during the year, as compared with £63377.6.3¼ in the preceding year.

The cost of mail conveyance abroad was £4067 and within the island, £22415.

Since 24th March, 1926, magazines printed and published in Jamaica, at intervals of not less than 30 days, pass through the inland post at ½d, each, regardless of weight, providing they are registered at the G.P.O. by the publishers.

In addition to the G.P.O. at Kingston, there are 231 District Post Offices, of which the Postmaster for Jamaica says, "A number of the buildings in which Post Offices are conducted throughout the Colony are not what might be regarded as very desirable, but for various reasons, the Department must continue to conduct its business in these buildings and live in the expectation that the finances of the Colony will permit at an early date of a building programme for Post Offices."

SMALL PEANUTS

By A. C. LEDUC.

One day recently a letter came in, asking for one of my premiums and some stamps on approval. In due course of time the selection was returned, but there was no purchase. The customer requested much better quality stamps. I immediately thought that here was someone who knew what he wanted, and acting on that assumption, I fixed up a selection along the line of his wants. I sent the letter by registered mail. In the course of a week or so along came a postal card asking for return postage. I sent him a 2c stamp and made an inquiry as to what seemed to be the trouble with the stamps.

But this wasn't enough. Next he wrote for a stamped return envelope with sufficient postage for registration. He did state that the stamps in the selection were satisfactory. The affair was getting quite interesting by now. However, I felt that I had already spent enough time and energy on the case and that in order to partly repay myself I would send stamps of philatelic value, when used on the return envelope. I therefore, fixed up an envelope and decorated it with various denominations, plate numbers, etc.

In about another week this valued (?) customer sent in a letter by registered mail returning the selection without any purchase. The stamps on the return envelope did not have the appearance of the ones sent originally. This customer had taken off all the stamps but one, and replaced them with 1c and 2c stamps of the current issue! Luckily there was no one nearby to talk to, or the air would have been blue. Instead, I sat down and wrote this "bird" a little note asking him why he didn't take all the stamps that were on the letter in the first place. So I used another 2c stamp and sent him the cover. I hope he keeps it in his album as a lasting reminder of his business dealings with me. Is it any wonder stamp dealers get gray? They would get gray quicker if they couldn't see the ironical humor in such happenings as the above.

Our extremely large and comprehensive stock, as well as our services, are at the disposal of serious collectors. We feel that we can supply many items missing in most collections; thus we solicit your patronage and would welcome a visit.

Dandy-Roll

A roller used in paper-making, under which the partly formed paper passes in an early stage of its manufacture. The dandy-roll is very important from a philatelic viewpoint, for in machine made paper it determines its nature—whether wove, laid, quadrille, etc.—and in the case of watermarked stamps this roller also applies the watermarked devices.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

WEDDING STAMP

Japan A30
1900 3 sen Carmine

At the corners of the table are branches of pine, and the sides are decorated with bamboo. Both of these being evergreen stand for unchangeableness, and express the wish of long life to the couple. The cranes pictured on the sides and top of the table are symbolic of a thousand years and express the same idea.

The box in the foreground is said to contain chopsticks; they must be very large chopsticks, or very much out of proportion to the picture.

Above is the conventional chrysanthemum, the national flower of Japan; below are a pair of house-swallows, probably expressing domesticity.

The inscription on the left side means "Imperial Japanese Post"; on the right, "their apparent's honorable marriage ceremony celebration"; below, the value, three sen. The stamp is noteworthy in that it is one of the few Japanese stamps that have not had the value expressed in English.

Death Mask Stamps

The name by which the para values of the 1904 stamps of Serbia are popularly known. The name arose owing to the fact that if the stamps are placed upside down a third face can be distinctly traced out of the features of the two portraits shown. It is, of course, nothing but a freak of engraving though at the time the stamps were issued a legend was circulated to the effect that this face is a reproduction of the "death-mask" of the murdered King Alexander and that it was introduced into the design on purpose. The cut is inserted wrong side up to show the mask. It can be plainly seen by covering with the end of the finger all of the head except the nose.

Eendragt Maakt Magt

This motto appears under the arms of all the postage stamps of the now defunct South African Republic and means "Union makes Strength."

Perplexing Surcharges

O. P. S. O.—On Public Service Only. An overprint found on certain stamps of New Zealand used between 1892 and 1907 by the Post Office Department for official correspondence between that department and places abroad.

O. S.—On Service. A surcharge found on many stamps of New South Wales and other Australian colonies intended for use on official correspondence.

O. S. G. S.—On Sudan Government Service. Stamps of the Sudan so surcharged are for use on official communications.

O. W.—Office of Works. Certain British stamps used to be overprinted with these letters and the word "Official" for use on correspondence emanating from this department.

P.—Police. A surcharge found on many early South Australian stamps.

This stamp was issued in 1900 in honor of the wedding of the heir apparent to the throne. The design is full of Japanese symbolism. In the oval frame is pictured a large table, the place where all Japanese weddings are solemnized. On the table are several dishes of rice cakes, such as are partaken of by royal pairs on the first three evenings of their wedded life.

Holcomb York of the Berkshire Exchange, Cummington, Mass., informs us that the flood which devastated a large section of Vermont and was seriously felt in Western Massachusetts wrecked one of his apple storehouses and caused a damage of $1500. Mr. York has a large stock of airposts and states that a new edition of his catalog will be out in January.

We have received from Raymond V. Bahr of Springfield, Ill., a clipping from the Illinois "State Register" giving the particulars of the organizing of a flying club in that city. Mr. Bahr is vice-president of the new organization, which "hops off" with a big passenger list and at the opening meeting voted to include the "Ruth Elders" of the city. Its purpose is to bring to the front the value of Springfield activity in promoting aviation.

N. H. Bikhor, who in recent issues has advertised from Iraq, is now located in N. Y. City at 2880 Broadway. His advertising will be found in future issues as he has taken out a "3-in-1" contract. He is A.P.S. 9570. Mr. Bikhor has just issued a pricelist of India, Iraq and Mesopotamia stamps which will be sent upon request.

Will every patron of Adlets be very careful where exchange relations are desired. Accept our suggestion that the advertiser make the first sending.

We shall no doubt run 16 pages from now on. Our columns are teeming with offers and our dealers are considered reliable. If not, something happens.

We cannot mention individually all the transients who use our paper. Their number is legion.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

A Local Stamp Club

Much stress is placed at the present time on propaganda to interest the boy and girl in stamp collecting. This agitation leans toward the organization of local clubs and indeed every philatelist should make it his duty to see that adequate local organizations are available for the young collectors. We all know that for every advanced collector there are dozens of juvenile collectors.

These local clubs could be fostered by local societies (auxiliaries), by Y. M. C. A's, schools, etc., and are the best mediums for educating and guiding these younger collectors in the right direction. Of course, we confront the problem that has bothered all clubs, and that is: How shall such a club be organized and run? Take a school club, for instance. It should not be run like a class room. A collector of that age does not want to listen to his own companion's speech on some phase on which he is probably better informed than his teacher. He wants to see stamps, to buy stamps at reasonable prices, to exchange stamps and to see current magazines, and catalogues, beyond what the average boy or girl can afford.

Trading and selling stamps in an unofficial way, a dry business meeting at every meeting, and a meeting that is strict or disciplinary, is not conducive to a successful club.

With such a club we had to deal at Central High School, Saint Paul, Minn. It meant either to discontinue the club or re-organize. A research was made into other clubs, and a study of the different philatelic societies, A.P.S., etc., was made. Why were they successful? What details could be used in re-organizing a good juvenile club?

As a result of a combination of ideas a new set of rules and regulations was drawn up and adopted. Success was immediate. Memberships increased the first year 300%. The club was self-supporting and the benefits derived by the members of real value. General interest by Postal Commission.—An overprint in conjunction with a new value—3 cents—found upon the 4c Ceylon stamps of 1883-84. These stamps were used to denote the extra commission charged by the Post Office on money orders which had not been cashed within three months of the date of issue, so that the overprint has no philatelic significance. For a short time the Post office did not object to the use of these stamps on letters.

Postal Guides.—These are official guide books issued by the Post Office departments in many countries for disseminating postal information.

Postal Service.—An overprint found upon certain Indian postage stamps which were not, however, used for postage. These stamps served to indicate the amount of duty to be paid on parcels received from abroad, and their use was thus purely fiscal.

Postal Fiscals.—Stamps originally issued for revenue purposes only, temporarily, or indefinitely, allowed to be used for the prepayment of postal charges with official sanction.

Postally Used.—A philatelic expression distinguishing stamps used for postal purposes from similar varieties used fiscally or on telegraph forms.

Postat E Qeverries Se Perkoheime Te Shqipenies.—Found on the Albanian stamps issued in October, 1913. It means "Post of the Government of the New Nation of Albania."

Poste Aerieenne.—This inscription is found on a Tunis stamp issued May 5, 1919, for air post use. The 35c pictorial stamps of 1906 was thus overprinted, and used in connection with aerial service between Gabes—Djerba—Zarzis—Ben Gardane.

Poste Italiane.—Found on most of the stamps of Italy, and meaning of course "Italian Post."

Greek Crown and E. T.

These letters, surmounted by a crown, form a watermark found in most of the stamps of Greece issued during the period 1901-06. They are apparently intended to represent the first two characters of the Greek words, "Hellenikon Takudromeion," signifying "Greek Letter stamp."

all members was a constant figure and the half-hearted support and interest was gone. Many girls were enrolled as members and they took active part.

The keynotes to the re-organization are as follows:

1. All business is handled by an Executive committee elected by ballot.
2. The place of meeting is a "club room" in the real sense of the word, and all meetings are informal.
3. Regular mimeograph bulletins are published.
4. The Sales Department is operated by the club itself. No selling between members in the club rooms. This insures the sale of fine condition stamps only. (Remember your "Kid Collection"?)
5. Stamps are exchanged by members, but the exchange is operated by the club. Classification of stamps and elimination of undesirable copies thus possible.
6. One social "get together" meeting each year at Christmas time with contests, displays, "eats," speeches, and dancing.
7. Club catalogues and magazines are kept at the club rooms at all times for the members.
8. A club store carrying standard supplies that are sold to members at a small profit.

We have mimeographed the complete rules and regulations in detail. Any school or club wishing a set may secure it by writing to the Central High School Stamp Club, Saint Paul, Minnesota, and enclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

NEWS ITEMS:—

NEW ZEALAND. Scott's No. 528, listed as "carmine-rose" correctly matches up with U. S. No. 279c "rose-carmine." It's funny, it's hard to find many other stamps that will do it.—G. A. HUNT.

IN another column our old friends, Wilcox, Smith & Co., from the South Pacific, are again advertising their wares. Their specialties are New Zealands, Australians and Pacific Islands. Their stock is a very fine one, and collectors ordering can be sure of a fair deal.

VOLUMES FOR SALE

We have some volumes of the WEEKLY for interested parties:—
1906, 1912, 1922, 1923, bound in a substantial manner, cloth back, each $2.50 plus parcel post charges on 6 lbs. from Beverly, Mass.
1894, 5, 6, 7, 9, unbound, $2 each plus parcel post charges on 3 lbs. from Beverly, Mass.
1900, 1, 2, 3, 9, 10, 11, 15, 16, 18, 19, 22, unbound, $1.50 plus parcel post on 3 lbs. from Beverly, Mass.

PHILATELIC PLATE NUMBER ASSN.

Any collector of United States Postage Stamps who is interested in the plate numbers, guide lines or other plate varieties, over 21 years of age, presenting satisfactory references, is eligible to membership in the Philatelic Plate Number Association.

The Stamp Collector's Magazine, the official organ of this Association, is sent free to each member up to and including the March Number of the following year. The membership list, which is issued for your personal use only, indicates the specialties each member is interested in, so that you can easily get in touch with all members interested in any one specialty. As there has been very little information published pertaining to the plate numbers that have been actually printed and their values, it is the object of this Association to gather all available data for the benefit of its members. News regarding these specialties will be sent out monthly. As plate numbers are obtained at every U. S. Post Office an interesting collection can easily and economically be made up by the exchange method in this Association. All Plate Number stamps offered for sale or exchange will be gladly received and price or exchange offered by the organizer of this Association, R. W. Becker, 644 Belvidere Road, Phillipsburg, N. J.

The dues of the Association are $1.50 per calendar year payable on the first of January of each year. Members may be dropped for non-payment of dues after thirty days. For new members the dues are included in the initiation fee up to the first of the following year. Applications accepted after November 1st will be listed as new members after the following first of January. As the regular subscription rate to the Stamp Collector's Magazine is one dollar per year, our dues are very small.

THE PHILATELIC PEPPY'S

November 30th. To office to my work, where I did find little to do and bethought myself to journey to New York for the furtherance of my own business and for the enjoyment of visiting the stamp dealers and collectors.

December 1st. In New York and to the Bronx on business after which I did go to Nassau Street, having left most of my money at the hostelry. First, to M. Ohlman's to see his latest auction catalog and marvel at the abbreviations therein. By this means I understand he makes a saving of 3s 8d the year, which is not to be ignored. Mr. Ohlman did show me a contrivance for pressing stamps like unto a wine-press, which did intrigue me greatly. To lunch with Sir Sydney Barrett and thence to call upon George Sloane to ask him to dinner with me, which he could not do as he is still eating at home. Again to the Economist to see Sir Sydney, who had picked out some items especially for me and which I could not refuse. To Percy Doane's, but did tarry on the way at two other shops where they did ask what I wanted, and I said, "Used Nineteenth Century." After much free discourse they did also ask, "What Country?" to which I replied, "Hayti"; then "What issue?" But I did beat then to it and replied quickly, "The 20 centimes brown of the First issue" whereupon in each case did they bring forth one copy for my inspection, but I did not buy as what these stamps lacked as to margins was offset by creases and tears. Then to Mr. Doane's where I did open the door and fall over a large package, which did cause me much pain and confusion, and necessitated my return to my tavern. To dinner alone and later to bed.

December 2nd. The day devoted to my business, which took me to Brooklyn: indeed a strange country. To the Collectors Club in the evening where my Lord Charles did greet me by asking that I save precancels for him as he intends to interest serious collectors in this branch of philately. We can expect another hand-book this twelve-month. The meeting called to order and the secretary's report appreciated by all. After the meeting and an enjoyable exhibit I did join with the members of the Hot Stove League. Soon after did appear Dr. Chittenden amongst us for a short while, I think with the desire to acquaint himself somewhat of the discourses within the Mystic Shrine of Philately, but he did stay but two hours while the International Favorite did unfold the latest tales assembled from the Philatelic Centres of the World. Later to our secret, but not secretive session at which many problems were wisely and loudly discussed. Adjournment, and to the Automat where I was fined one jit for not drinking coffee, which I would not do as it was my intention to lay two or three hours before breakfast. To bed at a very late hour.

December 3rd. Up with a very tired feeling, and betimes to my work. To the Excelsior Shop to pass an hour before entraining for home at Grand Central. Mr. J. Trauner did show me a bound album for my choice, but I did see that it had been well plucked, and after further inquiry small books with good stuff were brought forth from the large strong box, which he did know I wanted to see in the first place. Very good time I had and departed sooner than the leaving of the train necessitated as it was necessary for me so to do to leave on the train.—Philatelic Smoke.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith)
W. Somerville, Mass.

UNITED STATES
50% Discount

In purchasing numerous collections and accumulations, there are always large numbers which may not be classified as superb, but are good, sound copies such as are found in 90% of the collections today. The average collector would rather pay $5 for a good copy of a stamp listing $10, than pay $15 for one that would be classified as perfection.

I have accumulated upward of ten to fifteen thousand dollars worth of catalogue value of such United States stamps in both used and unused condition, and want lists are accordingly solicited. When asking for these, please specify the 40% to 50% copies, otherwise I will submit the ultra fine copies, for which I naturally want much more.

I have one of the finest stocks of United States stamps now in the hands of any professional, and if you will advise me as to your requirements, I will gladly submit selections.

I am always in the market to purchase fine United States postage and revenue stamps of the rarer kind. Items listing under $1.00, unless in collections, are not desired. Of course, the rarities are especially wanted. Correspondence solicited.

United StatesWashington Notes

In getting out stamp supplies for the Christmas Holidays, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing filled a number of requisitions with the new 10c Special Delivery stamp, printed from the rotary press. We are unable to state what post offices will receive these, and where they will first be placed on sale. At this writing the Philatelic Agency has not, as yet, received a supply, but will have them by the time these notes will appear.

The stamp was first sent out during the week of November 14th, so that we may consider them as having been issued during the middle of November. Copies have not as yet been inspected, but it is thought that they will be perforated 11x10½. A special perforating machine for this size of stamp was installed in the Bureau some weeks back.

The new 1c Booklet, printed from the rotary press, and perforated 11x10½, has also been issued. The demand for the 1c value is exceedingly small, so that the issue will not be large, unless the new Congress revises the postal rates, and places a rate of 1c on private postal cards.

The Department at the present time is not considering any, new variety, and the next item coming up for their consideration and action, will be a 2c stamp to commemorate the Encampment at Valley Forge. It is hoped that they will act favorably upon the request of Senators Reed and Vare of Pennsylvania.

Bureau Plates

Through the courtesy of Mr. A. W. Hall, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, we are enabled to bring our list of plate numbers up to and including those issued to November 18th. In this lot, we have the first of the Vermont Sesquicentennial and Burgoyne commemorative varieties. It will further be noted that practically all of the plates being made are now of the rotary type. With the new perforations, and new gum, the stamps seem to be sticking better, and there is not the numerous complaints that were prevalent a few months back. It would not be surprising to find the 10c Air Mail stamp produced by the rotary method, followed by some of the higher denominations of the current series.

1857, 3c, Imperforate Vertically

Mr. J. M. Bartels has submitted for inspection a most interesting item—namely, an unused horizontal pair of the 1857—3c dull red, Type II, imperforate vertically, Scott's No. 44B. This unusual item was recently found in an old correspondence, upon an unmailed cover addressed to R. G. Dunn & Company at Pittsburg. Mr. Bartels was enabled to move it from the envelope in such a way that a part of the gum has been preserved. Dr. Chase has advised Mr. Bartels, that other than single copies, only one used strip of three of this variety is known.

Philippines

Mr. Walter Bruggmann has kindly sent me photographs of the thirty different air mail postmarks, which have been used in the Philippines in connection with air mail events.

The first is the triangular postmark used in behalf of the Exhibition Flight of Miss Ruth Law on April 5, 1919. This was applied in red-violet. The second to eighth types were used on several flights made in and around Manila by De Pinedo, who later was responsible for the Newfoundland variety. The ninth to eleventh were the result of the Madrid-Manila flight, while the twelfth to fourteenth were U. S. Army flights. The balance were local flights made from Manila to other islands.

Bolivia.—L'Echo states that, pending the arrival of the new set from London, it has been necessary to issue 50,000 of each of two provisionals. The 1919 series were used for these, the surcharge consisting of "1927" value "CENTAVOS" in three lines: 5c on 1c carmine (blue o/p.), and 10c on 24c violet.—Philatelic Magazine.

British Guiana.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the 96c carmine and black on yellow as before, but on script watermark paper.

Egypt.—Mr. R. Roberts and Whitfield King & Co. call our attention to a new type stamp of large format, 50m deep sea green.

France.—L'Echo states that the current 1fr 50 "Pasteur" will be replaced

UNCLASSIFIED ADLETS

Minimum two lines.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell, exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world. It is impossible to guarantee advertisers in this department, and patrons must satisfy themselves as to the reliability of the parties with whom they desire to engage in business relations.

RATE—30c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words (32 letters) to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $2.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

French Colonies.—Color Changes announced by the Colonial Office: Cameroons: 15c, 20c, 30c, 45c and 1fr; Congo: 30c; Dahomey: 30c; Ivory Coast: 30c; New Caledonia: 75c; Oubangui: 30c; Somali Coast: 20c, 30c; Sudan: 15c; Tchad: 30c; Togo: 30c; Wallis & Futuna Is.: 30c.—Philatelic Magazine.

Germany.—Mr. J. L. Riedel calls our attention to the 8pf green, 15pf vermilion and 25pf blue of the 1926 types which are now being issued with the surcharge "I.A.A. 10.—15.10.1927" in two lines in black. Our correspondent describes them as issued for the fall session of the International Labor Bureau in Berlin, from October 10th to 15th. Only three thousand sheets have been surcharged, and the sale of these stamps has been stopped and they are no longer valid for postage. The issue has been a great surprise for German philatelists as they were prepared in secret and nobody had any advance knowledge of them. They could be had at only the German Philatelic Bureau in Berlin and in small quantities only.

Two new official stamps are also submitted. They are 8pf green and 15pf vermilion, both of the same design and more values are expected shortly.

Honduras.—Yvert chronicles the first two values of the long promised permanent set. 1c blue (Colquapa River Bridge) (500,000), 2c carmine (Copau ruins) (500,000).—Philatelic Magazine.

Jamaica.—Copies of the 1/2p green, King's head type, have been received from Mr. R. Roberts. The stamp is script watermarked and it is the first appearance of this value on this type.

Madagascar.—South African Philatelist understands that this colony is about to issue a new set of stamps. The designs to be used are very obviously copied from the current issue of Belgian Congo and will depict natives' heads and cattle. Some of the stamps will be of large upright format, while others will have their greatest length horizontally.

Monaco.—Mr. W. T. Wilson sends copies of the 2frs vermilion and 3frs carmine unpaid stamps, for chronicle.

Netherlands.—Mr. Frederick D. Markee informs us that a new Charity issue will be placed on sale December 15th and carry through to Jan. 14, 1928. According to a newspaper clipping sent there will be four values, each of a different design. The original values are 2c, 5c, 7 1/2c and 15c, but they will be sold at 4 cents, 8 cents, 11 cents and 18 cents respectively.

Paraguay.—Whitfield King & Co. report the issuance of the 7c lilac, design as A47, unwatermarked.

Russia.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us a new 7kop olive green and grey green, Revolution stamp. It bears the "1917" date and pictures a scene from that historic event.

St. Lucia.—The following is taken from a recent issue of Gibbons' Stamp Monthly: "From the Grenada Guardian, for which we are indebted to Mr. Geo. R. Drinkwater, we cull the following choice blossom of candour: 'The St. Lucia Voice suggests that as a means of raising a substantial amount towards the rebuilding of the public offices the 1 1/2d, 2 1/2d, and 4d stamps, which at present are not ready sellers, should be surcharged 'Fire Relief, 3d, 6d and 1/-,' when they would probably be disposed of in a few months. . . . It is not often that these small islands get an opportunity to exploit a world market: the present vogue for stamp collecting presents us with such an opportunity and we trust that the powers that be will give our contemporary's suggestion every consideration. We sincerely trust that the powers that be will give this and all similar suggestions their usual careful consideration, and then put their foot down heavily on such exploitation of the innocents.'

St. Vincent.—Mr. R. Roberts and Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle the 6p. King George type stamp, reddish claret, script watermark. It is a darker shade than heretofore.

South West Africa.—Mr. R. Roberts and Whitfield King & Co. report that they have had come to hand copies of the 3p blue and 6p grey, Union of South Africa postage due stamps, Pretoria printings, no watermark, with the surcharge "South West Africa" and "Suidwes Afrika" in two lines alternately 12mm apart. Whitfield King & Co. also shows us the 5p Transvaal postage due, De La Rue, multiple CA watermark, overprinted in like manner.

Transjordan.—From Whitfield King & Co. and Mr. R. Roberts come copies of the new line engraved definite issue bearing the portrait of His Highness Amir Abdullah, script watermark. The duty labels in English and Arabic, "Transjordan" also in English and Arabic. The currency is in milliemes though this word does not appear on the stamp, merely the numerals. All values up to the 20m are small format, the 50m and above in large format. Shades and values are 2m greenish-blue, 3m pink, 4m green, 5m orange, 10m red, 15m blue, 20m olive, 50m mauve, 90m bistre, 100m cobalt-blue, 200m violet.

Turkey.—Mr. R. Amiral informs Gibbons' Stamp Monthly that only 8,000 sets of the Smyrna Exhibition stamps were surcharged and they are already fetching a high premium in Constantinople. We should imagine that with so small a printing they will be good.

Venezuela.—According to a Decree of August 30th, quoted in L'Echo, the following values will be added to the current series: 5c black-brown (2,000,000), 10c green (500,000), 15c red-brown (500,000), 25c red (2,750,000), 40c dark blue (1,750,000), 3b yellow (300,000), 5b violet (200,000).—Philatelic Magazine.

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS

To test whether dealers generally were putting up in advance prices of stamps rumoured to be absolescent or rising in the new catalogues, the writer went round a number of London dealers recently, enquiring for these stamps, and was struck by the number of times the stamps were either "out of stock" or else substantially above the old catalogue prices already. This tendency was far more noticeable than a few years ago, when perhaps with bigger stocks the larger dealers, at least, kept down their prices until they were absolutely compelled to raise them. The dealers, however, must be studying these notes, as it was almost impossible to obtain a single stamp recommended recently at the old rates. Two stamps in particular, both rumoured to be raised to about £10 in the new catalogue, were almost everywhere out of stock. These were the 10d Irish Thom and the Virg'n Is. 5d Script, which were to be obtainable a few months ago, when first recommended, at a very few shillings each.

Pictorials.—The new pictorials of Palestine, Australia, etc., have all come in for their share of destructive criticism, but one would like to see more favourable reports published. On the whole the Colonials of today are more attractive and better printed than has been the case for fifty years. The stereotyped design and colourings for the Crown Colonies is less in evidence. Even line engraving is being employed for an increasing number of stamps. The material turned out by the famous printers, De La Rue & Co., keeps up its very high standard of excellence, whilst the interesting pictorial series issued by some of the Colonies, should do much to popularise philately.

Unpriced Items.—The recent article on values of stamps unpriced in the catalogues was specially interesting as far as it affected Modern Colonials. The prices and Nos. issued of the 2d and 4d B. C. Africa of 1907 (Mult. CA) as given in the first article must have caused most people to open their eyes, and £50 each, given as a correction later, is more like the figure, as at auction a bit ago they fetched rather over £30. As regards the statement that only 2 or 3 were issued, does not this mean 2 or 3 sheets? At least one sheet of each (120) must have been printed, and it would be interesting to know how long they were on sale. According to a contemporary, they were used for parcel post, but the writer would like to see copies so used, if any reader has one.

The figure given for Nauru, 10sh Waterlow, is also interesting. This is one of the War stamps that have turned out very well for those who bought on the basis of the catalogue price prevailing in 1918, when it was then cat. 25sh by Gibbons. Comparatively few sheets can have been overprinted, and if it had been an Irish overprinted stamp, it would probably fetch over £50 by now. Similar remarks apply to the 5sh De La Rue of Bechuanaland, another not too popular stamp, of which only about 1,000 were overprinted, and yet it can be picked up for a £1 or £2. Again, if it was an Irish or Maltese rarity, it would probably fetch £10. These remarks show the enormous part popularity plays in determining values to-day. A stamp issued to the number of 3,000 of a very popular country will often sell for more than a stamp issued only to the number of 1,000 of a less popular country.

The chief consolation that holders of rare but unpopular stamps that they cannot sell for what they think they are worth, is that, while popularity varies from decade to decade, Nos. issued cannot change, and that their stamps may some day come into the limelight, and then sell for four times what they would sell for at present.

The prices of rare Jamaican War stamps, given in the list of uncatalogued stamps, is also very interesting, but a noteworthy omission is No. 108e. What is this stamp worth, with the inverted overprint? A few were on the market a few years ago, but now it seems almost unobtainable. Is it worth £5, £10, or

CRISTOBAL-BARRANQUILLA

By R. S. CARTER.

An air mail and passenger service between Cristobal, Canal Zone, and Barranquilla, Colombia, will be inaugurated on January 1, 1928, or perhaps earlier. The new service will be started with the putting into service of a Donier-Wal hydroplane capable of carrying ten passengers and one ton of mail. The plane is equipped with two 600 h.p. motors and will also carry wireless receiving and sending equipment.

The chief of the personnel of the new concern, who will also pilot the plane on its first trip to Cristobal, when the service is inaugurated, will be Emmanuel Lerch, who during the War attained fame as the most successful Austrian naval flier. Mr. Lerch has also had two years' flying experience in Colombia with the Scadta Company.

The passenger rate for transportation on this air line from Cristobal to Barranquilla will be $100, and for the mail service the same stamp that has been used heretofore in the Colombian Scadta services will be employed in the Cristobal-Barranquilla Line. The postage rates will be 30c per each 20 grammes of mail matter sent to the interior of Colombia and 20c for equal weight of letters sent to the Atlantic Coast towns of that country. These low rates, it was stated, were decided upon especially for the purpose of encouraging correspondence between the two countries.

With the inauguration of this new air mail service, a letter sent from New York to Bogota will take an average of nine days (only seven days under favorable conditions), which represents a saving of at least two or three days under present transportation facilities. It is planned to have one plane make the trip every week at first, increasing with the growth of traffic.

USED, UNUSED AND ON COVER

By PERCY A. HILL, Nuera Ecija, Phil. Ids.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Herewith is a short article on variations in price between used and unused from obscure places. While the comment is not at all authoritative, it seems to be just from the writer's point of view.

As a side issue to philately, I have some 2,600 registered covers, from some 233 different countries, all "Personally Addressed to Myself." This, of course, is a personal collection, we might say, for the stamp on genuine cover is much more difficult and elusive to collect than either used or unused items.

Very naturally—beginning this collection in 1920 and keeping it up, I have found that the prices for them approximate those quoted in the article, herewith.

I have a friend in China. Mr. Siddall, who once made a general collection of nothing but fine copies with center or very clear cancellations, and he at times paid as high as six and seven times catalog for fine postmarked copies for his collection. This is now being dispersed, I understand.

Very naturally this is a thing that catalogs cannot take up in its entirety, altho Yvert does try to vary the used and unused of several colonies and out-of-the-way places, but it is useful as a branch of philately, especially as some dealers are beginning to specialize in stamps on cover.

PERCY A. HILL.

IN reference to the rarity of used stamps with those unused, and their catalog value versus actual value, we might say that the catalogs hold good in the large majority of countries. There are, however, many obscure colonies and countries where the used stamps are in the minority, and consequently the value of these cannot be expressed by current catalogs on the basis of rarity, for use of a better word. The listing below is not at all authoritative, being merely a view of the writer and his experience in reference to the difficulty of acquiring both ordinary used, as well as those on cover.

Then again occurs the factor of being "cancelled to order" that prevails in certain countries whose stamps used and unused catalog the same. In this connection we might state that there are far more places who refuse to commit this "philatelic crime" than there are who do so. In some cases, where the normal annual needs of postal adhesives are small, it can easily be seen that if all present collectors were to patronize these obscure colonies, they would absorb their entire stock. The few lower values of such places can be obtained used as there are none to go to waste, due to demand such as Brunei or Upper Senegal for example. Take the case of Fiji. It is said that every second person is a stamp collector there. Whether or not this is true, no used values above the 2d can be obtained, being all shipped out, the lower values to 2d being plentiful and cheap.

Abyssinia.—Abyssinian used should be worth at least twice unused and double that on genuine cover. The cancelling devices at the few P. O. are similar to the type used in Switzerland.

Afghanistan.—Owing to limited use and rigid censorship, good values on cover from Afghanistan are three times as rare as unused. This does not obtain with a few low values. Nearly all mail comes via India.

Ascension.—There is one postoffice on Ascension, an extinct volcano with a coal pile for the navy, a cable station and a hospital. The first issues have a good future and used are worth three times catalog. Inasmuch as the total transient population does not exceed 130, and the postmaster, a cable-employee, is as he says "Grand admiral and chief factotum" it is reasonable to believe that used stamps of Ascension are twenty times as scarce as unused. The pmk. is a single line circle with name above and date in center.

Aitutaki.—Niue and Rarotonga.—The same remarks as above can be applied generally to issues of these islets. Stamps on cover should be worth three to four times catalog. The pmks. of Aitutaki and Niue are apt to be grease stained. This may be due to coconut oil or copra, which are the islands' chief industries.

Barbuda.—Genuine used Barbuda on cover pmkd Codrington should be worth at least seven times catalog, as the number and life of this issue was extremely limited. With one white man in the colony this is not unreasonable for Barbuda on cover, above the penny value.

Brunei.—Used ought to be worth at least twice. The pmk. is the same for the few P. O. doing business, a simple circle with name, and center dated. Sarawak does almost ten times the postal business of Brunei. Those on cover might register a slight advance over unused.

Br. Somaliland.—Are worth three to "Emco Monthly Circular".

Emco Monthly Circular in 1927 as in the past eight years of its existence has saved collectors a good deal of money. It has given collectors an opportunity to add stamps to their collections that were offered nowhere else.

It has provided collectors with readable information of value. And in 1928 it will continue to do this, and endeavor to heighten its reputation of a live, up-to-date stamp paper.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

times catalog if used, as these are extremely rare on good covers, the post-offices being military with the exception of Berbera, the capital. Ordinary pmk.

Br. Solomons.—Used should be worth from twice to three times catalog according to value. The few scattered planters have little philatelic urge and mail deliveries are not conducive to copious correspondence. The pmks. are a large single circle with name of P. O. colony and center dated. The same holds good for New Guinea, except that the pmks. are well executed and clear.

British West Indies, such as the Cayman and Virgin Is., British Honduras, Turk & Caicos and Monserrat ought to be worth twice catalog used, considering the few postoffices each colony contains. The same can be said of the Dutch colonies of Curacao and Suriname with the exception of the lower values. On cover any of the above are worth twice catalog for values over 2d.

Falkland Islands.—These used to be the most difficult to obtain on cover of any British Colony. However, there appears to be more used at present, nevertheless, three times catalog is not unreasonable for values on cover over 2d. The pmks. are clear. That of the South Shetlands is the rarest.

French Colonies.—Nearly all obscure French colonies are worth more used than unused for obvious reasons, ranging from such places as Fr. India, Togo and Cameroons from two to three times catalog, to Mauritania, Miquelon, Upper Senegal and Wallis & Futuna from five to six times catalog for genuine used covers. Nearly all the pmks. are fine clear cancellations. That of the latter colony, however, is a coarse circle with "Prat Francais—Wallis" center dated.

Far Eastern Republic on cover are usually pmkd. Vladivostok in a coarse double circle, center-dated. Genuine covers are worth at least three times unused pmkd. Vladivostok and slightly more for other postoffices.

Gilbert & Ellice.—This is one of the hardest colonies to obtain used on cover and should be worth at least four times unused. The pmk. is a fine large double circle reading "Gilbert & Ellice Islands—Colony" center-dated. The same applies to Gambia as to rarity of used over unused. The pmks. are similar to St. Helena, a small circle with name and date.

Guam.—U. S. stamps used on cover should be worth twice catalog. Pmk. a plain circle center-dated with "Guam—

Guam." American Samoa are pmkd. "Pago-Pago Samoa" in double circle, center-dated and ought to be worth three times catalog on genuine cover, as most of the foreign mail carries N. Z. stamps of Samoa dispatched via Apia.

Italian Colonies of Cyrenaica, Libya, Oltre-Guiba and Somaliland are easily worth double catalog on cover, altho there is an urge to cancel to order in most Italian colonies. Italians surcharged used in Albania, however, should be worth more than above on genuine cover.

Japanese Mandates in the Pacific use current Japanese issues pmkd. Jaluit, Ponape, etc., in Japanese and dated similar to that Empires pmks. These should be worth at least four times unused catalog value, as they are far from common.

New Hebrides.—In spite of the "surcharge" scandals, genuine used covers of this colony are not common. The pmk. is very pleasing, a fine double circle with name of P. O., center-dated and inscribed "Neue Hebrides Postes—Condominium." They should be worth three times catalog.

North West Pacific Islands are worth three times catalog on cover for values over 2d. There are a great many used stamps cancelled for radiograms, and of course worth less than unused.

Nauru & Cook Is. are worth three times unused. Nauru has a fine clear pmk. reading "Nauru-Central Pacific" and dated below in a single line.

Penrhyn pmks. have a triple circle reading "Penrhyn Island—N.-Z." and with Nyasaland are worth from three to four times unused.

Current Spanish Colonies are rarely seen used, and should easily be worth twice unused on cover. La Aguera and Western Sahara three times unused. Seychelles.—Used lower values, twice price unused. Higher values on cover four times unused. This obscure colony does not "cancel to order" as far as I know. Unused issues of Seychelles to used in the ratio of 10 to 1. Used on genuine cover to obtain.

Tonga used twice unused prices. Better values on cover four times catalog. In addition to the pmks. used there is an official, a large cancellation with the Tongan crown between two olive branches and the legend "Tonga Government—Frank," which carries letters outside the islands as well.

Zanzibar.—Used slightly over unused prices. Better values on cover twice catalog.

Canada Bargains

Rivalling the stamps of the United States in popularity, most Canadian stamps are relatively scarcer. They have made some notable price advances in recent years, and they represent the soundest of stamp investments. We have maintained a good stock of all 19th Century Canadian stamps for years, and offer as bargains:

STARS—There are a great many types of stars used for obliterations, by types, meaning entirely different designs. There are stars ranging from four points up to as many as fifteen, or sixteen, and probably others with even more points which have not been called to my attention. Many are in solid color.

Then there are stars with openings cut into them, double lined stars, stars with circles around them, and many stars with ornate forms surrounding them, as our No. 8 in this group. Then there are some cancellations made up with groups of small stars of solid color surrounding a design, as the fox, etc., etc.

In this group we start with an unusual star, for those with six points are far less common than the regular five point star. You will note that the six point star is made by simply laying one triangle over another symmetrically, as you can see by a glance at our No. 10; the Chicopee star on the 3c 1851 is a fine example of the six point star.

Our No. 1 with the colorless "C" inside is unusual. The "C" is probably the initial of the clerk in the P. O. at the time, for this frequently is the case. No. 2 is possibly used from several P. O.'s; but this is the sole copy coming on cover so that the town could be listed on this 1861 stamp. No. 3 is a very neat bit of cutting, and is not so very common. I think it comes with other letters in the center.

No. 4 is often found, and had a long life in Yonkers, as you will find it on a cover from this town if you are fortunate enough to have some of these come in your accumulations of Civil War covers. No. 5 is generally found with the peculiar form of star as shown. It is doubtless a broken star, yet the small broken part appears so much like a figure five that it is called a five by many collectors.

No. 6 is a rather crudely cut six point star. No. 7 is another that was hard to cut out of cork or wood. Now you can set down Oyster Bay against your very handsome star in purple on the late Bank Note stamps. It was very handsome on that 2c vermilion. Nos. 9 and 10 show what neat cutting could be made at small scale, and they show well on 3c 1861s.

2880 Broadway NEW YORK

For the benefit of some who delve into postal history as an adjunct to their collection of stampless covers, I will cull a few facts from the Post Office Guide of 100 years ago. This is issued in the 2nd Term of our 19th Congress, and reads—

"Letters from the Postmaster General transmitting a statement of the nett amount of postage accruing at each Postoffice in each State and Territory for one year ending March 31, 1826."

Then follows a letter from the P. O. Dept. as above addressed to the Hon. John M. Taylor, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and signed by John McLean. At this period we find 24 states, 3 territories, and District of Columbia. The recapitulation shows that the postage from all, amounted to $912,893.08 for the year ending March 31, 1826.

New York State led with postage sold to the amount of $212,536.15; Pennsylvania next, $118,066.58. Illinois had $2,446.64, and Michigan Territory $1,732.51. New York State had slightly over 1,000 postoffices. Arkansas had 17, and Florida got along with 7 offices, these handling a total postage of $1,579.99, Pensacola and St. Augustine having over $1,300.00 of this amount.

505 Fifth Avenue, (At 42nd Street) NEW YORK

The District of Columbia had three Offices—Alexandria, George Town, and Washington, and first named handling the most postage.

California is not represented on this list of a hundred years ago. When you hear some loud words of adulation from points west, remember this, and just attribute the exuberation to the fact that they are trying hard to catch up, and they are making a very good job of it.

There was no use for a state like Oklahoma, for whale oil sales far exceeded the petroleum products, and those Indians had little correspondence with the folks of the East, tho they always greeted hardy tourists from the East with the utmost enthusiasm.

If you like the odd old postmarks on early covers, I have been so curious as to run through some of the States, and record a few of the odd names of towns, and villages of that period. The list is made up of those which do not appear today for the most part—many may have changed these names to more promising ones (though some seem to be quite promising as they are here listed), and some have gone out of existence entirely.

Here are some of the odd towns that the State of New York listed, Blooming Grove, Champion South Roads,

STAMPS AND MILITARISM

By JOSEPH A. LANAHAN, M.D.

(The WEEKLY is very willing to print this article by Dr. Lanahan. We believe that it is the duty of our publication to make an open forum of its columns in matters of this kind. Even as we gave Mr. Brightman the opportunity of expressing his views in regard to the designs upon our U. S. stamps, so we open our columns to the writer of the following article.—Ed.)

In your issue of October 31 is an article by Mr. Brightman, from Zion's Herald, the gist of which is that the recent U. S. stamps "mean the glorification of the force-complex" instead of showing something that would "mean devotion to civilized love."

In the August number of Scott's Journal, Mr. Stiles quotes a British contemporary as declaring, "A mania for militaristic stamps seems to have seized the United States Government," and as the United States "purports to be anxious to abolish war and to keep peace for all time, why choose battle scenes for its postage stamps?"

In October, Scott's Journal, Mr. Emerson expresses the opinion that the British criticism is justified. He questions the propriety of battles of the Revolution,
"when so many vital points in American history have not yet even been hinted at in any postage stamps," and asks, "why not honor some of our great men in science, art, literature, invention and industry?"

The suggestion to honor men great in peaceful pursuits is a specious one, for a little reflection on the experience of "The Hall of Fame" will show what a tremendous task would be thrown on the Postmaster General. To adopt the patter of "psychologists," who find "complexes" in everything, this outcry against a "force-complex" is a "resistance-complex" which covers a phobia that the old moralists called human respect—when it is not an "intention tremor."

If it were only the aftermath of the war, the reaction against war hysteria, we might expect "the popular mind" eventually to regain its equilibrium, but, whether intentionally or not, these articles are a manifestation of a spirit of minimizing the importance and necessity of the American Revolution, and of glossing over the relations of Great Britain to the United States, to save the feelings of our British cousins. The British made no objection to the Lexington-Concord issue two years ago, which are soldier stamps. The Lexington stamp shows a British victory and the Cambridge stamp is not a battle. Our latest stamps commemorate American victories over the British army. Does that fact influence the comments?

If one will look over Scott's Catalogue he will find that the Post Office Department has been portraying the history of the country, not in consecutive chapters, but as occasion warrants. Our history can be divided into several periods: Discovery and Colonization, Founding of the Nation, Development of Constitutional Government, Territorial Expansion, Civil War, Industry and Commerce, Internationalism, World War,

The Nation To-Day.

The Discovery and Colonization period is commemorated by 32 stamps; the Columbian stamp of 1893 (117), and the Columbian issue of 1893 (230-245), Father Marquette, 1898 (285), the Jamestowns, 1907 (328-330), Hudson-Fulton, 1909 (371), San Francisco Bay, 1912
(404), Balboa, 1913 (397), Pilgrims, 1920 (548-550), Huguenots, 1924 (614-616), Norse-Americans (622-623), and in the Philippine series, Magellan, 1906 (243). They also suggest several chapters in our religious history.

The Founding of the Nation shows eight stamps: Declaration of Independence, 1869 (120), and the seven issued during the sesquicentenaries. If we add the portraits of those who took part in its foundation we may include Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Franklin, Hamilton, Nathan Hale and Martha Washington. The period of Development of Constitutional Government is represented by five portraits, John Quincy Adams, on the tobacco stamp,
Livingston 1904 (323), Marshall 1894
(263), Webster 1890 (226), Clay 1890
(227). To them may be added Perry (146), Scott (142), Jackson (77), Taylor (279), and the Indian chief on the present 14 cent stamp, as reminders of the wars of that period. Territorial expansion is pictured in 14 stamps: The Trans-Mississippi, 1898 (286-293), Louisiana Purchase, 1904 (323-327), Alaska-Yukon, 1905 (370).

The Civil War period is represented by six portraits: Admiral Farragut,
Navy (143), General Sherman, Army
(143), Secretary Stanton, Cabinet (138), Ericsson, Inventor (627), Lincoln and Grant. We may soon portray that period dispassionately. Progress of Industry and Commerce is shown in the Pan-Americans, 1901 (294-299), Hudson-Fulton, 1909 (371), Panama-Pacific, 1912 (398-399), and De Witt Clinton, of Erie Canal fame, on the cigarette stamp. To these may be added the Parcel Posts (1450-1461), the Special Deliveries (1890-1903), and the Aeroplanes. From the Civil War to the Spanish-American War all the presidents are pictured except Johnson and Arthur.

For the period of Internationalism, under McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, three presidents are pictured, and in the Philippine series we have Admirals Dewey and Sampson, General Lawton, and three Philippine patriots. The World War is aptly symbolized by Wilson, and for the post-war period we have Harding and Lindbergh's flight. From the coming of Eric and Columbus to the return of Lindbergh "the vital points in

KINDLY ENCLOSE A STAMPED ENVELOPE

E. B. POWER, 15 John St., New York

UNITED STATES 1851-1856

I have recently purchased one of the finest collections of the Imperf. stamps of 1851-1856 that has ever been gotten together.

This collection has been over thirty years in formation, and the owner (who for personal reasons does not wish his name printed, although we all know and respect him highly) has bought and amalgamated with his collection many other well known collections of these stamps, among them being those of Messrs. L. B. Mason, Stevenson, and W. W. Mann.

The collection of Imperf. stamps is in six large volumes and is specially strong in blocks, strips, and stamps on covers, in rare combinations, in cancellations, and above all for the fine condition of the stamps.

I list a few of the more important pieces so that my clients may have some idea of what this collection contained. Collectors must not expect all these fine pieces are still on hand, as at the moment of writing, although only three collectors have had their choice, yet well over ten thousand dollars' worth of the rarer pieces have been sold.

I shall be happy to send selections to serious collectors who wish for fine items at market prices. Please indicate what is wanted, of unused or used, if singles, cancellations, stamps on covers, pairs, strips or blocks are requested.

1 cent, blue, Unused

- Plate I. Types II and IV in many mint blocks of 4, 6 and 8.
A block of 4 plate I with right side margin, Imprint and Plate No. 1.
A block of 6 of Type IV, two stamps recut at top only, other four recut at top and bottom.
A number of shifted transfers.

- Plate II. Block of 4, and also pair with left hand imprint.
Superb left upper corner pair with full margins, and with the big crack right down the second stamp.

- Plate III. Horizontal pair of type 3A with right hand Imprint. Exceedingly rare.

1 cent, blue, Used

About 40 pages of these on and off covers.
Many pairs, strips and blocks. I can only note a few of the "high spots".

- Plate I. Early state. No recutting. Ten strips of 3.
Plate II. Second state. Recut. 15 strips of 3. Many pairs and singles.
Type IA, full scrolls, 2 fine copies, 1 with bottom margin of sheet.
Type III. Two fine copies, one with red Carrier cancellation.
Plate I. Late state. Strip of 9 on cover (one damaged) with bottom margin of sheet. Nos. 91-99 on right pane.
Another strip of 9 from left pane of plate I. All recut at top and Nos. 91, 97 and 98 shifts.
Type 4. Block of 9 and single on cover.
Type 2. Block of 4 and strip of 6 on cover.
Plate IV. Perfect type Ia, on cover.
Perfect type III on cover, and very many others.

3 cents, dull red, Unused

- Plate I. 2nd State. Two blocks of 4.
Plate II. Several blocks of 4.
Plate III. Unique sheet of 100 stamps, full margins, imprint and plate No. 3 and several blocks of 4.
Plate IV. Blocks of 4, 9 and 15.

Used stamps. Four books full, pairs, strips, blocks and covers.

5 cents, red brown

- Fine unused with full margins all round.
2 pairs on one cover, absolutely superb.
2 pairs on cover with 1c and 3c and all tied on with a fine cancellation, "Colonial Express Mail. St. John, N. B."
2 envelopes, one to Paris and one to Mexico, each with a superb horizontal pair of 5c.
3 covers franked with strips of three.
Several singles on covers and singles used in combination with other values. The 5c not on cover, include seven singles, a pair and strip of 3.
This collection contains the finest lot of 5 cents I have ever seen.

10 cents, green, Unused

These rare stamps are represented by two singles, a mint strip of three and an exceedingly rare block of four.

10 cents, green, Used

The outstanding item here is a perfect block of 12 (in two horizontal rows of 6) with large margins all round. There is also a block of four, several strips of fours and threes and many pairs. The "Recuts" and "Full Shells" are well represented in singles and pairs.

On covers, are very strong in singles, pairs and combinations.

12 cents, black

The outstanding piece is a block of 10 in two rows of 5.
There are many strips of 5, 4 and 3 and pairs, and a number on covers with many combinations.

Bisected 12c

There are six covers franked with half of 12c used for 6c.
One is cancelled in blue, another has "STEAM-SHIP" across the bisection and all are well tied on. A rare cover is half 12c used with a 1c plus 3c on letter to St. John, N. B.

The great rarity of the collection is a quarter of the 12c used on a 3c envelope as 3 cents to make up the 6c rate. This was found in the famous Buchanan, Carroll & Co.'s correspondence (afterwards better known as Carroll, Hoy & Co.) in New Orleans and was used by the postmaster of Canton, Miss., who ran out of 3c stamps.

Dr. Carroll Chase has written this up fully and his article goes with the stamp. He says, "In closing it may be mentioned that these varieties are absolutely authentic".

men, of whom one (Hamilton) was a soldier, a patriot and a colonizer, both soldiers, an inventor of a war vessel, an Indian chief, who was a warrior, two discoverers and three women. Of the 73 scenes, eight show soldiers. In the Philippines series we have three revolutionary patriots, two admirals, a general, besides presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and McKinley, three of whom were soldiers.

As the Editor of The Commonwealth (Nov. 9) says, "Patriotism, self-sacrifice for country, and heroism, are the lessons history has to teach the young" (and the elders too). "From no national record do they shine forth with more inspiring plenitude than from the annals of our Revolution." This period had been neglected until 1925, only one stamp relating directly to it having been issued (120). We are now commemorating the Revolution for the simple reasons that it was our most important epoch, and now, the sesquicentenary, is the opportune time. The reason "battle scenes" are proper is that three factors achieved independence, diplomacy, constitutional measures and war. Diplomacy is represented by Franklin, Congress by the Declaration and Liberty Bell. We now commemorate the most important factor, and in proper sequence: The Minute Man ("The shot heard 'round the world"), The Birth of Liberty, Washington Takes Command (the most important act that unified colonial effort), The Sacrifice of Hale, White Plains (the beginning of American success that saved New York), Saratoga (the turning point of the war—one of the Seven Great Battles of History—which won us the support of France and Spain), Bennington (which prevented the conquest of New England). Mr. Emerson's criticism of the word "Burgoyne" is right. We are not celebrating a defeat, but Schuyler's victory at Saratoga. To complete the period let me suggest "The Winter at Valley Forge" and "The Surrender at Yorktown" (in which our allies appear), and to promote international friendship, Lafayette, the Frenchman, Steuben, the German, Kosciuszko, the Lithuanian, Pulaski, the Pole, and Barry, the Irishman.

If Independence is worth having and worth preserving, it is worth showing how it was won, and there is no doubt how it was won.

NEW CHICAGO AIR MAIL CONTRACT IS AWARDED

On Nov. 15, the Embury-Riddle company of Cincinnati, Ohio, was awarded the air-mail contract between Chicago, Indianapolis and Cincinnati. It is expected that service will commence over this route within the next month. This will be the seventh air-mail route to make Chicago one of its termini. The Embury-Riddle company has for some time been operating a passenger service between Cleveland and Louisville.

The air mail route between Chicago-St. Paul-Minneapolis has been altered to include a stop at Madison, the capital of the state and seat of the University of Wisconsin.—Chicago Commerce.

ON THE WING:—

WE acknowledge the receipt of the new Cuban air mail stamp from Messrs. E. M. Ash, Antilla, Cuba, E. L. Fernandez and J. Martine, Havana. This handsome 5c stamp was illustrated in our issue of November 28th.

MR. GORDON C. DUDLEY, Portland, Oregon, writes to say that he wants to register a kick because the news of first flights of air routes appears in some instances too late to be of service to those who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity to patronize the mail. His complaint is driven home with the sentence: "At the rate you are popping out with air mail information, I'll be looking for a news item about George Washington being quite sick." While this is "writ playful" by Mr. Dudley, he is justified in his stand; and others have made remarks to the same effect. An effort is being made to obtain early information about new flights, but despite this, we do not always have the news in time. For instance, the Madison-Chicago flight on November 22nd was unknown to us until November 15th, or too late for use. The circulars telling of new flights are received ordinarily at a date when the information is not of practical benefit to readers. However, we are improving our service by enlisting the interest of the different traffic agents of the U. S. air mail service in our behalf as they are mindful of the value of the patronage of collectors.

THE volume of philatelic publicity in the newspapers is growing and our mail brings evidence of that fact. In the Sunday Springfield, Mass., Republican of September 18th, Mr. George W. Angers of that city and his superb air mail cover collection are the subject of an illustrated feature article, that about uses a page. The article is especially written and traces the history of air mail from first to last, with representations among others from Mr. Angers' collection. The inauguration of the service to Cuba was made the subject of many articles in the Cuban newspapers, which were supplied to us by Mr. E. M. Ash of Antilla, Cuba. From Australia and China, newspapers have come with postal references in their columns. In the U. S., countless clippings, ranging from a few lines to column articles, are making their appearance.

MR. JAMES ABBOTT who is remembered as one of Chicago's collectors years ago and who is now indulging in his hobbies of chess and world-traveling, broadcasts a series of travel talks every Tuesday, between 4 and 4.30 P. M., over the Chicago station, WGN.

MR. K. C. PARK of the Lansing State Journal, Michigan, writes: "That the house organs and trade papers are helping out the game is shown by the enclosed clipping which I came across in going through our house organ exchanges." He sends a copy of The Firestone Non-Skid, with a front page article, "Collecting Stamps Interesting Hobby," that is illustrated by a cut of Mr. L. C. Lovejoy, President of the Rubber City Stamp Club." Mr. Lovejoy is a Firestone man and an intelligent exponent of collecting who is the head of the live local society at Akron, Ohio.

THE first issue of Philatelic Opinion, edited by Bertram W. H. Poole, Los Angeles, California, in its improved and enlarged form, is a real stamp journal and its instructive appeal will be recognized by those who are of a discriminating turn of mind. Mr. Poole's experience is such as to make him a capable conductor and he has the best wishes of many readers in his broader endeavor.

THE first auction sale of N. B. Paulson, held in Chicago on November 16, 1927, at the Palmer House, was a decided success and introduced another philatelic convert to the red flag. Prices were in keeping with the high character of the lots offered, and record quotations were made in many cases. The U. S. on cover were a most interesting lot and had many followers, and the foreign covers likewise had their innings. The next sale will be duly announced; it is set for the middle of February.

PLANS for the International Philatelic Exhibition at Durban, South Africa, July, 1928, under the auspices of the Philatelic Society of Natal, are progressing. The English representative is Mr. Robson Lowe, Radnor House, 93-97 Regent Street, London, W. 1, England, from whom particulars may be had by intending exhibitors. The plan of the Exhibition shows that it is a pretentious one, and the advance sale of tickets is being encouraged by the award of a collection of the stamps of Cape of Good Hope to the fortunate ticket-holder.

A RECENT issue of the Woodlawn News, Chicago, uses a half-tone of fifteen members of the Hyde Park High School Hobby Club. This club is an active one and holds stamp exhibits of merit frequently; Melvin Guggenheim is president, and Norman Weinstein, secretary and treasurer.

MR. HERMAN W. BOERS, Detroit, Michigan, does not weary in bringing collecting to the front in the newspapers of his sector, and as a publicity agent he is above par. Many a paragraph is printed as a consequence of his effort; and a recent number of the Mack Avenue Enterprise tells of a meeting of the Michigan Stamp Club, with its special attractions. The invitation ends with the sentence: "Incidentally, become acquainted with the local members and see what stamp collecting has done in the last ten years."

THE Sunday New Orleans Times-Picayune recently carried a full-page illustrated article by Arthur Wood Van Pelt, headed: "Envelopes Reveal Quaint State History. Recall Days when Boats Carried Most of the Mail, and Tiger-ville Killed its Wild Namesake." Mr. Van Pelt is a gifted writer and his story of discontinued post offices interwoven with historical data based on postal markings reads as if it were a romance. He covers much territory with his pen and finishes with this little gem: 'Friendship, December 25' (on an 1851 cover, 3c). Imagine a little village back in the hills of Maine, under the heavy snows of midwinter. The village postmaster evidently put his duties to his fellow man before his own opportunity for a full holiday, and went to the post office to mail letters by the outgoing stage. Picture it as you will, the record stands. Could there be a finer example of complete felicity than is implied by those words: 'Friendship—Christmas'.

THE International Stamp Co., Emporia, Kansas, calls attention to the slipshod methods of cancellation employed by some postmasters, with the resultant unnecessary disfigurement of the stamps on the envelopes. It is noticed that when the stamps are not cancelled through an oversight at the point of mailing, they are badly socked, as a rule, by the postal employee who finds them unsmirched.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN B. PERSSE

Written by CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

With great regret I have to report the death of Mr. J. B. Persse of Winnipeg, Canada. He died in the General Hospital, where he had gone three weeks ago for a simple ailment.

The city of Winnipeg lost one of its leading citizens when our friend passed on. Mr. Persse had been a resident of Winnipeg for 46 years. He was a partner in the firm of Tees and Persse, manufacturers' agents, and had built up one of the largest distributing agencies in Western Canada.

He was very prominent in civic affairs, having been President of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, Trustee of the General Hospital, President of the Canada Fire Co., a 33rd degree Mason, etc., etc.

It is as a great stamp collector that we know him best. I had the pleasure of working with him some four years ago, during the Winnipeg Philatelic Exhibition, and only this summer he spent a day with me, en route to Europe.

Mr. Persse was a really keen student of stamps. He specialized in Canada and his work on the 5c beaver of 1859 is still to be made known, but it is certainly constructive and interesting. He also had a fine general collection. In Philatelic circles in Winnipeg he was looked upon as the Grand Old Man of Philately and the doyen of the Philatelic Club of that city. A friend of his writes me: "The last time I saw him in the hospital, he was sitting up in bed working with his stamps, and expressed the wish he would soon be out," but he had a sudden heart attack and passed away.

Philatelists of the United States as well as those of Canada tender their most sincere sympathies to Mrs. Persse and his family on the great loss they have sustained.

REMOVAL OF STAMPS FROM MAIL

(Clips from Jos. Cadek and E. J. Meehan.)

A new warning of heavy penalties for removal of stamps from mail in transit has been issued to the postal service by Third Assistant Postmaster-General Regar. It was prompted by a large number of complaints from stamp collectors who received mail minus stamps which were put in the mails for the simple purpose of adding to collections.

Notwithstanding several warnings, Mr. Regar said, the surreptitious removal of stamps while in the mails continues. The finger of suspicion points to those doing philatelic work or who sell the stamps to philatelists.

Thousands of letters are sent by air mail, particularly on first flights over new routes, merely to obtain the cancellation for historic value. The departments want to co-operate with those making such mailings as they result in profit to the service. Those who have such mail addressed to them, or addressed it to themselves are naturally indignant when they find the stamps removed somewhere along the line in the postal service.

EDITORIAL

We have been asked to advance the cause of a suggested commemorative stamp and inasmuch as this is not the first time that we have been requested to put in our oar in favor of proposed special issues, we may as well say that it is our policy to refrain from entering into campaigns that have for their objective, special or commemorative stamp issues. This stand is taken for obvious reasons, none of which is associated with the merits of the arguments that are advanced in favor of the proposals.

The following paragraph from a circular issued by the War Department, Office of the Chief of Chaplains, Washington, has been received through the kindness of the Reverend Winfred H. Ziegler, Rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Elgin, Ill.: "Chaplain Enos Hitchcock. The new two cent stamp that was placed on sale August 3, 1927, commemorating the sesquicentennial of the battles of Fort Stanwix, Oriskany (Fort Dayton), Bennington and Saratoga is of interest to chaplains of the Army. The stamp bears the picture of the 'Surrender of General Burgoyne,' the original of which hangs in the rotunda of the United States Capitol. Counting from left to right, the fifth figure in the group standing beside the cannon at the right of the picture is that of Chaplain Enos Hitchcock, Continental Army. Chaplain Hitchcock served in the Army from March, 1776, to the end of the war with the 3rd Continental Infantry, 10th Massachusetts Infantry and Patterson's Brigade, respectively." In his accompanying letter, the Reverend Ziegler says: "I must keep up to the minute on 'stamp affairs,' the boys of the Church of the Redeemer Stamp Club being so keen and so full of questions, which they direct to me every Friday evening when they meet."

We have a clipping from the South China Morning Post of Hong Kong, October 14th, that appeared on the front page under the heading, "Stamp Chatter." It tells of the discovery in 1913 of "a couple of copies from amongst some hundreds of current $1 stamps" with inverted overprint. According to the report, the finder of the inverts kept his knowledge to himself and died without finding a further copy. Now another copy has been found of the error, "Shanghai overprint inverted" and it is accepted as genuine. Mr. Siddall writes:

"Before I had ever seen the inverted $1, Shanghai print, I had heard of it from Mr. Piens, and in the second edition of my catalogue of Chinese stamps, I had a paragraph, 'Mr. C. Piens claimed to have had several No. 129 ($1 Shanghai overprint) with genuine inverted surcharge.' The stamp has been pronounced genuine and may be added to the list.

From Mr. Troy N. Huffman, Newton, N. C., we have received an interesting clipping from the Key West Times of Key West, Florida, that reviews the early postal history of that little island. Inasmuch as mail service was established in 1829, it follows that pre-stamp covers with the Key West markings are in existence, but Mr. Huffman assumes that they are scarce. The first contract for mail service was awarded in 1829 to the owners of a small sailing vessel, appropriately called the "Post Boy," which was to sail monthly between Key West and Charleston. As the years progressed, the service was improved and facilitated and "at the close of the Civil War, the regular mail to Key West came via Cedar Keys, the terminus of the Florida, Atlantic and Gulf Central Railroad at that time. For a number of years, the firm of Miller and Henderson of Tampa, had the mail contract and combined bringing the mails, with supplying the local and Havana markets with beef cattle. If a drove of cattle was late in reaching Cedar Keys, or an obstreperous steer obstructed the landing, the mails were delayed for almost a day." A cover bearing indications of the part of Miller and Henderson in this postal scheme would quicken the imagination of the sentimental collector.

A reader submits a cover bearing the "University of Va." postmark that contains a letter from a student that is worth quoting: "There was an election here last Saturday (the letter is dated at the University, Oct. 30, 1860), which resulted as follows: Breckenridge, 245; Bell, 232 and Douglas, 26. Bell beat Breckenridge in Virginia. From this you might think that we have quite a small number of students. I think that there are as many as there were last session. I went up and threw in my vote for Bell. There was quite an exciting time. After the election, we had three speeches, one from each party, but the Bell man got the best of it." Now comes the unceasing cry of the ages: "Please send me $50.00 as soon as possible; as I have to prepare my lectures for to-morrow, I must close."

Mr. L. G. Gorton, Memphis, Tenn., asks a question that we have seen referred to in the past, but which has elements of interest. He writes: "I have been interested in your remarks on the desirability of U. S. private proprietary stamps and I have long been intending to write you to say that in my travels about the country among the drug trade, I find conditions much changed these later years. The finds of yesteryear are gone forever, and the old bottles have been called in; and hence the stamps are gone a-glimmering. Here is my question: how were southern manufacturers of proprietary articles enabled to get their stamps from Washington after the civil war was declared? It may be that the Boston revenue book tells all this, but I do not have it with me." Naturally, after the war no discrimination was made against the southern manufacturers and as a writer once said, they did much to reduce the debt that had been incurred by the war, by their contribution in taxes levied by these stamps. During the actual hostilities, the firms in question were not supplied with the special stamps.

Several readers have sent in opinions touching on the financial aspects of collecting. In the following communication from Mr. James C. Curtin, New York, a suggestion is made in line with a remark that was made in this column: "The idea that more importance be given to the correct pricing of stamps in the catalogues in the future is one that cannot be over-emphasized. When collecting was really something out of the ordinary run of things, this condition was reflected in a looseness of price making. Now when the investment demand for stamps has become noticeable and philately has emerged into the open, the question of proper price is the most important one, in my mind, that confronts us. Changes in price, particularly when they are of moment, should be adjusted so studiously that the difference between the 'bid' and 'asked' prices should not be so great as to puzzle collectors. It is never too late to begin and from now on, I wish that this doctrine would be preached widely." The huge sum of money that is invested in stamps should be an earnest of the conviction of faith that buyers have in their holdings. As collecting becomes more standardized, the price question looms up more largely; and we believe that cataloguers are aware of the delicate position that they occupy. They must keep faith with all those who put money into their collections, and not resort to free and easy methods of price approach. It is certain that the price-makers realize this necessity and that from now on, the disposition is to give more attention to this most important consideration. Sincerity of purpose

An Air Mail Album

The latest of the well-known Poole Loose-leaf Albums is one designed specially for air mail stamps. This consists of 60 pages with faint grey quadrille background, with an ornamental border in brown as shown in cut. Inset in the border at top is AIR MAIL STAMPS and below this is the name of the country. There are 45 different countries shown by name and the album provides ample room for all airmail stamps issued to date. The pages are contained in a strong green spring-back binder of exactly the same size and style as those used for other Poole albums. The edition is limited, so early orders are requested.

backed by unprejudiced analysis of each stamp, market-wise, is the first requirement of the cataloguer, and we are of the opinion that he feels the weight of his trust more to-day, than ever before. That attention is being given to the question in its different aspects is shown by the remarks that have reached our ears; and the subject is not to be ignored.

RARITIES AT COLLECTORS CLUB

Reported by CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

Mr. Alfred H. Caspary gave a wonderful display at the last meeting at the Collectors Club, New York, on Wednesday, November 16. The rooms were crowded with the largest attendance of the season, including many of the important collectors and quite a number of out-of-town visitors from Boston and elsewhere.
In his opening remarks Mr. Caspary stated that he was down to show the early issues of Moldavia and Roumania but that he had only arranged the stamps of 1858 and 1859. He therefore brought with him his collection of the Italian States and I have no doubt but what the one volume shown was the most valuable single volume that has ever been displayed to the members of the Collectors Club. Attention should be drawn to the fact that every stamp was in the most perfect condition, an object that is very difficult to attain in rarities of this rank. In the Moldavia stamps I noted the following:—

1858 Issue

27 para rose, superb copy unused with very large margins. Used—a magnificent horizontal pair and four beautiful singles, two of which were on letters.
54 para, 2 unused, 4 singles used, and 4 on letters.
81 para superb unused with large margins, very fine single used, and a unique piece of a cover franked with a 81 para plus a 27 para, used together and making up the 108 para rate.
108 paras, 2 unused, 4 used and a pair and two singles on letters.
I think beyond any doubt this is the finest collection in the world of the rare circular issue of Moldavia.
Of the rare small stamps of 1858 and 1859 Mr. Caspary showed the following

"Country" Etymology

Denmark.—The mark (i.e., boundary land) of the Danes, a Gothic tribe which wandered into the archipelago about the fifth century.

Luxemburg, Lucelinburg, "small castle" at first the name of the castle, then that of the city and surrounding country.

Italy.—From the Latin vitulus meaning calf, the secondary form is italus, therefore Italy denotes "Calfland." This etymology has been borne out by inscription on coins.

San Marino.—Was named after the hermit Marinus, who settled in this place in the fourth century, and lived on top of the mountain where the capitol is also situated.

A Hunt for the Juniors

Based On the Big Special Number Issued on October 10

Look thru the issue and tell us the page and place where you can find locations for the following:—

- (1) The best advertisement and why?
- (2) Air mail stamp sold for $1,000?
- (3) Who advertises Saar set cat. $1.04 for 35c?
- (4) Who is Jules Slowacki?
- (5) Who offers a 10sh stamp cat., $100 for $65?
- (6) "Where was the Declaration of Independence Signed?"
- (7) Where is reference made to Prof. H. S. Palmer?
- (8) "Shall we take a boat to Danzig?"
- (9) "An artistic device for holding prints."
- (10) "$1,000, No. 4288, $100."

A large number of entries were received in this contest and the Editor is keenly appreciative of the interest shown.

Our personal interest largely centered around No. 1, and we have taken considerable time in reading the views of our Juniors. The outcome was Home of the Postage Stamp 26, Harris & Co. 6, Gibbons, Inc., 6, E. B. Power 5, J. O. Moore, Inc., 4. And the balance scattered in order between V. Mozier, Gibbons, Ltd., Hussman, Klein, Scott Co., Homan, Watson and Sterling.

The following is a complete list of contestants:—

$350 Piano for Rare Stamps

T. Niven of Toronto, Canada, sends us a clipping from a Toronto newspaper which gives the particulars of the exchange of a piano for some scarce British North American stamps. The feature appeared upon the front page and was accompanied by illustrations of Mr. Hahn, the Toronto piano dealer, the piano and some of the stamps:—

Paul Hahn, Toronto piano dealer, last week accepted postage stamps in full payment for a $350 piano, and is satisfied with his bargain.

More correctly, perhaps, the stamps were not paid for the piano, but the piano was paid for the stamps. The latter date back to 1853 and 1854 having been issued when New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were separate colonies of the British crown, and are hence of considerable value to philatelists.

Mr. Hahn obtained them from J. H. Burns of Niagara-on-the-Lake.

"I think I know stamps fairly well, and I know something about pianos, too," laughed Mr. Hahn, when telling The Star of the transaction, "I am satisfied with the deal, and Mr. Burns' daughter is very well pleased with the piano."

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

PORT LIMON
Costa Rica, A32
1901, 5c

to be correct, Port Limon is mainly an aggregation of warehouses on a low-lying beach where Yellow Jack may be expected to make periodical visits. A long pier projects out into the harbor where two vessels (one at the pier), await their cargoes of coffee and bananas for the United States. The tree in the foreground is not what one would expect to see in such a tropical scene.

With The Juniors:—

—Beverly, Mass., has organized a Junior stamp club with Stanley Pierce as Pres., Henry Kelly, Vice Pres., Herbert Brown as Sec., and Robert Story as Treas. It will be known as the Lindbergh Stamp Club and will meet Mondays.

—If you will organize a junior club, the WEEKLY will do all it can to promote its welfare. Any news, that is real news, we will gladly publish. Send in the names of your officers and time and place of meeting.

—This page is for you, Juniors, so make the best of it. When you want something in the way of information, write us. Yes, we know you like puzzles and rebuses, and we will give you more of them.

—By the way, when the Editor was a kid, he made up this enigma. How many juniors under 16 can solve it:—

I sail upon the mighty deep,
Upon the bounding billow,
In vigil long, but ne'er in sleep,
I rest upon the pillow.
In birth I am sought
And time cannot Erease me from eternity.

Just address your replies to Beverly, and get the answer without asking any of the grown folks.

—He: "Did you get my post card from Hawaii?"

She: "You didn't fool me, my dear, I noticed the U. S. stamp right away."—from Life.

—Albert Broska sends us a couple of clippings that we cannot use. Thanks Albert. Better luck next time.

Greece A33, 1924, 80 lepta

By GEORGE TODD.

The portrait on this stamp is that of Lord Byron, famous English poet. Lord Byron had extremely radical views on government and politics, so that it is not surprising that he became a voluntary exile from England. He wandered through Europe, reading and hearing legends of the places he visited and writing poems with the legends as a basis.

His love of liberty led him to Greece, where he assisted the Greeks in their revolution of 1824. While he was in Greece, it is said that he swam the Hellespont, a no mean exploit, considering the fact that he was crippled.

Soon after leaving Greece, he succumbed to disease, but his memory is kept alive by his poems. The stamps commemorate the 100th anniversary of his arrival in Greece.

Of the Costa Rica 1900 set, only one, the 5c, displays anything of commercial importance. Port Limon is one of the two ports of consequence in the country, and the only one on the Atlantic side of this "rich coast," as the name Costa Rica means. The beauty of the stamp lies in the colors and engraving rather than in the scene it depicts. Assuming the picture to be correct, Port Limon is mainly an aggregation of warehouses on a low-lying beach where Yellow Jack may be expected to make periodical visits. A long pier projects out into the harbor where two vessels (one at the pier), await their cargoes of coffee and bananas for the United States. The tree in the foreground is not what one would expect to see in such a tropical scene.

Ye Connelle

A Ballad In Ye Old Style.

Ye Connelle is a famous stampe, Or oughte to be I'm sure, Since it's gained a notoriety That's likeli to endure Longer than manye kindes of fame:— Such baubles oft are but a name.

For this ye brave designer payed Six hundred pound a yeare, Or rather lost his salarie, Which meanes ye same I feare; Six hundred pound to see his fayce Posting around from place to place.

'Twas gallantrie that prompted him, As anyone might see: Such business was too servile for Her gracious Majestie: A man may rougher usage bear, Therefore he placed his visage there.

Some little minds pretend to see His vanitie quite playne; Yet who e'er hearde of such a sin Lodged in a manlie brain, Tho' true upon the stampe you see Ye looke of kind complaisance.

Collector, you should bend before That image on your booke, Just as ye miser does his gold, In hidden box or nooke, Remember that ye assayse cost Ye salarie—oh "lost! lost! lost! ! !"

Our Triangle Rebus

We are glad to report a successful contest. There were many entries and judging from letters received, another rebus must soon be forthcoming. The 16 designs are here described:—

No. 1, Portugal.—1880 issue, 25r grey and red lilac. Also on the same stamp surcharged and used in the colonies such as Azores, Maderia, etc. The design is to lower left corner and is repeated in the other corners.

No. 2, Hungary.—1881 to 1898 issues, and is the triangle in the upper right corner of the stamp, though the other triangles correspond with it.

No. 3, Col. Rep. Antioquia.—1878, 1883, 85, 2½c blue, green and buff respectively, and is the lower left hand corner and same to the other corners just outside of the labelled circle.

No. 4, Greece.—Postage due stamps, being the upper right corner, between the Greek fret pattern and circle containing the pleasant information to "come through" with more postage.

No. 5, Tasmania.—1900, ½d green, and is the lower left hand outer corner ornament.

No. 6, Trinidad.—1883-84 issue and is the upper right corner above the name label and similar to the other corners.

No. 7, Austria.—Postage due stamps, 1893, 1900 issues and is the lower left corner ornament, and repeated in the other corners. Scott's illustration of D1 shows the double lined triangle quite clearly.

No. 8, Victoria.—1886, 87, issue of the 1/2d lilac and rose stamps. It is the triangle just above the arched name label and within the border pattern on the upper right side and over the letter "A" to Victoria. Similar on the left side over the letter V.

No. 9, St. Christopher.—The lower left corner of the early issues.

No. 10, Mauritius.—1872, 10p claret, and is the upper right corner between the circle enclosing the head and the outer border and top label. Similar to other corners. Bermuda 1865, 3d looks like it but the design is not in black or colored lines. Its design being white.

No. 11, Egypt.—1888-93 issue, 3 mil brown and orange. Being the lower left triangle between the oval and border lines, and same design to other triangles.

No. 12, New Zealand.—Postage due. 1900 being the triangle at upper right corner. Same to other corners. There are a number of designs similar to this, but each has some variation from the illustration. For example, take CEYLON, 1872, 2k brown. It will be noted that the white lines running diagonally from upper left to lower right follow the slight curve of the circle line enclosing the head. New Zealand has the lines straight.

No. 13, Russia.—1884. Being the lower left scroll in the triangle space outside of the central oval.

No. 14, Costa Rica.—1892, 1 peso, and is the triangle just above the word "correos" in the upper central part of the stamp.

No. 15, Hong Kong.—Postal Fiscal Stamp, 1874, $3.00 violet and is the lower left corner, being a double triangle combination. Similar in other corners.

No. 16, United States.—50c 1902-3 issue and is on the right upper corner. It represents a leaf.

All honor is due Geo. Brett, Norma Lindberg, Chas. Helber and Robt. R. Balmer, Jr., for their complete lists, and to H. M. Faser, Jr., and M. L. Eckhart for their lists of 15. Mr. Faser fell down on No. 10, his answer being San Marino. On Mr. Eckhart's list No. 4 was missing. To these six we have sent unused blocks of four of Turks Id. 3d war, catalog value, $1.40.

To those contestants whose lists range from 14 down to 6 inclusive, we are sending a pair of the Turks Ids. and to all the others a single.

All of which leads the Editor to feel that he has got out from under a big task, but it has been a pleasure beyond measure because of his contact with the fire and enthusiasm of our stamp collecting Juniors.

The Swedish "Love Stamp"

By STURGES D. LORRANCE, JR.

Sweden provides the case of an unusual rarity in the form of an unknown number of sheets of the 12 ore on 25 ore, red-orange, with inverted surcharge, issued during the year 1918.

A sheet of these found their way to Guliksberg, a small office, where they were bought by a young forester who had promised to write a daily letter to his sweetheart. Each of his letters up to thirty in number, had borne a stamp from this misprinted sheet. A collector discovered the error, and traced it to Guliksberg. He offered 200 kroner apiece for these stamps. As the girl had saved her love-letters in the original envelopes, the forester received on her behalf 6,000 kroner for her stamps, and the proceeds resulted in a wedding and a well furnished home. Thus did a postal label speed the wings of romance.

The Junior Dictionary

Poste De Geneve.—Found on all the early stamps of Geneva.

Poste Estensi.—Found on many of the stamps of Modena. It means "Post of the House of Este," the House of Este being the family name of the rulers of the Duchy.

Poste Khedevie Egiziane.—Found on the Egyptian stamps of 1872-75, meaning "Khedival Egyptian Post."

Poste Locale.—Found on many of the early Cantonal stamps of Switzerland. It means "Local Post" and indicates the somewhat local nature of these issues.

Poste Paye.—An overprint upon the 1904 stamps of Hayti, meaning "Post Paid."

Poste Persane.—Found on all Persian stamps issued between 1881 and 1898, meaning "Persian Post." All subsequent issues show both words in the plural, viz., "Postes Persanes."

Poster Stamps.—Advertising stickers in the shape of postage stamps.

Postes.—A word on many stamps, either in conjunction with the name of the country issuing them, or merely with an indication of the facial value. It means "Postage" or "Posts," according to circumstances.

MEREDITH'S PRICED CATALOGUE OF IRISH STAMPS

Collectors of both Irish Overprints and British Georgian high Values should find the fourth edition of "The Postage Stamps of Ireland" of exceptional interest.

The popularity of the Irish overprint issues has been one of the chief features of philatelic study during recent years; and the interest shown in these stamps is reflected in the astonishing prices which so many of the normal specimens fetch in the open market. Mr. Meredith's book has already won wide recognition for its comprehensive treatment of these attractive stamps; and the new edition should do much to enhance its old popularity with both specialists and ordinary collectors.

The pricing of normal stamps, controls, and varieties in the several issues, has always been a feature of this catalogue. Mr. Meredith gives the closest approximation possible to actual market value in every case; and in this respect, the fourth edition brings the records completely up-to-date, with its 68 pages of text.

The listing (for the first time) of varieties in the Castle and Composite issues is one of the features of the new edition.

Of special interest is the article which describes major plate distinctions and varieties in the engraved British high values. Specialists in the Georgian issues should find this contribution alone worth the price of the whole catalogue: for recent discoveries can hardly be limited in scope to the purely Irish overprint issues. The notes on the 2/6 and 10/- plates are very illuminating; and the 5/- varieties are bound to attract wide attention.

Heretofore, the beginner who wished to study Irish stamps had to start in rather haphazard fashion, except some kind friend took pains to set his feet on the right road. This edition should make a study of the Irish issues easy—for a special contribution on the distinctive points of the different printings smooths the path for the novice.

All in all, the handbook is the most complete of its kind. It covers all the essentials—providing fare for both beginner and expert, and we can safely commend its purchase to those who are interested in this field of philately.

The "U. S. A. edition" is the one before us. "The Postage Stamps of Ireland," published by W. G. Meredith, 5 Elmbourne Road, London, S. W. 17; price 54c post free.

THE DAYLIGHT LAMP

Our chief aim has been to render real service to philatelists. With this in view, we have decided to handle a daylight lamp which, after very rigid tests, has proved far superior to others on the market. The LAMP furnishes a perfectly diffused blue-tint light from which all glare is eliminated, and which gives the same effect as daylight. It is the perfect light for color matching.

The lamp is manufactured in five models with a price range of $6.50 to $14.00. These various types may be viewed at our office at any time. We will be pleased to mail descriptive circular on request.

We have one of the largest and most complete stocks of stamps in the country. Thus, if others have failed to supply your wants, please give us an opportunity of serving you.

United States Revenues

I am getting together in behalf of a special client, a very fine collection of the revenue stamps of the Civil War period, and request on approval anything fine in the way of early imperforates and perforates in pairs, strips, and blocks. Blocks of the first issue in perforate condition are also desired. I require any of the inverted center revenues, if in fine condition, and will pay substantial prices for them. The rarities are especially wanted.

United States Postage

I am also in the market for anything unusual in the way of early or late United States issues. While my fondness is more inclined to the mint single and block, I nevertheless, want anything out of the ordinary in the way of used specimens and covers. I can use all of the inverted centers, of 1869, 1901, and 1918, and would like two or three copies of the 24c Airplane Invert. Whether you have a collection or an individual item, be sure and write me. The cash is ready for immediate purchase, and the best of bank, commercial and philatelic references will be furnished, if requested.

Don't forget that if you are looking for the unusual in the way of United States postage and revenue stamps, that I most likely have it in stock. Want lists are requested. Most of the fine things in the way of United States stamps that have come on the market in the last several years have passed through my hands. There must be a reason. If you buy or sell, write me.

Washington Notes

Mr. H. M. Southgate is the first one to show me the new 10-cent Special Delivery rotary print and 1-cent booklet, which were placed on sale at the Philatelic Agency at Washington on November 29th.

The Special Delivery is in a violet-blue, similar to the normal shade of the flat plate variety. It is perforated 11 x 10½, and distributed in panes of fifty.

While November 29th was the first day that the variety appeared in Washington, nevertheless, as previously explained, the stamps were printed in October and were distributed to a number of post offices around the middle of November, so that quite possibly they first saw light elsewhere.

The 1-cent rotary booklet was also printed and placed on sale elsewhere first. This too, is perforated 11 x 10½ in the bright pea-green of the rotary sheets.

Mr. G. L. Habbert has shown me a block of the 3c rotary with the sheet margins at the top and left. This pane was so separated from the one above that the knife cutting the sheet passed through the lower stamps of the upper pane, so that we have a block with large gutter between, showing part of the two upper stamps. The perforations are normal in every way, so that this is by no means a part-perf. variety, but simply a freak, due to the fact that the panes were not properly separated.

The Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. R. S. Regar, again through the Postal Bulletin calls attention to postal employees, that stamps must not be removed from the mail while in transit. He especially calls attention to the fact, that many covers are sent through purposely by collectors, and that when the stamps are removed the covers are ruined. All instances coming to the attention of the Department will be thoroughly investigated, with the view of causing such action to be taken against the guilty party as will lead to the application of the penalty prescribed by law for such offense. The offense is punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both. Collectors having stamps removed from their mail, should bring the fact to the attention of the Department.

1901, 2c Inverted Center

The Nassau Stamp Company calls my attention to the fact that they recently had offered, what appeared to be a superb copy of the 1901, 2c with inverted steam engine. On first inspection the stamp appeared to be good and had been passed upon by those supposed to know the variety. Mr. Klemann informs me that the center had been bleached out and that a new center, inverted, had been put in its place by some photographic process. Interested parties are warned to beware of this variety.

Air Mail Notes

In a recent Chronicle, mention was made of the fact that on the first carrying of air express mail on September 2nd between Boston and New York, that ten covers went forward. The variety previously described had the yellow "Prepaid" label of the express company. I have just seen a further cover from this trip, which had a white "Collect" express label. I am not informed as to how many of each go to make up the ten covers carried.

On November 22nd, Contract Air Mail Route No. 9, going from Chicago to St. Paul and vice versa, made stops at Madison, Wisconsin, for the first time. Mail postmarked at Madison, bore the special octagonal contract air mail marking with the winged insignia of the air mail service. I wish to thank Mr. O. C. Rittenhouse for a cover mailed on the first day.

Under date of November 19th, the Postmaster General announced that the Pitcairn Aviation, Incorporated, of Philadelphia, were the lowest of three bidders for the operation of an air mail route from Atlanta, Ga., via Jacksonville to Miami, Fla., and return. Provisions will be made under the terms of the contract to supply Tampa, Fla., with a feeder route, if necessary.

Planes are scheduled to leave Atlanta at 6.30 A. M., and arrive at Miami at 12.40 P. M. The plane coming north leaves Miami at 2.40 P. M., and will arrive at Atlanta at 8.45 P. M. The total distance each way is approximately five hundred and ninety-five miles, and the schedule to be adopted will require an average flying speed of at least one hundred miles per hour. No date has been set as to when the route will be inaugurated.

partament announced that during Mr. Warren Irving Glover's recent visit to Havana, that he discussed with officials of the Cuban Government the subject of the extension of the air mail lines from Havana to Canal Zone, and other Pan-American countries. The Post Office Department is giving serious attention to this matter, realizing that if the United States does not take advantage of the opportunity afforded, other foreign countries will do so. Germany and France have already opened negotiations for such services.

Through the courtesy of Mr. J. C. Morgan, I have received an air mail schedule, as well as map distributed by the Postmaster at Buffalo. This gives a complete list of all contract air mail routes, mentions the date of their establishment, gives the number of miles covered, as well as the flying schedule. The map is an outline map of the United States, showing the air routes covering practically the entire country. It looks as if we can reach within a few hours, anywhere in the country, with the exception of New Mexico, Montana and the Dakotas. These territories are possibly too sparsely settled to warrant an air mail service.

Gambia.—Mr. R. Roberts reports that he has received from this colony the 7½p on multiple script CA paper, colors same as before.

Germany.—Whitfield King & Co. have sent for chronicle the 3pf of the current set, portrait of Goethe, in a much lighter shade of brown than previously. The color is much more of an olive than the original issue.

Netherlands.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that they have received the 1c deep red, type A24, and 6c orange-brown and 12½c deep rose, type A23, watermarked circles.

Paraguay.—Whitfield King & Co. submit to us for mention a copy of a 5 pesos stamp in chocolate color. In the two upper corners are the figures of value with "Pesos" between. At the base is the usual two line name of the country, while in the centre is a view of a large building with a dome on the top.

Port Said.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us a copy of the 15m orange, with the surcharge "Mm Caisse d'Amortissement" in three lines in blue. This is the Sinking Fund stamp so called.

BARON SUES DEALER FOR $50,000 STAMPS

Baron Carl von Scharfenberg, Berlin hotel owner and one of the leading German stamp collectors, brought suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against Martin S. Bernet to recover possession of a complete set of Russian stamps, valued at from $50,000 to $250,000, and got a temporary injunction from Justice Wasservogel against Bernet and the Nassau Stamp Company to restrain the sale or other disposition of his collection for $30,000 or any other sum.

Affidavits by the Baron and Baroness von Scharfenberg, who was Miss Greta Brauer until her marriage in Berlin last January, allege that Bernet got a bill of sale of the collection from the Baron on a claim for $50,000 by threatening a year ago to have the Baroness, than Miss Brauer, sent to Ellis Island for violating the immigration laws and to cause the arrest of the Baron for bringing the young woman to this country for immoral purposes. They assert that Miss Brauer came here at the suggestion of Bernet to help sell the stamp collection and that Bernet obtained a passport for her by asserting that she was coming to this country to visit his family.

The case is on the calendar of Justice Wasservogel for this morning, when the Baron will ask the Court to continue the injunction pending the trial of the suit to regain the stamp collection. Mr. Bernet will file a denial of the allegations, it is said, and will apply to have the injunction vacated.

The affidavit of the Baron said that Miss Brauer and Bernet were with him at the Hotel Vanderbilt for ten days after their arrival, and later the Baron and Miss Brauer went to Atlantic City for three weeks. The sale fell through, he said, but Bernet, who had the collection in his possession, refused to return them. The Baron sued Bernet, but the Sheriff was unable to find the stamps. Baron von Scharfenberg said he and Miss Brauer decided finally to return to Germany, but when they were leaving the Hotel Pennsylvania for the dock in

LANSDOWNE (PA.) EXHIBITION

By F. E. Locy.

The Lansdowne (Pa.) Stamp Club held its Second Annual Exhibition Nov. 18 and 19. On account of the limited space every exhibit was cut to its most interesting and valuable portions. However, over 800 sheets were shown on tables under glass. The judges were Eugene Klein of Philadelphia and George M. Emery of Drexel Hill. Awards in the form of specially designed certificates were made as follows: Class I—U. S. and possessions: 1st, Clarence W. Brazer, 2nd, Herbert C. Hays. Class II—Great Britain and possessions: 1st, F. E. Locy, Jamaica; 2nd, Clarence W. Brazer, Canada. Class III—Europe and Countries: 1st, A. B. Maris, Saar tied for 2nd, Mrs. Mary G. Cook, Italy, and J. Sinexon, Belgium, Austria, etc. Class IV—Africa and Asia: 1st, A. B. Maris, Congo; 2nd, John R. Huston, Egypt. Class V—Western Hemisphere: 1st, John R. Huston, Chili. Class VI—Colonies other than British: 1st, F. E. Locy, French Oceania. Class VII—20th Century: 1st, E. R. Meacham. Class VIII—Specialties: 1st, F. W. Pickard, U. S. A. 90c 1869s; 2nd, Herbert C. Hays, Cape of Good Hope triangles; 3rd, J. J. Waygood, Pennsylvania precancels. Class IX—Junior members: 1st, Robt. Schelhorn. Class X—Invited Exhibitors: A. J. Squier of New York, for his collection of U. S. rarities which won the 2nd medal at the great New York Exhibition last year.

The grand prize for the best exhibit was won by Clarence W. Brazer for his collection of United States. It is of interest to note that his splendid exhibit was inspired by the first exhibit of this club last year and has been entirely accumulated since that time. It included all of the regular postal issues, mostly in mint condition and also in colored cancellations, many of the errors, revenues, essays and proofs, early covers and what is said to be one of the best collections of cut square envelopes in the country today.

Among the other points of interest in the exhibit were Mr. Pickard's specialized collection of over 100 copies of the U. S. 90c 1869, many of which are unused, the Pan-American and 2nd issue revenue inverts, and the blue papers of 1908 complete in Mr. Squier's collection, and a specialized collection of Mr. Eugene Klein of the 1st issue of Hungary on covers showing bi-lingual, tri-lingual, and other unusual cancellations. The latter was not placed in competition as Mr. Klein was one of the judges. It is expected that the 3rd Annual Exhibition of this club will be held in November next year, at which they expect to have almost unlimited space. At that time small exhibits of interest will be welcomed from non-members of the club. Membership is open to collectors living in Delaware County.

PRECANCEL STUDY

By N. R. Hoover.

On Friday, November 11, at the regular meeting of the New York Precancel Club, held at the Hoovers', 35 West 33rd Street, Allan R. Brown gave an exhaustive analysis of Brooklyn, N. Y., precancels.

This analysis is one of the most intelligent studies the city has ever received. Types up to and including No. 5 were not criticized, but from No. 6 forward, the minor hand-stamp varieties, it is quite clear that a movement has been started which will lead to some big changes in the way they are listed in the present catalog.

Instead of winding up with the present number it is apparent that varieties in imprints, definitely identified, will be located that will run the total up to at least twenty.

In continuing the investigation of Brooklyn, Mr. Brown asks the co-operation of other collectors. Send to him at 126 Echo Avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y., anything you have in Brooklyn hand-stamps. He wants them merely for identification purposes as an aid in confirming his theories on the varieties he surmises have been issued, and will return them to you intact.

Besides the above there are a number of out of the way places which use stamps of various countries for lack of their own. Norfolk and Lord Howe islands in the western Pacific use Australian issues. Pitcairn Is. said to be the loneliest place in the Pacific, dispatches its mails with either New Zealand or British issues. Having no cancelling device these are sent under plain cover with request for cancellation in country of delivery. Fanning
Id. a cable station, uses stamps of N.
Zealand. Christmas Id. mail is posted with British stamps and cancelled with ship-postoffice pmks. In addition there is a large local cancellation some two inches in diameter. The center has a palm-tree and in the circle the legend
"Christmas Island Plantation Co. Central Pacific." Aden uses the stamps of India. The Galapagos Islands use stamps of Ecuador, but mails are extremely irregular. These islands once had "a sticker," a pale brown stamp with map inscribed "Archipelago de Colon, Correos de Ecuador," un-official sticker. Fernando de Noronha, a penal colony, dispatches its mail to be stamped and pmkd. in nearest port of Brazil. Greenland uses current Danish issues during the short summer season for dispatch of mails. There was, however, a set of five parcel-post stamps used for Greenland, the design being a white bear on a crowned shield.
These were used by a private carrier company. The Maldive Islands, altho having their own stamps, are still uncommon-used, indeed genuine used covers are very rare. Robinson Crusoe or Juan Fernandez Islands use four surcharged Chilean stamps. Used on cover these are not common, the island people being little more given to letters than Robinson himself.

Perhaps the most difficult place to obtain a genuine cover from is the loneliest spot on earth, the island of Tristan D'Acunha, midway between Argentina and Cape Colony. The 300 people who are practically exiles here, often pass three years between mails, indeed once this extended to eight years during the war. Letters are pmkd. Tristan D'Acuna and dispatched by any visiting ship, to be posted in Capetown. Both South African and British stamps are used.
A genuine used cover from such a place brings its own price.

SECONDS IN OLD U. S. POSTAGE STAMPS

I find I have tucked away in the safety vaults at the bank here many envelopes cramped with old U. S. postage stamps which I bought 6, 7, 8, and even 9 years ago. I purchased them for an investment.
Now I will sell from lot at attractive prices; all are what might be termed seconds, either off centre or slightly defective; in lot are many scarce postage and department stamps.

If You Are Not Too Particular

out condition, here is a chance to fill some of those vacant spaces, for I will make up lots on want lists, providing customer has at least twenty dollars to spend, and will price each stamp according to condition, which will be low enough to suit. I feel sure.

If you expect perfectly centred unblemished stamps, this ad will not appeal to you, but if you want to get a collection of old U. S. without spending a whole lot of money, here is your chance.

The "Red Cross Roll Call Join" slogan held forth from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, and one found many new dies this year. The two weeks preparation bombardment was succeeded by the issuance of the new Anti-Tuberculosis seal, picturing that unattainable Hollywood artist, Santa Claus. Donner and Blitzen unfortunately died last year, and are not shown this year as in 1913.
One notes also that the Humane Society got after Santa who has discarded his famous Black Snake.

OUR ADMONITION LAST YEAR TO EN-

HAD, SEEMS TO HAVE FOUND EARS. WE HOPE THAT MANY OTHER CITIES WILL HAVE THEM WITHIN THE SEASON.

We opened our Lossing's history and found tucked away quite a few shin plasters and tin foils. The old tin foil revenues are novelties these days and one has to search even to locate the one and only check list which appeared some years ago.

Our perforated initials has an intruder in the shape of perforated numbers. 245 it shows and one forgets whether that is a new cigarette or an Ed Pinaud preparation. Another oddity shows a design which looks like an algebraic square root of minus one, which we gave up before trying to get our diploma many years ago.

Porto Rico is using a Spanish slogan about the "Arboles" which we will credit to Mr. Pack and his foresters.

NEWS ITEMS:—

FRANK B. KIRBY calls our attention to the death of F. B. Gooch of Washington, D. C., a Navy Department employee who passed away Oct. 26, after an illness of about seven weeks' duration. Mr. Gooch went to Tuckerton, N. J., early in August, for several weeks' vacation, but returned in a few days and took to his bed. A stroke of paralysis hastened his death. Mr. Kirby speaks of Mr. Gooch as a very fine philatelist.

WE have received from B. W. H. Poole a specimen copy of "Philatelic Opinion," a house-organ of more than ordinary merit. Indeed, Mr. Poole calls it "a monthly magazine for stamp collectors." This magazine was started by Mr. Poole in 1912, but after completing one volume it was discontinued, and now resumes with Volume 2, Number 1. Some useful articles are printed in the number before us and a sample copy will doubtless be sent to anyone who will enclose return postage. "Philatelic Opinion" has distinct merit.

THE "Bulletin" of the Los Angeles Philatelic Club announces the death of Dr. E. S. Metzger of Dedondo Beach, Cal., who succumbed to an attack of pneumonia Nov. 7. It is the first death in the ranks of the Club. At the meeting held Nov. 28, Rudolph W. Rex exhibited some of his choice U. S. covers.

THANKS to the activity of Pres. Fred O. Ohlund, we have during the past two months received no fewer than fifteen subscriptions from members of the Suburban Stamp & Curio Club. We appreciate what this live stamp club is doing in promoting our publication.

STANLEY HOSMER sends us a yearly subscription for the Santa Rosa, Cal., Free Public Library. He writes that he attended a stamp meeting of the juniors at the Library recently, saw no stamp paper, and so decided to help the cause along by donating this subscription. Thanks, Mr. Hosmer.

THE MCKINLEY STAMP CLUB, Canton, Ohio, is now occupying a beautiful and well equipped room in the Jewish Community Center Building, and is looking forward to a very active season. The Club is preparing to participate in the great exhibition to be held in Cleveland next May. Sec. Paul Vignos has just sent us in two new subscriptions and promises more.

A. B. HARRY WENBERG has returned from Europe, and is with us again in our advertising columns. He will doubtless take space with us frequently during the coming season.

A PRICE LIST of 20th Cent. British Colonials has just been issued by the Cortlandt Stamp Co., 337 Gates Av., Brooklyn, N. Y. It will be sent on request. A fine lot of stamps is priced, all in mint condition.

WE are indebted to Albert E. Gorham for a first day cover on the 10c special delivery rotary. He also submits plate number blocks 18919 and 18920 for inspection.

ANYONE interested in U. S. Post Cards should write S. M. Edwards, Fargo, No. Dak., for a copy of the Bulletin issued by the Postal Card Society of America. Mr. Edwards is Sec.-Treas., also editor of the Bulletin.

WE have been shown by Frank Goldsmith what might be termed a flood cancellation—postmarking. It is from Becket, Mass., and cancelling the stamp in three lines is "BECKETT—NOV 19, 1927—CANCELLED." Rules are inserted between the three lines.

HERMAN TOASPERN, 51 W. 48 St., N. Y. City, is anxious to get in touch with collectors who have in their collections the Chili error of the 5c in the color of the 1c Scott's No. 86a. The copies submitted to him have unquestionably been changelings, and he strongly doubts the existence of the genuine stamp. Stamps will be returned the same day received.

STAMP COLLECTOR ARRESTED

(Clipping from C. A. Townsend.)

CLEVELAND, Nov. 26.—A hobby that Gustav Kroesing, 72, took up more than 50 years ago, placed him in jail here today.

He is a collector of stamps with about 20,000 in his albums, some of which he declares are worth $250 each.

Arrested today on a charge of selling stamps from which he had washed cancellation marks, he was said to have explained that he needed money and was unable to find anyone who would buy part of his collection.

A teller at the bank which bought the stamps, himself a philatelist, detected the erasures and caused Kroesing's arrest.

Kroesing is in jail in default of $2,000 bond, awaiting action of the grand jury.

PLANE BUILT HERE CARRIES FIRST AIR MAIL FROM ARCTIC

The first air mail out of Alaska today was delivered to Mrs. E. H. Hanting, 4664 Ohio Street, after traveling 3,800 miles by plane, stage, steamer and train.

The letter was mailed at Whitehorse, Alaska, Nov. 7, and taken from there to Mayo and Dawson by plane over a distance of 550 miles. The flight, made in a plane recently purchased from the B. F. Mahoney Corp. here, was made in four hours and 30 minutes.

Andrew Cruickshanks, of San Diego, chief pilot of the Yukon Airways and Exploration Co., Ltd., who wrote the letter, asserted the trip would have taken 14 days by stage, or 18 days by dog team.

The company has been granted permission to print its own air mail stamps and operate its own postoffice. On the stamp is a large picture of the Ryan brougham flying over Alaska. This is the only air mail company in the world with this privilege, Cruickshank said.

The service was inaugurated Nov. 7. It is operating in temperatures from 22 to 40 degrees below zero. The plane is equipped with heaters.

The letter further explained that a series of dog team stations is maintained by the company along the route in event of forced landings.—San Diego Sun, Nov. 28.

Yule Tide Greetings

Christmas and The Cross

By C. A. HOWES.

T this time of the year, when all the Christian world is preparing to celebrate its great festival day, the philatelist is apt to drop his favorite hobby because of the thousand and one calls upon his time, his interest, and his money, which the holiday season entails. Has he friends or relatives to whom the gift of stamps or philatelic accessories may bring, revive or further an interest in collecting, we sincerely hope he will not neglect his opportunity. Christmas presents otherwise but little in connection with philately, yet one event at least was deemed worthy of a Christmas stamp. This was the inauguration of Imperial Penny Postage on Christmas day, 1898, between Great Britain and thirty-seven of her colonies and protectorates. Such an event was indeed a Christmas present to the Empire, as it reduced the letter rate by three-fifths. The Canadians, whose premier, the Hon. William Mulock, was the proposer of the scheme, thought it eminently fitting that they should celebrate the event with a special stamp. The result was the map stamp with its boasting inscription: "We are stronger than has been," a patriotic verse by This legend has dubbing it the "has

is so scantily recitation religion is not at least in symbol—St. George, patron who slew the sword after the en the lance with which he first attacked it, is recalled by the handsome 5 drachma stamp of Crete, of the 1900 issue, and the postal fiscals of Tasmania. Belgium shows St. Michael, patron saint of her capital city, doing the same good work on the dragon, on the Brussels Exposition issue. Portugal has whole series devoted to various episodes in the life of St. Anthony of Padua, Italy, a set commemorating the seven hundredth anniversary of the death of St. Francis of Assisi, and Malta a stamp picturing the shipwreck of St. Paul on her shores. The Virgin Islands have not only a representation of one of the virgins of the parable, surrounded by the lamps, but also a figure of the Virgin Mary; while it is left to Italy to picture Christ, himself, directing His Disciples to "preach the Gospel to all creatures" ("praedicare evangelium omni creaturae"). The stamps of the Papal State show the triple tiara of the popes and the two crossed keys of heaven, of which the pope claims the guardianship.

But these are all side issues, in a way, and not the direct representation of Christianity (save perhaps the group of Christ and His Disciples) whose symbol is the cross. It may be interesting to recall that the cross was in use long before the advent of Christ as a common instrument of capital punishment among the ancients; and that death upon it was considered so dishonorable that only slaves and malefactors of the lowest class were subjected to it by the Romans. The original crux of the Latins was a simple upright stake upon which the criminal was tied or impaled and left to die; but a cross piece was generally added, to which the arms were tied, or the hands nailed. The cross was in use as an emblem, with certain religious and mystic meanings attached to it, long before the Christian era; but the death of Christ by crucifixion led Christians to regard it with a feeling of veneration and to finally adopt it as a symbol, from its direct reference to the central fact of their religion.

The forms given to crosses are endless, but the two leading types are the Latin and the Greek forms, so called. The former has the cross piece near the top, and is supposed to be the one on which Christ suffered. The latter has the cross piece at the center with the four arms equal or nearly so. The Greek cross is the one found on the Swiss coat-of-arms and it figures prominently on all their stamps. Gautier says: "The first time that mention is made of it in written history is in the Chronicle of Bernois Justinger. He says, after having enumerated the forces of the Swiss who left Berne to march against the army of the coalition of nobles in 1339: 'And all were marked with the sign of the Holy Cross, a white cross in a red shield, because the question of the deliverance of the nation was for them as sacred a cause as the deliverance of the Holy Land'."

The coat-of-arms of Italy, prominent on some of its low value stamps, is similar to the Swiss, being a red shield with a silver Greek cross, the arms in this case extending to the border of the shield. This is the arms of Savoy, the present ruling house of Italy. It was the device of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, an order semi-religious, semi-military, that owed its origin to the crusades. In the year 1310, the Knights captured Rhodes from the Saracens, but being hard pressed by the infidels, Duke Amadeus IV of Savoy came to the rescue, and the Grand Master of the Order conferred upon him the arms that the family has borne ever since. The appearance of these arms on the 1859 issue of Modena, and the 1860 issue of Tuscany, symbolize the overthrow of the former ducal houses and the annexation of their territories to Savoy, thus beginning the unification of Italy. Again we find the arms of Naples partially erased and the Savoy cross drawn in over them on the 1/2 tornese stamp of Naples in 1860, while the issue for the two Sicilies (Naples and Sicily) in 1861, under Victor Immanuel, has the portrait of the new king and two little crosses in the upper corners. Thus is the "advance of the cross" illustrated in political history as well as religious.

The Servian arms are shown on the first issue of stamps and also on the surcharge of 1903. They resemble those of Italy, being a red shield with a silver cross, but each "canton" contains a gold crescent. This was the coat-of-arms of Constantinople during the "Holy Roman Empire," except that the cross was of gold as well as the crescents. Its appropriation by Servia is unexplained. A similar cross is shown on the Swedish coat-of-arms as presented on the official stamps.

Other crosses on coat-of-arms may be seen on the 1904 issue of Jamaica, which is none other than the red cross on a silver shield of the patron St. George of England; again, the same cross is seen on the shields of the New South Wales 6 pence of 1888, and 1 penny of 1897, and the South Australia 5 pence of 1894. The earlier issues of British Central Africa, too, have a cross on the shield. The motto "Light in Darkness" serves to interpret the blazoning: the black shield represents the "darkness," into which the wedge-shaped piece, known in heraldry as a "pile," is driven, this latter being in gold to represent the "light." Over all is placed a silver cross to denote the source of that light.

Another form of cross is shown on the stamps of Malta, readily recognized as the "Maltese Cross." This is the badge of the Knights Hospitalers, or Knights of Malta, and is said to have originated by placing four spearheads together at their points. The eight outer points of this form of cross are supposed to represent the Beatitudes.

On the Brazilian set of 1900, commemorating the discovery of the country by the Portuguese in 1500, is a cross with the ends spread out, known in heraldry as a "cross pattée." The same cross is seen on the Vasco da Gama series of Portugal, borne on the sails of the flag-ship on the 2 1/2 reis; again on the knights' shield on the 100 reis, and as a center-piece on the 150 reis. This particular cross is that of the "Order of the Knights of Christ," instituted in 1317 by King Diniz of Portugal. The use of it shows that the discoverers were members of the order.

Among curious designs for stamps, that of the 5 pence of Samoa, known as the "flag stamp," is worthy of note. It is a copy of the Samoan flag which, as in the case of Tonga, was designed for the kingdom by the missionaries, who helped to form a so-called constitutional government there in 1873. It is printed in the proper color, red, but the crown is not a part of the flag design. In 1903 Montserrat issued a set with the device of the colony as a centerpiece. This represents a female figure clinging to a cross, her left hand resting upon a harp. This is the Latin cross, as is the one on the Venezuelan stamp, commemorating the discovery of the mainland of South America by Columbus in 1498. Still another is shown on the shield of the Dominican Republic over the book inscribed La Ley (the Law) to indicate its source, and three "phantom crosses" (for Christ and the two thieves), are shown on the St. Francis stamps issued by Italy. Latin crosses are also shown on the Brazilian commemoratives of 1917 and 1924. The Belgian charity stamps of 1925-6 have a

GOSH, WHAT NERVE! !

Imagine trying to get five cents per copy for a little four page, six by nine inch, sheet bearing the highfalutin title of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS. Trying to sell the highfalutin title, you'll say.

BUT, a more or less good statistician has figured that that's about what it costs me to put it out, considering my time in preparing the copy, postage, printing, etc., etc. So all I have to do is to make it worth the price. And I think that it has one feature which, alone, just about fills the bill.

Each issue contains a list of stamps on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency. Uncle Sam has 100 varieties of stamps to sell to collectors at face value, you know, and it's worth something to have the current list at hand when you need it. Besides which, the sheet has some dope on new U. S. stamps and new air mail routes.

Take a chance. Send a quarter for five issues or a dollar for 20 issues. If, after you see the first copy, you think you've been "gypped," you only have to say the word and your money will come back. If you order 20 issues you will receive FREE Uncle Sam's 54 page book, "A Description of U. S. Postage Stamps Issued from 1847 to 1927."

BERNARD E. CHARTER

P. O. Box 278, MILFORD, CONN.

Latin cross with two arms which is known as the "patriarch's cross."

Greek crosses may be seen in the upper corners of the Grenada commemorative stamp, the Tonga 1 penny and 4 pence pictorial, and on the Tongan coat-of-arms and flags shown on the 1/2 penny of the same issue. Grenada was discovered by Columbus on August 15, the day of the festival of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary in the Catholic calendar, and was therefore named by him
"La Concepcion." The appropriateness of

FOR THE CONNOISSEUR SEEKING THE SUPERB

Discriminating taste in stamps develops only with time and experience, as does appreciation for any of the fine things in life.
We must learn to recognize the classics in music, in pictorial art, in the culinary art, or that of the vintner.

As an artist develops he needs careful coaching because without it he carries into maturity certain crudities of habit formed during early efforts. This is as true of a chef as of a great musician, and it is particularly true of a stamp collector.

The collector in his student days acquires many items quite satisfactory at that time and which he becomes so accustomed to he may fail to recognize them as blemishes to his collection until he wants to show it to a connoisseur. Then he realizes its weakness.

OUR STOCK WILL HELP YOU TO CORRECT THIS DAMAGE.

We can supply superb copies of almost all regularly issued United States Stamps of the 19th and 20th Centuries, including the Departments, Postage Dues, Newspapers, Confederates; as well as many of the classic issues of Belgium, France, Holland, German States, Italian States, etc.

A list of the items you need to replace will have our prompt attention; quotations or approvals as desired.

J. O. MOORE, INC., Hammondsport, N. Y., U. S. A.

the crosses is thus apparent. The Tongan flag and coat-of-arms were designed for the converted king by Rev. Shirley W. Baker, a Methodist minister, and the presence of the cross on both needs no further comment. Danzig bears two Greek crosses "patté" on its arms, while the Lithuanian issue of 1927 has what appears to be two Greek crosses joined in one and known as the "cross of Lorraine." The Greek war issue of 1913 bears the cross of Constantine the Great, with the inscription En toutoi nika. The Emperor claimed he saw this cross of light with the motto (in Latin) Hoc Signo vincens blaze out in the heavens while he was defending his throne against a rival in the year 312 A. D. It has come down to us through the centuries as the familiar "By this sign shalt thou conquer."

At Geneva, in 1863, was held an International Conference to consider how far the horrors of war could be mitigated by aid to the sick and wounded.
Sixteen nations were represented and the result was an agreement called the "Geneva Convention," adopted on August 22, 1864, outlining provisions for the complete neutrality of all relief work along this line. The emblem for all such work was to be a cross, to show the Christian principles underlying it, and as a delicate compliment to the Swiss government, the device chosen was the Swiss coat-of-arms with the colors reversed—thus being borne the "Red Cross" which has since proved such a boon to humanity.

Previous to the Great War, the frank stamp of the Red Cross Society of Portugal was the only one to bear this emblem as such, but, as we all know, the war brought an avalanche of issues for the purpose of collecting by postage stamps an extra amount over the postal fee in aid of Red Cross funds. Practically all had the "red cross" itself in surcharge or added to the design. France began the issue in the fall of 1914, and was followed by all her colonies. Belgium soon followed suit. Grenada and Trinidad had special "Red Cross Society" labels which were allowed for local postage in 1914, and Trinidad later surcharged the 1 penny postage stamp.

Outside of these two, the only other British colony to issue Red Cross stamps was North Borneo in 1916, which curiously were overprinted with a red Maltese cross! One other curiosity occurred in Reunion, which in 1915 surcharged 50,000 stamps locally with a large cross in black! When the incongruity of using black ink instead of red was pointed out to the Governor, he ordered the destruction of those unsold and 41,200 were burnt. Monaco followed France in 1914, with a special issue, Italy (with Libia) and Dutch Indies in 1915, Mozambique Company in 1917, Belgian

Congo and Siam in 1918, North Borneo again in 1919, with the proper Greek cross, and Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Denmark, Costa Rica, Albania and Spain have contributed special issues since then, though not all because of the Great War.

From crosses made by man, we turn to crosses in the sky. The "Southern Cross" is a prominent constellation of the hemisphere which is invisible to us in northern latitudes. As seen by the illustration, the four large stars form a fairly good representation of the cross.
The constellation is situated near the "Antarctic Circle" of the heavens. The two brilliant stars which mark the top and bottom of the cross have nearly the same "celestial longitude," so the constellation is almost perpendicular when passing the meridian, and these two stars then act as "pointers" to the South Pole.
The Republic of Brazil, on its formation in 1889, adopted the constellation as the central feature of its coat-of-arms. It can also be found on some Victorian, and New South Wales stamps, the latter state having also incorporated it into its arms, as can be seen by the four stars on the 1 penny of 1897.

CANAL ZONE POSTAL REPORT, 1927

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On May 31, 1927, the Post Office at Ft. Sherman was closed, and this post is now served from Cristobal. When established on January 9, 1911, it was known as Toro Point; changed January 1, 1912, to station "B," Cristobal, and later, on May 1, 1916, to Ft. Sherman. Twelve Post Offices were in operation at the close of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927.

Established
Ancon, June 24, 1904
Cristobal, June 24, 1904
Balboa (known as La Boca until May 5, 1909), June 24, 1904
Gatun, June 24, 1904
Culebra, June 24, 1904
Pedro Miguel, Aug. 9, 1905
Corozal, Jan. 1, 1906
Gamboa, March 20, 1914
Balboa Heights, July 15, 1914
Coco Solo, March 1, 1919
Fort Clayton, July 1, 1922
France Field, July 1, 1923

The total receipts of the postal service were $181,589.04 (as compared with $178,324.02 for the year preceding), the total expenditure $181,812.29, leaving a deficit of $223.25 for the year. The postal service is now practically on a self-sustaining basis in spite of the fact that 60% of all mail handled locally is sent under official frank, from which the Bureau of Posts derives no revenue although it bears the burden of transportation and other handling charges.

The sale of U. S. postage stamps and postal cards overprinted "Canal Zone," continued throughout the year, but stamped envelopes are manufactured by the Panama Canal Press, at Mt. Hope.

It is proposed to discontinue the use of such overprinted postage stamps as soon as funds are available for obtaining the required dies for the printing of a distinctive series of Canal Zone postal stamps and other stamped paper. "As the additional revenue derived from the sale of an entirely new issue of stamps would in all probability nearly defray the expense involved, it is hoped that funds for this purpose may be made available at an early date."

There were 147,979 Money Orders issued during the year, amounting to $2,754,567.03, on which fees amounting to $13,399.63 were collected; and 40,486 Money Orders amounting to $1,175,445.25 were paid. The total amount on deposit at all Post Offices on June 30, 1927, including deposit Money Orders, old postal saving accounts and unpaid fee-paid Money Orders in favor of the remitter was $471,743.10, as compared with $466,996.65 on June 30, 1926.

The C. O. D. system between United States and the Canal Zone, established in 1914, was discontinued effective July 1, 1927, due to the fact that it had been abused by cheap mail order houses. It was estimated that the cost to the Canal Zone postal service of operating the system during the last year was about $6,000, which was disproportionate to the benefits to be derived from it by local patrons.

In the registry division of the Post Offices, 278,315 letters and parcels were handled, of which 44,288 were official mail under frank, and accepted for registration without fee.

Postage stamps valued at $116,472.66

NEW SEASON APPROVAL BOOKS

During the summer I have remade all my books of Canada and can now offer to collectors the finest stock of the early issues that exists in America or, I think, in the whole world.

The new approval books are grouped as follows, and I shall be happy to send to collectors just the class and groups of stamps that they require:—

1. Pence Issues, unused. A very fine and valuable book.
2. Pence Issues, used. Finest selected copies, large margins, and light cancellations, at market prices commensurate with condition.
- 3 & 4. Pence Issues. General selections, all priced very moderately.

AIR MAILS WANTED

Route 9 — Wholesale lots 10 to 100 — send samples and quote cities and quantities. Don't expect fancy prices but quick cash for cheap covers. We accept subject to supplying a specialist customer. Chas. Hall, 6049 No. Maplewood Ave., Chicago, Ill.

were sold in 1927, as compared with $113,657.74 in 1926, and $110,014.08 in 1925.

A census taken in June, 1927, disclosed a civilian population of 27,624, to which must be added military and naval forces of 8976, making a total population of 36,600.

The routing of mail to and from the U. S., via Key West, continued to show gratifying results, and advances mail delivery considerably when close connection is made at Havana. Registered mail when routed in this manner is usually backstamped "JACK. & KEY WEST—J. H. BRISTOW" between two concentric circles, measuring 29 and 19mm, and three lines in the center, "Tr. 76—SEP 26—1927."

METROPOLITAN BARGAIN COUNTER

Issued Monthly By

Metropolitan Stamp Company

1482 BROADWAY,

NEW YORK CITY

A REQUEST WILL BRING YOU THE NEXT NUMBER FREE. [H]

Booklet stamps are printed in sheets of 360; the others in sheets of 400.

The rotary printed stamp (sheet and booklet form) in the shipment of December 6, 1926, were perforated 10 x 10. The 2c was issued in January, 1927, and the 3c and 10c at the Philatelic Agency, Balboa Heights, on May 9, 1927. The 1c and 2c rotary printed stamps in the shipment of May 27, 1927, were perforated 11 x 10 1/2, and issued June 28, 1927.

Electric cancelling machines were installed in the Post Offices at Ancon and Cristobal, soon after they were established, and on July 3, 1926, one was brought into use in the Balboa Heights Post Office, located in the Administration Building. The other Post Offices, and these three as well, use handstamps of the Duplex type.

The machine cancellation used at Ancon is a single lined circle, 24mm, lettered "Ancon, Canal Zone," with the date in two lines in the center "SEP 18—7 A. M.," and to the right seven horizontal lines, part of the fourth being cut away and the year "1925" inserted. The Duplex hand cancelling stamp is a single lined circle, 26 1/2mm, lettered "Ancon,
C. Z.," with the date in two lines, "SEP 17—9.30 A. M.," to the right of which is an ellipse on end (formed of graduated bars) with the numeral "1" within a hollow circle. The year "1925" is positioned at the foot, between the circle and the ellipse.

Cristobal's machine cancellation is a single lined circle measuring 23mm, suitably inscribed with the date in the center in three lines, "DEC 1—5 P. M.—1925."

The single lined circle of the machine cancellation used at Balboa Heights measures 22 1/2mm, and is lettered "Balboa Heights, Canal Zone"; the date is in three lines, "JUL 8—3 P. M.—1926," and to the right are seven wavy lines.

The handstamps used by Cristobal and Balboa Heights are similar to that used at Ancon, and the other offices, except that the single lined circle measures 26mm.

Canal Zone stamps are frequently found cancelled with a single lined circle, 30mm, lettered "N. Y. & CANAL ZONE R. P. O."
with four lines in the center, "SEP—20—1925—NORTH (or SOUTH)" and at the right an ellipse of three graduated bars above and below a numeral "2" (within a hollow circle). This is used by the mail clerk on the Panama R. R. str.
Ancon; a similar marking, except with the numeral "1" is used by the clerk on the s. s. Cristobal of the same line. These letters, posted on board the steamers, are additionally handstamped in black "Paquebot."

Mr. H. B. Cooper, for many years Postmaster at Balboa Heights, left the service on Jan. 10, 1927, his resignation becoming effective at the expiration of an accumulated leave of four months.
He was succeeded by Mr. Robert Graham, and during the latter's absence on leave, Mr. J. W. Greene is acting Postmaster.

"HOLY YEAR," ITALY, "ERRORS"

By EMILIO DIENA.

Advertisements containing offers of the Italian "Holy Year" Commemorative stamps (issued December 24, 1924) with central pictures inverted appeared at first abroad and later on in Italy. The values are: 60 + 30 cent carmine and brown, and 5 lire + 2.50 vermilion and dark
lilac.

The following stamps of the same Commemorative set for the Italian Colonies (issued June 1, 1925) appeared afterwards on the philatelic market:

Cirenaica: 20 + 10 cent, surcharge inverted; Cirenaica: 30 + 15 cent, surcharge triple.

Eritrea: 30 + 15 cent, surcharge double; Eritrea: 60 + 30 cent, surcharge double, one inverted; Eritrea:
60 + 30 cent, surcharge inverted.

Italian Somaliland: 30 + 15 besa, surcharge inverted; Italian Somaliland:
30 + 15 besa, surcharge triple.

On behalf of the Federation of the Italian Philatelic Societies, I thought it necessary to obtain the most reliable information, in order to establish the real status of these specimens which were being offered as genuine errors.

As a result of such inquiries, I am now in a position to state that the production of the set of these commemorative stamps, entrusted to a private printing concern, has been obtained by some special surface printing presses made in Bavaria by Albert & Co. of Frankenthal (Model 1911), and by König & Bauer of Würzburg, from which simultaneous impressions in two distinct colours are obtained. It is important to point out that the casual inversion of a portion of the design with respect to the other is practically impossible. In order to produce such abnormal specimens, recourse was necessary to fraudulent concoctions, made by someone of the staff who purposely succeeded in obtaining such bogus varieties to be offered for sale to collectors.

Furthermore, the existence of inverted, or double or triple surcharges, etc., is due to the unscrupulous work of someone, a fact which took place at different periods. The careful comparison of original specimens with the above mentioned fraudulent varieties confirms the above information. On the other hand I do not find it advisable to publish further particulars on this subject.

Let me only add that I have been submitted, a few weeks ago, a 60 + 30 cent of the same set with inverted surcharge
"ERITREA," on part of original envelope, which had been sent to the Colony by a speculator and was used for postage on a registered letter from Assab (Red Sea) to Italy. The manipulation was evidently made with a view to inspire confidence both from the would-be purchasers and from experts as to the character of the variety.

With no wish to raise any doubt about the reliability of the persons who announced or listed such productions as genuine errors, nor about those who of-

LISSIUK'S NEW PRICELIST

We have received from the K. Lissiuk Philatelic Co., 1476 Broadway, N. Y.
City, a very handsome pricelist. It is especially devoted to "Airmail Stamps," but covers as well, a very fine assortment of European and British Colonial stamps. The airmail section takes thirty-three pages, and there are many illustrations. The Lissiuk firm specializes in the stamps of mid-Europe, and the booklet gives ample evidence of the wide scope of the firm's stock. Several pages devoted to quality sets and packets completes the book of 142 pages, which can be obtained upon request to the firm.
The list of airmail stamps is said to be the most complete and comprehensive list ever issued in America, and we are strongly of the opinion that the claim can be sustained.

To those who are willing to pay 32 cts. per shilling I recom-

MORE! COLLECTIONS MORE!

The success of our recent advertisements of collections shows their good value and prompts us to again offer a number of similar lots of even higher grade. Last time none was returned and some could have been sold several times over which leads us to advise—order early as there is but one of a kind on hand.

REMEMBER—Cash in advance, but money cheerfully refunded if not entirely satisfactory. Order by number. Net price

- 1.—U. S. A nice little collection of 19th Century U. S. Postage and Departments listing about $360. First check for $100 takes it!$100.00
- 2.—Norway. A complete collection of every major variety (138 different) of this country, all being in very fine condition. Includes, of course, Nos. 1, 6, 7, 38, 80, etc. Price only 40.00
- 3.—Sweden. A superb mint collection of every Swedish stamp issued (aside from varieties of watermark and perforation) from 1855 to 1924. The 1855 to 1866 issues are represented by the rare reprints which in the case of all but the 1855 issue are much rarer than the originals and which brought nearly $100 in our June Sale. We also note the rare 555 and 806 of the 1918 issue. At retail, these stamps would sell for $300. As the owner needs money badly, we can offer this superb collection for only 185.00
- 4.—U. S. Covers. Lot of 85 covers, 1851 to 1870, almost all being different in some respect. Contains several scarce cancellations and combinations of the 1857 and 1873 issues. Condition fair to fine and will average good. Our price for quick sale 15.00
- 5.—Br. Cols. New Issues. Lot of 152 mint and different Br. Colonials issued during 1927, some being now obsolete. Face value nearly $30. Our price 36.00
- 6.—U. S. Commemoratives. Collection of 50 varieties, all mint and listing $13.63. Net price 7.00
- 7.—Used 20th Br. Cols. Lot of 368 including a few duplicates. As list price is $15, this is cheap at 3.00
- 8.—Omaha 1c to 5c. Nineteen mint horizontal pairs, each with a different Plate No. Net 4.00
- 9.—U. S. 1894-5 Issues. 1c (4), 2c (5), 3c (1), 4c (4), 5c (1), 6c (1), 8c (1), 10c (1), all in mint horizontal strips of three with imprint and plate nos. List at $19.20. Net price 13.00
- 10.—U. S. and Foreign. Collection of 600 stamps, nearly all being better 19th and mounted in a blank album. Half are U. S. We do not know catalogue value but consider it cheap at 2c each or 12.00
- 11.—Sweden. Collection of 200 vars., all in very fine condition. Will list $20. Net 5.00
- 12.—U. S. and Foreign. Collection of over 2000 varieties mounted in a Scott's album. We allowed $25 on this in payment of a bill. A real good buy, as we will sell for only 20.00
- 13.—Scandinavia. A cute little collection of 300 different, all being in very fine condition, price 5.00
- 14.—U. S. A nice collection of 310 varieties including fine copies of 5c 1847, 6c 1869, 50c Omaha, etc. Just the thing to start a U. S. Collection, for a small dealer to retail, or to give away as a present. Will list about $120. If bought singly would cost over twice the price we ask, which is only 35.00
- 15.—Sweden. A beautiful collection of this popular country containing 425 stamps. Of the 19th Century half are mint; of the 20th about 99%. As the party who formed this was very particular as to condition, practically every stamp can be called superb. Among others we note: 1855 4sk ultramarine (unlisted); the rare 1855 and 1858 reprints; two 1858 9 ore; 17 ore gray; rare 1891 56 blue green, 50 ore and 1kr imperforate; mint copies of the 1918 555 and 806; the Landstorm errors Nos. 437 and 438 of which only 100 were issued, etc., etc. Although this superb collection cost the owner nearly $700 to form, we will sacrifice it for only $450! A wonderful buy for dealer or collector 450.00
- 16.—1926-27. 1200 varieties mounted in seven volumes of Scott's Provisional Album. All are in superb mint condition and list nearly $600. Strong in Br. Colonials and higher value Foreign and contains many scarce items. An excellent opportunity for anyone weak in the later issues to fill up at way below market or auction prices, or for a dealer to replenish stock. Price 290.00
- 17.—U. S. Mint blocks of four. 87 mint blocks issues since 1887, some listing up to $5 each. Listed at $100 in the old specialized catalogue which will mean $125 to $150 in the new. Net price 62.50

TRISTAN DA CUNHA

(Clipping from Percy A. Hill)

Money, we are told, is the panacea for almost every human ill. It is the universal healer.

Yet, strange as it may seem, there exists even in this materialistic age a community of men and women to whom riches are worse than useless.

Long, long ago the members of this peculiar body ceased to want for money. If you approached them and offered to give them a little financial aid, it's ten to one they'd laugh at you for your pains.

And where, it may be asked, are these peculiar people to be found? They are the inhabitants of Britain's loneliest possession, the island of Tristan da Cunha, which lies midway between Africa and America.

Here one is provided with the extraordinary spectacle of a colony of human beings whose poverty is pathetic and who are yet so curiously situated that gifts of gold or silver are powerless to relieve it.

Lonely, sorrowful Tristan da Cunha is so remote from the lives of most of us that we seldom hear of its existence. Just now it has jumped into the news again because of a visit paid to it by passengers of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's motor liner Asturias.

Something of the isolation of the Tristanians will be gathered from the fact that the Asturias was the first vessel they had seen at close quarters for nearly three years, and the largest they had ever known.

Touched by the pathetic plight of the islanders, the liner-folk, most of whom were wealthy transatlantic tourists and their womenfolk, showered upon them gifts of every conceivable shape and form.

They gave them presents ranging in variety from soap and tooth-brushes to castor-oil, and from gramophones to silk stockings and the latest things in diaphanous "undies."

When the huge 22,137-ton vessel cast anchor off the island, the male population were so impressed by her size that they were reluctant to approach.

After the lapse of half an hour or so some twenty-five of the more dauntless spirits rowed out to her.

Seldom had the aristocratic company on board the vessel set eyes on such a motley collection of men. Their clothes hung about their emaciated forms in rags, and their feet were encased in bandages which served their owners in lieu of boots.

So smitten were the women passengers by the extreme poverty of the islanders that they rushed to their cabins and, ransacking their trunks, showered the contents indiscriminately on the thirty.

Costly furs and beautiful silk dresses for their wives, perfume, hats, underclothes, silk stockings, shoes and a hundred and one other things were given to the visitors by the feminine element amongst the tourists.

Numbers of the Tristanians begged specially for medicines and comforts for their children.

With tears in his eyes one gigantic islander approached Mrs. Charles E. Yeates, wife of Ex-Gov. Charles E. Yeates of the Philippine Islands, and pleaded with her for some castor-oil for his babies.

The good lady managed to procure

ABOUT NEW ISSUES

The New Issue problem has at all times been a difficult one and a thorn in the side of the American Dealer.

In Europe—where connections are easier and banking facilities far more elastic—some success has been achieved, notably by Champion and others. In this country—where dealers are mostly dependent on European Correspondents for their supplies—we have to face heavier overheads—havier distances—and heavier postal rates; so most of our American Dealers prefer to pay 10 to 20 per cent premium to have these stamps laid on their counters rather than import them direct. Hence supplies are poor and service very indifferent. I propose to give American collectors a first class service of new issues of British Colonials at what I consider a livable profit. I know all about European dealers who offer to supply all new issues as they appear at anywhere from 5 to 25% over face and I know also that in most cases the thing doesn't work out. Add up the cost of your Money Orders—your postage—and your time and see how that 10% works out.

There seems to be a well defined belief that anyone can send to London and get a set of new British Colonials at face from the Colonial Agents. Such is NOT the case.

To secure new supplies from the Crown Agents in London one has to be:

- (I) A British subject.
- (II) Resident in Great Britain.
- (III) A recognized wholesale Stamp Dealer.
- (IV) Who is charged 1/4 of 1% for the service.
- (V) And with no less than 2.50 fee for any one purchase.

Now perhaps you will see it's not quite so easy. I have just completed arrangements whereby I shall have sent to me from London—on the day of issue—all new issues of such British Colonies as supply them stamps in London. My rates for these stamps will be practically the same as Gibbons prices—

For all stamps to 5/- (my lowest unit)$10.00
For all stamps to 10/- 15.00
For all stamps to 20/- 20.00
For all stamps to 100/- 50.00

Cash in advance and to be replenished when down to $2 credit.

To this I shall add postage and (if you wish it) registration since I will not be responsible for loss in the mails. I cannot send groups of countries, it must be all or none.

Needless to say I expect a flood of ads. in the papers attacking this service and offering to supply "everything" immediately it appears without any deposits or restrictions. I shall take it—as you probably will—for what such announcements are worth.

E. B. POWER,

15 John St., New York

NOTE.—I will gladly send my prospectus OF THIS SERVICE TO ANYONE DESIRING IT BUT SHALL IGNORE POSTAL CARDS.

some for him, and also a supply of cod-liver oil and various other things which an infant needs.

The Tristanian actually jumped for joy. A gift of a calendar was his crowning joy.

Tristan da Cunha is about 21 miles in circumference. It is rugged and precipitous, rising in a central conical mountain to over 7,000 feet.

PHILATELISTS

will welcome this Amazing
Calendar

DID you know that 3000 years before Christ the Chaldeans used a device similar to our postage stamps of today?

And that in the 13th Century there existed in far off China a postal system that employed thousands of men, horses and vehicles?

This, and a hundred other highly interesting bits of philatelic information are woven into the intensely interesting story, "Message Carriers of All Ages", told on the new 1928 edition of White & Wyckoff's Calendar.

Each page of this all absorbing calendar displays a photographic reproduction of an episode marking the advance of civilization; The Runner of Babylon, The Courier on Horseback, The Pony Express, — and on thru the ages, to the American Air Mail of today.

And on the back of each sheet you will find the story skillfully blended with the story of the postage stamp and — PICTURES. Illustrations of the stamps, Old ones, new ones; rare post master provisionals and common penny stamps—every one a part of this gripping serial that was made possible only thru the cooperation of the United States Post Office and expert philatelists.

These thrilling, interesting calendars are only 25 cents each. Or get it free with the special bargain dollar box of the famous Autocrat Stationery shown above.

IN THIS handsome box are 24 large folded sheets of the famous Autocrat Linen Stationery, and 24 smart colorfully-lined envelopes. With it, FREE, the W. & W. Calendar.

TRANSFERS COLLECTING

By WILLIAM J. SIDIS, 112 W. 119, N. Y. C.

Collection has always been a thing of interest to many people, and we have had collection hobbies of many and various sorts, and of varying degrees of interest to different people. We all know, of course, that stamp collection in particular has interested many people, both because of the immense variety it offers, and because of its easy access to the majority of people; its instructiveness being an additional source of interest.

But now a new kind of collection hobby has been introduced, which presents quite as great opportunity for variety as philately, or, in fact, most other forms of collection. This is peridromophily, the collection of local transit transfers, a hobby readily accessible to anyone living in any of the hundreds of American cities in which such documents are issued, and also instructive to a very high degree. It is true, it cannot be commercialized as most other collection hobbies have been, there being in many states and cities legal difficulties in the way of any attempts to do so; but that should only increase its interest, as making it the one and only collection hobby which can rank as a simon-pure amateur sport.

This new form of collection, easily accessible to most people, very inexpensive, and highly interesting in many ways, is also extremely instructive since it affords the collector opportunities to learn facts about the cities from which the transfers come, to an extent that does not have its analogy in most other popular forms of collection. Stamp or coin collection, for instance, could not give any similar opportunities for learning about the nations of their issue.

There is in transfer collection a great amount of variety to be found. For example, over three hundred different transfer forms are issued in New York City alone; over two hundred in Philadelphia; about eight hundred in the State of Connecticut; and, with the constantly changing issues in some places, the variety is in many cases sufficient to enable a transfer collector to specialize in one vicinity, if he chooses. And, as for what can be found out by a collector who examines his transfers intelligently and tries to differentiate properly between the various forms—the information on cities and their transit facilities thus obtained is so surprising in its volume that no one who has not tried it can truly appreciate it. Collectors have even been known to use specimen transfers in order to construct a sort of outline picture of cities they had never seen, and which, when they got there, proved to be correct enough to enable them to answer people asking them on the street for directions.

Peridromophily also shows considerable analogy to philately—so much so that it can very appropriately be taken up by stamp collectors as a side-line, and has, in fact, been so taken up. There are many similar features to be noted in stamps and transfers, so that the jargon of transfer collectors has acquired many terms which peridromophily has borrowed from its elder sister, philately. Speaking of "issues" and of "surcharges" would be, for example, just as familiar to the transfer collector as to the stamp collector.

Of course, a transfer collector will be more likely to go into detail in regard to his own vicinity, so it is impossible to describe here the various features of interest the collector will find, since these vary locally. A new bit of politics in New York; a subway opening in Boston; a real estate development in Chicago or Los Angeles; and many other similar matters, all are to be found reflected in the transfer forms that a collector can piece together, and frequently to be learned from reading the transfer itself, rather than from outside sources. And so much information in regard to detail of city transit, that The Peridromophile, the transfer collectors' monthly bulletin, also maintains an information service for anyone desiring information how to reach addresses in any one of about twenty of the largest cities in North America.

However, any transfer collection will be likely to take on, to some extent, at least a national scope. So we may state that, to that extent, interest can be devices used for indicating the various conditions of issuance and use of transfers; since a transfer has to indicate a variety of such conditions that is generally from twelve to fifteen, and may be as high as twenty-one. The collector can, for instance, compare these various devices and types, and note the steps by which one evolved into another, and the relations between them; he can note which types and devices of transfers are patented—how the patented devices have been imitated in Canada (sometimes with improvements), or slightly varied or even infringed upon in the United States (an important street-car company in one of America's largest cities is now actually infringing on a recent transfer patent). And all these devices, types, arrangements, etc., have a meaning in relation to the use of the transfer such as is hardly to be found in the case of stamps or coins. Among the various transfer types and devices we may mention by name the Pope coupon, the Moran type, the Smith type, the Rhode Island tear-off, the Stedmanic type, and many others too numerous to list. Features such as these cannot be approached in the way of interest or instructiveness by any other form of collection hobby, not even philately, which is doubtless the most absorbing form of collecting hitherto known.

On the contrary, peridromophily has so many points of resemblance to philately that a stamp collector can conveniently join the two, and take up transfers as a side-line, as we have already stated.

Analogous forms of collection closely related to peridromophily are token, strip ticket, and emblem collection—these being to transfer collection about what coin, bill, and medal collection is to stamp collection.

Exchange of transfers is rendered difficult by "non-transferability laws" in many parts of United States and Canada. However, The Peridromophile, the monthly bulletin on transfer collection and related subjects, arranges such exchanges on the basis of "permanent loans" for collection purposes only, and brings interested parties into correspondence with one another. It can also arrange, in some cases, exchanges of transfers and stamps for stamp collectors who wish to take up the new line.

Since further features of interest cannot be given here, both for reasons of space, and because most of such features are local in nature, we would suggest that readers who wish to find out more about the subject should either consult the standard text-book on the subject, Frank Folupa's "Notes on the Collection of Transfers" (published by Dorrance & Co., Philadelphia), or write for more specific local information to either the author or The Peridromophile at 112 W. 119 St., New York, N. Y., since information will gladly be given as far as available concerning the features of interest and best methods of transfer collection in any specified part of the United States or Canada.

EDITORIAL

The post office at Becket, Massachusetts, was washed away by the recent flood in the Westfield river, and as a consequence, it was necessary to improvise a post mark to replace the official article. A letter received from Becket, through the courtesy of Mr. Wm. C.
Stone, Springfield, bears a stamp (the 2c of 1894 type, incidentally) that shows the rubber-stamp cancellation in a sort of precancellation form: "Becket, Mass.
—Dec. 5, 1927—Cancelled," in three lines in black.

From our alert correspondent, Mr.
E. M. Ash, Antilla, Cuba, we have received a copy of the official bulletin of the secretary of posts, Habana, the leading notice in which describes the conditions of the issue of the forthcoming issue to celebrate the sixth Pan-American conference in Habana. The list of values and subjects of the set, 1 centavo to one peso, inclusive, has been given in this column. It is announced that the new stamps will be placed on sale on the 2nd of January, 1928, and that although the issue does not annul the regular issue now in use, the commemoratives will be sold in preference until the stock is entirely exhausted. As the plates of the stamps will be destroyed, it is expected that it will not be long before the issue will be exhausted. Too, Mr. Ash has sent the Havana Evening Telegram of November 18, 1927, which contained a notice that the government intended to auct on off stamps and coins that had accumulated in the Treasury Department.
Obsolete records and effects of office are to make way because of space demands.
We read: "Among articles of interest to be sold is a batch of 20,000 stamps issued by Carlos Miguel de Cespedes when he was head of the Cuban insurrectos." The date of the sale is to be determined upon later.

A telegram reads that the suit started by Souren Yohannessiantz of New York against A. W. Filstrup of Benton Harbor, Michigan, was tried at Grand Rapids, Michigan, in the federal district court on Dec. 6, 1927, and decided by a jury in favor of Mr. Filstrup, the defendant. It was alleged by the plaintiff that he had found a purchaser for the Filstrup collection, and that in consequence he was entitled to a commission, even though Mr. Filstrup refused to sell. The declaration was filed some months ago and just came to trial. Particulars of

To those who have complained to us about the removal of stamps from foreign mail, in particular, addressed to stamp collectors, we have directed that they certify their losses to their postmasters, who have been instructed to be watchful for violations of the kind. The annoyance that collectors have been subjected to is shared by the post office department which is making an effort to stamp out the pernicious practice, and postmasters have been instructed again to exercise vigilance to detect culprits.
The removal of stamps in the manner indicated is not alone a violation of the postal regulations, but also of the law
"and each case should be reported to the department for action." The stamps of the U. S. are not immune from theft, and several covers have been shown us denuded of high values and commemoratives. The co-operation of victims with the postal authorities is demanded on the score of philatelic public policy.

We have been shown a collection of covers with college imprints on the envelopes that besides making a good stamp appearance, afford food for the imagination. The old wood-cuts of different of the seats of learning have a sentimental appeal and they deserve recognition in a day when collectors of Americana are combining the country for examples that typify a day that is past. That there is a wide range of merit, exemplified by the college "cards" is natural and some of the examples are of striking kind;
they run the gamut from simple to elaborate. An impression of Floral College, Robeson Co., N. C., is surrounded by a band with the sentiment: "That our daughters may be as corner stones, polished after the similitudes of a palace." The stamp on the envelope is the 3c of 1857-60.

A correspondent has favored us with a copy of The Sun of New York, dated March 1, 1862, containing a picture of "A Floating Fort," or accurate representation of "the Ericsson battery, just completed, and now known as the 'Monitor.'" The description of invention of Captain Ericsson is a detailed one and is of no little historical importance; and we have no doubt that it would be welcome to readers, but as the subject of Ericsson and his revolving naval fort was much to the fore as a consequence of the issue of the 5c stamp in commemoration of the inventor, we shall not reprint it. As our reader says, this account written when the Monitor had just been completed and before it had engaged with the Merrimac may be depended upon as correct and he intimates that some of the information that was published was inaccurate.

The following letter has been received from B. F. Myers, Traffic Agent, Air Mail Service, Chicago: "In line with our past endeavor to keep you in touch with initial flights of U. S. Air Mail Service, we are pleased to announce that December 17, 1927, will be the date of inauguration of two new routes as follows: Chicago to Cincinnati, Ohio, and return, with an intermediate stop at Indianapolis, Ind., and the Cleveland, Ohio, to Albany, N. Y., route but the initial service will be operated between Cleveland and Buffalo only, and later extended to the extreme terminal, due announcement of which will be made when the definite date is determined.
The Postmasters at the above five named offices will be furnished with a first flight cancellation stamp, and if you desire to avail yourself of the opportunity to get your first flight covers carried on that date, it is suggested that you forward same to the various postmasters with such directions for handling as you feel consistent with their duties on initial flight occasions, which always means many thousands of individual pieces. It is suggested that you arrange the address on your envelopes to permit the placing of the first flight cancellation on the front in a neat and legible manner."
The cancellation stamp is two and one-half by one and five-eighths inches, a rectangle with flattened corners.

An interesting letter was received from Prof. Franklin P. Metcalf of the Fukien University, Foochow, China, who is entitled to consideration for having established a stamp club at the school.
He says: "The members are an interesting group and all are out for the stamps.
Most are beginners. I had the first meeting at my house and most of the time was spent in looking at albums, trading, etc. I buy packets for them as I can get them thru wholesale companies in America at about one-fifth of what the Chinese companies here charge for them. For example, one company here wanted $9.00 Mexican for 1,000 different . . . There are a number of large collectors in Foochow, but on account of the difficulty of transportation, we cannot get together. Otherwise, we would have a great club. . . . I saw a note in the WEEKLY about China, 9 on 10 and 14 on 15 cent for registration, etc., but the Foochow P. O. Commissioner says, No. . . . University opened as usual this fall, but under new management, with Chinese control, commission form of government and things are going along nicely."

F. Grambow, Bronx, N. Y. City
Peter H. W. Anderson, N. Y. City
E. H. Oesch, Tabaco, Albay, P. I.

We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of $5.00 for a five years' renewal of subscription from J. Lehman, 7100 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, O. Mr. Lehman has been a subscriber to the WEEK-LY for a long time, certainly a score of years, and he feels equal to a further five years' continuation. He is a member of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club, and his collection consists of 19th century only.

On the morning of Dec. 3, we received a letter from Peter H. W. Anderson, 1055 Madison Ave., N. Y. C., with check for $10, for both his membership in the Honor Club and that of Mr.
Grambow. Show us the publication anywhere of any kind, that can command such warm support. Mr. Anderson writes: "I am very much pleased with your paper. This is my first renewal." Our wish for both these subscribers is, that the next five years may be rich in philatelic pleasure. We will try and do our part.

Ernest H. Oesch writes us that he is the only white man on San Miguel Island, Philippine Islands. This island has an area of about twelve square miles and lies a few miles to the eastward of the southern end of Luzon. Mr. Oesch is superintendent of the Agusan Cocoa-nut Co., and thinks enough of the WEEKLY to remit $5 for five years' renewal of subscription and membership in our Honor Club. We thank our friend for his support and feel quite sure that the weekly visits of our publication must give him a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction.

CANADA AIR MAIL LABELS
By W. R. PATTON.

For the benefit of many of your readers I will explain how these Canadian air mail labels are authorized: First, application must be made to the Postmaster-General setting out where any new company desires to operate, where from and where to, charge per letter (which also must bear 2c Canadian postage per ounce) design of stamp, etc. On the authorization of this by the Postmaster-General, the company is then permitted to start. Notice is given in the Post Office Weekly Circular as stated above, and you can also purchase the stamps of the air mail company at many of the largest Post Offices in Canada. In Winnipeg the advertisement of the Western Canada Airways has been hanging on the wall for over six months, and you can purchase their stamps at the stamp wicket at all times. You could also buy Patricia Company until it went out of existence.

From the above, it seems quite clear that the Canadian Government has a certain responsibility in these flights. Every new route by private Companies must have permission from Ottawa (except in Manitoba, where the W. C. A. has Government permission to open any route from or to a Manitoba point only) and the stamps are sold at Post Offices.

PERSONS:—

D. R. STAN SPACEK of the ministry of public works, Czechoslovakia, said after inspecting Chicago air ports: "The United States undoubtedly leads the world in the transportation of mail by air, and in nightflying."

MIRZA DAVOOD KHAN MEFTAH, Persia's minister to the United States in an address before the Chicago Association of Commerce gave an outline of Persia's recent political history: "The form of government of Persia is that of a constitutional monarchy with the cabinet system, the constitution having been granted by a royal proclamation dated August 5, 1906. The reigning shah of Persia is His Imperial Majesty, Reza Shah Pahlavi. On October 31, 1925, the national assembly voted by a large majority to depose the former Shah, Ahmad Kadhari, to convene a constituent assembly, to amend the articles of the constitution in relation to the dynasty, and to appoint Reza Khan Pahlavi, then prime minister, head of the provisional government until the assembly should finish its work. The assembly was opened on December 6, 1925, and in due course voted to entrust the throne to Reza Khan Pahlavi and his male descendants. The latter took the prescribed oath of kingship before the national assembly on December 15, 1925, and the next day ascended the marble throne. The coronation of the sovereign took place on April 25, 1926." Persia's issues followed these changes as collectors have observed.

MR. JOHN B. SMELLIE, Chicago, member of the A. P. S., has been confined to the Grant Hospital in that city for over three months, having undergone a very serious operation. We rejoice to hear that a change for the better has taken place and that his recovery is probable. Correspondents are advised of the situation and may be guided accordingly.

PLANS for the Midwestern Philatelic Exhibition to be held in Cleveland, May 21st to 26th, 1928, are progressing and the prospectus will soon be issued. There will be two hundred cases, each one of which will hold twelve album sheets, three deep by four wide; and the lighting, a most important factor, will be the best obtainable. Our information came from W. W. MacLaren, publisher of the Stamp Hunter, and as he says, there is no mistaking the great influence that the exhibition will have in a public way, while there is every assurance that the stamp display will be a commanding one.

MR. L. D. PEASLEE, once president of the Milwaukee Philatelic Society, has been living in Cincinnati for some time, and he notified us that a bond issue to provide funds for an air port in the Ohio metropolis passed by a large majority at an election last month.

WE are pleased to hear that Mr. A. Roterberg, who for some many years was numbered among the philatelists of Chicago, and who has been recognized as an experienced dealer in the stamps of South and Central America in particular, has established himself in Pasadena, California, with good results in various ways. While he will be missed in Chicago, his friends will keep him in pleasant memory; he is a permanent resident of California, where he continues his business without interruption.

MR. THOMAS H. PRATT, Kingsport, Tennessee, whose pleasant labors in the field of Confederate stamps have given him wide celebrity, was a recent caller at the Chicago office of this paper. Mr. Pratt does not confine his enterprise to Confederates alone, but runs two bang-up newspapers in the south.

MR. L. T. BRODSTONE, Superior, Nebraska, publisher of the West, paid us one of his periodical visits recently and chased dull care away from the sanctum for the while. Mr. Brodstone is a great traveler and is much on the go and frequently goes abroad. It may not be known generally that Mr. Brodstone's sister in England is the Lady Vestey; and Burke's will tell the tale.

ADDRESS BY STANLEY B. ASHBROOK Reported by E. C. PIERCE.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Collectors Club was held Thursday evening, Dec. 1st, in the Club Rooms of the Cincinnati Club. Regular business was suspended for a most interesting address by Mr. Stanley B. Ashbrook, nationally known expert of the 1851-57 issues of United States postage.

Mr. Ashbrook gave a most comprehensive talk, relating in detail personal experiences, gradually working up to the time that he started to specialize (about 12 years ago). The plating of stamps was thoroughly explained by Mr. Ashbrook, as was the methods of engraving and printing used in 1851-57.

Numerous prize gems were displayed by Mr. Ashbrook, including the largest known unused block of the one cent, 1851 issue, several large strips and blocks of the same stamp showing scarce and various types and cancellations. Among several covers exhibited was one addressed to President Abraham Lincoln during the civil war. Mr. Lincoln has autographed this cover on the face and his secretary-of-war, Stanton, has his autograph on the reverse side, making it a very desirable piece. About 75 were present.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

No. 1, 2½d Deep Blue

You will indeed need a magnifying glass to appreciate the immense variety of illustration on this stamp. Without the glass it is easy enough to see King George's portrait, with the Southern Cross below it (minus one star). Southern Cross shows it is a country in the southern hemisphere; four stars instead of five are to show that there are four original provinces. For this stamp commemorate the opening of the first national parliament of South Africa; the day when South Africa began to act in every way as the independent kingdom that it is. On that day, Nov. 4, 1910, the big blue commemorative stamp appeared.

Without the glass you can see the arms of each of the original provinces, in the four corners. But you will need the glass to distinguish some of the pictures on the arms. In the Cape arms you can find two antelopes, a lion, figure of Hope with anchor, and the motto "Spes Bona." In the Natal arms the glass will show you that the animals are elands, not cattle or buffaloes. In the Orange Free State arms your glass will reveal a covered wagon, powder-horns, sheep, a lion, oranges on the tree, and three mottoes: "Vryheid" "Immigratie," "Geduld en Moer." On the Transvaal arms your glass will show you an eagle (it might be a hawk but is an eagle), lion, farmer, covered wagon, striped flags, and anchor.

Above the numerals of value is a flower, intended to be a conventionalized form of the protea, a beautiful Cape of Good Hope flower that was then being strongly considered for adoption as the South African national flower. Above King George is the imperial crown, which signifies that he is king of South Africa as well as of Great Britain.

The trek-wagon, as the South Africans call their covered wagons, on the Orange and Transvaal arms signifies in both cases that these provinces were settled by overland migrants. The anchor on the Transvaal arms shows further that the settlers came overland from the Cape of Good Hope.

Lockport

A city in the state of New York, having a population of about 18,000, which is known to philatelic fame from the fact that in 1846 its then postmaster issued a provisional 5c envelope to facilitate the prepayment of postage. These envelopes were suppressed in the following year when the Government issued adhesive postage stamps.

sued a provisional 5c envelope to facilitate the prepayment of postage. These envelopes were suppressed in the following year when the Government issued adhesive postage stamps.

Pony Express

A postal service established by the well-known firm of Wells, Fargo & Co., in 1860 for carrying mail in the far West by relays of pony riders. The most famous route was that from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Cal.—a distance of some 2,000 miles—which was accomplished in nine days. This wonderful service was discontinued in 1862 after some $200,000 had been lost in its working. Special postage stamps were issued in connection with this post, these showing a horse and rider as the chief feature of the design.

Perplexing Surcharges

P. A.—Protector of Aborigines. Another South Australian overprint.

P. G. S.—Perak Government Service. These letters were, in 1890, surcharged on certain stamps of the Straits Settlements for official use in the Native State of Perak.

P. O.—Post Office. A surcharge found on some of the early stamps of South Australia used on the official correspondence of this department.

P. S.—Private Secretary (to the Governor). Another South Australian surcharge.

P. W.—Public Works. Also belongs to South Australia.

"Country" Etymology

Bosnia.—Named after Bosna, a western tributary of the Sarre.

Bulgaria.—Derived from the Finnish Bulgarians or Volgarians named after Bolgan their capitol, which was situated in middle Volga. When a part of the Bulgarian first appeared on the Danube in 587, they soon conquered the Slavs of that region, both tribes then intermingled and thus the name has been applied to all the inhabitants of that land.

Montenegro.—Is the Italian for "black mountain." Its Slavonic name has the same meaning, Crnagora (crna—black, gora—Mountains).

Norway.—Properly Norweg, meaning "Northernway" the so-called by the Norman Mariners after Northern waterways in contrast to "Vesterveg" and "Austurveg."

—Ill. Briefmarken Jour.—Am. Jour. Phil

Rayon

An inscription appearing on the stamps of Switzerland used between 1850 and 1854. A rayon was a postal circle and the value on the stamps tallied with the particular rayon or radius within which they paid the postal charges. Thus, in 1852, for instance, the rates were 5 rappen for every ½ oz. within the first rayon of two leagues; 10 rappen for the first ½ oz. and 5 rappen for every additional ½ oz. within the second rayon of two to ten leagues; and 15 rappen for the first ½ oz. and 5 rappen for every additional ½ oz. beyond ten leagues. These 5, 10 and 15 rappen stamps were inscribed "Rayon I," "Rayon II" and "Rayon III," respectively.

Reconstructed Plate

A philatelic term applied to a number of stamps restored to the arrangement they occupied on the sheet in its original state. The early stamps of Great Britain can be easily reconstructed by the corner letters which differ on every stamp in a sheet. Other stamps, like the early issues of Bolivia and New South Wales can be reconstructed or plated, owing to the fact that each stamp on the plate differs in small particulars because the plates were engraved by hand. Other line engraved stamps can be plated owing to the development of minor peculiarities during the process of manufacture, and it is also possible to reconstruct many stamps produced by lithography owing to the presence of minute flaws and defects.

Lottery Stamps

Special revenue stamps issued in the state of Louisiana in 1866 and 1867 for payment of a tax on lottery tickets.

Recouvrements

This word, meaning literally "recoveries" is found on some special labels issued in France, etc. These stamps are used in connection with a "cash on delivery" service by which the Post Office undertakes to collect payment of goods sent by registered mail. A form accompanies the package, stating the amount payable plus the post office charges, but if the addressee refuses to accept the package, this form is sent to the consignee in an envelope on which are placed "recouvrement" stamps representing the amount required for the return of the package. The stamps are, therefore, official stamps restricted to a certain use and would appear to be quite collectible varieties.

The Junior Dictionary

Postage Free.—Found on the first official stamps for New Zealand issued in 1887.

Postes Ethiopiennes.—Found on the current stamps of Abyssinia meaning "Ethiopian Post." Ethiopia is the native name for the country.

Postes Ottomanes.—Found on the current stamps of the Ottoman Empire or Turkey as it is more generally known. It means "Ottoman Post."

Postfaerge.—This surcharge on a Denmark stamp issued in 1919 means "Ferry Post," which, indicates the use to which the stamp was put.

Postfrim.—A word on most of the stamps of Norway, Denmark, etc., the last portion being an abbreviation for "frimaerki." It may be translated literally as "free postage stamp."

Curious Values Expressed on Stamps—Aur, Abasi, Atts, Lepta and Pies.

A FASCINATING CALENDAR

Did you know that 3,000 years before Christ, the Chaldeans used a device similar to our postage stamps of today? Did you know, too, that our present postal system takes its motto from the Persians, 500 years before Christ? Did you also know that in the 13th Century there existed in far-off China a postal system that employed thousands of men, horses and vehicles?

These and a hundred other highly interesting bits of philatelic information are woven into an intensely interesting story, "Message Carriers of All Ages," which are featured on the White & Wyckoff Calendar for 1928, priced 25c.

The calendar shows, both in picture and by word, the development and evolution of Message Carriers from the early days to today's period of the Air Mail, hand in hand with the story of the development of postage stamps. It portrays as well, rare stamps that are much prized by collectors, as also the present day stamps of all foreign nations of the world.

The calendar is 11" x 17 1/4" in size, and is printed by the wonderful rotogravure process in rich sepia tones, a beautiful example of modern printing art. Each sheet, besides showing the picture of the message carrier and the calendar for the month proper, shows also the last month and next month, likewise all the holidays and historic dates, church dates and festivals, and moon's phases.

The January page, for instance, shows a runner of the time of Sargon of Old Babylon, 3600 B. C., about to receive a message from his king. On the back of this sheet is told the story of the time when messages were carried by runners. It also shows the Seals of Sargon, which were really the very first postage stamps of all ages.

As you turn the pages, you will see the Queen of Sheba receiving a message from her lover by pigeon carrier; the Courier of the Time of Queen Esther—the first time that mail carriers were mentioned in the Bible; the First Public System of the Romans, at the end of the 3rd century; the King's Mail of the time of King Louis XI of France; the Mail Coach of Colonial Times; the days of the Iron Horse—the Fast Mail of Early Railroad Days; the Pacific Mail; the Overland Limited; the Pony Express; the 20th Century Limited; until on the last page appears the American Air Mail of today.

It's a wonderfully interesting subject, well handled, and will appeal, we know, to every stamp collector, which is the reason we are very glad, indeed, to devote space to the calendar in this issue. The calendar can be secured postpaid from the White & Wyckoff Mfg. Co., of Holyoke, at 25c the copy; or it can be obtained free with a very wonderful box of their Autocrat Stationery, which they are offering for a limited period for $1.00.

A PHILATELIC PYRE

(Copied from "Out of the Past," by Margaret Symonds, daughter of the English literary and art critic, John Addington Symonds.)

The old house was fearfully full (about 1880) of possessions in my Father's time, for his family were distinctly hoarders, and they hoarded occasionally very inconvenient things. Amongst other things they hoarded letters. That strange, unobtrusive race of Nonconformist doctors, whose lives I have attempted to sketch in the first chapter of this book, rarely destroyed a letter. Once when one of my aunts decided to become a hospital nurse, my Father had written approvingly to her: "You have literally seven generations of physicians and surgeons in your paternal blood."

Of those "seven generations of physicians and surgeons" all practically had kept their accounts, their diaries, above all, their family and personal correspondence, with the most strict and punctilious accuracy. There must have been cases and drawers literally loaded up with Symonds family papers.

Painful, therefore, as the coming devastation of the old home was to my Father, to my Mother's strong and stolid mind with its forecast of a modern and simple life, seen, I admit, through the eyes of an old-fashioned lady, this time was almost a sacrificial one to her, and she rose with courage to her task. We children helped in the general devastation; and to us it was also a form of orgy. Every morning we all assembled in the study and sat ourselves down in a circle. My Father opened the boxes and the drawers and threw on the floors the letters, the cash-books and the diaries. There were hundreds and thousands of them, and we tore them across with childish delight. What a curious scene it must have been—our majestic young Mother on her chair, our eager and more excited Father sitting beside her, and we ourselves, small wiry creatures in our long pigtailed, with faces burned by Alpine suns, tearing limb from limb the wrappings round the mummied memories of our respectable unknown ancestors of six or eight generations back. In later life one of my sisters developed a mania for stamp collecting, and she remembered with pangs of literal despair the countless blue and even black penny postage stamps she had destroyed in that great holocaust. From the general chaos I, myself, could only save a couple of Mulready envelopes on which the printed elephant attracted my wandering gaze.

As we went on tearing, tearing, huge piles of paper, high as an Alpine avalanche, rose up around us. The gardener and the groom came backwards and forwards with big clothes-baskets, which they stuffed with the torn paper, and carried slowly down the stairs and down the garden paths to a place where the weeds were always burned on Saturday afternoons beneath a clump of elms. Here the baskets disgorged their contents on a bonfire, and when we grew tired of our tearing in the study, we joined the gardener and the groom, and danced round the burning heap, poking

Valuable Aids For Philatelists

It is our belief that suitable accessories play a most important part in philately. For this reason we are marketing the following three articles:

A daylight lamp which furnishes a perfectly diffused blue-tint light from which all glare is eliminated, and which gives the same effect as daylight. It is the perfect light for color matching. The lamp is manufactured in five models with a price range of $6.50 to $14.00.

A magnifying glass, eight power, manufactured by Steinheil, which is so nearly achromatic and astigmatic that it has proved itself far superior to any that we have examined. Some of the most prominent Collectors have purchased this magnifier from us. We are offering this glass at $12.00.

A tweezer with a very ingenious patented locking device made of high grade nickel-plated steel. These are priced at 75c.

We shall be glad to furnish further particulars on request.

NEWS ITEMS:—

CHARLES J. PHILLIPS of N. Y. C., is off on a trip to Jamaica. He will return Jan. 10.

THE Royal Stamp Co. of N. Y. City has changed its address from 2880 Broadway to 1674 Broadway. The proprietor of this firm is N. Bikhov, A. P. S., 9570, who has previously advertised with us from Baghdad, Mesopotamia. The firm wishes to place emphasis upon the fact that it is located in New York, and has no connection with any other firm of a similar name.

WE have received from C. H. Ellis, Elizabeth, N. J., a half-page clipping from the Asbury Park Sunday Press of Nov. 27. It describes the stamp possessions of Thomas A. Buckingham, who is pictured and proclaimed as a Bradley Beach (N. J.) collector "following his forty-seven-year-old hobby." Mr. Buckingham receives a good deal of publicity and philately as a whole profits thereby.

WE thank Clarence Rosenmeyer, Rouses Point, N. Y., for a batch of five clippings. We have already covered the various matters referred to. We are, however, grateful to our subscriber for his co-operation. We are always glad to receive clippings, even though there must necessarily be some duplication.

A NEW pricelist has just been received from M. R. Lampson & Co., 433 Rowell Bldg., Fresno, Cal. It lists stamp packets, precancel stamp packets, and stamp collecting supplies. A copy will be sent on request.

Dr. Chase Collection
3c 1851

I am pleased to inform the philatelic public that I have closed arrangements with Dr. Carroll Chase, whereby I am able to offer his wonderful "palm of honor" winning collection of the 3c 1851, consisting of reconstructed plates, together with numerous plate varieties, blocks, both mint and used, as well as numerous unusual covers.

The plating of these stamps by Dr. Chase was considered by the Jury at the recent New York International Philatelic Exhibition, as one of the most wonderful pieces of philatelic work ever accomplished.

Every one of the nine plates with 200 subjects has been reconstructed including the early, intermediate and late printings of certain plates which were recut. There are five in the orange brown, as well as reconstructions of the other shades, year by year. His "proof" plates are present, consisting of horizontal and vertical pairs proving the position of every stamp. In all, twenty-two reconstructions of 200 subjects.

With two exceptions Dr. Chase has the 3c earliest date of use, from each plate, on the entire cover. There is a superb mint block of 39 of the orange brown, with full gum, and complete imprint from plate 5 also blocks of four and larger, both used and unused from other plates. He has worked out to the "nth" degree the stamp in its shades, impressions, paper, gum, and "whatnot".

It is hoped that the plates can be sold intact, for Dr. Chase tells me he doubts if enough material exists to ever duplicate the lot.

If you are interested in any portion, large or small, of this wonderful lot, correspondence is solicited. If you would like any one of the individual plates, let me know, for they may be sold separately. It is all going to be sold in a manner to please my clients, and kindly remember that the prices are most reasonable throughout.

Washington Notes

On the opening day of Congress, December 5th, the Postmaster General submitted to the Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads of the House of Representatives, his recommendations for changes in postal rates and for the authorization of certain additional mail facilities in the interest of the public. They are as follows:—

(1)—To restore the 1-cent postage rate on post cards.

(2)—To reduce the postage on magazines and newspapers when sent by others than the publisher or news agent to 1 cent for each two ounces.

(3)—To provide for collecting 1 cent additional an ounce on first class matter when mailed with postage deficient more than one rate.

(4)—To provide for accepting for transmission in the mails without prepayment of postage of business reply cards and letters in business reply envelopes, which have been sent out in the quantity and under conditions the Postmaster General may establish, the postage thereon at the regular rate together with an additional charge of not more than 2 cents on each card or letter to be collected on delivery. This is a new facility suggested by the Postmaster General for the benefit of business users of the mails and it is believed if authorized by Congress it will be of special benefit and produce considerable postal revenues as well.

(5)—To provide for accepting for transmission in the mails without postage stamps affixed third class mail in quantities of not less than 20 pounds, consisting of identical separately addressed pieces at a rate of 12 cents per pound or fraction thereof, except that in the case of books, catalogues, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants, the rate shall be 8 cents per pound or fraction thereof, except that the rate of postage on matter so mailed shall be not less than 1 cent per piece.

This, in effect, restores the one-cent minimum rate on open envelope direct advertising. This is also a new facility suggested by the Postmaster General and it is believed if authorized by Congress will be of great benefit to the mailers of advertising matter.

(6)—To provide upon the payment of a single fee for giving any class of matter the expedition in transportation now given to matter paid at the special handling rate and also special delivery service at the office of destination. The special handling service only is given when so desired for fourth class matter weighing over 10 pounds. Furthermore, to raise the rates payable for messenger service in the delivery matter so as to enable the Department to provide a better service therefor.

(7)—To authorize the Postmaster General to take credit in the financial statements of the Department for the estimated cost of carrying and handling franked and penalty matter with the exception of penalty matter of the Post Office Department.

If the sixth recommendation receives favorable consideration, it is likely that special delivery rates may be changed to take care of the increased compensation to the special delivery boys.

The Department calls attention to the fact that special delivery letters are being mailed to Cuba with one special delivery stamp, in addition to the regular postage. The Postal Bulletin of December 5th call attention to the fact that twenty cents, in addition to the regular postage is required on special delivery letters addressed to Cuba.

New Size Coil Available

Under date of December 1st, the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. R. S. Regar, advised Postmasters that the Department is now in a position to supply coils of 3,000 2-cent stamps for use in stamp-affixing equipment requiring coils of larger size than those heretofore available. The stamps will be arranged sideways and perforated, and a complete coil will be sold at $60.18. Until further notice, the new coil will not be available in any denomination or style other than 2-cent sideways, perforated, and containing 3,000 stamps.

Postmasters having demand for coils of the new size may submit requisition for three months' estimated supply. I cannot state at this time if this new coil is the one previously described in this column, with the gum side wrapped outward, and with special perforations between. A coil has been ordered, and I hope to give further details in short order.

Air Mail Notes

Mr. George H. Kieley has shown me a cover carried via air mail during the New England flood to territories that could not be very well reached by train. The cover is postmarked—Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 17, 1927, and bears a two line marking in black reading—"Air Mail For Vermont Flood Relief." In addition the cover bears the back-stamp of Concord, N. H., and W. Summerville, Mass.

Under date of December 2nd, the Second Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Warren Irving Glover, announced that effective December 17th, contract air mail services will be established over route No. C.A.M.—24, from Chicago, Ill., via Indianapolis, Ind., to Cincinnati, Ohio, and return, a distance of two hundred and seventy miles, each way.

The service will be operated daily on a schedule making direct connection with the transcontinental air mail route at Chicago. Planes leaving Chicago southbound at 6 A. M. will reach Cincinnati at 3 A. M. Northbound, planes leaving Cincinnati at 2.45 P. M. reach Chicago at 5.45 P. M.

On the same day, December 17th, contract air mail services will be established over that part of route No. C.A.M.—20, from Buffalo, N. Y., to Cleveland, Ohio. This also will be operated on a daily schedule making direct connections with the transcontinental air mail route at Cleveland. Westbound, planes leave Buffalo at 2.25 P. M., and arrive at Cleveland 4.15 P. M. Eastbound, planes leave Cleveland at 12.45 P. M., and arrive at Buffalo at 2.05 P. M.

The Embury-Riddle Company are the holders of the first contract, while the Colonial Western Airways are the holders for the contract for carrying mail between Buffalo and Cleveland. The same contract calls for continuing the route eastward to Albany.

The Traffic Agent of the air mail services at Chicago sends out a formal announcement relative to the establishment of these routes, and calls attention to the fact that special postmarks will be used on the first day as heretofore.

MEXICO

Here is an opportunity to either fill up your blank spaces of early Mexico or start a specialized collection. The stamps have been carefully selected as to condition, and every stamp guaranteed genuine. As a rule, early Mexican stamps are cut into the design, and perfect stamps are very scarce.

New Revenue Variety

Mr. Harry Lacks advises that he has seen a copy of the 1919, 3c dark blue Proprietary, No. 4367, showing a distinct double impression. I have not personally seen the stamp.

Aitutaki.—Mr. W. T. Wilson submits for chronicle a new 2½p stamp in ultramarine and black, with a Rarotonga chief in ancient costume pictured in the centre. The watermark is the same as before, N Z and star close together.

Argentina.—Whitfield King & Co. report that they have had come to hand the 5c red, portrait of Gen. Jose de San Martin, watermarked A. P. in crown.

Czechoslovakia.—Whitfield King & Co. inform us that the 50h green and 60h red-violet, current designs, have been issued on unwatermarked paper. The colors vary a trifle than the originals, the green being a little deeper, while the red-violet shade is more to the grey cast.

Estonia.—Whitfield King & Co. report the appearance of the new War Memorial stamps, which are of the following values and colors: 5 + 5mks green and grey, 10 + 10mks blue and grey on buff, 12 + 12mks red and black

All different stamps from over 150 different countries and neatly mounted in six books. Includes many 19th Century stamps from all over the world, among which are over 100 different U. S. stamps from South America, Africa and Oceania are well represented. In fact, we claim this lot is the best value offered by anyone.

France.—We are indebted to Mr. Henry B. Ball for the following information taken from the New York Herald, Paris Edition:

The designs for the five new stamps which are soon to be issued by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, of which M. Bokanowski is head, will be on exhibition from Wednesday to Sunday inclusive at 4 rue Saint-Romain. They will be displayed from November 29 to December 3 in the Grand Hall of the Touring Club of France, 65 avenue de la Grande-Armée.

The stamps will replace those for two, three, five, ten and twenty francs now in use. In order that the finest possible designs for them should be had, the Beaux-Arts appointed a group of prominent French artists as a jury to make the selections. They will portray five of the most important monuments in France. The subjects are: The Arc de Triomphe à l'Etoile, by M. Bivel; the Pont du Gard, by M. Cheffer; the Rheims Cathedral, by M. Verecque; Mont Saint-Michel, by M. Bivel, and the Port de la Rochelle, by M. Cheffer.

The congratulations of the jury were also conveyed to M. Rigal for his design, "Le Sourire de Rheims," which, however, did not comply with the requirements.

French Morocco.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that they have received copies of the 15c slate color originally, but now redrawn and appearing in a grey-green.

Gibraltar.—Mr. R. Roberts reports that a new color has been issued for the 1 pound value. It is now in orange and black on white paper. The duty label reads "One Pound" in two lines and is printed in black in sans serif capitals. The watermark is script.

Lebanon.—Whitfield King & Co. call our attention to the 25p ultramarine stamp of Grand Liban which has been surcharged "Republique Libanaise" with a new value "15p."

Mexico.—We have received from the Economist Stamp Co. the current 4c green, with the surcharge "Oficial" vertically in black.

Niue.—Mr. W. T. Wilson reports two new items for use in this colony. They are a 2½p blue and grey, picturing a Rarotonga chief in ancient dress and a 4p lilac and black with a view of Rarotonga Harbor with the mountain of that name in the background.

Paraguay.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 40c rose, type of the 1913 issue, with the three line surcharge "Habilitado en 7 centavos" in black.

Penrhyn.—Copies of the new 2½p ultramarine and red-brown, design as mentioned for Aitutaki above, have been shown us by Mr. W. T. Wilson.

Rarotonga.—Mr. W. T. Wilson sends copies of two new issues for this colony, a 2½p dark blue and red-brown, design as noted under Aitutaki above, and 4p violet and green, showing in the centre a view of Rarotonga Harbor with Mt. Rarotonga in the background.

"HOPE" ON STAMP COLLECTING

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

An interesting reminiscence of the earliest period of stamp-collecting has been brought to light by the Editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, who quotes some derogatory comments on boys collecting stamps from "A Book About Boys," by A. R. Hope, published in 1869.

Our colleague of MEKEEL'S will perhaps be interested to know that he has dropped upon a philatelic reference of more than ordinary literary interest. A. R. Hope was the pseudonym of an Edinburgh boy who lived until August of the present year, and was for long one of the most popular writers of fiction for boys under the names of Ascott R. Hope. His proper name was Robert Hope Moncrieff, an author of most prolific output; altogether he is credited with over 200 volumes, chiefly fiction, history and school books. He became an assistant school teacher to get the "atmosphere" for his boys' stories. He was a mere stripling when he wrote that "Book About Boys," and in later years he could have written about them with a deeper knowledge and perhaps a keener and truer vision of their future pursuits. He was born in 1846, wrote his first story at 19, and died on August 10th this year at the age of 81.

While A. R. Hope's vision of the early demise of Philately now seems absurd, his strictures on the money-grabbing aspect of stamp collecting at schools are in keeping with the scholastic view of our hobby which held for many years, indeed until the Great War. Many still conceive it to be bad for the young idea to turn hobbies into money-making pursuits while still at school, and even in these mercenary days there is strong support for that view. Undoubtedly the trafficking in stamps among boys themselves at schools alienated the sympathies of schoolmasters from Philately over a long period. We think they were wrong to try to suppress the genuine attraction which boys have for stamps; it was up to them to recognise the attraction and lead their youth to follow it on more uplifting lines. Happily, the teachers of to-day are working on this more enlightened plan, and it is a high tribute to the soundness of Philately's charm for the young that it flourishes more than ever, despite the forecasts of even so charming a false prophet as "Ascott R. Hope."—Stamp Coll. Fortnightly.

THE PHILATELIC SAGE

The Old Fogies' Stamp Club.—I have re-heard (I'm sorry, I should have said "heard again") from Mr. Adolphus Pippitt, the benign Secretary of the O.F.S.C. He tells me that his step-daughter Ermytrude (or is it Vermintude?) has married the son of a Watford gramophone tuner, and that his wife's sister's father-in-law has committed suicide by listening in with his head in a water-jug. He also mentions, as an afterthought, that the Old Fogies' Stamp Club held its annual sports meeting and auction sale on the allotment ground last Monday week.

Summer Days—and Some Are Not!—They were unfortunate in choosing a typical summer day for this event, and the ground became so flooded by lunch time that it was decided to turn the event into a Regatta, and members were told to bring along all their stamps "on piece" that wanted soaking. Facilities were available in the laundry adjoining the ground for drying, starching and ironing the specimens after soaking. All stamps so treated were delivered the following day in washing baskets, with identification marks sewn in one corner in red cotton and, in many cases, the perforations had been ripped off. Several letters of protest from residents have since appeared in the local press complaining that postage stamps had been found tightly affixed to various articles of clothing that had been returned from the laundry.

Lady Bhynges' Accident.—There was an unfortunate mishap at the opening ceremony, when someone threw a yard of unfiled tripe at Lady Bhynges, who had so graciously consented to declare the Sports Meeting (or Regatta) open. In trying to avoid the missile, Lady Bhynges dropped her Cape, and stooping to regain it, tripped over a Woodblock. She was immediately carried off in a fainting condition and a wheelbarrow.

The chief attraction of the afternoon was the obstacle race for all girl members under 94 who had not had their hair bobbed, bingled, shingled, Eton-cropped, O'cedar-mopped, wingled, fringed, mingled, clipped, snipped, snopped or snapped. Competitors had to walk a greasy pole, climb a rope, scratch their backs, and say "same as last week" in deaf and dumb language whilst balancing a three cornered Liberian on their chins and holding a sack of unpicked mission stamps in one hand and an 1837 catalogue of postage stamps in the other. The race was won by Miss Magnesia Brittlebiscuit, who received a packet of cough lozenges and fourteen stamp mounts as a prize.

The event concluded with a (very) high tea, after which the members had a mock battle with the remnants. Mr. A. H. Bullrush was forced to retire with a custard-blancmange in his eye, and has been confined to bed ever since. Truly the Old Fogies' Stamp Club is one of our most progressive societies.

Birth, Deaths and Marriages.—I have been asked by Mr. Harry Tate to announce that there is no connection between himself and the expression "tete-beche."—Junior Stamp Magazine.

INDIANAPOLIS ORGANIZES

By LEWIS OTT WARD.

I wish to announce the organization of the Indiana Stamp Club of Indianapolis, at a meeting of 25 local collectors on the night of December 2, 1927, at the Chamber of Commerce Bldg. The matter of organizing a stamp club has been brewing here for some time, and was just recently brought to a head thru the work of Mr. H. H. Coburn, a local collector and dealer, and the writer, a member of the Welworth Co., local dealers. The following officers were unanimously elected, H. H. Coburn, President. Le Grande Payne, Vice President, and L. O. Ward, Secretary-Treasurer, and these officers, together with Kenneth Loucks, Dr. E. J. Rogers, and Miss Travilla Ioor, form the Executive Committee. Anyone interested in stamps is cordially invited to attend.

N. Y. PHILATELIC SOCIETY

At a meeting of the New York Philatelic Society recently held, the following officers were nominated for the year 1928:—

Pres., John L. Stroub; 1st V. P., David Trautman; 2nd V. P., Elliot M. Lawrence; Sec., Peter G. Keller; Treas., Joseph W. Gustaw; Directors at large, E. M. Walton, H. H. Spring, G. Hiatt, A. Rasmussen and M. Levy.

The last year has been one of the most successful in the history of the society. Many visitors who happen in town on Monday, visit at our club rooms, 20 East 125th St., N. Y. C. Probably one of the most important things accomplished at this meeting was the vote to become a branch of the American Philatelic Society next year.

HAIL TO THE HUNTER!

By PENRIN.

Hail to the Hunter who goes Lightly on his buoyant toes,
His eyes a smile,
His heart without guile,
A level head under a tidy tile!—
He's collector champ
Away to his camp
Neath the old Club lamp,
Where his hunter heart hunts
The elusive Stamp!

I'm a Hunter too,
(The same luck to you!)
My feet step along
My heart swings a-song,
Away to the camp
Neath the old Club lamp,
Where the heart of the hunter
Hunts the elusive Stamp!

Boar of the morass,
Tiger and stag,
Every hunted brute shall pass,
And come a happier "bag,"
A bloodless chase
By a kindlier race—
The hunting at the camp
Neath the old Club lamp,
The luring and procuring
Of the elusive Stamp!

JAMAICA WATERMARKS

By ASTLEY CLERK, Kingston, Jamaica.

If you hold a sheet of good writing paper to the light you will see, inside the paper, certain words or a design standing out as if they had been traced there with water . . . this is called a Watermark. Almost every stamp is to-day given a watermark so as to make forgery more difficult. Some countries, Jamaica for instance, apparently watermark their stamps without rhyme or reason, and place no value on the watermark. The following letter from one of our Stamp Commissioners, illustrates this:—

"No. 1621." Sept. 16, 1907.
D. It is not customary to give the watermark when advertising the issue of any new stamp. A stamp on unwatermarked paper, but genuine in every respect, would, in my opinion, be legal.

E. JORDAN ANDREWS,
Stamp Commissioner.

Fortunately for Jamaica, the Crown Agents and the printers of our stamps, realizing the value of the watermark, think and act differently, and so, with but certain exceptions to be found among our Fiscals (those of 1855 afterwards used postally, all our Jamaica stamps are watermarked, and that watermark tells a story, a story which is inscribed on the pages of our Island History. Jamaica has had, to time of writing, the following five watermarks:—

(1.) The Pineapple (1860-1870), of which two different specimens are known, (a) The Sugar Loaf, an elongated pine, and (b) The Cow-boy, a stumpy fruit. Both these specimens are representative of the fruit grown here. The former is lusciously sweet. The pineapple watermark is peculiar to Jamaica, and shows that she is a tropical as well as an agricultural country. From 1854 to 1866 we enjoyed a form of Responsible Government, hence, the watermark is found, not only on our first regular issue, but on our fiscal stamps of 1856. Travelling through England and Scotland, one now and then comes across an old coat-of-arms showing pineapples, a little enquiry soon elicits the fact that the original owners were Jamaica colonists dating from Cromwellian days.

(2.) The Crown C.C. (1870-1884), marks a period of Jamaica History which had far more of ill than good in it. It was a time when the people had no say in the management of their own affairs—they paid the piper but did not call the song. Like children, they had to take what was given them, whether they liked it or not—when the Governor alone, or in conjunction with his Executive Council, ruled as they saw fit,—when, in short, the people were treated as nonentities.

When introducing the provisional Post Cards of 1877 to the public, The Gleaner thus refers to the then existing form of Government as "blighting, withering influences of Paternal Government."

(3.) The Crown C.A. (1884-1904), illustrating our deliverance from the darkness of Crown Government into semi-representation, when, although the Crown appointed other representatives to Council, the taxed people also had theirs, whose privileges were, unfortunately, restricted by the over-riding power of the Governor, who could declare a matter of "Paramount importance," and with the help of his "Objectionable Four," brought into Council for that purpose, as was done in the celebrated "Florence Case," declare the will of the elected members null and void.

(4.) The now obsolete Multiple Crown C.A. (1904-1921), which, although it lasted but seven years, left us politically, as badly off as before, representative in name, but semi-Crown in reality—causing constant bickering between the Government and the elects, still with all its faults a leash on the Government.

(5.) The present Script Multiple Crown C.A. (1921-), which ushered in the Manhood of the People, and their call for a more dignified form of Government—a call which has been officially heard in Downing Street, but has not yet borne the fruit which alone will satisfy an awakened people, and which we are still striving to obtain, and will obtain.—

3c RED INTERNATIONAL POST CARD

By S. M. EDWARDS.

When the 3c and the 3c x 3c, red, postal cards, International, were recently issued we were led to believe these cards were to take the place of the 2c and 2c x 2c to all foreign countries. But such is not the fact, for the rate is still 2 cents to about 3/10 of the countries of the world. More especially to the countries and islands of the Western hemisphere. Yet this is not the extent of the charge, for some very distant points the 2c rate still prevails.

The following, we are informed, the 2c rate is still in use: Anguilla, Antigua, Argentina, Arabia, Bahamas, Balearic Islands, Barbados, Barbuda, Bermuda, Bolivia, Bonaire, Brazil, British Guiana, Caicos Islands, Canada, Canary Islands, Cayman Islands, Chile, Columbia, Cook Islands, Costa Rica, Cuba, Curacao, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Grenada and Grenadines, Guatemala, Hayti, Honduras (British), Honduras Republic, Irish Free State, Jamaica, Labrador, Leeward Islands, Mexico, Montserrat, Netherlands, West Indies, Nevis, Newfoundland, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Redonda, Saba, St. Christopher, St. Gustavus, St. Lucia, St. Martins (Dutch part), St. Vincent, Salvador, Samoa (Western, British), Spain (and certain Spanish possessions), Trinidad and Tobago, Turks Island, Uruguay, Virgin Islands (British) and Windward Islands.

In this case distance does not lend enchantment, for New Zealand, on the opposite side of Uncle Sam's domain, has a 2-cent rate, while Dutch Guiana and French Guiana, quite nearby, have the 3-cent rate, at the same time British Guiana takes the 2-cent rate. All of the South American countries have the 2-cent rate, excepting Venezuela and the two above mentioned.—P. C. Soc. of Am. Bulletin.

The Continental Ribbed Paper U.S. Issue 1873-74

NEW LIGHT ON AN INTERESTING MINOR VARIETY PRODUCED BY THE CONTINENTAL BANK NOTE COMPANY DURING EARLY DAYS OF ITS CONTRACT FOR PRINTING UNITED STATES POSTAGE AND OFFICIAL ADHESIVES

By WARNER BATES, 184 State St., Albany, N. Y.

THIS article is inspired by the following paragraph from Mr. Herman Toasperm's interesting "Notes on General Issues" in the "Specialized United States" section of Scott's Monthly Journal, November, 1927:

"While on this subject," Mr. Toasperm says apropos of the stitch watermark, "it is interesting to point out that many so-called laid and ribbed papers of U. S. stamps pointed out by the ultra-microscopic specialist, are not what they are pointed out to be. The rollers, described above (rollers covered with felt or cloth, through which the web of newly manufactured paper is passed to squeeze out the surplus water) often have a woolen weft and a cotton warp. After the soft wool has partly worn away, it leaves the hard cotton exposed to press against the paper, and to line it as in ribbed papers."

The writer has no desire to take exception to Mr. Toasperm's remarks in particular, but to this and dozens of similar statements made by as many writers in philatelic magazines over a period of years, all of which are misleading and discouraging to that careful and conscientious study of the Bank Note Companies printings, which is necessary to clear up the many mysteries and misconceptions existing concerning them.

Mr. Toasperm's statement is just sufficiently general to let him off. Note that he says "many" and not "all" so-called laid and ribbed papers . . . are not what they are pointed out to be."

However, it is time that all these various general statements which cast doubt on the existence of a true ribbed paper among United States printings should be answered emphatically, once and for all. So here goes:

In this discussion, I will refer mainly to the Three Cent green, but most of the facts established can be applied to the other denominations of Continental printings during 1873-74, and to the official stamps for the same years.

Ribbed Paper Produced in 1873

The ribbed paper first came into use in 1873, and probably all printing on this type of paper was discontinued before the end of the year.

The earliest copy that I know of is a horizontally ribbed example of the three cent green used on a cover, pen cancelled from "Ore Hill (state unknown), Nov. 7, 1873."

Next is a cover with stamp tied by the Lime Rock, Conn., broken target, on which is penciled the notation (so customary in filing covers of these days), Nov. 29, 1873. The Lime Rock postmark is dated "Nov," but the day is indistinct.

If anyone has earlier dated examples of the ribbed paper, I would like a record of it, but these two establish the use of this paper in small town post offices as early as November, 1873, and we can therefore assume that the actual printing on this type of paper was begun some time prior.

Other reference covers bearing examples of the ribbed paper in my own collection are as follows:

Horiz. Rib.—Year dated postmark, Moorestown, N. J., Dec. 20, 1873.

Vert. Rib.—Town postmark and Dec. 23—Letter inside cover dated Dec. 23, 1873.

Hor. Rib.—Postmarked Lowell, Mass., date indistinct, letter in cover dated Dec. 31, 1873.

Vert. Rib.—Manchester, N. H., Jan. 7—Letter dated Jan. 6, 1874.

Hor. Rib.—Postmarked Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 4, letter dated Jan. 4, 1874.

Hor. Rib.—Postmarked Orange City, Iowa, April 6, with pen notation for filing of April 8, 1874, on cover.

Vert. Rib.—Postmarked Galveston, Tex., April 21, with pencil notation of receipt at Cooperstown, N. Y., April 27, 1874.

Hor. Rib.—Postmarked Lime Rock, Conn., April (day indistinct), pencil notation for filing, April 28, 1874.

Hor. Rib.—Postmarked Akron, O., May 27—Letter was dated May 25, 1874.

Hor. Rib.—pen-cancelled from some town in Wisconsin, and pen dated June 4, 1874.

Hor. Rib.—Postmarked Lime Rock, Conn., Jan. (day indistinct), pencil notation for filing Jan. 15, 1875, on cover.

These thirteen covers should pretty well establish the use of the ribbed paper from the fall and winter of 1873, to the spring and summer of 1874. Naturally, copies will be found occasionally on covers of 1875, and even later, but not in sufficient quantities to indicate continued use beyond the spring and early summer of 1874.

Adding to the accumulative evidence of the above covers are two copies of the vertically ribbed paper off cover, dated Feb. 16, 1874, and May 16, 1874, both in pen writing.

As further proof I have accumulated eight off cover copies of the horizontally ribbed paper, each cancelled in pen, one of which is dated 1873, and the others 1874.

Recently I picked up a little group of covers, all from one small Virginian town, none of which were year-dated, but a find which I have every reason to believe covered the years 1873, 1874 and 1875 only. Unfortunately, all the letters had been destroyed.

Twelve of the covers carried copies of the horizontally ribbed stamp and were dated as follows: Nov. 21, Nov. 23, Dec. 5, Dec. 19, Feb. 6, 20 and 27, March 7, April 3, 17, May 15, 22. This probably was a more or less continuous social correspondence covering the winter and spring of 1873-74.

Crawford Capen, many years ago, stated that the first use of the ribbed paper was made in 1873, the largest use in 1874, and the final use late in 1875, or possibly early in 1876.

The first part of his statement agrees absolutely with the evidence of the dated copies given above, but remember, he is talking of usage only.

In more than ten years of specialization in Bank Note printings, I have found only one copy dated as late as 1875. The 1875-76 copies noted probably obsolete usage, such as 3 cent vermilion used during the nineties.

Also, I have absolute proof that by November, 1874, an entirely new printing on a different paper was in use, and I hardly believe that the Continental company was using two different kinds of paper and two distinct types of ink in their shops at one and the same time.

H. L. Wiley, in his work on "The Three Cent Green" copyrighted 1915, says: "My opinion is that this paper (ribbed) was used for a period of approximately six weeks. I have no dated copies, but as Capen refers to the use of the paper as early as 1873, and as the general appearance of the stamps indicates a decided effort toward perfection, which might naturally characterize the early efforts of the new contractors, I am inclined to believe that the stamps were printed sometime between June and December, 1873."

I regard this as a remarkably correct analysis, considering that Mr. Wiley at that time had absolutely no dated copies to study.

Accident Never Produced This Ribbed Paper

What I have sought to prove thus far is the probable use of the ribbed paper by the Continental Bank Note Company within its shops for only a few months, either all in 1873, or partly in 1873, and partly early in 1874.

The foregoing should be sufficient indication of the correctness of these statements, but I will give plenty more proof later on.

Remember, Mr. Toasperm intimates in his interesting statement that the ribbing might have been caused by a hard cotton warp being exposed on the worn covering of the rollers through which the wet paper web was passed to dry and shape it. This is no new theory. Other estimable gentlemen in the past have stated the same idea.

It has also been said in the past that the ribbed effect possibly was produced by contact of the sheets of paper with sheets of mill boards, between which bunches of sheets of paper were flattened after being printed.

If either of these theories had any basis of fact, would this accidental ribbed effect have appeared only in the emissions of the Continental Bank Note Company between the fall of 1873, and the spring of 1874?

Of course not—the ribbed effect, if it were at all accidental, would have appeared spasmodically throughout the printings of the National, Continental and American Bank Note Companies over a period of twenty years.

There is absolutely no reason whatever why these worn cloth rollers should have acted up just for a few months during the first part of the Continental printings and then behaved like good little chaps all the rest of the time.

I have noticed a semi-ribbed effect on some of the twentieth century Bureau printings on soft paper, which I think possibly may have been caused according to Mr. Toasperm's theory, but not being a student of these later issues, I do not care to make a positive statement. I only know that there is absolutely no relation between these present-day "ribbed" effects on soft, porous papers, and the Continental ribbed paper, which is hard, snappy and very closely woven.

Plate Number Further Proof of Date of Use

One of the most prized pieces in my collection of the Three Cent Green on Ribbed Paper, is a top row stamp with margin showing the complete plate number "136." This is a used stamp.

Out of 112 plates used by the Continental people, Plate No. 136 was the twelfth plate made, according to Luff, and this seems to be added evidence that the ribbed paper was used early.

If other examples of plate numbers on ribbed papers are known, I should like to be informed. I know that other plates were used because of certain transfer peculiarities on the ribbed paper, which will be explained later.

The only imprints I have found on ribbed paper are Continental Imprints. Inasmuch as the National plates used by the Continental Company would logically have been used during the spring of 1873, when the contract changed hands, this adds evidence that the ribbed paper was not the first Continental emission, and strengthens the theory that it did not appear until the latter part of 1873.

In attempting to establish the actuality of the ribbed paper, and its legitimacy as one of the minor varieties of United States postal issues, I am drawing from my own collection, which fills one Ne Plus Ultra album of more than 60 leaves, and I find I cannot begin to cover the subject in a single article.

In future articles, we will study the characteristic of the horizontally and vertically ribbed papers, the inks used and resulting shades, the transfer and plate varieties found, and typical cancellations, all of which will add weight to the arguments set forth here against the possibility of the Continental ribbed paper having been produced accidentally, and not being a true and collectible variety.

1½c UNPERFORATED U. S.

The two varieties of 1½c imperfs., Scott Nos. 576 and 631, offer some interesting varieties of plate number, center, guide line, and arrow blocks. Those of 576 are entirely different from 631, lines, margins and plate number positions being in no way similar.

I offer a complete sheet of 400 of each of these varieties for $16.00. They are a good investment.

United States "Educators"

This is the name we give to a series of approval books designed especially for those who want to know more about the 19th Century issues of United States stamps and who are interested in filling as many as possible of those empty spaces with stamps that are presentable in appearance and correctly classified.

These "Educator" approval books have helped scores of collectors to find the missing varieties they were not so sure of identifying, and have further given them some idea of values as governed by condition. They are priced for what we think they are worth, perhaps twice catalog, or perhaps 1/4 of catalog according to the desirability of the particular specimen.

SENIOR "EDUCATORS"

Are similarly arranged, but designed for those who want only fine copies and who are willing to pay for superior quality.

Both series of "Educators" represent all 19th Century issues with considerable completeness. Ask for any particular issue that interests you, or start with the 1847-51 booklet and work through the lot.

SPECIALIZED SELECTIONS

Made up to suit individual want lists, and include varieties of cancellation, of paper, of printing, of shade. Pairs, strips, blocks, covers; whatever your speciality our stock is at your service and should be of some use to even the most advanced specialist. [H2]

GETTING AROUND IN ICELAND

By THORSTINA JACKSON.

Iceland is a sparsely settled country where a population of about 100,000 is scattered over an area about the size of Scotland. A striking characteristic of the people is their love and interest in their domestic animals. The most trusted companions of the Iceland farmer are the horse and the dog; they are his inseparable comrades on many a perilous journey. It is the instinct of these friends that guides him home over mountains and moors when overtaken by the sudden Arctic blizzards or the impenetrable fog that so obscures the trail, faint enough in fair weather, so that the human eye is entirely unable to distinguish the path.

One remarkable feature about Iceland is that every county is bounded on one side at least by a wilderness of lava, sand-dunes, mountains and heaths; inasmuch as the settlements are around the coast, all cross-country travel must be over this "no man's land." A network of automobile roads is found around the capital, Reykjavik, as well as the other principal towns; but the traveler in the interior, or the farmer whose home is several leagues from the coast does not come within the influence of Henry Ford or other enterprising automobile manufacturers, but has to rely on the sturdy Iceland ponies which, fortunately, are well equipped to withstand the hardship that such travel entails. They are larger than the average American pony and sure on their feet, a necessary requisite in a country where the trails wind around the edges of towering precipices with the surging ocean or a mountain gorge below; a slip might mean a drop of 1,000 feet. The safest method under such circumstances is not to attempt to guide, but to leave everything to the exceptional ability of the steed to tread his way out of a dangerous place.

Iceland horses are easy to ride; their most common gait is the canter or the trot. They are home-loving animals and so reluctant to start on a journey that it is not until after at least half an hour's ride that they cease their efforts to persuade the rider to turn back. If they feel that they are not carrying an expert rider on their hind legs, stop, half turn around and thus endeavor by varied means to convince the would-be traveler that "home, sweet home" is best at all times. However, their tactics are not those of the western pony, who bucks and reels into the air in his efforts to throw his rider; they are rather a series of friendly capers. When the Iceland horse is satisfied that persuasion is of no avail, he makes the best of a bad job by speeding away with a swiftness and spirit that makes riding a delight. Their intelligence in fording the numerous rivers and streams that cross their path is difficult to equal; they never attempt to go against a stream, but invariably drift with it to the opposite shore.

A proof of how much the horse is honored in Iceland is the large number of poems dedicated to horses. It is estimated that proportionately Iceland publishes more books yearly than the whole of the British empire. Every year finds the horse glorified either in prose or poetry.—Baptist.

LETTERS STAMPED BY MAIL BOX

Patent for a mail box with an automatic stamping device has been applied for by a Leipzig, Germany, inventor. The apparatus is described as simple and effective, consisting of a series of different coloring and printing cylinders. The proper coin is dropped into a slot and the letter receives the imprint of a stamp on its way into the box. The machine is also equipped to return superfluous change automatically.

Accounts are kept by a small adding machine attached to the apparatus. Renewal of the colored stamping pads and oiling of the machinery are the only attention the device needs. Leipzig postal authorities are experimenting with the invention.

DISCOUNTS

We deem it necessary to state once again that we do not accept general advertising announcing larger than 50 per cent discounts. Our reason for this is that there is apt to be extravagance in statements that will react unfavorably on Philately. In this issue are several advertisements where stamps are actually advertised at one-quarter catalog and fully described, and this meets our requirements.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

Leeward Ids.—At present the following L. Ids. stamps are on hand at Tortola, Virgin Ids.,—

| | |
|------|---------|
| MCA. | Script. |
| 1/2d | 1d |
| 2d | 1 1/2d |
| 6d | 2 1/2d |
| 1/- | 3d |
| 5/- | 2/6 |

The 1/- and 2/6 Virgin Ids. are still on sale, although Gibbons quote them at 2/6 and 6/6. By-the-way, the L. Ids. 5d script was obtainable in Montserrat up to at least 12th Nov.

Kuwait.—"The ordinary Indian stamps were overprinted 'Kuwait' on the old wmk. paper, but not on the new, nor is there any present intention of printing any on the new wmk. paper. Sufficient old stock still exists for use for some considerable time. No stamps were overprinted officially 'Koweit,' but some Indian stamps were overprinted by the Stamp Office, Calcutta, 'Koweit.' These never left the printers and were never authorized for issue. Recently a dealer posted a number of covers stamped with inverted Kuwait stamps, but did not register them, with the result that a number apparently did not reach the addressees. A further 126 covers were then offered by the same dealer for registration at the P. O. at Kuwait, but the Postmaster withheld them and referred the matter to Headquarters. I have seen some of these covers, and find that the inverted overprint cannot be distinguished from the genuine overprint, but as these inverted overprints never existed officially and no Indian stamps have yet been overprinted on the new Indian wmk. paper, the Postal Authorities have confiscated all the covers, the stamps on them being treated as forgeries. Collectors should therefore be careful to see

It appears that the entire current series of the latter Colony, with the exception of the 1/4d, 1/2d, 1d and 1 1/2d, is now obsolete, as the remaining values (2d to 3/-) are all priced by Gibbons above their usual current issue figures, viz., 2d at 4d, 2 1/2d at 6d, 3d at 1/-, 4d at 8d, 5d at 10d, 6d at 1/-, 3/- at 7/6. It is unlikely that any new requisitions will be made, inasmuch as a supply of the old 1912 series is available—enough, I should imagine, to tide over the interval until the arrival of the new set.

Max Steiner, Chicago, Ill.

We enter this week as a member of the Honor Club, a former advertiser in our columns, M. P. Rodermond, 77 Escent Ave., Jersey City, N. J. Mr.
Rodermond's name will be quite familiar to many of our readers and we are very glad of the privilege of entering in for five years' renewal of his subscription.

We are particularly pleased to welcome our Honor Club, Max Steiner, vice-president, banking department of the Chicago Trust Company, which is one of Chicago's great down-town banks. We understand that Mr. Steiner is much interested in philately and that he finds it an excellent foil from the business duties of the day.

HAITI

The colder weather here makes us think of the warmer places so we naturally think of Haiti. Our 12 page, fully illustrated catalogue where practically every major variety is priced will gladly be sent upon request. The papers of Nov. 26th tell of disastrous floods there, perhaps that will be an excuse for a new issue of surcharges if the American authorities in control relent from their present attitude.

METROPOLITAN STAMP COMPANY

1482 BROADWAY

NEW YORK CITY

AUSTRIA, OFFICES IN TURKEY 1908

Scott Nos. 55, 1 piastre on white paper.

By JOSEPH TROWN, 1574 3d Ave., New York, N. Y.

There is a stamp listed in the Scott Catalogue through several years, which has brought up so many arguments, whether that stamp really exists or was printed. My experience on stamps in this country, being a dealer in Austria, that this stamp never was regularly issued or printed.

At first I will say that three different stamps of the 1 piastre were issued, two on chalky surface-colored paper, one on paper colored through. The first one issued July, 1908, violet-blue on blue chalky paper, back all white, the second one issued during the current period, deep blue on greenish-blue chalky paper,
on the back a little more or less greenishblue, it seems to be doty and in Dec., 1913, ultramarine on blue ordinary paper, colored through. These three stamps are very easily distinguishable on unused stamps; on used stamps of the two on chalky paper it is a little hard to see the difference and it can be distinguished on the back side and the greenish-blue is lighter than the other.

However it is, a stamp exists used must exist unused, of course; how could it be used, and nobody has ever seen a mint copy of the stamp on white paper.

So what happened?

In 1920-22 the Austrian Postal Government in Vienna has sold used stamps cut out of Parcel-post-cards and money-orders of the years 1908 and 1918, by the kilos and in there was some stamps of the Offices in Crete and Turkey, so most of them were washed off, and so came the described stamp on greenish-blue paper in the trade on white paper, because the greenish-blue is very removeable in water.

These two stamps on chalky paper are anyway hard to get unused, and the greenish-blue used in the original color, as I said that most of them are washed to white paper.

Now try to get one of each of the two stamps used on chalky paper as described above, and put both in warm water, leave them in 10 to 15 minutes and you will see the results: the violet-blue on blue paper will change the color to violet-blue on gray-blue paper, and most of them are in different collections as the regular Scott Nos. 49, the deep blue on greenishblue paper will change to deep blue on white paper, and for the collector worthless. The last one, Scott Nos. 55, paper colored through, is unchangeable at washing.

11 Boxholders

I am pleased to state that already eleven collectors have signed up and joined my New Issue Service. A letter from one of them says: "I like the frank way you place this New Issue business before me, and am joining your service because I am satisfied that it will be what you claim for it — a prompt, efficient, deluxe Service."

To those who are willing to pay 32 cts. per shilling I recommend this service.

SALE OF STAMPS ENJOINED

(Clipping from Jos. Cadek.)

Baron Carl van Scharfenberg of Berlin, won an injunction Dec. 11, from Supreme Court Justice Churchill restraining Martin S. Bernet, No. 24 East 22d Street, and the Nassau Stamp Company, from selling a collection of Russian stamps formerly in possession of the Baron.

Justice Churchill appointed Francis J.
Quillinan, No. 120 Broadway, referee to take charge of the stamps pending settlement of ownership.

The Baron charged that Mr. Bernet got the stamps away from him by misrepresentation and intimidation. He brought the collection to New York in September, 1926, to sell for at least $250,000, but failed to find a purchaser.—

A GENERAL PRECAN COLLECTION

By H. A. THATCHER.

By all means, a general precancel collection. And by "general," I mean get everything you can. If you want to attain completion, confine your efforts to one state or denomination. But if you want sustained interest, get them all—or to be more exact, go after them all—you won't get them. You may have a great many thousands, your collection may fulfill the heart's desire of all collectors—a five foot shelf of huge albums, but in those albums will still be many, many vacant spaces.

Don't let this discourage you. There are some of the precancel fans who in the younger days of the hobby were only kept from spending their years in the mad house by the lack of a strong mind in the neighborhood to take the initiative in insanity proceedings. They lived through it—you will too, and see your collection grow and grow, and in the end be a never failing source of interest. Every mail will bring you something for your collection. The mail carrier, the corner merchant, the newspaper office, everybody and every place the mail reaches is a source of supply for your album. Cultivate them all.

The writer's own collection might well be termed a general collection, though embracing only the 1922-25 issue. The collection is five years old, but I have yet to complete Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, and every other town on the map, and I have not been idle, either. I lack some of the current set from my own home town. But are we downhearted? No!

And don't let the side-long looks of the "regular postage" collector deter you. His album is full of junk, too, if yours is. Precancel collecting is only a few years old, compared with the eighty-odd years of life of the postage stamp—and collecting started with the first stamp. We had our Harding blow-off, and now that it is pretty well over it is to be doubted very much if we will ever have another. The varieties to come will in the main be legitimate, as they always have been, and the lessons of that debacle have been pretty well learned. And, to compare with this, you can look in every "regular postage" collection and see hundreds of varieties produced with the sanction of some government or other with no more excuse than the producing of revenue from collectors' pocketbooks.

This is a mad old world, anyhow. It is a sad old world, and a merry old world, and in it we have a number of things. Among these is the quirk of human nature that leads us to look askance at our neighbor's diversion, to say nothing of regarding with disapproval or disgust his views on politics, religion, and the Volstead act. Diversion we must have, and a hobby we must ride, so mystery envelops the reason for this disapproval of the other fellow. From this premise we assert our independence, and declare that we don't give a tin-plated whoop what particular branch of the philatelic tree our neighbor may chatter on, precancels are our particular twig, and be hanged to 'em. If he raps us with a cocoanut we will slap him with a banana peel. Burglars may break in and steal; fire may take our fragile treasures; flood may soil them beyond redemption; some other calamity than these may remove our stamps from our possession and cause our wives much rejoicing; but while we may let us gather our precancels and let our neighbor collect what he pleases.

And our activity will be limited only by our wish. New issues are constantly appearing, and like the caucas race in the fairy story, we can begin when we get ready and leave off when we like; and can feel that no matter whether we have a collection worth while or a book full of junk, we are the richer for the hours spent in the pursuit of this particular sideline of the most fascinating of all hobbies.—Precancel Gazette.

BRITISH COLONIALS---MINT SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFERING

This offering differs from the usual kind of bargains because it is made up of nothing but desirable stamps—in fact, almost all of them belong to the class of stamp known as "leaders." Furthermore, all of them are bargains. A liberal supply has been set aside—(also a fair reserve supply to take care of orders from more distant collectors)—and if an applicant wishes more than one copy of any number, he may have them as long as the reserved supply lasts. This is another feature that makes this offering "different." Where an asterisk (*) follows the price a block of four may be had at a pro rata price. I will be glad to quote on blocks of any of the others—they are very reasonably priced.

This is not a matter of "the bottom dropping out" of modern British Colonials. The above stamps are as good as they ever were—or rather they are better and improving every week that goes by. I am able to make these exceptional offers because I had the good fortune—and perhaps foresight—of picking them up in time, and I have always been my policy to pass some of the investment possibilities on to my customers.

Enquiries for anything in British Colonials solicited. Collectors should consider the advantages had in buying from a stock like mine. The catalogue value of my twentieth century stamps alone runs as high as $70,000 for a single Colony.

GOOD SPECS IN BR. COLONIALS

By E. B. POWER.

(From the "Stamp Collectors' Magazine," 15 John St., N. Y. City. Price $1.00 per year.)

New Zealand—I should advise collectors to gather in Nos. 182 and 183 in Scott's Catalog being Two Shillings and Three Shillings purporting to be a portrait of King George in Admirals uniform.

One glance at these stamps will convince you that they are the world's ugliest stamps and I think that the Royal George must have hesitated long before he put these into his Collection, which contrary to general belief, consists of British Colonies exclusively.

Niue—In this colony it would be well to watch the change of watermarks. You will notice that No. 32, the 1/2 penny, unwatermarked, has changed to No. 41, with a watermark, and No. 32, described as carmine and black has changed to No. 42, also described as carmine and black, whereas, as a matter of fact, it is a brilliant rose. I should advise the purchase of the balance of the unwatermarked set, Nos. 33-36 immediately, if not sooner.

North Borneo—Nos. 167 to 173. Why these have been brought into the catalog I cannot understand. We all know that Mr. Clark is most anxious to condense the catalog as far as possible and since these stamps are only a re-issue of the 1909 issue with a perforation of 12 1/2 instead of 14, I do not consider for one moment that they are major varieties. Following my old precept that we are collecting stamps and not holes. Cut them out.

Northern Rhodesia—Some of the fellows who collect stamps have an idea that Northern Rhodesia, Southern Rhodesia, Kenya, and Tanganyika, are going to coalesce with the result of one issue for the four Colonies. I doubt it. Tanganyika, if you will remember, was German East Africa and the Government of this Territory was allotted to Great Britain by the League of Nations, or in other words, it was a Mandated Territory.

Since The League of Nations practically loaned it to Great Britain to administer, I fail to see by what right the effigy of King George appears upon the stamps, which means that if I have enough left, after paying my room rent I should buy a set of Tanganyika and put it away.

Outside of that, Northern Rhodesia is perfectly quiet and nobody need worry about anything.

Nyasaland—I called attention some time ago to the Half Crown, No. 20, which was remaining on multiple block C. A. This stamp has now gone to join the Angels, and is priced at $2.00, it having appeared in script, being No. 33 in the catalog.

Those who did not buy when I told them to, will now have the pleasure of paying 50% premium for the delay, which carries out the well known saying, that "Procrastination is the thief of time," to which I would add, and the "Cause of many a hole in a stamp album."

As I am turning over a leaf of my catalog to dictate this article I happen to strike Poland, and as I struck this country, I happen to think of Hungary, and thinking of Hungary, I would like to ask if any person who subscribes to this magazine, or leaves it on the car seat for another fellow to read, has ever seen Hungary, No. 260, catalogued at 6 cents.

With great humility I am prepared to pay $6.00 for this stamp.

St. Helena—If I was to put down in printing what I know of speculation in

METROPOLITAN STAMP COMPANY

1482 BROADWAY

NEW YORK CITY

St. Helena, Sherlock Holmes would have to go out of business for five years. We have in this business what the dealers amongst themselves call "Sharpshooters," men who imagine they can catch the dealer asleep and trim him accordingly. Most of these fellows collect from 3/4 to 1 of a single stamp and immediately require a block of four when they think something is good, and why they persist in writing to dealers for these things I cannot understand. The dealer in British Colonials, such as I am, does not have his thumb on the market, he has both hands and most of his feet besides, and therefore, naturally knows any lightning changes that take place. Such is the case in St. Helena. The Ascension Islands have destroyed their stock of the 4d and 6d values, issuing in their place a 5 penny stamp. Coming events cast their shadows before, therefore, do you suppose for one moment that any dealer is going to be such a consummate ass as to sell the 4d and 6d St. Helena at current rates? Of course not. Then again, we find the 15 shilling stamp, No. 89, has been taken out of stock by the Postmaster and he has made a merry little bonfire with them. I have no information about the 7/6, but I think he has done the same thing with them. Therefore, the 15 shilling stamp, No. 89, which I supplied collectors with through my New Issue Service at 32 cents a hilling, equal to $4.80, is now worth more money. As a matter of fact it is Six Pounds bid in London, but if you feel that a hundred per cent is good enough for you, you can send me all you have and I will give you $10 apiece for them.

St. Kitts-Nevis—This is one of the places where the distribution has been well placed in the hands of the collectors and the dealers are out. I, myself, am so. Nevertheless, there is a very weak gamble in the five shillings, No. 34, and the ten shillings, No. 35. These two stamps still rest on multiple block C. A. Scott lists these stamps at $4 or the five shillings, and $7 for the ten shillings—high enough and probably caused by Mr. Clark having a Chocolate Nut Sundae at Mr. Shrafft's.

These stamps are not obsolete—whether they are on sale or not in the Island, I do not know, but they can be bought at $1.60 and $3.15 from such dealers as sell British Colonials at reasonable, and not junk shop prices.

St. Lucia—In this country we find the penny brown, which should be red, and we find the 1 1/2d red, which should be some other color. Of course, the 2 1/2d orange which appeared in 1924 has gone where the woodbine bonnet and now costs $2, when it could have been bought about two years ago for 10 cents. In this colony I should advise the purchase, immediately, of the 1d No. 82, the 1 1/2d No. 83. That is all I have to say.

St. Vincent—This very respectable colony is in line, except that I do not understand why the 1 shilling No. 136, should be in bistre. I believe I am right in saying that St. Vincent adheres to the color scheme, in which case the 1 shilling should change to black on green, and her two shilling, No. 127, and her five shillings, No. 128, are on a wild jam-boree and should be brought to their proper colors.

NEWS ITEMS:—

PRES. OHLUND informs us that the Suburban Stamp Club of Boston has taken three connecting rooms at the American House, beginning Jan. 1, 1928. We congratulate this progressive club upon its enterprise. A Christmas tree party and entertainment was held by the club Dec. 15, and an account will no doubt be published next week.

FRANK L. APPLGATE of Medford, Ore., desires information concerning two lost letters. One contained two beer stamps, 33 1/3c, series of 1878, one with Plate No. 1579. This stamp was cancelled "Grass Valley, Cal., Nov. 6, 1888," the date being filled in in mss. The other letter contained a $2 California exchange stamp. It is one of the three copies known with open out-line letter inscriptions and with the word

THE MID-WEST EXHIBITION

We are desirous of giving the greatest possible publicity to the Midwestern Philatelic Exhibition to be held at Cleveland, May 21-26 next year. Anything that may tend to increase the interest in that event will be regarded with editorial favor. We want Cleveland to put this over in such a fashion that Boston, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, San Francisco, or Minneapolis-St. Paul will put on a hustle for 1929 and following years. An exhibition as planned for early spring and another for fall should be the program for the coming years.

We congratulate Cleveland.

EDITORIAL

Some months ago, we learned that a suit had been instituted against A. W.
Filstrup of Benton Harbor, Michigan, by
Y. Souren of New York, in the U. S.
Court at Grand Rapids, Mich., for thirty thousand dollars, which was claimed as commission, inasmuch as he had produced a customer who would purchase
Mr. Filstrup's stamps to the amount of $150,000, according to Mr. Souren's allegation. Mr. Souren had paid a visit to Benton Harbor and talked with Mr. Filstrup about selling his collection for him; and on the basis of this conversation, he entered his complaint. As told last week, the suit was decided at Grand Rapids in favor of Mr. Filstrup; the judge took the case from the jury and rendered his decision. After the evidence was all in,
Mr. Filstrup's attorneys made a motion that the case be taken from the jury because the plaintiff had not proved his case and after the opposing attorneys had their arguments, the Court acquiesced and the case was dismissed in favor of the defendant. The crux of the case evidently was whether the plaintiff had produced a bona fide buyer for the stamps, and the judgment of the court was that he had not. Mr. Filstrup had witnesses in his behalf at the trial from New York and Chicago, and he feels that in having defended his position successfully he has performed a duty to philately. The case embraced the question of denial of a contract by Mr. Filstrup to sell even though this point was not considered, but it was maintained by Mr. Filstrup that Mr. Souren did not produce a buyer with serious intentions, although the plaintiff was supported by a witness who said that he was ready to buy on March 14th, but that he had

SCOTT STAMP AND COIN CO.

changed his mind on April 16th. Mr.
Filstrup repudiated the idea of any compromise and he entered into the case very thoroughly; and though, naturally, he was put to no little expense in amassing evidence that fortified his position, he believed, as we have already said, that he was discharging a debt to his philatelic fellows in fighting the issue squarely.

The story of how the decision to build the Panama Canal was influenced by the exhibition of a Nicaraguan stamp, showing the picture of a smoking volcano, which decided the day against Nicaragua as a route, because of the mem-ace of earthquakes. The story is a good one and does not deserve to die, as it has all the elements of human interest; and it is not likely to, as now we find that the Associated Press sent out the tale dated at San Francisco, Dec. 13th, as coming from the lips of Judge Francis Henry Loomis, who, as assistant secretary of state under the late John Hay, helped the negotiations for acquiring the Canal Zone.

In Morgan's column in the Chicago
Daily News, we have the sprightly par:
"Paris 'tourists' views' are to be used on French stamps. However, as these views will be confined to exteriors, such as Eiffel tower, the Louvre, Johnny's bar and the Opera, we look for no renaissance in stamp collecting, such as was foreseen from the bare announcement." Not so snappy, Gene. Just because you may have forsworn stamps, do not think that the philatelic sun is eclipsed. We do not need a renaissance and if one did come, there would be no place to put it. It is amusing, sometimes, to hear the comments of the ex-philatelist who has removed himself from the sphere of stamp action for a few years. When he meets old philatelic friends, he seems surprised or even chagrined to hear that his recreancy has not been noticed and to learn that stamps are going better than ever before.

A recent issue of "Life" contained a
"he and she" joke that may not have been caught on the fly by all non-philatelists. The young man asks the fair one if she received the picture postal card that he sent her from Hawaii. She said that she had, but that he could not pull the wool over her eyes; the card had a U. S. stamp on it. Judging from some of the questions asked by the public, every member of it is not certain just what stamps are used on mail from Hawaii

We cannot ignore letters that have come from those who have read recent remarks on philatelic prices and finance.
The writers are agreed that the utmost care should be taken in pricing stamps, and that all guess work should be eliminated particularly in dealing with special items. Mr. L. M. Macy, Philadelphia, says: "I suppose that intentionally, you avoid bringing the question of condition into the discussion, but surely the difficulty is to attune condition with quotations. Aside from this, it is certainly necessary to standardize prices because collectors who find that they are misled, lose faith in the investment side of their collections. It is not to be denied that the financial end of collecting is not lost sight of by the man who spends thousands of dollars on his stamps, even though he may have the highest sentimental regard for them. No doubt, there are two angles to consider, the first one of which is now being studied, but the truth of the call for improvement in pricing is self-evident, while condition in relation to prices is the real problem."

The observations of Mr. Macy that condition and price are inseparable is not to be gainsaid and the question no doubt will come to the fore.
While this phase of the review is not being opened at present, the correspondents write sensibly to admit that the price factor is one of great importance, although they may deplore undue emphasis of the financial side of collecting.
We must take human nature much as we find it, and why should the person who avowedly regards stamps as affording a speculative field be quarreled with. The average collector has a sentiment for stamps that he does not allow the dollar sign to over-ride. As a writer in Stamp Collecting has pointed out, profit and recreation are not incompatible, and he shrewdly asks this question which may be truthfully answered by many in the negative: "Are recreation and profits so opposed to each other that the one cannot be enjoyed in the presence of the other?"

From Mr. H. C. Woodruff of Kalamazoo, Michigan, we have received a copy of the old monthly, "Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine and Gazette of Fashion," New York, for August, 1879, in which he has marked an inch ad of Stanley Gibbons & Co., then at 8 Gower Street, in London, headed, "Foreign Stamps." A 50 variety packet is offered side periodical press, the announcement is interesting as showing the vision of the great firm, in question.

Mr. E. E. Hand, teacher of general science in the Hyde Park High School, Chicago, has been advancing philately as a recreation for his students for a good many years; and some of those who were once his philatelic wards have developed into collectors of the best stripe. He has sent to the members of the Hobby Club at his school, an attractive Christmas card bearing a stamp and the following sentiment, which he took the time in this hurrying age to write on each card: "In the album of your life may stamps fill many a vacant hour," in four lines.

Here is a report, important, if true.
Not one, but two new weekly stamp papers are possibilities, but definite announcement cannot be made until plans become a reality. We should welcome a few new companies who would play with us; and we hope they will actually put in an appearance.

ASIDE—

THE Collectors Club Year Book for 1927-1928 is a sixty-page brochure that tells of the functions of this great organization. The story of its activities during the past year is an impressive one, and one-half of the book is required for the membership list.

THE Postmark issued monthly by the progressive P. M. of Springfield, Illinois, where it is almost treason to send a letter by ordinary mail, says in its Christmas number that one should "add an affectionate touch to the Merry Christmas letter or greeting by sending it by air mail."

THE second number of the Philatelic Journal has appeared from Richmond, Kentucky, thus placing that state on the philatelic journalistic map in a modest way.

MR. AUGUSTUS E. INGRAM, Washington, D. C., submits several interesting and intelligently written articles from the issue of the Christian Science Monitor for November 25th. As he says, "It's rare to see such articles in the philatelic press," a fact that is in mind when we copy something for our paper from the Monitor.

STAMP-ITIS is the booster sheet of the Texas Philatelic Association and emanates from Galveston. Incidentally, it brings Texas stamp news to the fore, and by no means neglects news of wider appeal. It is more interesting than some of the more pretentious sheets.

THE German Stamp Collectors Club of Chicago, elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Julius Loeffler; Vice-President, J. Max Golding; Secy., Wm. Thueringer; Treasurer, Jos. Whitebourn, and Sales Manager, Julius Loeffler. The society has finished a successful year and has increased in membership. The annual banquet will be held on Jan. 8, 1928, at Lincoln Turner Hall, Diversey and Sheffield Avenues, Chicago, at 2 P. M., after which a large auction sale will be held. Suitable entertainment will be provided for the ladies. All philatelists are invited to attend this yearly gathering; and further information may be had by addressing the president, 1848 Belleplain Avenue.

U. S. 24c CONTINENTAL PRINT

By THEODORE L. BEHR.

One of the most elusive varieties of United States stamps and one of the most difficult of classification is the 24c purple of 1873, printed by the Continental Bank Note Company. It is listed in Scott's Standard Catalogue as number 164, but is not priced.

This is a stamp which has been considered by some authorities to be a myth. As some say, "there isn't no such animal," but the records of the National Bank Note Company and those of the Continental Bank Note Company seem to show conclusively that there were limited number of 24c stamps printed by the latter company after the delivery of the National Bank Note Company's plates and dies. In order to distinguish between the printing made by the two firms secret marks were added to all the dies, but no new plates were made from the 24c, 30c or 90c dies. Incidentally, all the stamps printed but not delivered to the government at the time of the change in the stamp printing firms were turned over to the Continental Bank Note Company. Among these were a considerable quantity of the 24c stamps. However, in 1879, when the American Bank Note Company took over the undelivered stock of the Continental Bank Note Company, there were found a quantity of 24c stamps exceeding the number delivered by the National Bank Note Company to the Continental Bank Note Company. This is the fact upon which experts rely in order to prove the existence of this rare stamp.

The true Continental print is very difficult to distinguish from the National print. One must rely upon the paper as the chief test as the National is frequently found in approximately the same shade as the Continental. The chief distinguishing factor in the paper is its whiteness. It is strikingly white and very brittle. The stamp could not be folded without breaking the paper. It is always found with very tiny fragments of silk thread in the same color as the stamp. Sometimes these are very difficult to see and it is almost always necessary to use a powerful glass to reveal the threads. The color is generally in a deep bluish purple although the writer has seen undisputed 24c Continental prints in a lighter and more reddish shade. The impression is always fine and clear and is deeply impressed in the paper. The color always shows through at the back of the stamp. This is frequently seen in the National print and cannot be relied on as a test. The whiteness of the paper and its brittleness are the chief factors.

In examination of hundreds of thousands of various stamps of the Bank Note printings the writer has never seen any of the National print on exactly the same paper as the 24c Continental appears. In fact, he has never seen any other values of the Continental printings on the exactly similar paper on which the 24c is found. The silk paper as found in other values seems to show a much larger proportion of tiny threads than the 24c does.

The catalogue seems to rely upon the color as a means of identification. The nearest approach to the actual color of the 24c Continental is the 3c Justice Department stamp on soft paper, which is only found in the rich dark shade. The color will probably not be exactly the same, but the general character of the color will be the same. However, the writer remembers a magnificent cover dated 1870, three years before the Continental Bank Note Company printed the stamps, that was a most unusually brilliant color. It was best described as a deep reddish purple. It was very near the true Continental shade but its early use absolutely precluded any possibility of it being a Continental printing.

The writer will be very glad to give his opinion on any 24c stamps belonging to members. It is a difficult thing for one who has not had the opportunity of comparison to arrive at a correct conclusion and the writer will be only too glad to give anyone the benefit of his experience with these stamps.

In concluding, a few words of its approximate value may not be amiss. Condition is a very important factor, of course. Most of the specimens offered are off center and at auction have fetched from fifteen to fifty dollars. A superb used specimen is probably worth eighty dollars while an unused one with full gum is probably worth two hundred and fifty dollars. The last block that came on the market was sold in 1921 for a sum very close to one thousand dollars. —San Francisco Stamp Society Monthly Bulletin.

Lozenge Watermark

A watermark found in the 1836 stamps of Spain and in a supply of 2d stamps issued in New Zealand in 1872. The design consists of a pattern of diamond shaped spaces.

Minor Varieties

So far as philately is concerned the question as to what constitutes a minor variety is one that has never, and probably never will be, satisfactorily settled. It is all a matter of degree, for while it is a comparatively simple matter to define major varieties as those of primary importance and minor varieties as those of less importance, it is impossible to draw up any rules as a guide to apportioning stamps definitely to either of these classes. If we suggest a definition that "A minor variety is one that differs from the normal type in some small particular" it may do for general use, but the collector will find it is often a difficult matter to state authoritatively which particular stamp, when several varieties exist, represents the normal type.

Junior Items

—James Zellon, 43 Granite St., Worcester, Mass., would like to organize a stamp club in his vicinity. Perhaps some of our Juniors residing in Worcester will give their names to James for membership in such a club.

—Norwalk, Conn., has a junior stamp club organized in 1926, and it is in a flourishing condition. It is known as the Junior Philatelic Society of Norwalk. The club meets every Tuesday at the homes of the members.

—We are very much interested in the forming of junior stamp clubs and will gladly publish any information or news matter that is sent in. If you want a meeting place other than the members' homes, go to the Y. M. C. A., and the secretary will accommodate you.

—Cortlandt Hamilton writes us that he is very much interested in our Junior Page, and would like a complete list of our philatelic publications. Every week or two we publish this list in the WEEKLY. It describes all the publications that we carry.

—There is a letter at this office for Richard J. Schwartz. As our mailing list is not arranged alphabetically, we make this public inquiry for his address, when the letter will be forwarded.

Juniors of Atlantic City, N. J.

By WM. JOSEPH, Sec.

The forming of a stamp club in Atlantic City has met with much enthusiasm on the part of local high school students. A set of by-laws has been drawn up and an executive committee, consisting of Pres., Vice-Pres., Sec., Fin.-Sec., and Philatelic Adviser, protects the interests of the club.

The adviser is a senior member, who is experienced in the hobby, and the one chosen is Mr. Ronald Evan Sweet. Correspondence is invited. Address Atlantic City Stamp Collectors Club, 44 North R. I. Ave., Atlantic City, N. J.

Junior Dictionary

Postgebiet Ob. Ost.—An overprint applied to some of the contemporary stamps of Germany in 1915 for use in the occupied territories of Lithuania and Courland. The abbreviation is for "Oberbefehlshabers," and the surcharge means "Postal area of the Eastern Commander-in-Chief."

Post Horn.—(I.) A watermark found in connection with most of the stamps of Norway, Brunswick and the first issue of the Netherlands.

(II.) A post horn is printed on the backs of all the stamps of the 1886-87 stamps of Sweden and serves the same protective purpose as a watermark.

(III.) A post horn forms the principal feature in the design of the newspaper stamps of Hungary, used in 1871-72. These stamps show no inscription whatsoever.

(IV.) It is also a principal feature in the design of the stamps of Norway since 1872.

Postmark.—A postmark is really any mark applied to a letter or other postal packet during its journey through the post, but it is nowadays generally used in the more restricted sense of postal cancellation, i.e., a mark used for the purpose of obliterating the stamps.

Postmarke.—This word, meaning "Postage Stamp," is shown on the 4/4ggr stamp of Brunswick.

Postmasters' Stamps.—A term applied to certain provisional postage stamps issued by the authority of the local postmasters in various cities of the United States and in Bermuda prior to the appearance of the regular governmental issues.

JUNIOR STAMP STUDIES

IRON CROWN Hungary A4
1900-14, 1 Filler

This type of Hungarian stamps pictures one of the most historic crowns in existence. It is known as St. Stephen's crown, or the iron crown; before the twelfth century it was called the golden crown. It is said to have been worn first by Agilulf in 591. It was later worn by Charlemagne, Charles V and Maria Theresa. It was used at the coronation of the Lombard kings, and of the German kings as sovereigns of Italy. St. Stephen, first king of Hungary, whose name is associated with it, was crowned with it A. D. 1000. In 1805 Napoleon crowned himself with it at Milan. Afterwards two Austrian emperors wore it and it was taken to Venice. Kossuth in flight in 1849 buried it near Orsova on the Danube where it was found by a peasant. In 1866 it was restored to Monza, where it now rests in the church of St. John the Baptist.

It is made of six pieces, and is adorned with 22 jewels, 26 golden roses and 24 enamels. On the inside is a circlet of iron, said to have been made from a nail from the Cross, given by Pope Gregory I (590-604) to the Lombard Princess Theodelinda. The background represents the immense plain of Hungary. On the left top of the crown is one of the "Crow's Wells," as the wells are called, which are found here and there over the plain. On the right is the road by which the Magyars entered Hungary for the first time, from the region east of the Carpathians. Under the leadership of Arpad about 986 they came to Modacs where Arpad was crowned chief over the tribe. Above the crown is seen the "Jurul," the mythological bird of the Magyars, which, according to the legend, descended from heaven and rested upon the head of Arpad at his proclamation as King of the barbarous horde.

Missionary Stamps

This is the name by which the rare stamps forming the first issue for the Hawaiian Islands is generally known. These stamps came to be known as "missionaries" from the fact that most of the few existing specimens were found on letters sent by American missionaries in Hawaii to their friends and relatives in this country. The first stamps of Uganda, which were manufactured with the aid of an ordinary typewriter by one of the missionaries stationed there, are also frequently known as missionary stamps.

Stations in Hawaii to their friends and relatives in this country. The first stamps of Uganda, which were manufactured with the aid of an ordinary typewriter by one of the missionaries stationed there, are also frequently known as missionary stamps.

Perplexing Surcharges

R.—Reunion. In 1885, a number of French Colonial stamps were surcharged with this letter for temporary use in the Colony of Reunion.

R. B.—Road Board. An overprint found on certain South Australian stamps used before 1874.

R. G.—Registrar General. Also a So. Australian overprint.

Here is a good one for the juniors—yes, there will be prizes! You may have up to Jan. 25 to send in answers. Write us if you can answer only one question.

1. On what stamp is the word "quince" found?
2. Whose picture is shown on New Caledonia, No. 1?
3. What do the letters "O.H.S." mean on Egyptian official stamps?
4. On the 1922 issue for Egypt, the official surcharges are changed to "O.H.E.M.S." What do the letters signify?
5. What country has used the watermark "CASA DO MOEDA" in the paper that some of its stamps are printed on?
6. Certain stamps of Austria, Danzig, Memel, etc., are found with the word "Flugpost." What does it signify?
7. How are the numeral stamps of Colombia 1904 and 1908 issues distinguished?
8. What animal is pictured on the 1918 issue for Newfoundland?
9. Whose picture is found on the U. S. 11c stamp of the present issue?
10. Where are the plate numbers found on the older issues of the stamps of Great Britain?

"Country" Etymology

Barbados.—Named from fiscus barbata, a kind of fig tree, which was met with abundantly in that place.

Bermudas (Islands).—received their names by their discoverer, the Spaniard Juan Bermudas in 1515. The islands were also called Sommers Islands, after Sir George Sommers, who was stranded here 1612 and took possession of them in the name of the English.

Bavaria.—At the time of the migration, the Celtic people of Boioasia, i.e., that the inhabitants of the land of Boii, stationed guards who came from their former dwelling places to the above mentioned land of Boii, the present Bavaria (Bayern) and transferred their name to their new dwelling place.

Stones on Postage Stamps

By B. W. H. POOLE.

(From "Philatelic Opinion", 620 Washington Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal. Subscription price $1 per year.)

Probably it has occurred to few of us what a large part stones play in our lives. Certain precious stones associated with one's natal month are supposed to be omens of good luck—there is usually a small stone in the ring a man gives to a maid when plighting their troth, and stones are used to mark the resting places of our dead.

Shakespeare found a "sermon in stones" and while a collector may not find a sermon he may well find amusement in making a collection of stamps showing stones of various kinds in their design.

Stones may be said to have played their part in the history of America, for had not Queen Isabella pledged her jewels or precious stones (see the Columbian $1 stamp) Columbus may never have been able to secure the funds to finance his famous voyage of discovery. It was a stone—the famous Plymouth Rock—upon which the Pilgrim fathers landed as depicted on the 2c stamp of the Pilgrim tercentenary issue, while on the 5c value of the Trans-Mississippi issue we find that huge mound of stones known as the Rocky Mountains—the great divide over which Fremont pioneered a way. On the 8c value of the Pan-American issue the Canal Locks at Sault Ste. Marie—man-made chiefly of stone—are shown, and on the 5c stamp of the Panama-Pacific series we find more stones in the shape of the famous rocks which form the Golden Gate. On the series at present in use, in addition to the Golden Gate, we find the Statue of Liberty, the Arlington Amphitheatre, the Lincoln Memorial and the Capitol at Washington depicted—all famous monuments in stone. One more instance will suffice insofar as United States stamps are concerned—the 5c Huguenot-Walloon stamp on which the monument at Mayport, Florida, is shown.

Literally hundreds of stamps show precious stones as parts of their designs, usually on the crowns of the royal heads depicted, such as the portraits of Queen Victoria, some of these of King George, the Shahs of Persia, just to mention a few.

Stones are used in the construction of most of our public buildings and the collector will find plenty of stamps in his album to illustrate this point. We find Houses of Parliament, such as those on stamps of Bolivia and Argentina; palaces and castles as depicted on various issues of China, Denmark, Eritrea, Hungary and Austria; famous towers as shown by Bosnia and Bulgaria; religious edifices, as the Temple of Heaven in China, the Mosque of Tadjourah in French Somali Coast, the Cathedral at Montevideo, and another at Panama. There are monuments galore—Barbados, Belgium, Chili, Argentine, Costa Rica, to mention a few: post-offices as shown by Germany, Denmark, Mexico and Guatemala; famous ruins as depicted on Grecian, Egyptian and other stamps; a lighthouse in Mexico, exhibition buildings at Ecuador and Dominican Republic; as well as art galleries, museums, hospitals, barracks and libraries.

When stones are big and dangerous we call them rocks and they are frequently a danger to navigation—one of the Cabot stamps of Newfoundland will serve as a case in point.

Other big conglomerations of stone we call mountains and here again many examples are to be found on stamps. As instances we will cite Mt. Chimborazo of Ecuador, Mt. Ida of Crete, and Mt. Houllemon on Guadeloupe.

Monoliths are pillars of stone, and one fashioned in the shape of a god adorns one of the stamps of Bolivia. The famous Sphinx and equally famous Pyramids of Egypt are enduring man-made monuments of stone while on a Tongan stamp and another from Guatemala we find prehistoric stone monuments depicted.

We enclose our best loved gardens in artistic walls of stone and huge stone walls were erected in olden times to repel invaders. An interesting example will be found in the Great Wall of China shown on the air mail stamps issued by that country.

Stones are the objects which people in glass houses are advised not to throw, and it was with a small stone that David killed the giant Goliath. While this incident is not shown on a postage stamp we do find an episode of stone throwing depicted. On the 1902 stamps of Bulgaria, issued to commemorate the battle of the Shipka Pass, Bulgarian patriots are shown in the act of hurling rocks and rolling huge boulders down the steep mountainside on to their Turkish aggressors.

SAM SENTIMENTAL STAMPA-TALE SEQUEL

By AMY L. SWIFT.

(The many friends of Senor Severn will appreciate Susan's compliment to his "Studios stamp stuff". She would no doubt have done better but for the fact that the letter "S" has its limitations.—W. O. W.)

Several seasons sped swiftly since Sam Styles secured sweet Susan Stubbs. Saw Senora Styles Saturday, September seventeenth. She, still sweet, stylishly slender, said Sam successful salesman; somewhat stout, scaled seventeen stone. Said Sam's "shack" sheltered seven stalwart sons, single small sister. Senior son, Samuel, seasonable sugar speculator, scooped spondulacs strikingly; spliced Selina Somers, Syracuse societyite, staying Syracuse. Samuel shows small son,

ARE YOU A GENERAL IN THE STAMP ARMY?

Of course you are! Your dollars are your soldiers, with which you are setting out to conquer a fine stamp kingdom,—a really worth-while collection.

But what about your intelligence service? You can't dispose of your troops effectively, unless you know something of the ground they are to fight over, and of the enemy dispositions.

GIBBONS STAMP MONTHLY is the stamp general's intelligence department. It collects news from all parts of the stamp world, gives valuable market hints and warnings, tells what stamps are going obsolete, and records all new issues, — often with numbers printed.

A post-card brings you a free specimen copy. A dollar bill (not stamps) brings it every month for sixteen months. 10,000 read it. Why not YOU?

STANLEY GIBBONS, Ltd.

(Only address) Dept. 20, 391 STRAND, LONDON, ENG.

smilingly saying "Superlatively smart specimen!"

Susan's second son, Solomon, seems sagacious stampist. Specialist. Specializes surcharged stamps, specially Siam, Slavonia, Slovenia, Syria, Smyrna. Superintends Scott's Standard satisfactorily.

Sylvanus, sky soarer, says sky speeding simply sublime. Still single. Serves Switzerland, so saves Swiss stamps.

Seth, smart surgical student; spruce, solemnly sedate, splendidly skilful. Stoops somewhat; spectacled, studies so severely. Says stamps slacken strained sensations; smooth snappish, snarly spirits; stimulate senses; soothe sorrows; supply sport. Suggests spurious specialism, saying shall study such sometime.

Stephen, spruce Sophomore, studying socialism, sanctions stamp saving. Sagaciously solicits scarce stuff; swaps shrewdly; soundly scores skinned specimens, spots, specks, stains, sundered scraps. Spurns spurious similarly. Seen sundry stamp shows.

Simeon, still school student. Septimus same. Stampic spirit slight, Scout spirit strenuous. Sam sadly says stamp sway seems shunned. Susan simply smiles serenely, saying "Sons small. Suitable season sometime."

Sophonria, still smaller (scarce seven summer), selects showy stamps snappily. Stephen, Sophronia's slavish servitor, supervises selections somewhat, saying "Sis's smart. She swallows sapient suggestions speedily, so she'll soon see stamps serving sensibly should supersede saving saucily speculative sets."

Susan's sire, Stubbs Senior, sleeps. Stubbs Senior's son Silas, sniffily spurning stamp symbols, selected sky study, seeking stars. Says Saturn's secrets strange; shooting stars splendid startling sight. Silas strongly suggests squashing stamp study, substituting star staring. Staid Stampists simply smile.

Susan's sister Sarah, Salvationist, served soldiers. Sings soul-saving songs superbly. Sarah scorns stamp saving. "Surprisingly silly!" she says. "Succoring souls seems surpassingly superior service. Saintly! Sublime! Submerges self."

Susan says she's still strongly stampic. Sam same. She sees Senor Severn's studious stamp stuff steadily, scrupulously sending subscriptions seasonably. She says Senor Severn surely supplies superior service, substantial, salubrious, splendidly snowy; sternly shunning sarcasm, satire, scandal; stimulating study; steadily suppressing shameful stratagems.

Susan's synopsis summarized, story stops.

U.S. 1922, 1-cent Rotary Perforated 11, Scott's No. 594

Turn to page 25 of the new Scott Catalogue, and three-quarters of the way down the first column will be noted the listing of the 1922, current design, 1c perforated 11, printed from the rotary press, Scott's 594. This is an exceedingly scarce stamp, and I am anxious to purchase one or several for stock. While I would prefer the stamp unused, I would be glad to purchase fine cancelled copies. Will you not submit any that might be available from one copy up?

Please do not send me several hundred 1c stamps to look over, but if you have the variety and recognize it, I would like to have it submitted at your best price for immediate cash.

Always in the market to purchase anything choice in the way of United States postage and revenue stamps. Early mint blocks especially desired.

United States

Current 9-Cent, Shade

Mr. W. A. Bork has shown me a copy of the current 9-cent Jefferson, perforated 11, printed from the flat bed press, which is in a salmon color, somewhat different from any that I have seen before. While I have seen a light salmon shade, this is in a deep strong shade, without any of the pink tinge to be found in the normal stamp.

I would like to see further mint copies of this variety, in order to definitely confirm that it is not a changeling.

Plate Numbers

In the Chronicle for December 5th, Plate Numbers 19248 to 19263 inclusive, were inadvertently described as flat plates. All of these are of the rotary type, and should have been described as "curved." I wish to thank Mr. A. E. Owen for bringing my attention to the discrepancy.

President's Message to Congress

In the President's message to Congress, mention is made that on February 25, 1929, the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the capture of Fort Sackville will be celebrated. This capture eventually brought into the Union what was known as the Northwest Territory, embracing the region north of the Ohio River between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi River.

This expedition was led by George Rogers Clark, and the President tells us that his victory is too little known and understood. This heroic act gave us not only the Northwest territory, but by means of that the prospect of reaching the Pacific. The State of Indiana is proposing to dedicate the site of Fort Sackville as a national shrine. The Federal Government may well make some provision for the erection, under its own management, of a fitting memorial at that point.

May we call the attention of the Post Office Department that a commemorative stamp for the occasion would be in order.

The President further mentioned that we will shortly commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, and suggestion has been made for the construction of a memorial road leading from the Capital to his home in Mount Vernon. It is stated that the commission entrusted with preparations for the celebration will undoubtedly recommend publication of the complete writings of Washington, and a series of writings by different authors relating to him.

This is another occasion which certainly will be brought to the attention of the Post Office Department at the proper time. A general series depicting incidents in the life of our first President should certainly be considered.

Air Mail Notes

In a recent Chronicle, mention was made of the special octagonal postmark used on air mail at Madison, Wis., on November 22nd last, at which time the air mail service was inaugurated in this city on C. A. M. No. 9.

Messrs. O. C. Rittenhouse and E. Strasser now show me covers mailed from the same point, bearing a further first day postmark enclosed within a small rectangle reading in five lines,—"First Flight Inaugurating Contract Air Mail MADISON The Four Lake CITY." This was applied in blue, violet, magenta, and bright red, both separately and in conjunction with the octagonal postmark.

The Postal Bulletin of December 12th, states that air mail services on certain routes from London to the Continent have been suspended and that only those shown on a detailed list mentioned in the said Bulletin will be open until further notice. The same bulletin gives rates, etc., for mail carried to the several countries having special air mail services with Great Britain.

In the President's message, further mention was made of the rapid growth taking place in aeronautics. The Department of Commerce has charge of the inspection and licensing system and the construction of national airways.

Price List of British Colonials Post Free [eow1]

Already 8,000 miles are completed and about 4,000 miles more contemplated. Nearly 4,400 miles are now equipped and over 3,000 miles more will have lighting and emergency landing fields by next July.

Air mail contracts are expected to cover twenty-four of these lines. Daily airmail flying at the present time reaches nearly 15,000 miles, and is expected to reach 25,000 miles early next year.

Flights for other purposes exceed 22,000 miles each day. Over 900 airports completed and uncompleted have been laid out.

The President asks that the Post Office Department should be granted power to make liberal long-term contracts for carrying our mail, and the authority should be given to the Army and to the Navy to detail aviators to co-operate with private enterprises in establishing such mail services with South and Central American countries. He states that a committee of the Cabinet will later make a report upon the subject.

Algeria.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the following new items of this country: 65c dark brown, 90c vermilion, 1fr 10c bright magenta, all in Scott's A3 design, 10fr brown and pink, 20fr purple and green type of A4, in the postage due series, "60" on 20c olive-green, "2f" on 45c green, "3f" on 25c rose, 2fr lilac-rose and 3fr blue, in type D2, "1f" on 1c olive and 2fr pale blue.

Abyssinia.—A new issue has been ordered from France and has been delivered. It will be issued to the public when the new Post Office is inaugurated. The face value of the complete series will be about $10, the highest value being the $5.

We learn, on good authority, that sets of the current series leaked on to the stamp market without going to the country of issue. In order to "show up" the leakage, the Government decided not to issue the 4 guerches and $2, so that these values were never used for postage, though the present postal administration has sold them to dealers and collectors.—Gibbons' Stamp Monthly.

Belgian Congo.—60c red. Further to our note of October 29th, M. Giquiere writes in La Revue Postale that possibly this value will not be reprinted in red, but that it is a necessary value and will certainly continue to be issued.—Philatelic Magazine.

Ceylon.—Three high values in the Nyasaland type 10, 20, and 100r, were issued at the Colombo G.P.O. on October 24th, says our Special Correspondent, Mr. F. C. Hollick, who kindly sends us the subjoined cutting from the Times of India of the 22nd ult.:—

"Attempts to exploit old stamps have often been brought to light, and consequently the Postal authorities have for long contemplated a change in the stamps. There will be new issues of 10r, 20r, and 100r stamps. These stamps are quite different in hue, texture, and printing,

Merry Christmas

The Christmas issue of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS, like a perfectly good Santa Claus, provides something of special interest for every collector, whatever his particular penchant may be. Take a look into the WSN stocking and you'll find these features:

For the collector of U. S.—

A list of nearly one hundred varieties of U. S. stamps which you may obtain at face value from the Philatelic Agency. There's no better way to invest your money than in unused U. S., and when the investment urge reaches you, you will want to have at hand the Agency list. Each issue of WSN has the revised list.

For the collector of foreign.—

More than one hundred bargain offers of fine sets of foreign stamps. You can save the price of a year's subscription on these sets, if your collection needs them.

For the collector of first flight
air mail covers.—

A complete list of U. S. Contract Air Mail routes, giving the C. A. M. No. of each, the cities on each, and the date of establishment of each.

For the collector of first day
covers.—

A list of the first dates of sale of U. S. postage stamps issued in the past six years. Where stamps were issued in other cities on the same date as at Washington, the names of the other cities are given.

If you want to know what all the noise is about, send ten cents in stamps for a copy of the Christmas WSN. We'll send you FREE with it a copy of our sixteen page pamphlet, "The Philatelic Stamp Agency."

A BETTER BET, tho, is to take advantage of one of the two offers below. We guarantee your satisfaction, so you can't lose. If the first copy (Christmas issue) of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS, or the 1,000 variety packet, or the Government book on U. S. stamps, don't please you, you simply have to return it—or them, and back comes your dollar, plus your postage.

1000 Different Stamps Only $1.00

Think of it!! Ten different for one cent!

EXTRA ADDED ATTRACTION. Each purchaser receives FREE six months' subscription to WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS.

NO MATTER how many stamps you have, you probably will find many varieties new to your collection. And then you will have hundreds of duplicates left for trading. BE-SIDES, think of the thrills of viewing the many kinds that you never saw before. Think of the amount of pleasure you can get from sorting 1,000 different stamps. And that's what you're collecting for,—the pleasure, the recreation, that you get out of it. One little dollar's worth of stamps may supply a kick that you could not get out of several "bottles."

A Description of United States Postage Stamps and Postal Cards

The United States Government has published a fifty-four page, 6 x 9, book entitled A DESCRIPTION OF UNITED STATES POSTAGE STAMPS AND POSTAL CARDS ISSUED BY THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT FROM JULY 1, 1847, TO DECEMBER 31, 1927. As the title indicates, it contains a description of all U. S. postage stamps ever issued. It gives the dates of issue of most of them and a great abundance of other information of interest to a stamp collector. You can't imagine how much Uncle Sam has packed into this book.

This book will be supplied FREE with 20 issues of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS for only $1.00.

and any impressions on them cannot be effaced.

There has been a considerable loss to revenue as a result of the exploitation of old stamps by means of removing the impressions on them by acid, and the new issues, it is hoped, will prevent such a possibility. —Stamp Collecting.

Chile.—Relief Stamps. The recent railway accident at Alpatocal is the raison d'être for the issue of two charity stamps in aid of the victims. According to L'Echo, two telegraph stamps will be issued of 10c and 40c, the use of which will be obligatory on telegrams and cables, respectively. The surtax will be entirely devoted to the Relief Fund. Our contemporary states that the quantities will be: 10c carmine and black (4,600,000); 40c blue and black (350,000). —Philatelic Magazine.

Falkland Islands.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 1p, script, in a new bright red shade.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the 1p in a violet color, script watermark. This is a new shade for this value.

Greece.—A special set of stamps has been prepared to commemorate the centenary of the naval battle of Navarino, in which Admiral Codrington annihilated the combined Turkish and Egyptian fleets. Special festivities were held at Navarino on October 20th to celebrate the centenary of this historic battle, and we understand that two denominations of these stamps were placed on sale, 1dr 50lep and 5 drachmae, the former showing a picture of the Bay of Navarino where the naval battle took place, and the latter with a portrait of Lord Codrington. Our Athens correspondent kindly informs us that these two denominations were placed on sale at Pylos, near Navarino, on the anniversary date, but none of the series have thus far been issued to the Postal Authorities in Athens. It is expected, however, that they will be put on sale in the near future. —Whitfield King & Co.'s Philatelic Bulletin.

Norway.—Mr. Reidar Johansen and Mr. A. N. Jorstad tell us that Postage Due stamps have been withdrawn from use as from October 1st. They will either be burned, or used up as provisional postage stamps. —Gibbons' Stamp Monthly.

Portugal.—A new set of pictorial stamps to commemorate the Independence of Portugal was issued on November 29th, and their use will be compulsory on November 29th, 30th, December 1st and 2nd. The denominations are as follows:—2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 15, 16, 25, 32, 40, 48, 80, 96 centavos, Esc. 1.60 and Esc. 4.50. Twelve denominations have been overprinted for the Azores. —Whitfield King & Co.'s Philatelic Bulletin.

South West Africa.—With further reference to the 5d Transvaal Postage Due stamps with the new Afrikaans overprint "Suidwes" instead of "Zuid-west," we are officially informed that only a very small quantity of these stamps were issued and that no more are obtainable. —Whitfield King & Co.'s Philatelic Bulletin.

Sweden.—Copies of the 50 green, and 10c violet, Lion type, both perforated 10 all round, printed from a new die, are at hand from Mr. R. Roberts. These stamps are issued in booklet form.

Syria.—The appended advice from our Beyrout Special Correspondent, Mr. N. R. S. Joly, throws significant light on recent references to this French mandated territory:—

"Please note that a second printing of the 15pi stamp of Lebanon Republic has now appeared. In this printing the overprint 'REPUBLIQUE LIBANAISE' is above instead of below the surcharged value.

All the War Refugee stamps of both Syria and Lebanon have now been withdrawn from circulation, as well as the first printing of the 15pi Lebanon Republic referred to above." —Stamp Collecting.

Trans-Jordan.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Philatelic Bulletin informs us that Tunis.—We translate below the decree anent the projected Child Welfare stamps due for issue next month:—

1.—A new series of postage stamps, issued for the benefit of the Tunisian Child Welfare, will be placed on sale during the month of December, 1927.

2.—This series will be printed in taille-douce, comprising seven values, viz., 40c, 50c, 75c, 1fr, 1.50fr, 2fr, and 5fr, and will be sold at double face value, i.e., 22fr 30c the set.

3.—The issue will comprise 100,000 sets, and the Administration prohibits any increase of this number.

4.—The difference between the sale price and the postal franking value of these stamps, after deducting 1 per cent., will be devoted to the Child Welfare.

5.—Sets will be sold on demand against written order accompanied by the necessary remittance. Persons desiring to obtain sets should address their orders to the Director of Posts and Telegraphs, Tunis, sending remittance to cover cost and return postage by money order, bank notes, or draft on Tunis. No stamps will be sent unless paid for in advance, and no orders by post will be complied with after December 1, 1927.

6.—A certain quantity of sets will be kept for sale at the public counters during one day. —Stamp Collecting.

THE GREAT COMPETITION

The great International Exhibition was drawing to its close. The master minds, gathered from the four corners of the earth were in conference in the jury rooms. The experts on United States had judged all the European stamps, the great authority on Italian stamps had made the awards in U. S. Locals and Carriers as well as Patriotic covers. The two experts on British Colonies had worked hard judging the South American and Oriental collections.

They were really tired, for the Jury had not made enough entries, and some medals had to be awarded to outsiders on a basis of Dun and Bradstreet ratings. But they tackled the greatest task unflinchingly and with the nerve and animation foreign to their natures.

Outside stood and lounged a great group of spectators, with a look of feverish excitement on every face. There stood Doctor Chittenden, smiling, so rapt that he failed to hear Willard O. Wylie ask him to have a drink of pre-war stuff. Little Willie Kennett and his playmate Artie Hind were sitting together on the edge of a campstool awaiting the result with boyish excitement. "Bricktop" Colson stood with his arm draped over John Klemann's shoulder both seemingly fascinated by the closed door. Dozens of men, prominent in the markets of the world, stood, with bated breaths for the judgment to come from the Master Minds of Philately.

Sitting in a phone booth sat Charles Lathrop, rubbing his smooth shaven face, holding a direct phone connection to Buckingham Palace. Holding the wire on the other end was Sandringham, while his Majesty walked the floor with impatience, petting the Prince who had just left another horse unexpectedly.

Suddenly a thrill shot through the crowd. The door slowly opened and the crowd leaned forward for the news!

The slight figure of Al Lichtenstein became apparent, and a shaft of late afternoon sun lit up his pinched and wan face. He seemed a cherub addressing an Athenian mob.

"Gentlemen," he began in his sweet soprano voice, "to me has fallen the honor of addressing you, as perhaps the best public speaker in philatelic circles save John Luff. The members of the Jury have given deep cogitation, lucubration, reflection, speculation and 'what have you' to this award.

To begin with, no entry in this class was made by a member of the Jury, which made it very difficult to make what we consider the proper award. In a way this is unfortunate. It is now quite evident that several people and firms will now have Exhibition medals to show besides the Jury.

"Cosmopolite as I am, it gives me great pleasure to announce that America once again comes to the fore. As epoch making deeds as the swimming of the Channel by Miss Ederle, or the flight to Paris by Lindbergh pales into insignificance by the victory of the stamp hinge manufactured by the Scott Stamp and Coin Co. over the Rapkin British Peelable hinge. The Jury gives this award particularly in view of the fact that a chemical analysis proves the American hinge to have gum with a Vitamine 'D' content of over one-half of one per cent."

The roar of approval that came from the crowd shook the building so that it appeared as though Mr. Rogers had found out some one had gotten in free and was raising his voice to high heaven!

Thus ended the epic of the Exhibition! —Philatelic Smoke.

SHIP STAMPS—A SIDELINE

By OWEN C. LIMMER.

The number and variety of existing types of boat is almost infinite. Depending as they do, upon the need to be satisfied, the materials available, and the means of overcoming constructional difficulties, they range from the primitive dug-out (exactly the same as that in use many thousands of years ago), to the modern ocean liner.

The dug-out canoe, with various modifications, is met with amongst most of the native tribes of Africa, and indeed, in nearly every part of the world. On the Congo river, they take the form of very large native "barges," cut from a single tree. These canoes have been seen as much as 80 feet long by 10 feet wide. They are propelled by long poles, in much the same way as an English wherry or lighter is "quanted." The construction of such canoes as these entails enormous amount of patient labour on the part of their builders. In some cases they are hollowed out by fire; in others, the natives make use of such primitive tools as they are able to manufacture, but, by either method, the process takes many weeks to complete.

A smaller type of dug-out, used by the natives of Liberia, is made from a single cotton-wood tree, hollowed out and strengthened by cross-ribs. So light are these canoes, that they are unsinkable, even when filled with water. They can thus be navigated with ease over the roughest surf, with the aid of single-bladed paddles.

The canoes of the Ivory Coast (French West Africa), are another example of the simple dug-out. The lack of stability of this type of canoe in all but the calmest waters, led to the use of the "outrigger," a piece of wood fastened parallel to the side of the canoe by means of two or more long poles. This device, of course, preserves the balance, and allows of heavier weights being carried than would otherwise be possible. The outrigger is used chiefly in connection with sailing-craft, but examples of its use on paddling canoes are shown on the stamps of New Caledonia.

The war canoe of the Solomon Islanders is a much more elaborate affair, skilfully built of planks, sewn together and caulked. The high curved bow and stern give the craft almost a crescent shape. These, and the gunwale, are tastefully inlaid with mother-of-pearl, and wreathed with shells and feathers.

The gondola, the characteristic conveyance of the canals of Venice, may also be classed with the canoes. It is a flat-bottomed boat, some 30 feet long by 4 or 5 feet wide, with curved and ornamented bow and stern pieces. It is propelled by a single oar over the stern, and has usually a small cabin for passengers. The boats referred to on the Italian stamps are not strictly gondolas, but are boats of a similar type, used on the Italian lakes.

Native sailing craft, like the canoes, are numberless in design, ranging from the ordinary canoe type fitted with mast and sail, to regularly built "ships." The

"caique," a light boat of shallow draft, is common on the rivers of Turkey, and over Eastern Europe generally.

The boat shown on the South American lake, Titicaca, appears to belong to the first class mentioned above, i.e., a canoe with sail attached. No rudder is fitted to such craft, the steering being effected by means of a paddle.

On Lake Nyassa, the largest inland sea of Africa, are found larger sailing craft, of similar type to the Arab "dhow." They are of about 150 to 200 tons burden, and exceedingly good sailors.

The war canoes of the Polynesian races are illustrated on the stamps of New Zealand. The native Maoris of New Zealand are of Polynesian descent, their tribal tradition asserting that they first arrived in that country about 500 years ago, from "Hawaiki" (probably Samoa) in six war canoes. The arrival of the first of these canoes is depicted on the New Zealand commemorative stamp of 1906. The canoes were of large size, capable of carrying 100 or more persons, and were well built up of planks fitted or sewn together, caulked and pitched; the triangular sails were of matting. The larger canoes are now no longer built, but various smaller kinds are in use. The Maoris are skilled wood carvers, and decorate most of their vessels with carvings.

The "catamaran," or surf-boat, is seen everywhere on the Madras coast. It is steadied by outriggers on either side, and is capable of considerable speeds. Various views of the vessel are shown on the stamps of Zanzibar.

The "felucca" is one of the fastest and largest sailing-boats of the Mediterranean. It is undecked, and has high bows and a raking sternpost. The rig consists of one, or two masts, with lateen sails, and a jib. Riding low in the water, it is also suited for rowing, and in fact is a development of the "galley" of the middle ages. These vessels are now used chiefly as fishing boats.

Further East, throughout the Arabian and red Seas and the Persian Gulf, the typical sailing vessel is the Arab "Dhow." It has plenty of beam, an overhanging stem and transom stern, and one mast with lateen sail, the yard being of enormous length. The double planking, over a wooden frame, conduces to dryness and great durability. The "gyassa" follows this type closely in build and rig, but is larger.

The "proa" is the typical vessel of the Malay peoples. The stem and stern are exactly similar in shape, but the weather-side of the boat is rounded, whilst the lee-side is flat. The enormous triangular sails are made of fine matting; the oars are usually manned by slaves. An extra
